The new military developments came as Castillo and his cabinet considered a Chamber of Deputies resolution asking for the expulsion of alleged ringleaders of Nazi activity, among whom Damonte Taborda's committee has included the German Ambassador, Edmund von Thermann.

Informed quarters said Castillo also would ask his ministers to consider a Berlin press attack on Argentina which was provoked by the committee's charges.

German Leaves For Argentina

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 24 (AP) — Informed sources reported tonight that Freiderich von Schulz-Hausmann, former manager for the North German Lloyd Line in Chile, had departed by airliner for Buenos Aires to take up residence.

He took along 25 pieces of luggage.

Chile Protests to Reich Against Arrest of Six

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 24 (AP).—The Foreign Ministry said today Chile had protested to Germany against the arrest of four Chileans the Germans said were being held in Paris and two Chileans held in Vienna on charges of anti-German activities.

Hull Says Argentina Asks No Help In Checking Plot

Washington, Sept. 24 (AP)—Secretary Hull said today that Argentina had not made any request to the United States under an agreement in which all of the American nations had made pledges of cooperation in combating subversive activities in any of the countries.

The Secretary made his statement in reply to questions as to whether he could provide any information on news from Buenos Aires that Argentine troops had occupied all military airports in the country, apparently as a precaution against an uprising against the Government.

The question of subversive activities, Hull said, had been one of the outstanding questions discussed at the Havana conference and pledges of cooperation had been made by all of the American nations.

14 Reported Killed In Mexican Troops' Clash With Workers

Employes of War Plants Stopped in March to Interview President

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 24.—From 4 to 14 persons were declared today to have been killed in a clash of Mexican troops and aggrieved munitions workers who sought a mass interview with President Manuel Avila Camacho.

Avila Camacho, former Army general, expressed regret at the incident which caused gunfire yesterday on the Avenue del Castillo in fashionable Chapultepec Heights, and ordered an immediate investigation.

An authorized source said four workers were killed and 6 wounded. Other reports placed the toll as high as 14 dead and dozens wounded. Among the dead was listed Guillermo Rojas, secretary-general of the workers' syndicate.

Parade Emphasized Charges.

Munitions workers had been demanding removal of Gen. Luis Bobadilla Camberos, director of the war plants, and paraded toward the President's home to emphasize charges that:

1. The director had conspired with labor leaders who had been ousted by their own union to give the impression that the workers were Communists.
2. He had injured the quality of munitions productions by farming out contracts to incompetents.
3. The ousted union leaders had attacked the President's international policies (which include cooperation in hemispheric defense and betterment of relations with the United States) in the union publication.

The official account said 200 workers made the march. Others asserted that more than 1,000 participated.

Tried to Disarm Soldiers.

Spectators said soldiers guarding the President's house blocked the path, that the workers attempted to disarm them and the troops then fired. Rojas was said to have been shot in an attempt to disarm Col. Maximano Ochoa, commander of the guard.

The Federation of Government Employes, with which the munitions workers are affilited, issued a statement describing the clash before the President's home as "a nameless crime" and urging Mexican labor to "raise a solemn protest, demanding exemplary punishment" for those responsible.

The statement said federation officials were confident the President would "know how to see that justice is done."

Costa Rica Agrees To German Demand After Second Request

San Jose, Costa Rica, Sept. 24 (AP)—Costa Rica agreed today to withdraw her consuls from German-occupied countries in response to repeated German demands.

The first demand for withdrawal was received August 29. Costa Rica refused to act and another demand was received September 10. The Costa Rican closing order becomes effective September 30, a month after the date originally set by Germany.

Mexico Unionists Plan Demonstration For Dead

Propose Public Display To Protest Shooting Of Six Men By Troops

Mexico City, Sept. 25 (AP)—An urgent meeting of union leaders drew plans tonight for a giant public demonstration of protest against the shooting of six munitions workers in a clash with Mexican troops yesterday.

Nine others were wounded when troops guarding President Avila Camacho's home fired on 1,000 workers who sought a mass interview with the President. Bodies of the slain workers were on display at headquarters of the railway union.

Avila Camacho expressed concern that the clash might undermine the people's faith in the army as their "genuine armed representation" and blamed the incident on "lack of serenity and foresight" on the part of the troops.

Mexicans Minimizes Clash.

Akron, Ohio, Sept. 24 (A. P.).—Demonstrations in Mexico "are no more representative of the general industrial situation than are United States labor disputes," former President Abelardo L. Rodriguez of Mexico declared today.

Gen. Rodriguez, a guest of William O'Neill, president of the General Tire & Rubber Company, said that the domestic front in Mexico was calm and united behind President Camacho.

"Mexico stands united with the United States against Nazi aggression," he asserted.

U. S. MAY ALLOW VESSELS TO SAIL INTO WAR ZONES

Roosevelt is Expected To Ask for Virtual Repeal of Neutrality Act

Connally Urges Restrictions Be Scrapped Because Nazi U-Boats Strike Any Place

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24—There were strong indications today that President Roosevelt would request virtual repeal of the neutrality act next week, and Senator Connally (D-Tex) said he believed American ships should be able to sail the high seas to any port in the world.

Mr. Roosevelt indicated at a press conference yesterday he would ask that the act be changed to permit the arming of American merchant vessels. He said that he was seeking to decide in conferences with advisers to what extent the law might be overhauled.

SEP 25 1941

In addition, it was reported on Capitol Hill that Administration officials were urging the President to recommend also the elimination of the provisions preventing American ships from entering belligerent ports or "combat areas" defined in Presidential proclamations.

Says Purpose Failed

Connally, chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, predicted that "the neutrality act will be amended in important respects," and added in a statement that it might be completely repealed except that it carries some desirable provisions, such as that providing for government control over munitions exports.

"The prohibition against American ships going into combat zones was predicated on the theory that if they remained out of the combat zones the Nazi submarines would not attack them or sink them," Connally declared. "That belief has proven illusory.

"They (the Germans) attacked and sunk the Robin Moor, flying the American flag, and a submarine attacked the destroyer Greer. Neither vessel was in a combat zone. If the Nazis in their ruthlessness are to attack our ships wherever they may be found there is no reason why we should continue to observe combat areas.

No Rights Waived

"The restrictions which we imposed on American shipping in combat zones are in derogation of our rights under international law. Our ships, under the law of nations, have the right to go anywhere on the high seas."

Connally recalled that the latest neutrality act, approved in November, 1939, carried a preamble declaring that this country was waiving none of its own rights or privileges, or those of any of its nationals, under international law." The preamble, sponsored by Connally, added that this government "expressly reserves the right to repeal, change or modify this joint resolution (neutrality act) * * * in the interests of the peace, security or welfare of the United States and its people."

Connally said that arming American merchant ships was "desirable" and added:

"If Nazi submarines, raiders, and aircraft are to attack our ships on the high seas where they have a legal right to travel, our ships ought to have the right to carry arms in their necessary self-defense. I am prepared to sponsor an amendment authorizing the arming of our merchant ships and feel sure that it will receive the approval of Congress."

Okay of Arming Forecast

Speaker Rayburn predicted that the House would approve arming the merchant craft.

"There probably will be a lot of fighting and scratching around, but it ought to pass," Rayburn told his press conference.

Asked about modification of the neutrality act in general, Rayburn said, "There's not much left after you take arming of merchant ships out of it."

Mr. Roosevelt was expected to discuss his forthcoming message with legislative leaders early next week, and send it to Congress next Wednesday or Thursday.

Meantime Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, appeared before a House appropriations sub-committee in executive session. Committee members, who declined to be quoted by name, said Stark produced figures on shipping losses which demonstrated that the Navy's new "shoot on sight" policy would not alone be sufficient to keep the sea lanes to Britain open.

The naval chief was reported to have said that still greater expenditures would be necessary for both merchant ships to make up for losses and for corvettes, torpedo boats, and similar anti-submarine craft to help the British wipe out the undersea menace.

Stark testified on the naval phases of the $5,985,000,000 second lend-lease appropriation bill and some members asserted his picture of the shipping losses was a gloomy one. Others contended that he did not indicate any substantial change in the situation.

"They just want an extension of the original program," one member said.

ARMING MERCHANT SHIPS A VAST JOB

White House is Studying Problem Affecting 1,600 American Vessels

SEP 25 1941

By The Associated Press

Washington, Sept. 24.—The arming of American merchantmen today became the next probable move in the shoot-on-sight campaign to make the "defensive waters" of the United States an unhealthy hunting ground for Axis raiders.

It would necessitate modification of the much-debated Neutrality Act, and it might eventually involve the stupendous technical job of furnishing guns and gun crews for more than 1,600 ships—two problems that are receiving careful study at the White House.

President Roosevelt, however, told his press conference yesterday that a decision on the Neutrality Act probably would be forthcoming next week, and he hinted strongly at its nature, in one respect, when he said the United States probably was headed toward the arming of its merchant marine.

Mr. Roosevelt bracketed that hint with the statement that everything would be done to protect American shipping — an assertion that was quickly endorsed by Senator Austin, of Vermont, the assistant Republican leader, who has consistently supported the Administration's foreign policy.

Urges United Support

Emphasizing that he was speaking as an individual, Austin told reporters that there ought to be united national support of any move to bring about outright repeal of the Neutrality Act.

Austin's attitude, however, was not shared by Senator Tobey (R-NH).

Tobey charged that the "Neutrality Act is being evaded and avoided at every turn," and he said the arming of merchant ships would be only "another of a sequence of events that are bringing us into active warfare."

The question of arming ships and modifying the Neutrality Act arose at Mr. Roosevelt's press conference yesterday during a discussion of the sinking of the S. S. Pink Star—an American-owned ship operating under the flag of Panama — which went down in the North Atlantic Friday night.

The Chief Executive contributed some additional details on the ship's loss. He said she had been the victim of a submarine some 275 miles northeast of Cape Farewell, the southernmost tip of Greenland, while traveling in a Canadian convoy. The State Department later announced that 23 survivors of the crew of 34 had reached Iceland in good condition.

The Pink Star, Mr. Roosevelt disclosed, had been armed, and he said that other American-owned ships operating under Panamanian registry also had been given guns. The Neutrality Act prohibits the arming of ships flying the United States flag, but the restriction does not apply to American-owned ships operated under non-American registry.

Arming of Vessels

The discussion then turned to the arming of American flag vessels. One newspaperman cited a recent statement by Secretary of the Navy Knox that insufficient guns were available. Mr. Roosevelt agreed that this was true if the entire merchant marine were considered, but he indicated plainly that he believed enough weapons were on hand for the ships plying dangerous waters.

Early this session Rear Admiral W. R. Furlong, then Chief of Naval Ordnance, told a Congressional committee that the Navy had a considerable — though inadequate — number of three-inch and other light guns on the shelf, available for arming merchantmen.

U. S. and Britain Discuss Lend-Lease Repayments

Seek to Determine 'How, What and When' of Returns

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP).—Lend-lease officials said today they were negotiating with Great Britain and other countries to determine the "how, what and when" of repayments for land-lease aid, but no specific arrangements had been completed.

Saying that the lend-lease act permits repayment by return of the lend-lease articles themselves or of similar articles or anything else of value, one official questioned the wisdom of making any definite arrangements at the present time. Another said that, in the case of Britain, the United States already is getting a type of payment when the British pass on their military secrets.

Neither official desired to be quoted by name at this time. They agreed, however, that there was no intention to negotiate payment for each batch of airplanes or rifles. Instead, some over-all agreement may be reached with each country some day.

State Department officials were reported to be preparing a statement to make on this point when they testify before Congressional Committees soon on the President's new request for a $6,000,000,000 lend-lease appropriation.

Mystery of Pink Star's Gun.

Washington, Sept 24 (A. P.).—Where the steamship Pink Star got the gun with which it was armed when it was torpedoed off Iceland last Friday remained an official mystery after Secretary of State Hull's press conference today. Asked whether he could say where the weapon came from the Secretary replied that if the question were sufficiently intriguing he would have to inquire in various quarters himself, and then he did not know whether he would find out.

The Pink Star was owned by the United States Government but had been transferred to Panamanian registry. (The neutrality act forbids the arming of a merchant ship flying the United States flag, and prevents such a ship from entering combat zones).

Maritime Commission officials estimated today that approximately 125 American-owned ships now are registered in Panama. About eighty-five of them are owned by American companies, and the remaining forty by the Maritime Commission.

Germany Sees No Reason To Alter Its War Rules

Berlin, Sept. 24 (AP)—Prospective arming of United States merchant ships provoked the comment from an authorized German spokesman today that Germany sees no need to change her principles of sea warfare.

While the German conviction that the American neutrality law soon would be altered in important respects commanded extensive notice in Berlin, there was not the slightest sign that the Reich would deviate in any way from its policy of striving to "sink anything bringing aid to England."

The spokesman said that President Roosevelt's statements on the sinking of the freighter Pink Star confirmed that Germany acted according to international law in torpedoing the American-owned vessel last Friday east of Greenland.

"Perfectly Correct"

"Roosevelt, by his description of the incident, himself revealed the perfectly correct procedure of the German submarine," he added.

The former Danish ship admittedly was armed, was convoyed by enemy (Canadian) craft and flew the flag of Panama, this source pointed out.

In claiming that it was immaterial whether such a ship were armed or what flag it flew, German sources declared that Roosevelt "is trying to establish Wild West justice, not international law."

SEP 25 1941

Press Denunciation

The Berlin press used the sharpest terms to denounce the President's latest observations.

"Roosevelt is running amok," said the Nachtausgabe.

"Roosevelt proceeds to new, increasingly aggravating provocations drop by drop," said the Algemeine Zeitung. It added that it expected repeal or radical change in the neutrality law soon, saying, "Roosevelt has laid hand to the ax with which to break down legal restraint to his caprice."

Roosevelt Confirms Sinking of Pink Star Was Legal, Nazis Say

Ship Was Part of Enemy Formation by Accepting Convoy, They Declare

SEP 25 1941

By the Associated Press

BERLIN, Sept. 24.—President Roosevelt's statements concerning the freighter Pink Star merely confirm that Germany acted according to international law in torpedoing the vessel, authorized German sources declared today.

The ship was armed, was convoyed by enemy craft and carried the flag of Panama, not of the United States, they stated.

"Whoever accepts an enemy convoy thereby becomes a constituent part of an enemy formation," these sources said.

"Roosevelt, by his description of the incident, himself revealed the perfectly correct procedure of the German submarine."

(The Pink Star, an American-owned former Danish vessel, was sunk Friday night in the Atlantic some 275 miles northeast of Cape Farewell, Greenland, while traveling in a Canadian convoy, President Roosevelt said yesterday at a press conference. She was armed, he said.)

German sources asserted that Mr. Roosevelt, in claiming it was immaterial whether such a ship as the Pink Star were armed or unarmed or what flag it flew, "is trying to establish wild west justice, not international law."

They said, "the American President speaks of pirates. For us, pirates are those who impair or prevent normal trade between countries not at war with each other. England is the pirate."

Axis Ships Will Defend Selves, Gayda Warns

ROME, Sept. 24 (AP).—Axis ships will defend themselves against any armed United States merchantmen they meet "on their courses," the Fascist Editor Virginio Gayda wrote today in Giornale d'Italia.

Arming of United States merchantment, Gayda said, would be a new step toward war. In the same category he listed what he said was a contract with Ecuador for a base on the Galapgos Islands in the Pacific.

"Armed merchant ships of the United States, transforming themselves into warcraft, take offensive attitudes which cannot escape necessary defense of Axis ships," he wrote.

NAZIS REPORT FIGHTING WAY INTO LENINGRAD

Troops Declared Battling Through Streets Of City's Outskirts

SEP 25 1941

Swarms Of Bombers Declared Dropping Their Heaviest Explosives

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Thursday, Sept. 25—German troops are fighting in the streets of Leningrad suburbs supported by swarms of bombers dropping the "heaviest types" of projectiles, the Germans reported.

Ground troops were said to have pressed doggedly forward after smashing Russian defenders out of at least two villages in the outskirts.

Level flight and dive bombers attacked troop concentrations, bunkers and artillery positions with the "bloodiest losses" to the Russians, it was asserted. One heavy bomb was said to have hit the center of a Russian barracks.

Situation "Hopeless"

Military quarters said the report that that the Germans had smashed their way so far forward showed "the situation of the encircled Soviet troops is becoming more and more hopeless."

The Germans said the Russian defense at Leningrad was weakening and declared the food situation in the city was bound to become critical. They made no prediction, however, on the possible length of Russian resistance there.

One German infantry unit was said to have advanced until activity in part of the dock region was clearly visible through binoculars.

Attacks Decreasing

The dispatches said Leningrad's defenders still were throwing themselves upon the Germans in counter-attack after counter-attack, but these were described as decreasing steadily in intensity.

DNB declared "it is to be expected Leningrad and its population will suffer the fate of Warsaw."

The news service expressed the opinion bombardment of the city and bitter street-to-street fighting would be necessary because of Russian determined to make a last-ditch stand.

Germans were told the mopping up of Soviet forces trapped east of Kiev was proceeding methodically, with the encircled Russians split into two tightly-held rings and reduced to impotence by chaotic disorganization.

End In Few Days Seen

The high command declared confidently that the trapped troops would be destroyed within a few days.

Dispatches dealt at length with widespread operations of the German air force, said to range from continued battering of the Red army's defense ring around Leningrad and last night's renewed bombing of industries at Moscow to smashing blows south of Kharkov in the Donets basin.

German bombers scouted the Baltic Sea and Gulf of Finland for Russian warships. The high command declared direct hits were scored on battleships and a destroyer off Kronstadt, guarding the sea approach to Leningrad.

Claim Warships Silenced

German batteries were said to have silenced two warships, which turned their guns in defense of Leningrad. Another Red warship was reported set afire two days ago at Oesel Island.

Other German sources said the old but heavily armed 23,606-ton battleship Marat was left sinking in the Gulf of Finland near where her sister ship, the Okaiabrskaya-Revolutia, was said to be still visible, partly submerged, after a bombing last week.

In operations far to the north German bombers reported disabling a large Russian power station along Kandalakscha Bay, off the White Sea, smashing a dam and spilling the water from a large reservoir.

Nazis Claim 2 Towns Taken, Troops Can See Leningrad

Today's German Communiqué On Page 12

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Sept. 24—German troops have stormed two villages just outside Leningrad and fought their way to within sight of part of the great port city's dock section, dispatches from the front declared today.

Red army defenders of Leningrad were said to be keeping up counter-attacks in swift succession, but the German dispatches said these seemed to be losing force.

The high command declared Russian forces in the trap east of Kiev had been split into two tightly encircled groups facing annihilation, perhaps within the next few days.

Warsaw Fate Threatened

DNB expressed the opinion that bombardment of Leningrad and house-to-house fighting of the bitterest character would be necessary to subdue the city, repeating previous German assertions that "it is to be expected that Leningrad and its population will suffer the fate of Warsaw."

The news agency added that conditions under which 4,500,000 persons were crowded together in Leningrad "must daily become more gruesome."

No Surrender Expected

German spokesmen said they expected no capitulation but that "responsibility for what happens lies with the Russians."

The Germans reported chaos among the Russians within the encirclements east of Kiev.

"In the area east of Kiev," said the daily war bulletin, "further sections of the enemy were annihilated yesterday. The remainder have been concentrated into two closely encircled pockets, an air photograph of which testifies to chaotic conditions."

The high command reported that the air force made effective night attacks on military objectives both at Moscow and hard-pressed Leningrad.

(A Berlin broadcast heard in London claimed capture of a "fair sized" but otherwise unidentified city by a German division on the Leningrad front after a hard house-to-house fight.)

In a continuation of the air force's pounding of Russian warships on both the Black and Baltic Sea, the war bulletin said direct hits were scored on battleships and a destroyer in the waters off Kronstadt, the Soviet naval base guarding the water approach to Leningrad.

Other German sources said the 23,606-ton Russian battleship Marat was left in a sinking condition in the Gulf of Finland. The Marat is of the same class as the battleship Oktiabrskaya-Revolutia (October Revolution), which the Germans reported having hit in bombing attacks. Both have normal crews of 1,125 men.

Three German air bombs delivered the death blows to the Marat, it was said, after two previous hits September 18 had inflicted serious damage requiring that she be towed to an undisclosed port.

The Oktiabrskaya-Revolutia, her bow submerged, was said also to be lying in a harbor on the Gulf of Finland.

An unidentified Soviet battleship and another warship were said to have turned their guns on German positions outside Leningrad yesterday. Heavy German batteries answered so effectively, these reports said, that both Soviet ships ceased firing.

Another warship of the Red Fleet was said to have been set afire and left unmaneuverable two days ago when it tried to approach German coastal batteries set up on Oesel, newly-captured fortified island guarding the entrance to the Finnish Gulf.

Fighting Fierce at Leningrad

The magnitude of the great victory claimed by the Germans east of Kiev was swelled by reports that the count of Soviet prisoners was nearing half a million, but the Nazis acknowledged the Russians still were offering the bitterest resistance on other sectors of the front.

Particularly fierce fighting was reported in the Leningrad area, where the Red Army was said to be contesting the German advance foot by foot, while Soviet naval units guarding the sea approaches to the city fought a continuing battle with the German air force.

There were no definite reports of progress around the besieged Black Sea port of Odessa, but German air squadrons, ranging far ahead of Nazi columns east of the Lower Dnieper, were said to be blasting the Crimea and the area around Kharkov, industrial center of the Donets Basin.

D.N.B. declared that 150 railway cars had been destroyed in one raid on a station near Kharkov. A trainload of gasoline was reported set afire in another attack there.

The press continued to stress the importance of operations east of Kiev.

Typical was the comment of the Boersen Zeitung, which declared:

"The war of annihilation east of Kiev lays the foundations for further operations, the aim of which will be the final destruction of Soviet fighting power."

The paper added that "cautious judgment of the entire situation justifies the conclusion that Soviet resistance in this engagement was neither so hard nor so lasting as in the first great battles" at Bialystok, Minsk and Smolensk.

German papers reported that "foreign legionnaires" from many European countries had fought on the German side at Kiev.

ATTACK HALTED AT MURMANSK, MOSCOW SAYS

SEP 25 1941

75 German Planes Reported Downed At Cost Of 25 To Russians

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, Sept. 24—Delegates to the British-United States Russian war supply conference arrived in Moscow today.

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, Thursday, Sept. 25—Soviet troops smashed a new German offensive against the far northern ice-free port of Murmansk and fought back stubbornly along the whole front, the Russians said today.

Dispatches from the northern front to the official military organ Red Star said Murmansk, one of the most important harbors in European Russia, was still in Soviet hands.

The early Thursday communique said fighting continued along the entire front and reported seventy-five German planes shot down for a loss of twenty-five Red aircraft Tuesday. Soviet patrol boats were said to have sunk a German transport in the Gulf of Finland.

Report Gain At Leningrad

Besides announcing failure of the Nazi campaign to seal all of Russia's European gateways to aid from abroad, Red Star said defenders of Leningrad had beaten the Germans farther back by recapture of a position on the city's approaches. Nazi attempts to retake the position were said to have been broken.

The Russians also announced that 14 German ships including transports and one Finnish ship were sunk recently but did not give the scene of the action which could have occurred off Murmansk or in the Gulf of Finland near Leningrad.

Several other transports and some torpedo boats were said to have been damaged.

SEP 25 1941

Moreover, military informants reported the Red counter-offensive at the center still unchecked, and said that far to the south about Odessa attacking units of two Rumanian infantry divisions had again been driven back in wild disorder.

Two German regiments were reported destroyed by Marshal Timoshenko's forces on the eastern bank of the upper Dvina, some 200 miles due west of Moscow. These regiments, said by Red Star to be the two hundred and thirty-third and two hundred and thirty-fifth, were reported routed in a four-day conflict, leaving more than 2,500 dead on the battlefield.

Murmansk Fight Continues

The long and bitter struggle for Murmansk was said to be continuing, with the initiative in Russian hands. The first German offensive began in July, but the Germans were on the defensive through the whole of August.

Second Drive by Nazis

Reinforced by Blackshirt battalions and mountain regiments transferred from Norway, the Nazis opened their second offensive, in which they lost 800 dead in the first day's action and at least 2,000 by mid-September.

In the lower Ukraine, heavy and inconclusive fighting was reported during the day before the gateway to the Crimea.

It was declared that strongly fortified Soviet positions near Kherson, a town on the Dnieper river near the Black Sea (and far to the west of the most extended lines claimed by the Germans) were breasting violent German assaults.

Claim Break Through Stopped

At one point, it was acknowledged that the Germans had momentarily broken through, but it was added that after Soviet reinforcements had been brought up the invaders were thrown back with losses of 1,500 in killed alone.

As to the area protecting the industrial Donets river basin, where the southern Russian armies were reorganizing in an attempt to hold the strongest of all the Nazi offenses, there was frankly expressed Russian concern. Beyond the Donets lie the bases from which the Germans might seek to spring upon the Caucasian oil fields and the Allied supply route through Iran.

Russian accounts stressed that the Soviet Baltic and Black Sea Fleets, particularly the former, were still in heavy offensive action. Naval planes supporting the Leningrad ground defenders reported the destruction of two German anti-aircraft batteries and fourteen armored cars.

German planes attempting to raid Moscow last night and early today were beaten off by anti-aircraft batteries and night fighters, it was officially announced today. None of the German raiders reached the city, it was said. The alarm, from 9 P. M. until 2:45 A. M., was the longest of the war.

[Official word came from London that the RAF was in action on the Russian front and that a single squadron in its first engagement knocked down seven German planes with the loss of only one British fighter.

[This squadron was part of a complete British wing rushed to the Eastern Front.]

Second German Effort To Capture Murmansk Thwarted, Reds Say

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Sept. 24.—The complete failure of a second German attempt to capture Murmansk, Russia's ice-free port in the Arctic, was reported today by Red Star, organ of the Russian Army.

The Germans' second offensive in the Far North began after the arrival of reinforcements early in September, Red Star said.

The drive was wrecked, with the Germans losing 2,000 killed between September 8 and 15, the paper declared. It indicated, however, that fighting in that sector was continuing.

The first Nazi drive against Murmansk was launched in July, but Red Star said the bitter resistance of the Red Army compelled the invaders to remain on the defensive throughout August.

Reinforcements From Norway.

Red Star said German reinforcements were transferred from Norway and included two SS—Blackshirt—battalions and the 110th, 136th and 137th Mountain Troop Regiments.

The Nazis lost 800 dead in the first day of fighting of the September offensive and the 88th German Infantry Regiment was routed, it declared.

Soviet warplanes matched power with the German air force throughout the entire fighting, the newspaper added.

The Red Army organ reported that the defenders of Leningrad were advancing to new positions on the front outside Leningrad over a battlefield strewn with the corpses of German soldiers.

The Soviet Information Bureau at the same time told of fresh successes in the counter-drive on the central front, one aim of which is to relieve pressure on Marshal Semeon Budyenny's forces now reforming in the Ukraine for defense of the industrial Donets River basin.

Red Star said a day-long assault on positions held by the 136th German Infantry Division ended with recapture of point "D" on the approaches to Leningrad.

Tank Assaults Repulsed.

German counterattacks, all supported by tanks, were repulsed and large-scale Nazi attacks southeast of Leningrad also failed, the besiegers being driven back to their original positions after brief but fierce encounters, Red Star said.

Naval flyers of Russia's Baltic fleet, supporting land forces in the battle of Leningrad, were said to have destroyed two German anti-aircraft batteries, 11 anti-aircraft machine guns, 14 armored cars and eight guns.

On the southern flank, Red Star reported heavy fighting for point "N," near Kherson, on the Dnieper near the Black Sea between Odessa and the gateway to the Crimea. The Russians are defending strongly fortified positions against German assaults, it said.

Penetration Acknowledged.

On one unspecified front, the Germans were acknowledged to have penetrated the Russian line. These reports, however, declared reinforcements were rushed up and the invaders were thrown back after a day-long battle, having lost 1,500 in killed.

At the approaches to Odessa, Russia's other great city under German siege, defense forces were said to have routed units of the Rumanian 13th and 15th Infantry Divisions.

A Berlin declaration that four Russian armies had been encircled east of captured Kiev was officially denied.

S. A. Lozovsky, vice commissar of foreign affairs, made the denial at a press conference, but frankly expressed concern at the possibilities of the German drive towards the Donets Basin and the key cities of Kharkov and Rostov.

Success of the German thrust, he said, would reduce Russian industrial capacity and provide a jumping-off point for an offensive against the Caucasian petroleum fields—which supply nine-tenths of the U. S. S. R.'s ordinary oil needs—and the British-Russian supply route through Iran.

With blackout restrictions newly modified, Moscow was raided by German bombers last night.

A communique said that only two pierced the city's defenses, however, to drop small explosives and a few fire bombs. Lights of the city squares and main streets, glowing for the first time since the war began, were extinguished quickly at the approach of the raiders and were not turned on again until after the three-hour alarm had ended at midnight.

Dispatches from the front reported that the Russian forces had taken the initiative in a series of engagements from the Smolensk zone to the arctic.

Lozovsky said that the battle of Leningrad "has assumed such proportions that, in the number of participants and casualties, it is unequaled, even in this war." The Germans were declared to have lost 50,000 men there, in dead, wounded and captured.

The Soviet Information Bureau said that more than 2,500 Germans were killed in a four days' engagement in which Russian units defeated two regiments of the 102d German infantry division and forced the remnants across the Dvina River. A Russian detachment was declared to have killed 150 men of a Finnish unit and to have captured important staff documents as well as arms.

7 Nazi Planes Credited To R. A. F. Unit in Soviet

LONDON, Sept. 24 (AP).—The R. A. F. has gone into action at the side of the Russians on the eastern front and in its first engagement one squadron has destroyed seven German Messerschmitt planes with the loss of only one fighter, the Air Ministry announced today.

A communique told of patrols flown in bad weather over the long eastern front and "successful encounters with enemy fighters."

The communique said:

"Reports now have been received of the first operations carried out by R. A. F. units now in the U. S. S. R.

"A number of patrols have been flown in bad weather and there have been successful encounters with enemy fighters. In the first engagement one of our squadrons destroyed three ME 109s with a loss of one of our fighters, the pilot of which was killed.

"The same squadron later destroyed four ME 109s without loss to themselves. The wing is commanded by Wing Comdr. H. N. G. Ramsbottom-Isherwood, A. F. C., and included officers and men from Great Britain, Canada, Australia and New Zealand."

Reds Claim Air Gain

With the Red Army at the Central Front, Sept. 24 (AP)—Red air force pilots claim domination of the air over the central sector of the German-Russian front through smashing of about 1,940 German planes since the start of the Battle of Smolensk.

By air duels, anti-aircraft fire and raids upon German-held airdromes, they declared, German pilots assigned to the sector have been forced into comparative inactivity.

Sees Few Nazi Craft

During a tour of the Smolensk area, one bombing plane and two observation craft were the only signs I saw of the German air force.

Russian planes showed intense activity. Low-flying biplanes were almost always in evidence on patrol and communications missions. High-flying fighters and bombers sped to and from German lines.

I visited an airport where ten fast new planes had just returned from a raid on an airdrome at Smolensk. The youthful pilots, bundled in fur-lined flying suits, said they had set from twelve to fifteen fires.

Views German Wreckage

Lieut. Alexei Rodin, 19-year-old pilot, glanced at a shell hole in the red star on the right wing of his plane and shrugged.

"That gave us a pretty good shaking," he said.

Around the Soviet airport lay the wrecks of three German planes, downed on raiding missions.

"Our air force at the present time is master of this sector," an officer said.

Finnish Fliers Blast Leningrad

HELSINKI, Sept. 24 (AP).—Finnish airmen, in combats over Leningrad, have shot down seven Russian fighter planes and one bomber and scored many direct bomb hits on the Leningrad railway station, the Finns officially announced tonight.

Finns Capture Power Plant

[By the Associated Press]

Helsinki, Sept. 24—The Finnish Government announced today that Finnish troops had occupied the Svir river power station No. 2, which the Russians had used to provide current for beleaguered Leningrad.

Finns crossed the canalized stream linking Lakes Onega and Ladoga to overcome heavy Soviet resistance, it was declared, and two officers made a daring dash to defuse explosives which the defenders had set to blow up the power dam.

Capture of valuable machinery, including thirty Diesel motors, also was reported.

BRITAIN WARNS FINNS ON WAR

London, Sept. 24 (A. P.).—Great Britain was reliably reported today to have informed Finland she would regard the Finns as open enemies if they pushed beyond the old Russo-Finnish frontier into Russia. The suggestion was said to have been made that Anglo-Finnish relations could be improved if Finnish offensive operations were halted.

Informed spokesmen said the British Government disagreed with the Finnish attitude that Finland's fight with Russia should be regarded as separate from the main conflict in Europe. Britain was reported to have consulted the Russian Government before taking this stand.

HELSINKI, Finland, Sept. 24 (AP)—Britain's note on her relations with Finland in connection with the Russo-Finnish war has been received through a representative of a foreign power, it was learned tonight, and will be published with Finland's reply "in due course."

(London sources said today Britain had warned Finland that she would be regarded as an open enemy if the Finns persisted in invading Russian territory beyond the old 1939 frontier. Helsinki and London have thus far only broken relations.)

London, Sept. 24-(AP)-The Berlin radio today reported that German forces on the Leningrad front had captured a "fair-sized town." Neither its name nor precise location on the northern front was given.

ANKARA, Turkey, Sept. 24 (AP)—The return to Turkey of German Ambassador Franz von Papen after a three-week absence led foreigners today to believe Germany was continuing her gloved treatment of this country, at least temporarily, despite insistent rumors that real military concessions soon would be demanded.

In Istanbul, however, axis and axis-allied quarters freely predicted that Von Papen would adopt a more forceful attitude here to combat the strong strategic position held in the Near East by Britain and Russia since the occupation of Iran and Syria and the pacification of Iraq.

Also in Ankara, in a limited number of both foreign and Turkish quarters, belief was expressed that the axis might soon demand passage for Italian warships through the Dardanelles in one guise or another to help protect German supply lines in the Black sea area.

The Turks have made it known that they would consider even such a request as an unfriendly act while the Turkish papers have constantly asserted Turkey would let no belligerent vessel through the straits.

The press has stated specifically that Turkey would not accede to such a ruse as sale of Italian warships to Bulgaria, which is technically non-belligerent.

SERIOUS LABOR SHORTAGE SEEN INSIDE REICH

Ankara Hears Hitler Is Grabbing Men For Work In Factories

War On Russia Termed Reason For Need Of More Employes

By [illegible]

[By the Associated Press]

Ankara, Sept. 24—Enough evidence is accumulating of a serious labor shortage in Germany to indicate that her pressure on Bulgaria may be directed less at getting that nation into the war against Russia than at winning help in the war against lagging Axis production.

Official and unofficial reports trickling out of occupied Europe indicate that Adolf Hitler is grabbing at all men within reach, to put them into the German factories or to push them up to the Russian front so as to lessen the need of sending more German munitions workers to the army.

Germany's own reserve man power apparently was exhausted a year ago when the Reich began importing hundreds of thousands of Italian and Balkan workers. It now is estimated that about 1,500,000 foreigners are working in Germany either in vital war industries or in equally vital agricultural production.

1,500,000 War Prisoners

Besides these voluntary and semi-voluntary workers, there are at least 1,500,000 war prisoners employed on German farms or building roads and air fields.

That number does not include the unknown hundreds of thousands of Russian war prisoners. Regarding the Russians, the Germans contend there is no prohibition against working them directly in war industries, since Russia is not a signatory of the Hague pact against use of prisoners in such war industries as munitions works, shipyards and mines.

Germany has been combing Europe for even semi-skilled mine labor, and it can be surmised that many Russian prisoners are or soon may be digging the precious coal from which Germany gets a thousand or more products, including gasoline and essential chemicals.

200,000 Men Reported Sought

Reports current in diplomatic circles here state that Germany is pressing Bulgaria to provide 200,000 soldiers now and perhaps more later. No one here who is informed on Bulgarian affairs suggests that these men would be thrown directly against the Russians in view of the known pro-Russian sentiment of the Bulgarian rank and file.

To Release Soldiers

It is considered more likely that they would be used in various supply or occupation services so as to release German soldiers for return to the war industries.

(This would conform with the declaration Wednesday by the Bulgarian minister of interior that his country did not intend to go to war against Russia or to break off relations with Moscow).

Germany has been making no secret of her labor need for many months. Posters in France, Belgium, Holland, Hungary and Rumania are reported to promise bountiful wages, excellent working conditions and freedom from Nazi propagandizing for any worker willing to help keep the German war machine rolling.

Travelers freshly arrived here from shattered Yugoslavia and newly-created Croatia say small queues of men are to be seen before German employment offices, signing up for the usual six-month minimum of German labor service.

People coming from Berlin say they saw many Italian workers, some Dutch, and a smattering of Danes and French.

In addition, crews of Polish, French, English and Serb prisoners could be seen working either in groups of 10 to 100 under German military guards or singly in the fields alongside German farmers.

Special inducements of increased rations were given prisoners willing to work. The basic ration is described as monotonous, even though scientifically sufficient.

The intensive war effort against Russia is of course the reason for the German labor needs. At the end of the western front campaign Hitler declared in an address that his armies had used so little of their reserve munitions that he had to slow down the operations of many factories because the supply exceeded expected needs.

The present intensive pressure to mobilize every last ounce of manpower in German-controlled Europe indicates that this is no longer the case.

Bulgaria Won't Join War Against Soviet, Sofia Minister Says

Reports of Mobilization And External Pressure Are Officially Denied

By the Associated Press.

SOFIA, Sept. 24.—Bulgaria does not intend to enter the war against Soviet Russia or break off relations with Moscow, Peter Gabrovsky, minister of the interior, told foreign correspondents today.

"Bulgaria has no aggressive intentions against any one and is not preparing for war against any country," Gabrovsky said.

In denial of reports published abroad, the minister said there had been no general mobilization of Bulgaria's armed forces. He also denied there had been any declaration of martial law.

"The Bulgarian situation is perfectly calm and no pressure of any kind has been exerted on the Bulgarian government from any quarter," Gabrovsky said.

Round-about reports last Saturday said the Bulgarian radio had announced the declaration of a state of emergency. Ankara dispatches indicated a belief that King Boris might have been won over to taking active sides with Germany against Russia. There have been repeated reports, largely from Turkey, of Bulgarian mobilization and increased troop concentrations near the Bulgarian-Turkish frontier.

Winant Says America Believes Plan Has Prospect Of Usefulness

The Council, guided by Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary, and assured in a message from Ambassador John G. Winant that America believes the plan has "great prospective usefulness," adopted the scheme without formal dissent.

The food pool plan was a frank bid for the support of the Allied war cause by all the peoples of Europe.

To Assure Early Succor

"Our declared purpose," said Eden, "is to insure that with freedom there will come succor at the earliest possible moment to these distressed peoples of Europe. . . . No one can know when this war will end and we should make our preparations in good time.

"The measures which we take now . . . may bring some encouragement to the millions in Europe whose present sufferings we cannot prevent, and give them strength of heart to endure—and where they can, to resist."

Although there was no formal demur, the Russian Ambassador made little effort to conceal his belief that the Allies had best turn their attention to winning the war first.

Called Most Pressing Task

"Attributing great importance to the equitable use of all material resources and foodstuffs in the post-war period," said the Ambassador, Ivan Maisky, "the Soviet Government believes that the most imperative and most pressing task of today is a correct allocation of all economic resources and war supplies with a view to the early liberation of all the European peoples now oppressed by Hitlerite slavery."

Russia, he added, believes that "all peoples who have recognized the necessity of smashing Hitlerite aggression . . . today have one main task—to mobilize all the economic and military resources of freedom-loving peoples in order to attain full and speedy emancipation."

The council, composed of thirty-one members meeting in the picture gallery of St. James' Palace, also pledged adherence to the "common principles of policy" contained in the Roosevelt-Churchill Atlantic charter.

Warns Against Exceptions

Before the vote was taken, Eelco N. Van Kleffens, Netherlands Foreign Minister, warned against exceptions to plans for access of all nations to world trade and raw materials after the war, and declared that everyone will have to make sacrifices. He referred specifically to Point IV of the Atlantic declaration in which Britain and the United States promised to provide such access to all nations, but "with due respect for their existing obligations."

On the food pool plan, Eden said the United States, which will provide the great bulk of the necessary commodities, had been assured it would be kept informed and consulted before any concrete plans were decided upon.

The resolution adopted today calls upon each of the allied governments to estimate the kinds and amounts of foodstuffs, raw materials and other articles which they will need in the first few weeks after the war and to indicate the priority in which they want them supplied. Britain will create a bureau to coordinate these estimates and present them to an allied committee under Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, of Britain. Plans for post-war employment of shipping resources will be worked out shortly.

Envisions 2-Year Period

Eden envisaged a period of post-war reorganization of Europe lasting "at least two years" and said the Allies, in estimating their needs from overseas, must take this into account.

Represented at the meeting were the British, their dominions, the Russians, Belgians, Czechs, Greeks, Dutch, Norwegians, Poles, Yugoslavs, Free French and Luxembourgers.

The Russians, while agreeing in principle to the food resolution, objected to the all-British character of the proposed central coordinating bureau and reserved the right to make proposals looking toward giving it an inter-allied character.

European Pool Planned

[By the Associated Press] SEP 25 1941

London, Sept. 24—The creation of a vast pool of food reserves for supplying Europe in the emergency period after the war—a plan upon which the United States already has been consulted — was proposed by Great Britain today to the Council of Allied Governments.

A resolution embodying the proposal was presented by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and was adopted without dissent.

Eden read a statement to the council from United States Ambassador John G. Winant declaring that the United States believes the undertaking to be "of great prospective usefulness."

The proposal was made after the council had approved the Roosevelt-Churchill eight-point Atlantic charter without dissent, pledging adherence to the "common principles of policy" and cooperation "to the best of our ability."

U. S. To Be Kept Informed

Regarding the food plan, Eden said that he had given Winant "assurance that the United States Government will be kept fully informed of the discussions," both at today's meeting and later.

The United States, he said, "will be consulted before any concrete plans are decided upon."

"We have also previously had some contact with the United States Government in regard to treatment of surplus productions," Eden said, "and we know they are deeply interested in planning for a coordination of stocks and marketing of some of the most important commodities, especially wheat and cotton."

Cooperation Indicated

Eden said that the statement which Winant had authorized him to present today, indicating that the United States was interested, "shows that they will not be unwilling at the right time to join in framing plans for supply of Europe's needs on a basis of cooperation."

Eden's resolution called on each of the Allied governments to prepare estimates of foodstuffs, raw materials and other articles of "prime necessity" which would be required by their countries. He explained that a large proportion of these commodities would have to come from the United States and British dominions.

Some Already At Work

The Netherlands, Polish, Belgian, Norwegian and Czecho-Slovak governments already are taking steps to prepare estimates, Eden said.

The approval of the Roosevelt-Churchill declaration had come earlier.

The Inter-Allied Council is composed of the following governments—several of them in exile as a result of German occupation: Britain and her dominions, Russia, Belgium, Czecho-Slovakia, Greece, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Norway, Poland, Yugoslavia and Free France.

A resolution on the declaration was adopted by a voice vote after the Soviet Ambassador, Ivan Maisky, had declared that Russia was in agreement with the fundamental principles of the declaration and asserted that the Soviet Union would defend the right of every nation to independence, territorial integrity and the social order and form of government of its own choice.

One Objection Aired

Before the vote was taken the Netherlands Foreign Minister, Dr. E. N. Van Kleffens, objected to Point IV of the Roosevelt-Churchill declaration, which provides equal access for all nations to world trade and raw materials, but "with due respect for their existing obligations."

Van Kleffens said the avowed aims of Point IV "cannot be attained if considerable exceptions" to it were to be made. He pleaded for abolition of trade barriers and "discriminatory treatment in international commerce."

Recalls World War Ideas

"We shall have to do away," he said, "to some considerable extent with measures designed to protect existing economic units. This will mean sacrifices for all. . . ."

Van Kleffens reminded the council that similar ideas of world-wide free trade had "found solemn expression" at the conclusion of the World War, but, he said, "we all know what became of it when the snowball of protection was set rolling until it became so large it was a serious obstacle in the path of international trade."

Speaking on the Atlantic Charter, Maisky told the council that "consistent application of these principles will secure the most energetic support on the part of the government and peoples of the Soviet Union."

Urges Allocation Of Supplies

The most pressing task before the allied governments, he said, "is correct allocation of all economic resources and war supplies with a view to early liberation of all peoples now oppressed by Hitlerite slavery."

Maisky said the Soviet proclaims "the right of every nation to choose such a form of government as it deems opportune and necessary for the better promotion of its economic and cultural prosperity."

Anthony Eden, British foreign secretary, presided at the council meeting, the first of its kind since Soviet Russia entered the war, and made a special point of presenting Maisky early in the proceedings.

Mr. Eden welcomed Maisky as a representative of a people who are "defending themselves with a courage, tenacity and skill which have won the admiration of the world."

It was the second meeting of the council, and the scene was the historic picture gallery of St. James' Palace. SEP 25 1941

Collective Action Urged.

Maisky said the Soviet had consistently "denounced all violations of the sovereign rights of peoples, all aggression and aggressors, all and any attempts of aggressive states to impose their will upon other peoples and to involve them in war."

"The Soviet Union has untiringly and resolutely advocated, and advocates today, the necessity of collective action against the aggressor," the Ambassador said, "as one of the most effective means of bringing a triumph of those principles and advancing the peace and security of nations."

He said Russia also consistently sought general disarmament and a foreign policy based "upon the desire to maintain peaceful and neighborly relations with all countries which respect the integrity and inviolability of its borders."

The Soviet, he continued, "is willing to render all possible assistance to peoples becoming the victims of aggression and fighting for the independence of their native land."

Polish-Czech Declaration.

A joint Polish-Czecho-Slovak declaration was presented to the council declaring the two governments were "determined to assist in a spirit of close and friendly collaboration in realization of the principal aims of the Roosevelt-Churchill declaration."

"Remembering the experience of the Polish and Czecho-Slovak nations which have suffered so much from the insatiable aggressiveness of Germany," said the declaration, "both governments are of the opinion that safeguards against a third German war must be sought not only in complete prevention of the destructive means which Germany might use in the future in another attempt at a realization of her aggressive plans, but also in furnishing effective political and material guarantees and in offering necessary economic assistance for the reconstruction of the despoiled economies of these nations, which were and may again become the object of initial aggressive acts on the part of Germany."

Foundations of New Order.

The declaration added that the two governments are convinced that the carrying out of the Roosevelt-Churchill declaration in a spirit of justice which does not admit uniformity of treatment of those guilty of provoking wars and of the victims of these wars, will lay the foundations of a new order in Europe based on a permanent system of general security, general prosperity and social justice.

"The achievement of this aim," the statement said, "will convince the nations of the continent that their sufferings during the World War of 1914-18 and during the present war were neither unavailing nor fruitless." SEP 25 1941

Wickard Urges Farmers To Help Beat Hitler

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (AP).—Secretary of Agriculture Wickard today called on American farmers to produce enough food to help England defeat Hitler, and at the same time, meet expanding demands in the United States.

The need for food, he said, is so great that he urged farm workers to seek deferment under the Selective Service Act, even if this required an appeal from local draft board orders.

"I have an idea that most farmers' sons and hired men can serve their country best wearing overalls instead of a khaki uniform," Mr. Wickard declared in a speech before an "agricultural mobilization" conference of farmers and Government farm officials called here from Northeastern States.

Difficult Goals Set.

Reporting on similar sessions held recently at San Francisco and Chicago for 23 Western and Northern States, the administration farm leader said he found the public and farmers convinced "that we are threatened, that we should not kneel to the threat, that we must act vigorously to avert the threat" of "Nazi fanatics who are fighting a total war for total domination of the world."

Attaining the largest production goals ever set for American farms will be difficult, the Secretary said, especially with many younger men leaving farms for better-paying defense jobs or entering military services.

Billion For Britain

The Secretary of Agriculture disclosed that officials of the United States had promised to send the British a vast supply of food by the end of next June that would require $1,000,000,000 of the new British-aid funds of $5,985,000,000 requested by the President. SEP 25 1941

Recognizing complaints about higher costs of food and clothing, Mr. Wickard asked consumers in this country to remember they "are the most fortunate in the world. Almost everywhere else on the globe consumers are going on short rations. * * * That will not happen in America. Here we have facilities (and we intend to use them) to produce abundantly for our own people and other peoples resisting Nazism."

Three Things to Remember.

The Secretary noted that while prices had advanced he wanted the consuming public to remember three things:

First, that while farm price rises have been higher in percentage terms "that's because farm prices for so long have been bargain prices. Farm prices started to rise from a very low point."

Second, that retail price increases are "not entirely due to the rise in farm prices." The Secretary said a cotton farmer got less than a nickel from a 25-cent increase in cost of a cotton shirt and the wheat farmer was getting only about one-fourth of a cent more for wheat in a loaf of bread than a year ago.

Third, that retail price increases were far below gains in consumer income. The Secretary said food prices still were only 80 per cent as high as 1929, while non-farm income was 114 per cent.

He detailed the following pledge of supplies for England up to June 30: Cheese, evaporated and dry skimmed milk that will require processing of 5,000,000,000 pounds of milk; 1,500,000,000 pounds of pork and lard, estimated as produce of 9,000,000 hogs; 500,000,000 dozen eggs, or output of 50,000,000 hens; 18,000,000 pounds of poultry meat.

BRITISH NO LONGER WILL HELP SWISS

SEP 25 1941

End Passage of Their Goods Through Blockade.

London, Sept. 24 (A. P.).—The Ministry of Economic Warfare announced today that Great Britain could no longer continue the limited facilities which hitherto have accorded passage of material for Switzerland's industry through the sea blockade and across enemy territory.

A statement said that this action was taken because of the terms of a recent commercial agreement between Switzerland and Germany. It further said that the British Government appreciated the difficulties of Switzerland as a land-locked neutral and would continue to give facilities, within limits, for imports of foodstuffs and other goods for strictly domestic consumption.

It was said in official quarters that the move was not of retaliation but "simply a recognition of a state of affairs which exists through no fault of the Swiss or Great Britain."

"It is believed the Swiss understand the situation," it was added.

The British decision, it was said authoritatively, is bound to affect Swiss exports because curtailment of the imports is bound to affect Swiss industry.

"It is unfortunate but true that Swiss workers will have less to work with," this source said, "but there is no British intention to affect Swiss exports. The Swiss today are completely surrounded by the enemy or by enemy-controlled territory, and it is Germany who eventually tells Switzerland whether or not she can export."

SWEDES ADVANCE CASH TO GERMANS

Pay $25,000,000 Against 1942 Trade Deliveries.

SEP 25 1941

Stockholm, Sept. 24 (A. P.).—Under an agreement between German and Swedish Government commissions, the Reserve Supplies Board has undertaken to pay 100,000,000 kronor (nominally about $25,000,000) into the German-Swedish clearing account in advance of German deliveries during the first half of 1942 of coal, coke, iron and chemical products. The agreement was arrived at during the trade negotiations which have been going on here for three weeks.

Germany was reported to owe the account about 50,000,000 kronor on September 1 and the commissions believed the debt would be substantially larger by the turn of the year. The advance of 100,000,000 kronor by the Reserve Supplies Board therefore was decided upon as a temporary measure to facilitate the clearing process during the immediate future.

The position of the clearing system is to be reviewed again at the end of October and later negotiations aer to be started for planning the whole of German-Swedish trade in 1942.

add Stockholm, xx 1942.

The commissions estimated that the total payments this year into the clearing account would amount to about 850,000,000 kronor ($212,500,000) or about 100,000,000 kronor more than last year.

Successful Sub Attacks Announced by British

LONDON, Sept. 24 (AP).—Several successful submarine attacks against Axis vessels in the Central Mediterranean were announced by the Admiralty today.

An Italian minelayer of the Crotone class was "probably destroyed," the Admiralty said, a 1,500-ton supply ship was believed to have been sunk and a transport set afire. A 5,000-ton supply ship also was torpedoed, the Admiralty said, without stating whether it was sunk.

A British submarine, it said, braved the fire "of enemy shore defenses" to shell a large schooner which "was certainly hit and damaged and probably sunk." The submarine was not damaged.

The Crotone is a ship of 359 tons, acquired from Germany.

One Out Of Five Trying To Cross Mediterranean Declared Sunk

By Carey Allen

[By the Associated Press]

Alexandria, Sept. 24—British naval authorities claimed tonight that one of every five Axis vessels attempting to cross to North Africa is being sunk and that fifty per cent. of Italy's total merchant tonnage now has been sunk or damaged.

The recent sinking of two 24,000-ton Italian liners each carrying perhaps 5,000 troops as well as vast quantities of supplies was said to have boosted Italy's sea losses this month to well over 150,000 tons. More than a score of Italian ships have been sunk by British submarines or planes, these sources said.

A British source said that in an attempt to speed supplies to Axis forces in Libya the Italian Government was paying seamen thirty per cent. bonuses for the Mediterranean crossings.

30% Loss Is Estimated

Since Italy entered the war it was estimated thirty per cent. of her total merchant tonnage has been sunk and another twenty per cent. damaged.

Italy was estimated to have had 1,235 merchant ships totalling 3,500,000 tons at the beginning of the war in 1939.

The British considered it unlikely that Italy has made much progress on new construction or repairing of damaged ships because of a lack of materials.

Submarine Torpedoes Fascist Mine Layer, English Report

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Sept. 24.—Italian planes sank a 2,500-ton armed steamer and seriously damaged a 1,000-ton vessel in an attack on a British convoy in the Mediterrranean, the Fascist high command announced today.

It reported also that a 12,000-ton oil tanker was torpedoed and sunk in the Eastern Mediterrranean by an Italian submarine.

The communique reiterated previous claims that Italian motor torpedo boats had sunk four British ships in the harbor of Gibraltar. Three of the vessels were identified by name—the tankers Fiona Shell and Dunby Dale and the freighter Durham.

(The British have denied the Italian claims, asserting that only an old hulk was sunk.)

The British Air Force raided Bengasi, Homs and Misurata in forays along the North African coast, but two of the raiders were reported shot down in flames.

Five persons were killed and seven injured in Misurata, the daily war bulletin said.

Vichy Lodges a Protest.

Vichy, Sept. 24 (A. P.).—France officially protested to London tonight against the sinking of the French freighter Monselet off the Tunisian coast Saturday, which the French attributed to the R. A. F.

Government circles said the protest declared that the vessel was flying the French flag and bound for a French port with a phosphate cargo which was not war contraband and that it was sunk in French territorial waters.

Informed persons expressed belief the protest was transmitted through the State Department of the United States.

British Planes Sink Ship Off Tunisia, French Say

TUNIS, Sept. 24 (AP).—The French freighter Monselet was bombed and sunk by British planes last Saturday shortly after putting out from the Tunisian port of Sfax with a cargo of phosphates for France, a French announcement said today.

It said the freighter caught fire and sank after being hit by three bombs near the Kerkennah Islands. The crew was said to be safe.

Sfax, 150 miles south of Tunis, was the scene of several R. A. F. raids against Italian ships a few months ago.

The French information office said the Monselet was plainly marked to show her French nationality.

French Accuse British Of Somaliland Raids

Vichy, Sept. 24 (AP) — The Jibuti radio charged today that the British were carrying out systematic attacks on French Somaliland by both land and sea.

In the land attack, it was stated that two sections of British regulars, supported by flanking detachments, attacked the French frontier post of Assamo, forcing the French to withdraw to a hill position.

The radio also charged that British warships have been seizing and sinking small French boats off Djibouti machine-gunning some of them.

Vichy Official Sent To Paris In Effort To Curb Executions

Seeking German Consent To Plan For French To Assume Responsibility In Combating Terrorism

[By the Associated Press]

Vichy, Sept. 24—Pierre Pucheu, Minister of the Interior, left for Paris today seeking a relaxation of the German hostage-reprisal system under which dozens of Frenchmen have been executed because of terroristic attacks on German soldiers.

Informed sources said Pucheu would seek German consent to a substitute plan whereby French authorities would assume responsibility for combatting "terrorism, sabotage and Communism" in both zones.

At least thirty-five Frenchmen have been executed in the occupied area either as hostages or on espionage, sabotage and Communism charges. More than 34,000 persons have been arrested in both zones for opposition to Marshal Petain's German collaboration regime.

A military court at Perigueux in southwestern France yesterday sentenced twenty-three persons described as Communists to prison terms ranging from one year to life.

Fernand de Brinon, Vichy Ambassador to Paris, already has been sounding out the Germans on the new plan, and Otto Abetz, German Ambassador, has just returned to Paris from Berlin after consulting Nazi leaders there.

Jacques Benoist-Mechin, Secretary of State, also talked with Abetz and de Brinon and tonight was hurrying back to Vichy to report to Vice-Premier Admiral Darlan.

Informants in Paris said just before midnight that rumors that a state of siege had been declared there were unfounded.

King George Honors Churchill In Bestowal of Ancient Office

SEP 25 1941

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 24.—King George VI has appointed Prime Minister Churchill to the ancient office of lord warden of the cinque ports, giving him, among other things, exclusive rights to "the flotsam, jetsam and lagan" within the jurisdiction of the ports.

The non-paying office, held heretofore by 157 British princes, dukes, admirals and prime ministers in its long history, is rated a high honor.

It was said that the appointment, in succession to the late Marquess of Willingdon, was the King's own idea as a mark of his appreciation for the Prime Minister's services.

The cinque ports originally were Hastings, Romney, Hythe, Dover and Sandwich—but were increased to seven by the addition of Winchelsea and Rye.

Mr. Churchill's only duty will be chairmanship of the Dover board.

He will have to pay taxes on the lord warden's residence, Walmer Castle, near Dover—but there is scant possibility he ever will occupy it besause it has been open to the public since 1905. Among its many rooms which attract sightseers is the one in which the Duke of Wellington died in 1852.

Mr. Churchill will be entitled to fly his own standard—blue and yellow quartered with arms of the cinque ports—from Walmer Castle.

Barons of the cinque ports in the Middle Ages were charged with maintaining a fleet to keep the narrow seas free of enemy ships.

JAPAN SQUELCHES PRO-AXIS RALLIES

SEP 25 1941

Cancels Nine Big Meetings to Observe Anniversary of Ties with Nazis.

Tokyo, Sept. 24.—(AP)—The Japanese Government squelched today the plans of the fiery Seigo Nakano and his pro-Axis Tohokai group for a series of rallies Saturday celebrating the first anniversary of Japan's alliance with Berlin and Rome.

"We want to celebrate this event with dignity, so we do not want meetings everywhere," said Koh Ishii, government spokesman, in announcing cancellation of the nine downtown speeches that Nakano had arranged for the avowed purpose of drumming up enthusiasm for the Axis, and the celebration which the East Asia Development Corporation had planned at Hibiya Hall.

Two Meeting Allowed

The only observance of the anniversary will be a meeting sponsored by the imperial rule assistance association and the Tokyo municipal authorities in Kanda Ward, a district sufficiently isolated so that foreigners are not likely to notice it.

(Japan's major political parties were dissolved last year, but the Tohokai has managed to survive as a pro-Axis agitation group.)

Ishii also took occasion to refer to reports of Russian-Japanese clashes on the Manchurian border as "Chungking propaganda."

(The German radio, in a broadcast heard in New York, also quoted Ishii as saying that he did not doubt the accuracy of reports that Russia was sending war materials to the Chungking government and that such deliveries would be "an unfriendly act" toward Japan.)

Study Russian Reply

Russia has replied to Japan's protest against mines drifting into the Sea of Japan, apparently from Vladivostok fields, Koh Ishii, government spokesman, said today, but the nature of the answer was not disclosed.

Ishii said talks between the two nations over the issue still were going on.

He said trade with Russia was continuing normally although the Russian-Japanese commercial treaty still was unratified.

In another field, Ishii announced that the Japanese government was negotiating for another loan from Thai bankers.

The first loan, announced August 1, was for 10,000,000 bahts (nominally $3,600,000) to finance Japanese purchases in Thailand.

Meantime, the cabinet formally adopted a plan designed to slash the 1941 fiscal budget by 1,323,300,000 yen, Domei said.

(The yen was quoted at 23.4 cents before dealings were suspended when freezing orders were announced.)

The news agency said that while details of the plan were not disclosed, economies were expected to affect ordinary and special appropriations and government purchases abroad.

Trade From Shanghai To Unoccupied Area Halted By Move Aimed At U. S. Stand

Shanghai, Thursday, Sept. 25 (AP)—The Japanese-controlled Nanking regime announced a ban on exports from Shanghai to unoccupied China today and halted a trade which hitherto reached considerable proportions and which gave the Japanese extensive profits through a permit system.

The move was regarded as a further retaliation for the United States and British freezing of Japanese credits and to the more recent action of the Chinese Stabilization Board which elminated Shanghai's black market exchange where the Japanese had obtained foreign currency.

The announcement did not mention Hongkong, but informed sources said the transit tax on goods destined to Hongkong would be doubled, especially hitting American, British and Chinese cotton mills in Shanghai which have been shipping to the Chinese interior via Hongkong.

Complete annihilation of these forces can be counted upon within a few days.

LONDON, Sept. 24 (AP)—A joint communiqué of the Air and Home Security Ministries said early today:

During the early part of the night a few enemy aircraft flew over coastal districts of Southwest England and South Wales. Bombs were dropped at several points. Some damage was done and a small number of casualties was reported.

An Air Ministry communiqué said:

Reports now have been received of the first operations carried out by R. A. F. units now in the U.S.S.R.

A number of patrols have been flown in bad weather and there have been successful encounters with enemy fighters. In the first engagement one of our squadrons destroyed three ME-109s, with a loss of one of our fighters, the pilot of which was killed.

The same squadron later destroyed four ME-109s without loss to themselves. The wing is commanded by Wing Commander H. N. G. Ramsbottom-Isherwood, A. F. C., and included officers and men from Great Britain, Canada, Australia and New Zealand.

A British Admiralty communiqué today said:

An Italian minelayer of the Crotone class has been torpedoed by one of our submarines in the Central Mediterranean. The minelayer probably was destroyed.

An enemy supply ship of about 5,000 tons also has been successfully attacked and hit by a torpedo.

A large schooner was engaged by gunfire by one of our submarines. The schooner certainly was hit and damaged, and probably was sunk. This attack was carried out under fire from enemy shore defenses.

No casualties or damage was suffered by our submarine.

The Admiralty issued the following tonight:

One of our submarines patrolling in the Central Mediterranean has torpedoed an enemy transport and a supply ship of about 1,500 tons.

The supply ship is believed to have been sunk and the transport later was seen to have been on fire.

CAIRO, Egypt, Sept. 24 (AP)—The R. A. F. Middle East Headquarters tonight issued the following communiqué:

The harbor at Bengazi and military objectives at Tripoli were attacked by heavy bombers far into the night of Sept. 22-23.

At Bengazi the harbor was bombed and bursts were obtained at the bases of the Central and Cathedral Moles.

At Tripoli hits were scored on military barracks and buildings in the vicinity of the wireless station. Large fires and smoke were seen on completion of the raid.

In the Central Mediterranean aircraft of the fleet air arm attacked enemy merchant ships. One hit with a torpedo was obtained on a large ship and a patch of oil spread over the sea.

A second torpedo struck a smaller vessel forward and this ship later was seen to be down by the bow.

At the same time heavy bombers of the R. A. F. attacked other enemy ships, scoring a near miss on one large vessel and a hit on a smaller one.

Reconnaissance of the area yesterday showed one of the ships attacked to have only the stern and bow above water.

In Ethiopia yesterday enemy positions near Gondar were bombed effectively.

From all these operations one of our aircraft is missing.

Italian

ROME, Sept. 24 (AP)—The Italian High Command communiqué said:

In North Africa, on the Tobruk front, our artillery carried out effective firing actions. Enemy attempts to approach our positions were promptly repelled.

The British Air Force carried out raids on Bengazi, Tripoli, Homs and Misurata. In the last place five persons were killed and seven injured. Two enemy bombers were shot down in flames by anti-aircraft defenses at Tripoli and Homs.

In East Africa, on various fronts of the Gondar theatre of operations, there were offensive reconnaissance operations by our detachments which put enemy forces to flight, inflicting losses.

Italian air units under command of Lieutenant Mario Sami and Second Lieutenant Pier Luigi attacked an enemy convoy in navigation in the Mediterranean. A 2,500-ton armed steamer was hit squarely and exploded, sinking rapidly. Another steamer of 1,000 tons was damaged seriously.

A submarine of ours under command of Lieutenant Olindo di Serio torpedoed and sank a 12,000-ton oil tanker in the Eastern Mediterranean.

Further information permits us to establish that two of three units sunk by assault craft of the Italian Navy in the harbor at Gibraltar were the tankers Fiona Shell and Dembydale, and the steamer damaged, which is to be considered lost, was the Durham. Losses inflicted on British merchant shipping in our attack on Gibraltar still total four units.

Secretary, Urging Price Control Bill, May Restrict Bank Credits Further

Treasury Head Tells House Group Measure Is Needed To Prevent Inflation

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 24—Secretary Morgenthau coupled an unexpected recommendation to Congress today for a drastic six per cent. limitation on all corporation profits during the emergency with a warning that further restrictions on bank credits may be necessary if inflation is to be averted.

The Treasury head, urging the House Banking Committee to speed the price control bill as an essential step toward preventing inflation, expressed belief that corporations should be satisfied if they could earn six per cent. on their invested capital during the emergency.

He asserted that all earnings in excess of that figure should go to the Government to help pay for the "fantastic" defense expenditures. Despite efforts of several Republicans to have him modify the statement, he stuck to it as what he called a "rule of thumb" from which tax experts could work out the details.

Roosevelt Wants Price Control

While Morgenthau was testifying, Chairman Steagall (Dem., Ala.) of the committee was discussing the legislation with President Roosevelt. He reported that the Chief Executive "wants a price control bill and he will get it."

Steagall said the President did not discuss specific provisions of the measure, which he said was "as complicated as it can be," nor did he set any time by which it should be enacted.

In the meantime, Philip Murray, CIO president, came out against proposals to freeze wages as well as prices. In a letter to Steagall requesting permission for a CIO spokesman to testify, Murray said it would be "unwise in terms of sound economics and of proper public policy to attempt to freeze wages in connection with price control."

Holds Wage Rise Not To Blame

"The CIO holds most strongly that wage increases have not been responsible for the rise in prices," he wrote. "The price increases now besetting the American people have come from other causes; out of profiteering, out of special material shortages, out of hoarding and speculation and out of uncoordinated public and private purchases."

Morgenthau likewise opposed the establishment of a ceiling over wages, saying that "in free countries labor is not a commodity, human beings are not property and they should not be treated as such."

"I fully appreciate that wages affect the cost of production and the general level of prices," he went on. "However, I feel very definitely that if we can on the one hand keep the cost of living from rising, and on the other hand impose adequate taxes on excessive profits, then we will have removed the major causes for demands for general wage increases."

Farm Price Ceiling Opposed

Morgenthau said he thought the "major defect" of the Administration's price bill was that it would prohibit the establishment of ceilings for farm prices at less than 110 per cent. of the parity price.

[Parity is the price designed to preserve the relationship between farm prices and manufactured commodity prices which existed in the 1909-14 period.]

"I strongly recommend that this inflexibility be removed," Morgenthau said, "in the interest of the attack upon inflation, in the interest of the standard of living of our people and in the long-run interests of farmers as well."

Emphasizing that price control was only one of the steps necessary to prevent inflation, Morgenthau said:

"If we are to be sure of victory in the fight against inflation we must prepare to further increase taxes. We may have to extend the general controls over bank credits. We shall certainly have to reduce capital expenditures for non-defense needs and widen the sale of defense savings bonds and stamps. It would also be wise to extend the social security program to absorb purchasing power now and pave the way for increased purchasing power after the emergency."

QUESTION USE OF LEND-AID BY ENGLAND

SEP 25 1941

Washington, Sept. 24. (AP)—Members said today the House appropriations subcommittee's hearings thus far on the $5,985,000,000 second lend-lease fund had been confined chiefly to an attempt by Republican members to learn whether Britain had used lend-lease materials improperly.

Committee members said the minority consumed most of the time yesterday trying to ascertain whether Britain had re-exported to South America or elsewhere materials received from this country to help her war effort.

Secretary Wickard assured the committee, it was learned, that there had been no improper use of the agricultural commodities sent abroad although he added that his responsibility in the matter ended when the commodities were delivered at the seaboard.

Members said there was some criticism within the committee of the President's action in placing Harry L. Hopkins in full charge of the defense-aid program. Edward R. Stettinius, newly appointed coordinator, was questioned at some length as to the operation of the new setup and as to whether he had taken over any of Hopkins' staff.

One Democratic member declared that the hearing thus far "has been nothing but a wrangle" and added that if the present trend continued "it will take two months to get the bill out."

On the question of whether any of the funds should be advanced to to help Russia, one Democratic member said privately that if the Russians still were fighting when winter set in, he favored turning over the entire amount to them.

Stettinius urged the committee, members said, to write in no prohibitions against making the funds available to the Soviet but added there was no contemplation at this time of aiding Russia through the lend-lease program and that none of the original funds had been used in that way.

CONFEREES AGREE ON SEIZURE BILL

Action Clears Way For Final Congressional Vote On Legislation

SEP 25 1941

Important Exemptions Made In Measure Drafted By Joint Committee

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 24—House-approved restrictions on the Administration's property seizure bill were accepted by a joint Senate-House conference committee today and the action cleared the way for a final Congressional vote on the legislation.

The compromise measure authorizes the President to requisition military and naval equipment, supplies, munitions and similar articles until he declares the emergency ended or until June 30, 1943, whichever time comes first. "Fair and just compensation" would be paid.

Provisions Of Bill

The bill drafted by the conference committee made important exemptions, however, specifying that nothing in the act shall be construed:

To authorize the requisitioning or require the registration of any firearms possessed by any individual for his personal protection or sport (and the possession of which is not prohibited or the registration of which is not required by existing law).

To impair or infringe in any manner the right of any individual to keep and bear arms.

To authorize the requisitioning of any machinery or equipment which is in actual use in connection with any operating factory or business and which is necessary to the operation of such factory or business.

Could Place Value

Senator Thomas (Dem., Utah) of the Military Committee said he would seek Senate approval of the legislation tomorrow and the House is expected to act soon thereafter.

Under the measure, the President would determine the fair value of property needed for national defense. That value would be determined "on the basis of the fair market value of the property at the time it is requisitioned or returned as the case may be."

The bill provides for the return of property to the original owners if the President decides it is no longer needed for national defense and if the owner pays a fair price for it.

Right Of Appeal

The conference committee agreed to permit persons whose property has been seized to appeal to the courts for additional compensation. The courts also would have power to determine how much an individual would have to pay for his property if the Government decided it was no longer needed for defense.

The President would be required to report to Congress every six months regarding his property-requisitioning activities.

ASKS BIGGER SHARE OF DEFENSE WORK

Auto Industry Says Favorable Action Would Decrease Idleness

General Motors Corp. Head Expresses Views Before House Probers

[By the Associated Press]

Detroit, Sept. 24—Automobile-industry spokesmen told a Congressional committee today the cure for unemployment, as it turns its production capacity from civilian to defense work, was in award of more defense orders to the industry and the training of automotive workers for defense jobs.

C. E. Wilson, president of General Motors Corporation, and other industry leaders appeared before the Tolan House Committee inquiring into problems of migration of defense workers.

Under questioning by committee members they estimated that about 90,000 automobile workers would be idle by mid-December, because of the reductions imposed on automobile production.

More Would Be Absorbed

Pointing out that as 1942 progressed more workers would be absorbed in defense jobs, Wilson said:

"Among the 250,000 hourly workers for General Motors, perhaps the defense employment gains will offset the civilian production unemployment. However, we cannot be sure. We are trying hard to get more defense business."

Robert Conder, for Chrysler Corporation, and Ford Motor Company spokesmen also indicated unemployment would not be absorbed without new defense contracts. The committee was told that work on hand would absorb the displaced employes from civilian production of Packard and Hudson companies.

Gives Labor's View

Appearing shortly after R. J. Thomas, head of the CIO's United Automobile Workers, had told the committee that "there are too many big businessmen in authority in Washington and they are running the show," Wilson in his testimony referred to "the prejudice at Washington against big business."

Wilson said G. M. has eight per cent. of the country's productive capacity and so far is utilizing only a small percentage of it in defense work.

"If the Government had to give G. M. its proportionate share of defense orders, it would sound so big in dollars the people in Washington would be afraid of it," he said. "That is our feeling. There it is, Gentlemen—and I have been wanting to say it for a long time."

Predicts Disappointment

Wilson predicted that "the people of this country will be disappointed in early winter about the number of bombers produced."

"The records will show," he added "it is not the automobile industry that is at fault."

He said confusion on priorities and allocations of orders at Washington was to blame.

Thomas' statement about "big business men" was made in amplifying his contention that "labor should be called in and given equal authority—equal authority in fact and not merely on paper."

Blamed On Knudsen

Thomas said the defense program was suffering because William S. Knudsen, co-director of the Office of Production Management, refused to cooperate with labor. He added, however, that Kudsen was "as good a man as any other industrialist we have dealt with."

The "big business men" in Washington, the U.A.W.-CIO president said, "are not representing the people, but their own interests."

Ford to Make Both Heavy and Medium Tanks

All Three Major Motor Companies Then Will Be Producing Them for Army

DETROIT, Sept. 24 (AP).—Volume production of medium and heavy-weight army tanks is planned by the Ford Motor Company. This became known definitely today as officials of the company admitted that negotiations with the War Department and the Office of Production Management had been under way for several weeks.

Contracts have not been signed yet for actual production work, but a number of preliminary steps looking to the manufacture, initially, of thirty-ton mobile fortresses have already been taken. Ultimately, it is understood, tanks weighing twice that much will be designed and produced at the Ford company's River Rouge plant.

Ford plans to produce the complete tanks, but will farm out orders for materials to numerous smaller manufacturers throughout the Detroit area.

Steel Mill Already Started

Construction of a new steel mill with a peak capacity of 300 tons daily is already under way at the Ford Rouge plant. Some time ago Ford accepted commitments from the United States Army for between 1,200 and 1,300 tons of tank armor plate a month. Presumably, this would go into the land battleships Ford plans to build.

Ford built tanks in the first World War and has been producing tank tracks for the Ford Motor Company of Canada since the outbreak of the present war.

Details of the projected tank contracts with the Ford company have not been disclosed, but presumably they would call for at least as great an output as is at present contemplated by the Chrysler Corporation in its arsenal in near-by Macomb County. This originally was announced as a minimum of five for each eight-hour working shift.

All Work in Rouge Area

A fortnight ago an official of the General Motors Corporation admitted that tanks would soon be added to the defense production work of that big unit of the automobile industry, probably at La Grange, Ill. Thus the three leading companies of the motorcar industry will get into tank manufacture. They are already in or near production of aviation engines, or subassemblies for the larger type of fighter aircraft.

While Ford is understood to have some facilities already available for the tank assignment, some additional construction operations probably will be required. All the work, however, would be done within the 1,100-acre Rouge factory area. A large volume of new tool equipment also would be required, and it is estimated that full production could not be reached until the later part of next year.

Ford now has defense contracts for aviation engines and the consolidated B-24D bomber planes alone totaling more than $750,000,000.

SHIP STRIKE OFF; 25 VESSELS FREED

Seamen In 14 Ports Vote For Step Pending NDMB Negotiations

Union Of Pacific Follows. Sailors To Rejoin Five Craft Tied Up At N. Y.

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 24—Seamen in fourteen Atlantic and Gulf ports voted today to release twenty-five strike-bound ships pending National Defense Mediation Board negotiations to end their dispute over increased war bonus demands.

The Mediation Board had appealed to the seamen to return to the ships because they were "vitally and immediately needed for the transportation of defense materials."

One To Sail Tomorrow

President Roosevelt declared yesterday the ships must sail when he disclosed that the strike had been certified to the Mediation Board.

Immediately after John Hawk, secretary-treasurer of the Seafarers' International Union (AFL), announced the end of the twelve-day strike, the Alcoa Steamship Line, first to be affected by the walkout, said the Evangeline would sail Friday for the West Indies with workers for defense bases situated there.

The line said the Acadia would sail Saturday for Bermuda.

The United States Maritime Commission requisitioned three Alcoa ships, the Alcoa Scout, Alcoa Banner and Alcoa Trader, after the strike, called September 13, reached an impasse over demands for increased war bonuses and $60 monthly bonuses for crews entering West Indies waters.

The Scout weighed anchor early today, last of the three to sail for West Indies bases with supplies.

Other Union Follows

Following the lead of the S. I. U., the Sailors' Union of the Pacific (AFL) said its members would rejoin five ships which were tied up here by the S. U. P. in support of the S. I. U. The Marine Firemen, Oilers and Water Tenders' Union, associated with the S. U. P., took similar action.

The Mediation Board called the union and steamship operators to meet Monday to consider the war bonus question. Operators will be represented by Frank J. Taylor, president of the American Merchant Marine Institute.

Elevator Operators Strike

Meanwhile, thousands of workers were stranded temporarily in two of Manhattan's towering office buildings when elevator operators went on strike.

With employes facing the prospect of walking down many flights of stairs, some employers in the sixty-story building at 500 Fifth avenue and in the thirty-two-story Salmon Tower building let employes go home early.

The strike was called at 3 P. M. by Local 225, of the Building Service and Maintenance Employes (CIO) after the reported failure of negotiations for a new contract with Walter Salmon Management, Inc., which owns and manages both buildings.

C.I.O. Union Asks Neutrality Act Repeal By U. S.

Hillman Tells Convention Of People's War Aims

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 24 (AP) The C.I.O.—affiliated industrial union of Marine and Shipbuilding Workers of America, which claims to represent 100,000 shipyard workmen, today asked Congress to repeal the Neutrality Act.

"We," the union's 200 convention delegates unanimously resolved, "call upon the United States Congress to immediately repeal the Neutrality Law so that there will be no obstruction in the path of our country's all-out effort to defeat Naziism."

The union's convention declared destruction of Naziism was the most vital issue now concerning organized labor in this country, and asserted the Neutrality Law tied President Roosevelt's hands in "the fight that is being made against Hitler on all fronts."

Its action was taken after Sidney Hillman, associate director general of the OPM, told the delegates "this is a people's war — everything that the common man has striven for since the days of Magna Carta, and before, is now at stake."

"If Russia and Great Britain are defeated," Hillman asserted, "then we Americans will have to fight on our own soil. Don't fool yourselves about that. We have bombers than can fly to Berlin, drop a load of bombs, and then return. Hitler has the same thing.

"Must democracy wait until its roofs are burned? Must we wait until every decent person is murdered or imprisoned?

"Gentlemen, you are not working today only for the man who owns the shipyard. You are fighting for labor, for democracy, it is not Britain we are fighting for. We are fighting for everything worth while right here.

"This is our battle. Every day you save in launching a vessel to carry supplies to the foes of Hitlerism—every hour you save in launching a tanker to fuel planes and ships against Hitler—you are protecting your own homes and your own children against sudden death from enemy planes in the sky.

"Let us stop talking about doing all this to aid Britain. We are actually doing it to aid ourselves."

Hillman remarked the defense effort had released creative energies long dormant in the nation, and reasoned that if such energies could be used to repel a foreign enemy they could also be used to combat unemployment and poverty after the emergency was past.

"We," he said, "must wipe out Hitlerism before democracy's aims and action can create the new world of peace and plenty. This is our first obligation. The time to strike hard is now. The time to produce guns and planes where they are needed most is not tomorrow nor the day after, but today, this very hour."

The union delegates stood, applauded and shouted for more than two minutes after Hillman ended his speech.

Hillman Takes 'Blame' For U. S. Labor Policy

ATLANTIC CITY, Sept. 24 (AP).—Sidney Hillman says if any one objects to present labor policies under the New Deal they should blame him and not President Roosevelt.

"I am responsible for the labor policies of this Administration," the associate director of the Office of Production Management told the Shipyard Workers' Convention here today.

"President Roosevelt placed me in charge of labor policies when he appointed me to the O. P. M.," he said, "and since then I have not been turned down by the President even once on any matter pertaining to labor. If anything is wrong don't blame him. Blame me."

Campaign For Repeal

New York, Sept. 24 (AP)—Fight for Freedom, Inc., today announced a nation-wide campaign for immediate repeal of the Neutrality Act with the slogan, "We are not neutral toward rattlesnakes."

Bishop Henry W. Hobson, national chairman, said the group hoped to get 10,000,000 signatures on petitions to Congress. Street meetings, parades and a pilgrimage to Washington are planned.

Urges Workers To Aid

Lansing, Mich., Sept. 24 (AP)—R. J. Thomas, president of the United Automobile Workers (CIO), suggested today that American workers "make up their minds to give material aid to Great Britain, Russia and China.

"I say that not because I am in agreement with any foreign political policy, but because nothing is more important to laboring people in this country than the defeat of Hitler," Thomas told the national convention of the State, County and Municipal Workers of America—CIO.

Would Give Hour's Pay

New York, Sept. 24 (AP)—An appeal to "every organized worker in the land" to contribute one hour's pay to workers in Great Britain and other countries engaged in the fight against the Axis powers was made today by the AFL vice-president, Matthew Woll, chairman of the American Labor Committee to Aid British Labor.

In a communication to all central labor bodies and city aid-British labor committees, Woll noted the committee's policy had been broadened to aid labor in other countries opposed to the Axis outside Britain.

Heil Charges Legion Under F. D. Control

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 24 (AP)—Governor Julius P. Heil, a Republican, told the Milwaukee Junior Chamber of Commerce today that the American Legion's national convention was controlled by President Roosevelt.

Governor Heil, referring in general to resolutions adopted by the American Legion convention here last week but without mentioning any resolution specifically, said:

"They were not the will of the American Legion. The great white father had all of his people here. There were plenty of payrollers here and they were controlled."

After the speech, Heil reiterated his statement, asserting "it's the truth and there is no reason to fear the truth." The governor said he was not "attacking a single legionnaire."

Heil said that propaganda "is a bad influence" and added:

"You saw a lot of controlled propaganda here last week. You saw steamroller tactics."

At his home in Fargo, N.D., Lynn U. Stambaugh, national commander of the Legion, denied Heil's charges.

"No one other than the delegates in attendance—the representatives of the entire membership—controlled the actions of the Legion," Stambaugh said. "Partisanship played no part in the deliberations of the convention. When attending conventions legionnaires leave their individual politics at home and concern themselves only with the security of their country."

Past Commander Milo J. Warner commented at Toledo that it was "funny that a host would talk about his guests after they leave."

Warner said Heil's statement did not merit any comment other than that the 1,500 delegates elected in districts throughout the country "truly represented the American Legion and its ideals."

LINDBERGH BACKED BY AMERICA FIRST

Committee Denies Isolation Leader And Aides Are Anti-Semitic

SEP 25 1941

Interventionists On Contrary Are Charged With Injecting Race Issue

[By the Associated Press]

Chicago, Sept. 24—The America First Committee said in a statement tonight that "Colonel Lindbergh and his fellow members of the America First Committee are not anti-Semitic," and charged that interventionists had injected the race issue "into the discussion of war or peace."

The statement was issued by the group's national committee, the policy-making body, as a result of Lindbergh's speech in Des Moines, Iowa, on September 11, in which he said the "British, the Jewish and the Roosevelt Administration" were the three most important groups "which have been pressing this country toward war."

Bad Faith Charged

The statement issued by the committee follows:

"Ever since the nation-wide effort to keep America out of war began the interventionists have sought to hide the real issue by flinging false charges at the America First Committee and at every leader who has spoken out against our entry into the European conflict. The present attack on Colonel Lindbergh is merely another case in point.

"Colonel Lindbergh and his fellow-members of the America First Committee are not anti-Semitic. We deplore the injection of the race issue into the discussion of war or peace. It is the interventionists who have done this.

Invitation Cited

"America First, on the other hand, has invited men and women of every race, religion and national origin to join this committee, provided only that they are patriotic citizens who put the interest of their country ahead of any other nation. We repeat that invitation.

"At least eighty per cent. of the American people oppose our entry into the war. The America First Committee has supplied to these millions of citizens a leadership which has thus far helped to avert disaster. Consequently, the aim of the war makers is to destroy the America First Committee.

"Behind a smoke screen of groundless charges this nation is being led to war in violation of the Constitution of the United States.

"There is but one real issue—the issue of war. From this issue we will not be diverted. We will carry on the fight until it is won."

PROPAGANDA PACT FOR FILMS DENIED

Schenck Tells Inquiry Makers Never Agreed to Produce Movies Backing War

SEP 25 1941

NO TALKS WITH BRITISH

Senators Are Told Also Press Censorship of Reviews Was Not Attempted

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP)—Nicholas Schenck, president of Loew's Inc., denied before a Senate Interstate Commerce subcommittee today that motion picture makers had ever agreed among themselves on a policy of producing war propaganda pictures.

Mr. Schenck testified after Howard Dietz, another Loew's official, had denied that his company had attempted to "censor" the press by threats to withdraw advertising in retaliation for unfavorable reviews.

Questioned by Senator Clark of Idaho, the chairman, Mr. Schenck asserted that he and his associates were always guided by the belief that their chief business was entertainment and for that reason had not given any thought to attempting to propagandize the public.

If any material unfavorable to Hitlerism went into the making of a picture, he said that that was because there was "so much of it" in literature and everyday happenings throughout the world which supply the basis for motion picture scenarios.

"Have you ever discussed in your industry the making of propaganda pictures as a policy?" Mr. Clark asked.

"Never," was the reply.

"Have you ever discussed with British agents the production of propaganda pictures?"

"Never."

The chairman asked Mr. Schenck if he knew the story of "The Mortal Storm" before it was produced by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, which is controlled by Loew's. The picture depicts the division of a German family over Hitler's policies.

"No," the witness replied. "I did not see it until after it was released. 'The Mortal Storm' is a great picture."

Films "Laughed" at Communism

When Mr. Clark asked if Mr. Schenck did not believe the picture would incite race hatred, the latter replied:

"I do not. It gives additional information about Hitler and Hitlerism, but it is not a one-hundredth part of what we know is happening in Germany."

Mr. Clark then asked if Mr. Schenck's company had ever produced any films depicting atrocities committed in Russia.

"I'm against communism. If that's what you mean," Mr. Schenck replied.

He added that M.-G.-M. had filmed "a couple of pictures against communism, just laughing at it."

Mr. Schenck also testified that the Federal Government had no part in producing or distributing the motion picture "Land of Liberty," which an Idaho theatre-owner declined to show because he charged it contained propaganda.

Mr. Schenck said that Maurice Saffle, Loew's branch manager at Seattle, was mistaken and "overzealous" in writing Fulton Cook, theatre-owner at St. Marys, Idaho, that the government had requested the names of exhibitors who refused to show the picture and that the government was sharing in the profits from the film.

The film was assembled by the movie industry, the witness said, to be shown for patriotic purposes, with all receipts to go to charity.

Mr. Dietz, the earlier witness, is publicity and advertising manager for M.-G.-M. He denied that he or any responsible M.-G.-M. official had ever threatened to withdraw advertising from a newspaper because it continued to print the views of Jimmy Fidler, Hollywood columnist who has been critical of many movies.

Fidler's Charges Bring Denial

Mr. Fidler's charges before the committee several days ago that movie producers had sought to keep him off the radio and out of the press, partly because he attacked alleged war propaganda in films, were mentioned several times during the day's hearings.

Mr. Fidler testified that Mr. Dietz had written James G. Stahlman, publisher of The Nashville Banner, threatening withdrawal of advertising because Mr. Fidler's newspaper column had criticized "Marie Antoinette," an M.-G.-M. picture.

Mr. Dietz denied this and said that a local manager of a Loew's theatre in Nashville had made unauthorized threats of this nature to Mr. Stahlman, who then wrote Will Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, complaining about attempts to censor the press.

The local manager had no control over M.-G.-M. advertising and was acting without authority, the witness said.

When Senator Tobey remarked that Mr. Fidler had testified under oath, Mr. Dietz replied:

"Fidler is a congenital liar and it would be going against his conscience to tell the truth."

"If Mr. Fidler is what you say he is," Mr. Tobey interrupted, "and Mr. Fidler has given false testimony here, this committee will know what to do about Mr. Fidler or any other witness who gives false testimony."

Mr. Dietz said M.-G.-M. never had attempted to censor the press in any way, asserting that he did not believe in censorship of any of the mediums of expression.

11,835,139 LBS. OF SCRAP FROM OLD ALUMINUM

Washington, Sept. 24. (AP)—The nationwide aluminum collection campaign yielded an estimated 11,835,139 pounds of scrap, defense officials announced today—a total equivalent to the amount of aluminum needed in 1900 fighter planes or 350 four-motored bombers.

The campaign, conducted from July 21 to 29, fell below officials' expectations, however, for the OPM had predicted that 15,000,000 to 20,000,000 pounds of scrap would be collected.

Experts estimated that the net yield of aluminum from the scrap would be about 7,000,000 pounds. The remainder of the weight represented other materials, primarily iron and steel, which were attached to the aluminum articles.

All but 310,000 pounds of the scrap has been allocated already to smelters having defense preference ratings.

The aluminum was sold to the smelters by the government and the funds derived went into the Treasury. Officials did not disclose how much was received for the scrap.

Seeks Civilian Raid Protection

LaGuardia Asks Congress for Authority

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24 (AP) — Declaring that many cities and other areas in the United States and its possessions were particularly susceptible to enemy bombing attacks, Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia, the civilian defense director, asked Congress today for authority to provide air raid protection for civilians.

A bill he submitted to Speaker Rayburn would authorize LaGuardia to "provide adequate protection to persons and property in such localities" as may be vulnerable to aerial bombardment.

The facilities required, he said, include fire fighting equipment, medical supplies and units, protective clothing and insignia for volunteer workers, training schools and a sufficient supply of gas masks to "create facilities which will insure prompt production of ample quantities" of masks for the protection of the public.

F. B. I. Agent Testifies Of Boasts By Engineer Accused In Espionage Case

Hermann Lang Said To Have Claimed Long Friendship With Adolf Hitler

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 24—Hermann Lang, 39, today heard himself quoted as boasting of a friendship with Adolf Hitler during the Reichsführer's seamy days and admitting he had delivered to his native Germany secrets of the prized American Norden bombsight.

The pale-lipped little engineer listened intently in Brooklyn Federal Court while American counter-espionage agents told of his alleged activities; but, beyond an occasional flexing of facial muscles, he showed no emotion. With fifteen other defendants, he was on trial for espionage conspiracy.

"Lang told me in July, 1940, he knows Adolf Hitler in person and used to fight with him from 1923 to 1927," testified William G. Sebold, who turned over to the F. B. I. his German assignment in espionage and thousands of dollars sent him from the Hamburg Gestapo in return for a $50-a-week F. B. I. job.

Could Write Goering

"He said he could write to (Air Marshal Wilhelm Hermann) Goering, for Goering considered the bombsight the most important thing in the world."

"Was Lang kidding when he said this?" asked Defense Counsel George W. Herz.

Sebold, who has been on the witness stand off and on for almost three weeks, shifted in his seat and said emphatically, "He certainly was not. He was serious."

Joseph B. Fellner, F. B. I. agent, testified that he eavesdropped on the conversation—held in Sebold's midtown office last February.

Bombsight Details

He said Lang told Sebold, who had established a "spy" transmitting set on Long Island, that he had given details of the bombsight to Germany during a 1938 visit to his native land.

"Sebold then asked, 'Did you have everything in your head and put it together again in Germany?'" Fellner testified. "Lang nodded affirmatively and said later, 'I worked with some engineers in Berlin.'"

Both Sebold and Fellner testified that early this year Lang wanted to return to Germany. Sebold said Lang was awaiting German funds with which to buy passage by way of Japan.

"Lang asked Sebold if he had heard about money being shipped up from Mexico," Fellner testified. "Sebold said 'No.'"

Sebold Got Money

(Sebold testified earlier that while Lang and other defendants were grumbling about the tight-fistedness of the German Gestapo, he himself was receiving money in large lump sums for disbursal to spies. He said he mentioned none of this to the defendants and turned over all money to the F. B. I.).

Lang said he had heard that some go-between had brought word from Washington that Lily Stein (one of seventeen who have pleaded guilty to the indictment) should be careful," said Fellner. "Sebold said he was of the opinion the go-between was from the German Embassy.

"Lang mentioned something about the Putsch in Munich in 1923. He said that about that time he had spoken to Adolf."

Judge Halts Testimony

Sebold testified that Lang had asked him last October to transmit bombsight details to Berlin, but Federal Judge Mortimer W. Byers intervened with the observation that he considered it "inimical to the interest of the United States to permit any closer inquiry of this subject."

Sebold denied, under cross-examination, that he had coerced Lang with threats of having the Gestapo take reprisals against the Lang family in Germany if he failed to cooperate.

Innocent In Nazi Agent Charge, Says Burch

SEP 25 1941

[By The Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 24 — Frank B. Burch, Akron (Ohio) attorney, pleaded innocent in Federal District Court today to an indictment charging him with failing to register with the State Department as a propaganda agent of the German Government.

Burch immediately arranged $1,000 bail and was allowed twenty days to file an attack on the indictment, which alleged that he was persuaded by Karl Kapp, former German consul t Cleveland, to become a secret propaganda agent.

Kapp, the indictment alleged, arranged for Burch to become "public relations counsel, agent, representative and attorney for the Berlin Government."

In this capacity, the indictment said, Burch obtained $10,000 from Kapp and pamphleteered against the lend-lease bill. It added that the attorney had prepared a list of 30,000 industrialists and political leaders for Kapp and was engaged in activities for Germany from January 1, 1940, to July 15, 1941.

At Akron, Burch termed the charge absurd, claiming that his pamphlet money came from American citizens.

Lunch Postponed, Windsors Will Pay Call On Roosevelt

Illness Of First Lady's Brother Causes Change In Busy Schedule For Duke And Duchess

SEP 25 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 24—Only twelve hours before the Duke and Duchess of Windsor were due in Washington on a flying visit, the State Department suddenly announced tonight that a White House luncheon planned for them tomorrow had been postponed.

But a few hours after giving out this information, the department issued a second announcement saying that President Roosevelt would receive the famous couple at noon. The department spokesman was unable to say whether Mrs. Roosevelt also would be on hand to greet them.

After the White House luncheon was canceled the British Embassy gave out word that the Duke and Duchess would have their luncheon there.

The announcement that the White House luncheon was off explained that the postponement was necessitated by the serious illness of G. Hall Roosevelt, brother of the First Lady. He has been a patient at Walter Reed Hospital here for some time.

The department's statement said:

"The President and Mrs. Roosevelt have found it necessary to postpone the luncheon on Thursday to the Duke and Duchess of Windsor. The President has written to the Duke explaining the serious nature of the illness of Mrs. Roosevelt's brother, and that for several days she has been constantly at the hospital. The President and Mrs. Roosevelt anticipate having the Duke and Duchess at lunch on their return from Canada."

Despite the postponement of the luncheon, the schedule of the Duke and the American girl for whom he forsook the throne of England will be a crowded one. Arriving from the South early in the morning, they will make the angular, red-brick British Embassy on Massachusetts avenue their headquarters.

For the evening, a glittering dinner at the embassy is planned. In between times, the Duke will attend a reception at the National Press Club and the Duchess a reception given at the Willard Hotel by the Women's National Press Club.

A Postponed Visit

For the Duke and Duchess, the visit is a stop-off between the Bahamas, where he is Governor-General, and a Calgary ranch in Canada. It is also a postponed visit. Back in 1937 they planned a more or less formal tour of the United States but canceled it, and the reason given officially was the "luke warm attitude" of American officials.

Actually, the difficulty was that they had planned to make their trip with Charles Bedaux as the official conductor of the tour. Bedaux was the author of the Bedaux system of stop-watch production at factory machines.

Denounced By Unions

The labor unions denounced it as an inhuman speed-up system. In the end the uproar was so loud that the whole affair was called off.

For tomorrow's visit, city officials ordered 382 members of the police force to special duty and canceled all leaves in the detective bureau.

Isolate Ailing Refugees

NEW YORK, Sept. 24 (AP)—Passengers with temperatures from an undiagnosed ailment were aboard the Portuguese liner Serpa Pinto today when she arrived from Lisbon and Casablanca.

Health officials took the temperatures of 301 passengers, most of whom were Jewish refugees, and 170 seamen at quarantine and barred between 50 and 60 from landing immediately.

The ailing passengers will be isolated at Ellis Island until the illness has been diagnosed. The exhaustive temperature examination was occasioned by the discovery of several cases of typhoid fever among refugees landing from other ships recently.

Among the passengers were 51 children arriving under the sponsorship of the United States committee for care of European children and five under the care of Hias, Jewish relief organization. They will be placed in American homes.

Typical of the stories told by the youngsters was that of Erich Thorn, 12, whose mother died in a truck in Vienna, he said because the Nazis barred Jews from hospitals. After his father tried to commit suicide, Erich said he spent 2½ years traveling through Europe to reach the United States.

Parents of most of the children either were dead or in concentration camps. They came from France, Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Germany and Hungary.

Yankee Clipper Leaves For Lisbon, 4 Days Late

46 Passengers Depart From New York, Among Them British Petroleum Board Chairman

New York, Sept. 24 (AP)—Delayed four days by stormy weather over the Atlantic, the Yankee Clipper left today for Lisbon with forty-six passengers, eighteen of them bound for Bermuda.

Aboard were two United States Navy officers, three members of the National Defense Research Commission, a representative of the Office of Emergency Management and the chairman of the British Petroleum Board.

Lieut. Col. Samuel J. M. Auld, the petroleum expert, who came here August 15 to confer with Government and oil officials, said his mission had been "very successful."

14 Saved From Burning Ship

11-year-old Girl Finishes Reading Book In Lifeboat Off Florida Coast.

New Smyrna Beach, Fla., Sept. 24 (A. P.).—Fourteen survivors of the burned British freighter Arawak, including a plucky 11-year-old girl who finished reading a book in the lifeboat, were brought safely ashore here by Coast Guardsmen early today. The Arawak, a 115-foot, 201-ton wooden vessel built in 1938, was destroyed by flames which started in the galley only a few hours after she left Jacksonville, Fla., yesterday morning for her home port of Nassau, Bahamas. The Arawak was about fifteen miles off the Florida coast.

Capt. Roland Roberts of Nassau said that the flames, fanned by a high wind, spread with almost incredible swiftness. The captain, his crew of eight and the five passengers aboard abandoned ship about fifteen miles off shore about 3:30 P. M., a little more than an hour after the fire started.

All in Same Boat.

"We had two boats, but the flames were so high we couldn't launch one of them," Capt. Roberts said, "so all of us piled into a lifeboat built to accommodate twelve. We hoisted sail, started using our oars and sent up flares to show where we were."

A light, motor-driven Coast Guard surfboat met the Arawak's lifeboat about four miles offshore and towed it to safety, but perhaps the least perturbed of all the passengers and crew was 3-year-old Allison Carroll, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Burren R Carroll of Orlando, Fla. As the child stepped ashore, she laughed, pointed toward the rolling Atlantic and said: "Ocean."

"I should think you'd have had enough ocean by now," her mother replied, with a smile. Allison's 11-year-old sister, Patricia, clutched a favorite book. She said that she was reading it when the fire started and took it along with her into the boat.

Good Literature.

"I finished it before it got dark and it was good," she said.

The fifth passenger was listed as Daniel Tyner of Laurel Hill, Fla. Both he and Carroll worked in the Bahamas.

Sailors were Basil Albury, George Roberts, Luddington Lowe, Ronald Hodgins, Albert Lowe, Charley Lowe, Oswald Malone and John D. Gates. All are residents of Abaco, Bahamas.

The Arawak, which was not equipped with wireless, carried a general cargo. Chief Boatswain's Mate Aubrey Harris of the Coast Guard said that he believed that the Arawak burned to the water's edge and sank about 11 P. M. About that time the flames, which had drawn hundreds of curious onlookers to the beach here, vanished.

Scientists Still Optimistic Despite Lag Behind Insects

Only Atoms In The Universe, Men Must Cooperate For Happiness, Chicago Savant Says

SEP 25 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Chicago, Sept. 24—The human race was declared today to be moving toward a more perfect world society, but at a terrific price in "blood, sweat and tears."

With wars, such as the present one, mankind is under a continual threat of complete social disintegration, Dr. Alfred E. Emerson, of the Universtiy of Chicago, said today. He spoke in one of the symposia at the university's fiftieth anniversary celebration, which has brought together 2,000 scientists from the United States, Latin America and several other foreign countries.

The American Association for the Advancement of Science, official organization of American scientific societies, is collaborating in arranging special symposia on medical science, particularly aviation medicine.

Years Behind Insects

Remarking that man was still millions of years behind insects in perfecting a social organization, Dr. Emerson added optimistically that "through enlarged capacity for conditioned behavior" and mutual helpfulness "he has discovered a new mechanism of evolution producing rapid and complex social changes," to build a better world.

In the present development of a new society, he said man had attained the ability to pass on through speech, printing, radio and writing his knowledge to future generations, assuring the progress of knowledge providing this movement proceeded faster than tendencies toward social suicide in war.

Optimistic Note.

Dr. Clarence I. Lewis, of Harvard University, added an optimistic note for the future of society in the same symposium. "Our age is the age of science, the age in which science becomes the principal agency through which human life transforms itself, and is looked upon as our main hope for human betterment," he declared.

The present wartime period and the national emergency is "a poor time in history to make such a remark," the Harvard professor said, but the nation should not adopt a fatalistic attitude as it begins to realize the gravity of the present war.

Better Use For Science.

Instead it should appreciate that "we shall learn to use this powerful instrument of science for better purposes than to destroy each other and to root out that liberty of thought which has produced science itself" and build a peaceful, prosperous world such as has never been seen before in history.

Man must come to realize that he is only an atom in the universe, one of countless millions of such particles which go to make up society, and he must learn to work and cooperate with all other men and the forces of the universe in order to live happily, Dr. Charles Hartshorne, of the University of Chicago, declared in another report before the symposium.

Danger Seen if French Revolt Before Allies Are Prepared

SEP 25 1941

British Desire Rebellion, but Not Till Co-ordinating Operations Are Ready

By DEWITT MacKENZIE.

The steady growth of the grim spirit of revolt among the people of France against their Nazi conquerors is presenting the British and their Allies with a problem perhaps even more grave than that which it creates for Hitler.

The danger from the Allied standpoint is that this rebellion may burst into open flame before the time is ripe. We have here the anomalous situation of the British greatly desiring a revolution, but not until it is possible to co-ordinate it with other Allied operations which are still in the making.

Gen. Charles de Gaulle's creation in London yesterday of what amounts to a government for his Free French movement strikes me as being highly significant. I believe we must take it as being inspired in part by the fear that the present French regime at Vichy may disappear if there is a clash of force between the populace and the Germans.

French Face Utter Crushing.

The invaders have made it clear that any uprising will be suppressed with machine-guns and tanks. The gutters of cities and towns will run red. There could be only one outcome to such an unequal conflict—unless Allied aid were immediately available—and that would be the utter crushing of France. The Vichy government would give way to German rule with arms.

The British and the Free French under Gen. de Gaulle long labored to instill in the people of occupied France the will to rebel against Hitler. The Allied propaganda has worked too well, and now they are trying to hold the rebels in check until the appointed hour when all the anti-Hitler forces can strike together with maximum strength. By the same token the British are trying to restrain the Norwegians and other peoples whose great urge for freedom is making them impatient and rash.

It isn't easy to stem such a flood, however, especially when the Nazi execution squads are busy. Three more Frenchmen were shot yesterday on charges of sabotage. Over in the new Axis-formed state of Croatia, 50 persons died for alleged instigation of bombing.

I've heard the crash of rifles of a firing squad in time of revolution, and this instrument of punishment is an awful one. Its purpose is, of course, to instill terror in others who would revolt. More often than not, however, instead of producing fear this rattle of musketry inspires a terrible bitterness and desire for revenge.

That's what is happening in France, and other occupied countries. One wonders whether the Nazi psychology in this instance is good.

If the Allies are unable to keep the French revolt in leash until they are set for action, then there will arise the pressing question of how they can assist the rebellion and capitalize the outbreak. It would seem that the ideal time for a general unheaval among the conquered peoples would be when Britain is ready to invade the continent. Should the revolt come sooner, the British presumably would stage some diverson on a major scale, but its nature would depend on the circumstances of the moment.

Britain Lacks Shipping.

Just how well the British have progressed in their preparations for an invasion is a carefully guarded secret. We have been told that they aren't yet set for such a stupendous and dangerous operation. I have been receiving many inquiries, some of them rather cynical, to to just why England isn't prepared to strike, especially in view of the Russian need of help, and the evident desire of subjugated peoples to assist by revolt. The answer seems to be this:

Britain has lacked sufficient ships to transport an army of invasion with supplies. At the best, when the time for invasion arrives she will have to pool all available shipping for the operation. She will have to mass a huge section of her navy.

At the present writing Hitler remains so strong that such an armada would run a grave chance of catastrophe. If a huge slice of British merchant shipping were destroyed, and perhaps many men of war, it might put England out of action. Personally I have no doubt that she intends to attempt an invasion when the time seems right—be it soon or late.

Predict Resumption of Nazi Bombings of British Cities

SEP 25 1941

Observers Say Germans Will Draw Aircraft Away From Soviet Front

LONDON, Sept. 24 (The Special News Service)—Resumption of Nazi bombings of Britain on a scale equal to the fall and winter of 1940-41 but based on long-term strategy similar to the R. A. F.'s master plan are predicted by neutral air observers stationed here.

Britain Expects Raids

They assert—and many British airmen agree—that the German air force will maintain only a holding force of fighters and light bombers on the Russian front and switch heavier bombers west for attacks on Britain.

Two reasons are given:

1. The biting cold, sweeping winds and deep snow of the Russian winter make large-scale air activity hazardous at best, impossible most of the time.

2. The belief that the German high command, frustrated by British sea convoys and United States patrols, wants to use the Nazi air force for heavy smashes at British industry and ports.

These blows would be similar to those dealt to Plymouth and Coventry, but would be expected to last six or seven nights.

Another theory widely held by British airmen is that heavy attacks on Berlin, Hamburg and other cities have awakened a desire for vengeance.

These airmen agree there would be no great technical difficulties in shifting Germany's main aerial attacking strength. Airfields and supplies are waiting in Western Europe. Three of the four air fleets now operating in Russia probably could be in operation over Britain 10 days after leaving the eastern front.

Shift Reported Starting

About half of the German air force now is estimated to be in Russia. British pilots, however, have reported increasing numbers of German fighters over Calais.

A switch to a far-reaching long-term attack, to replace the swift, grandiose strategy of 1940, would be a counterpart of British strategy—blows delivered regularly at small but important targets; strong fighter sweeps to engage and destroy hostile fighters in a war of attrition; very heavy—up to 400 aircraft—attacks on certain selected industrial cities.

The Nazi tried daylight bombing in the summer of 1940 and were beaten off with appalling losses, but may try daylight raiding again, neutral airmen say. But they predict the Germans again would be unsuccessful unless they adopted the tactics which the R. A. F. has been using in daylight raids on Germany.

The Germans in those days came over Britain at about 12,000 feet, considered the best possible height for defensive fighter activity and antiaircraft defense.

The R. A. F., when it reversed the picture this summer, swept over the Continent either very high—33,000 to 35,000 feet—or very low—100 to 150 feet.

No antiaircraft gunner can train his sights on a plane flying just 100 feet overhead at 250 or 300 miles an hour. Nor can a fighter attempt a dive on a plane at this height.

There have been British losses in this method, of course. But R. A. F. observers term the loss of 20 per cent in 300 miles of daylight flying by slow, outmoded Blenheims in the Cologne raid, for instance, "excellent" in view of results.

Modern bombers operating at 35,000 feet are out of the effective range of antiaircraft and too high for complete maneuverability by any Nazi fighter except the Heinkel 113 which evidently was built especially for this kind of fighting.

Predict Great Bombardments

If and when the Germans embark on this new campaign, the R. A. F. undoubtedly will continue its present offensive against Germany. One airman said, "We will throw more and heavier bombers into each raid until the attacks of 275 or 300 aircraft will be trivial."

Should the rival air forces begin simultaneous operations on a grand scale, air observers predict that destruction and death will be greater than anything experienced yet.

The R. A. F. is better equipped to repel an attack on this scale than ever before. A large quantity of fighters and bombers on hand is only half the picture. The other is the number of pilots trained in Canada, under better weather conditions than possible in England.

Also, there is a disposition in this country to ascribe much of the R. A. F.'s present prowess to the addition of American fighter and bombing planes.

Dynamic Counter-Attacks Hurl Back Nazi Invaders From Leningrad Sectors As Two Important Vantage Forts Are Retaken

Sink 15 Nazi Ships And Finnish Warship, Disabling Destroyers

SEP 26 1941

(By The Associated Press)

Moscow, Sept. 25—The Red lines before Leningrad again swung out in a series of savage counter-attacks today and Russians declared the great battle at least momentarily was turning against the invaders.

The Germans were thrown back six miles at one place and control of two villages taken from them, said Soviet accounts.

Concurrently, Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's armies of the center reported new successes at the core of their counter-offensive in the region of Gomel, claiming the recapture of a settlement under cover of Russian aerial assaults which alone smashed two Nazi companies in a single area of action.

CRESCENDO OF VIOLENCE

A midnight communique reported fighting along the entire front and said Red airmen destroyed 138 German planes Tuesday compared with Soviet losses of 36.

Before Leningrad the struggle appeared to be reaching a crescendo of violence; even Red calvary was said to be charging the mechanized invaders at some points.

Military dispatches to the official Army organ Red Star told of the endless arrival of fresh German troops to replace the thousands of fallen, adding that even with these reinforcements the Germans were not able in some areas to hold their siege positions.

The Soviet Baltic and Black Sea fleets, which the German Air Force has been trying so long to smash, were reported still in effective offensive action, a Russian recapitulation of recent engagements reporting the sinking of 15 German transports and other vessels, the disablement of ten German transports and destroyers and the destruction of a Finnish warship. Major Russian fleet losses announced by the Germans were at the same time denied.

Series Of Successes

Moreover, it was officially stated that aircraft of the Black Sea fleet air arm had smashed 22 German guns, 40 trucks of infantry and two small tanks in late operations.

The mid-day communique of the Soviet Command itself was characteristically restrained. Aside from telling of heavy and inconclusive fighting generally, it reported a series of local successes on the Central Front.

(Authoritative British informants in London repeated pessimistic estimates of the Russian situation, specifically reporting that a German attack on the whole Crimean Peninsula with a force of up to four divisions apparently was now under way.

(It was added that British tanks—a week's total production of British factories already had been promised to the Soviet—might soon be in action, although how they would reach Russia in a short time was not stated.

Press speculation that British Imperial troops might be sent through Iran into the Soviet Caucasus to aid the defense of the Russian oil shed was revived and heightened with the disclosure of recent staff talks between Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, the India commander; Gen. Sir John Dill, the chief of the Imperial General staff, and Prime Minister Churchill.)

The early morning Soviet communiqué said today that "on Sept. 25 our troops engaged the enemy along the entire front."

Reds Report Battle At Leningrad Turns In Their Favor

Counterattacks Against Besiegers on Several Sectors Reported

SEP 26 1941

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Sept. 25.—The Red Army declared today the tide of the first battle of Leningrad has begun to swing in its favor and reported counterattacks against German besiegers in greater number and strength on several sectors.

German reinforcements are constantly arriving to fill the gaps left by enormous losses, declared the army newspaper, Red Star, "but Red Army fighters and armed Leningradites are dealing blows in various directions. Here and there the German Army already is unable to resist our pressure."

(A few German tanks succeeded in penetrating the Soviet first line of defense at Leningrad in a strong infantry and tank attack yesterday, but were thrown back with heavy losses, the Moscow radio was heard in London to announce today.)

A Red Star war bulletin also reported a Soviet counterattack in the Gomel region, on the central front, where Russian forces are taking the offensive apparently to try to lessen German pressure on the Baltic and Black Sea flanks.

A settlement identified only as "D" was captured and, in the same area, Russian planes destroped 2 German companies and 42 vehicles, the report said.

The midday communique said only that fighting had continued through the night on the entire front and did not mention the struggle for Russia's second largest city.

Red Star reported a series of Russian counterattacks on the approaches to Leningrad, one of which, it said, hurled the Germans back six miles and resulted in recapture of two vallages.

Cavalry has participated in some of these thrusts, but most of them have been by tanks, closely followed by infantry after artillery preparation, its dispatches said.

The Red air force was said toe be filling a vital role with day and night operations against German concentrations, regardless of weather. On one recent day alone, Red Star said, Russian flyers destroyed 50 German planes grounded on airdromes.

The communique said 11 German planes were destroyed on Nazi-held air bases by Russian air attack yesterday.

Of German claims of heavy air blows against Russia's Black and Baltic Sea fleet, an official statement declared no ships of the Soviet Navy were sunk and none was set afire. On the contrary, it was said Soviet seamen sank fourteen German transports and ships, one Finnish warship and damaged and disabled ten German transports and destroyers.

Soviet torpedo boats were declared today to have sunk an Axis transport in the Gulf of Finland.

Moscow underwent its longest air-raid alarm of the war overnight, a noisy period of five hours forty-five minutes, but a communique said not one of the German planes pierced anti-aircraft and fighter defenses to bomb the city.

The Red army claimed a 3-to-1 edge in planes destroyed Monday—75 Germans and 25 Russians.

Reds Nip Nazis By Using Foe's Pincers Move

Counter Encircling Tactics With Similar Thrust and Break Some Spearheads

By Henry Cassidy

WITH THE RED ARMY ON THE CENTRAL FRONT (AP).—Acting on the axiom of meeting fire with fire, the Red Army is employing against the Germans their own pincers tactics. Out of the confused whirl of the Russian-German war has grown a clear pattern of German sallents thrust out to encircle Russian units met by Red Army pincers movements to cut off the German wedges.

The Russians have scored several successes with these tactics, carried out by Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's central forces. Counter-attacks have broken off a series of German spearheads in operations said by foreign military observers to have been brilliant in conception, co-ordination and execution.

The battle of Yelnya, Russia's greatest victory so far in this war, showed the Red Army at work with pincers. Tracing operations over the battlefield itself this correspondent saw how the Red Army took the city and objectives leading to it by means of encircling moves.

The Russians struck first at the village of Ushakovo, six miles north of Yelnya on the left flank of the German salient. They used pincers movements instead of frontal assaults throughout the twenty-six days of operations until the major objective was taken.

Ushakovo fell when the Russians captured a hill dominating the battleground around the village and forced the Germans to withdraw. The Red Army closed in steadily around Yelnya until the Germans abandoned the city on Sept. 4, retreating through a small bottleneck.

Paradoxically, the German capture of Yelnya, which is southeast of Smolensk, had been part of a pincers movement which threatened the Russians' rear and caused them to leave Smolensk after checking the German march toward Moscow.

The Russian counter-attack at Yelnya, on the left flank of the German bulge, was accompanied by a push against the right flank in the direction of Bryansk, which folded the Germans back and straightened the Red lines.

Similar tactics were used northeast of Smolensk, where the Red Army attacked toward Yartsevo and chipped off a smaller German salient.

'GREAT MASSES' OF REDS FLUNG IN, NAZIS SAY

Russians In Center Reported Battling To Ease Leningrad Pressure

Baltic City Portrayed As Being Reduced To Burning Ruins

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Sept. 25—The Russians are throwing "great masses" of troops against German positions on the north central front, apparently to draw German strength away from Leningrad, dispatches from the front said tonight.

Leningrad itself was portrayed as being reduced to burning ruins and wreckage by continuous cannonade and desperate house-to-house fighting in its factory suburbs.

Waves of Red soldiers attacked German infantry which dug in yesterday on the east bank of the Dvina river some 200 miles west of Moscow and 300 miles south of Leningrad, DNB reported.

Unable To Break Nazis

The agency said the Russians were unable to break German positions in the area. [Russian dispatches yesterday said Germans in this sector were routed in a four-day battle that cost the invaders more than 2,500 dead.]

On the southern front a German armored division attacked two Soviet infantry divisions and drove them into retreat, DNB reported. But the Russians were said to have built a defense line of trenches and machine-gun nests from the Kharkov industrial area to Crimea.

Reports Conflicting

The Leningrad reports were in some respects conflicting, but all agreed that the bitter fight for Russia's second city had shown no sign of letup. Admittedly there was furious hand-to-hand fighting by the defenders in the villages at the edge of the metropolis; mentioned, too, was continued defense by warships in the Bay of Kronstadt near Leningrad.

The Soviet battleships October Revolution and Marat have been firing from the bay in reply to German long-range artillery and Stukas and, although both have been reported hit badly, the commentary Dienst Aus Deutschland said today: "It will not be long until the barrels of these gun-towers will be silenced."

Ship Out Of Fight?

One authorized spokesman said it was his understanding that the October Revolution already was out of the fight.

Dienst said the guns of the two battleships "formed the strongest potential defense for Leningrad." It added that Kronstadt Bay was sheltering the remainder of the Soviet Baltic fleet and that "more than forty Soviet submarines are hidden in the bay."

In the suburban fighting, one German division was reported to have taken a large factory section after reducing it house by house. In some places trenches and casements were being stormed; but in others, the Russians used tanks for local counter-attacks.

Key City Menaced

A propaganda company report stressed that the Russians were placing great reliance in land mines in the Leningrad area. German engineers, it was said, have finished removing 26,000 of these from the Luga District, which is 90 miles from the city, and even now portions of many towns are closed because the mines have not all been removed. Many civilians were said to have been killed by the mines long after the fighting rolled past; one gasoline depot alone was sown with 156 of the explosive charges.

On the southern front the German Armies striking toward Kharkov and the Donets Basin were reported, without confirmation, to be standing before one of the most important industrial cities of that region.

Newspapers informed the folks at home that failure of letters to arive from the fighting men on this front should cause no anxiety because "all available transportation facilities are being used for wounded and for required repair materials."

The German Air Force was reported continuing to attack in waves against Russian artillery positions on the neck of land leading to Crimea.

Reds Named to Meet U. S.-British Mission

Hand-to-Hand Battle Rages At Leningrad

Suburban Defenses Are Penetrated, Nazis Claim

SEP 26 1941

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sept. 25.—Fighting hand-to-hand with bayonets, hand grenades and sidearms, the Germans were reported today to be thrusting into Leningrad's suburban defenses and rendering defense of that second largest of Russia's cities "more and more hopeless" as they advanced from street to street and house to house.

Assault troops were said to have pushed ahead after crushing resistance in at least two villages on the outskirts of the city while one German division seized a large factory district in a drive where every house was a contested objective.

That was the picture of the siege to be pieced together from news dispatches and the statements of informed Germans and military quarters.

(The British radio, however, recorded the Moscow radio's claim that the Germans had not yet actually penetrated suburban Leningrad. Moscow said the German report apparently referred to the small town of Peterhof on the Gulf of Finland, nearly 20 miles west of the city. C. B. S. heard B. B. C.'s relay of the Moscow report.

(The Red Army today declared that the tide of battle for Leningrad had turned in its favor and reported counterattacks against the German besiegers in several sectors.)

The German high command, dealing with another sector of the big battlefront, said desperate Russian attempts to break out of encirclement east of Kiev, in the Ukraine, had been "repulsed with bloody losses for the opponent."

In the mopup, the daily communique said, the body of Col. Gen. Kirtonos, whom the high command identified as supreme commander of a Soviet southwestern front, was found, fallen in battle. The communique said his staff, as well as the staffs of the 5th and 21st Soviet Armies had been "annihilated."

For the air force, the high command announced attacks last night in which military objectives at Moscow and armament factories Russian capital, were "effectively around Tula, 115 miles south of the bombed."

SEP 26 1941

(On the northern wing of the front, according to the German radio, several points of the Leningrad-Murmansk railway were reported in the hands of Finnish troops. Murmansk is one of Russia's principal Arctic ports. The Russians yesterday reported defeat of a second German drive against it.)

The fighting at Leningrad seemed to be a succession of scattered battles for the villages lying about the metropolis. At some spots the assault entailed storming trenches and casemates, it was said, and in others the Germans faced tank charges by the Russians.

The air force there also was active in patrol over a wide region. It was reported to have sunk a freighter on Lake Ladoga, north of Leningrad, and to have dispersed troop concentrations in the Leningrad area with "bloodiest" losses to the Russians.

A German commentator claimed that dive bombers and heavy artillery had subdued some Russian batteries at Leningrad, but said "the fight continues, extraordinarily bitter and severe."

Soviet naval craft recently reported by the Germans to have been bombed in the Gulf of Finland, including the battleship October Revolution, were said to be definitely out of the picture of Leningrad's defense now. Another Russian submarine hit a mine and sank, D.N.B. reported.

Leningrad proper and various surrounding villages were said to have been subjected to the severest bombardment, during which a military barracks was hit by one of the heaviest of bombs.

Field fortifications, artillery positions and bunkers likewise were attacked, the reports said.

Despite these reported successes, military sources were reluctant to predict just how long Leningrad might hold out, and semi-official commentators simultaneously showed measured caution in saying what effect events east of Kiev would have on Russia's continued resistance.

Optimism prevailed in Berlin regarding the progress of fighting in the east in view of the high command description of the Kiev encirclement as chaotic.

But Dienst Aus Deutschland, with high sources of information at the Wilhelmstrasse, refused to predict flatly that the battle east of Kiev sounded the death knell of the main Soviet resistance or even the end of Marshal Semeon Budyenny, Russian commander of the southwest.

In this connection, it was recalled that an authorized source on July 11, after the Bialystok-Minsk battle, spoke enthusiastically of the "collapse" of the Russian front.

Far to the south of the Leningrad siege, strong rolling air attacks were reported on the isthmus leading to the Crimea. Military spokesmen said that combat planes and dive-bombers successfully bombarded artillery positions, field fortifications and railway stations, causing heavy explosions and large fires. The Russian Fleet was regarded in military circles as a blank cartridge in Moscow's war pistol. These spokesmen claimed that air force had driven the Baltic Sea Squadron back into the Gulf of Finland and the Black Sea forces into an eastern corner of their home waters.

Military spokesmen today reported a 10,000-ton Russian freighter ablaze in Leningrad harbor. In a land development on the northern end of the front, they credited their Finnish allies with having taken possession of the Leningrad-Murmansk Railway at several important points, while at the southern end of the front they said the Germans had won further terrain and captured several thousand prisoners. Twelve tanks were destroyed, they said, and 600 horses were among the booty.

Berlin Sept. 25 (A. P.).—The German High Command announced today that military objectives at Moscow and armament factories around Tula, about 115 miles south of the Russian capital, were effectively bombed last night.

Britain Rushes Aid to Russia As Reports Give Dark Picture

Tanks From England Due to Be in Action Soon—Imperial Troops May Be Sent Through Iran to Help Reds.

SEP 26 1941

London, Sept. 25 (A. P.).—British aid for the Russian armies is being rushed to the eastern front in a rapidly increasing tide, it was authoritatively reported today as dispatches to London painted a darkening outlook for the Red forces both at Leningrad and in the Crimea in the south.

With the R. A. F. only yesterday disclosed to be flying in battle on the eastern front, a reliable source said today that British tanks soon may be in action with the Russians.

Furthermore, newspaper speculation that British imperial troops might be sent through Iran into the Soviet Caucasus to aid hard-pressed Russia assuming new significance with disclosure of a series of military staff conferences involving troops in this area.

The need for early British action seemed to be pointed by a report in authoritative circles that a German attack on the Crimea was developing by a force which "may be anything up to four divisions," an attack apparently aimed at the whole Crimean peninsula rather than at just a few strategic points.

These quarters said they lacked information regarding the size of the Russian garrison on the Crimea and therefore were unable to hazard a guess as to how well the Soviet Army would be able to resist even a comparatively small attacking force.

Reds Say Tide Turned.

At Leningrad, virtually besieged, a few German tanks were acknowledged by the Russians to have succeeded in penetrating the Soviet first line of defense with a strong infantry and tank attack, although the Red Army said that the tide of battle had begun to swing in its favor with counterattacks against the Germans.

British tank aid appeared to be at hand. It was understood the Russian military mission has approved the types of tanks deemed to be most helpful, and that machines already were being sent by every system of transport open at present.

The Russians, it was understood, are establishing schools for training crews to man British tanks. Russian military experts are expected to visit Britain for tank instruction.

British tank production this week, all of which goes to Russia, will set a record, it was said here. Then the British intend to maintain this volume. The volume of tanks sent to Russia during the winter and the spring of next year will be a high percentage of British production, it was said.

Try to Speed Transport.

Efforts are being made to speed up transport so that British supplies will arrive in the shortest possible time. Railways and roads of the Middle East are being developed to speed the increased supplies from Britain to Russia.

The four divisions reported developing an attack on the Crimea were said by reliable sources to be of about 17,000 men each.

They said the attack might be developing farther east along the upper shores of the Sea of Azov, however.

The view in London was that the German objective was the whole Crimean peninsula rather than local strategic points. The informants said it still was too early to determine the precise route of the drive or whether the Germans were employing parachute troops.

Whether the invaders already had occupied the Perekop Isthmus, connecting Crimea and the mainland, was not known.

One source reported that German attacks on the northern part of the front, toward Murmansk and elsewhere along the Finnish border, had been held up.

Generals Visit London.

It was announced yesterday that Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, commander-in-chief for India, recently visited London and talked with Prime Minister Churchill and Gen. Sir John G. Dill, chief of the Imperial General Staff.

Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck, Middle East commander, visited London in August and he and Gen. Wavell conferred in Egypt while Gen. Wavell was on the way back to Simla by air.

Churchill Well Informed.

With reports from the heads of both commands, Mr. Churchill now is informed first-hand of just what aid Britain could give Russia in the event it was decided to place British troops beside Red Army divisions in defense of the Caucasus, British pointed out.

Some commentators forecast that Britain now would make an important military move in the Middle East, but there was no authoritative confirmation.

Gen. Wavell a fluent speaker of Russian, was said to have been charged with the job of insuring efficient liaison and seeing that communications through Iran ran smoothly.

Flow Of British Aid To Reds Via Iran Called Only Trickle

Obstacles So Great Not A Single Cartridge Has Got Through, Teheran Reports

SEP 26 1941

BY DAN DE LUCE

[By the Associated Press]

Teheran, Iran, Sept. 25—British and Russian experts are working feverishly to establish an effective back-door supply route through Iran to the hard-pressed Russian armies, but so great have been the obstacles that thus far the hoped-for flow of supplies has been only a trickle.

Informed persons said today that a few tons of Indian jute is all Britain has been able to send by this route. Since the Iranian army ceased resistance to the Allied occupation a month ago, not a single British cartridge has been sent across Iran to the Soviet, it was asserted.

Russians here emphasize the urgency of the situation, pointing out the German threat to Rostov, great Black Sea port which stands at the northern end of the Caucasus. The Germans might well go farther and outflank Russian Caucasus communications within the next two months, it was said.

A handful of British and Russian experts have been working intensely in Teheran to organize a combination ship-rail-truck system which would deliver a heavy traffic of war materials from the Persian Gulf to Russia over a route using Iran and the Soviet Caspian Sea ports of Baku and Astrakhan.

They have bumped into obstacles at every turn, however.

The Russians are aware that the British are coping with a difficult task in supplying a big offensive army on the Egyptian desert and other divisions scattered in Iraq, Syria and Palestine. They have accepted at face value British assurance that tonnage would be diverted eventually to carry tanks, munitions and plane parts to the Iranian port of Bandar Shahpur on the Persian Gulf.

Freight Could Be Sped

Given a British-Russian reorganization of Iran's railways, freight could be speeded from Bandar Shahpur 800 miles across Iran to Bandar Shah, Iranian port on the Caspian Sea. From here it could be transshipped by Caspian steamer on its final leg to Russia through Baku or Astrakhan.

An alternative rail route would take the goods to Tabriz, rail terminus in northwest Iran, whence they would have to be trucked 200 miles to the Russian border.

Rail communications in the Russian zone of Iran, in the north, are reported to have deteriorated in the past month because maintenance crews have fled or been unpaid because of the confusion arising from the Russian occupation.

Rolling Stock Limited

Only a limited amount of rolling stock is available anywhere in the country, the railroad having been a pet extravagance of the abdicated Shah, Reza Pahlavi, and built mainly for display.

The British end of the transport program is under two representatives of the United Kingdom Chamber of Commerce and an army colonel. They are working with a Russian trade delegation here.

The British say that if the Russian situation develops as expected, enough shipments can be made through Iran during the winter to aid substantially the Red army's spring preparations.

AMERICAN VISAS SOUGHT FOR SHAH

SEP 26 1941

Iranian Minister Ordered to Request Them.

Teheran, Sept. 25 (A. P.).—Iran's Minister to Washington was instructed today to obtain United States and South American visas for the ousted Shah, Reza Pahlavi.

Arrangements for his departure went forward despite demands in Parliament that he be detained until all the crown jewels have been accounted for.

A report today said that a British freighter had arrived at Badar Abbas, on the Persian Gulf, to start him on the way to exile in a place not yet known.

This did not square with advices yesterday that Reza Pahlavi's limousine motorcade was nearing the wild frontier of Baluchistan, a part of Greater India.

The papers which the former monarch signed in turning over his properties to the State through his son and successor, Mohammad Reza Pahlavi, are considered by authorities to be worthless so far as recovery of his extensive foreign bank accounts are concerned.

Say Nazis Seek 1,000,000 Troops of European States

LONDON, Sept. 25 (AP)—Well-informed circles in Ankara, Turkey, said that Germany was demanding 1,000,000 troops from Italy, Rumania, Hungary, Slovakia and Bulgaria to relieve German forces in Russia during a rest period, exchange telegraph reported tonight.

The British News Agency said Bulgaria was resisting the pressure and the Italians, who had been asked for half of that manpower, replied they needed all their strength to retain Libya.

U. S. Planes Put On Show For Germans In Ankara

Ankara, Sept. 24 (Delayed) (AP)—Four American Curtiss P-40 pursuit planes circled a hotel housing a German trade delegation here and landed on a nearby airport today just about the time it was learned the Germans had declined to give Turkey warplanes under a trade agreement.

These planes, called Tomahawks by the British, were the first of a consignment of thirty-six released to Turkey from the hundreds now pouring into British bases in the Middle East.

The planes arrived at a time when Turkey rapidly was approaching the hour when she must show on whose side she stands because of the critical phase of the German-Russian war.

Turkey, it was understood, had put fighter planes at the top of a list of things she wanted from Germany in return for vegetable oils and perhaps chrome.

ASSERTS FLANK ON ADRIATIC IS NOW SECURED

Move Coincides With News Of No-Quarter Fight On Rebels

SEP 26 1941

1,500,000 Axis "Enemies" Still Live In Nation, Newspaper Notes

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Sept. 25—Coincident with word that 1,500,000 Serbs still oppose the Axis-sponsored regime in Croatia—thousands of them roaming in guerrilla bands with torch, bomb and machine gun—Italy proclaimed today she had secured her Adriatic flank by reoccupation of a Croatian demilitarized zone.

The commander of Italy's second army, Gen. Vittorio Ambrosio, reporting to Premier Mussolini, said the area was reoccupied without "any incidents worthy of notice." The reoccupation was ordered in August.

Fight On Rebels Bared

The announcement appeared on the same day as a dispatch in the newspaper Il Popolo di Roma telling of a no-quarter fight against Serb rebels. Croatia was erected from the ruins of defeated Yugoslavia.

It also was disclosed that Italy had given Croatia equipment for a battalion of motorized police—fifty motorcycles with sidecars and machine guns and two searchlights.

[Related reports Thursday included a German dispatch from Belgrade saying that German soldiers and Serb armed forces had dissolved "a Communist gang" west of Belgrade, killing the leader and thirteen others, and a British radio broadcast saying that 12,000 Serb rebels attacked a Serb town yesterday, with violent fighting continuing despite arrival of German reinforcements and dive-bomber attacks.]

Zone Lies On Adriatic

The zone reoccupied by the Italian Second Army lies along the Adriatic, between the Dalmatian coast and the Dinara Mountains. It was said to have been reoccupied with the consent of the Croat Government.

Aims of the move, according to the formal announcement, were to "end any disturbance" and to guarantee that Italian security will not be disturbed by "the enemy or his agents, whether they be Anglo-Saxon, Jews or Bolsheviks."

Il Popolo di Roma's dispatch estimated that 1,500,000 Serbs live in Croatia between Zagreb and Sarajevo and called them "1,500,000 enemies of the Pavelic regime."

Most Of Them "Adjusted"

"Most of them have adjusted themselves to a new state of things, perhaps hiding sub-machine guns in the woods, but for the present they are quiet," the dispatch said.

"A few others have taken to the brush and formed bands which run about firing in the Bosnian forests today, shooting down the Ustachi tomorrow, blowing up a bridge or railroad tracks.

"Ustachi volunteers, solidly formed with the militia, give chase to the rebels, uncover them in their mountain hiding places and send them to the other world without much ado."

[The Ustachi are the extremist Croat guard with which the chief of the Croat state, Ante Pavelic, has surrounded himself and which he directed even while in exile in Italy before the dismemberment of Yugoslavia.]

Il Popolo di Roma's correspondent said "Communists operate in the cities," setting blasts in public buildings, such as recently at the Zagreb postoffice, but added by way of explanation that "Croatian Communism is only Serbism which drapes itself today in the Red flag to hide itself."

The writer said that Jews already had vanished from Croatian life.

"Where are Croatia's 40,000 or 50,000 Jews now?" he asked. "It is not known. There is talk of a small island in the Adriatic."

Jewish Architects Restricted in France

Vichy, Sept. 25 (A. P.).—Jewish architects were ordered today to register by October 25 for weeding out by local boards wherever they exceed 2 per cent of non-Jews in the profession.

BERLIN AND ROME ACT AGAINST SERBS

Italy Says Croatia Backs New Occupation of Demilitarized Zone—Riots There Reported by London.

SEP 26 1941

Rome, Sept. 25 (A. P.).—The Italian Army has completed reoccupation of a demilitarized zone in Croatia to restore order in that turbulent State carved out of dismembered Yugoslavia, it was announced today. This zone lies along the Adriatic seaboard between the Dalmatian coast and the Dinara Mountains.

[The National Broadcasting Company late today heard a report by the B. B. C. that two more German battalions have just been sent to Yugoslavia, to help curb guerrilla warfare there.]

A communique said the step was taken with the consent of the Croat Government and its aim was to "end any disturbance and a return to normal life for the population as well as an absolute guaranty for the period of the war that Italian security in the Adriatic and the hinterland will not be disturbed by the enemy or his agents, whether they be Anglo-Saxon, Jews or Bolsheviks."

The announcement that Italy's second army, commanded by Gen. Vittorio Ambrosio, had completed the reoccupation ordered by Premier Mussolini in August, coincided with a report in the newspaper Il Popolo di Roma of a fight without quarter against Serb rebels in Croatia and disclosure that Italy had given the State equipment for a battalion of motorized police.

[A British broadcast, heard here by NBC, said 12,000 Serbs attacked a Serb town yesterday and that it still was the scene of violent fighting today despite arrival of German reinforcements and German dive-bomber attacks.]

Gen. Ambrosio, reporting to Il Duce on the reoccupation, said it took place without "any incidents worthy of notice."

Give Guns to Croatia.

Italian officers delivered ten trucks, fifty motorcycles with sidecars and machine guns and two searchlights to Croatian authorities yesterday in Karlovac for use by the police.

Under a decree by Ante Pavelic, Croatian Chief of State, offenders of economic regulations particularly those charged with what are regarded to be abusive price increases, are to be tried before a special tribunal, as are political criminals.

Il Popolo di Roma estimated that 1,500,000 Serbs live in Croatia between Zagreb and Sarajevo and described them as "1,500,000 enemies of the Pavelic regime."

"Most of them have adjusted themselves to a new state of things," it said, "perhaps hiding sub-machine guns in the woods, but for the present they are quiet."

"A few others have taken to the brush and formed bands which run about firing in the Bosnian forests today, shooting down the Ustachi (Pavelic's Guards) tomorrow, blowing up a bridge or railroad tracks."

The newspaper said that against these "repression is carried out without pity."

"Ustachi volunteers, solidly formed in militia, give chase to the rebels, uncover them in their mountain hiding places and send them to the other world without much ado."

The dispatch declared that "communists operate in the cities," throwing bombs and exploding dynamite charges in the basements of public buildings, as in the Zagreb post office recently.

"Croatian Communism," the newspaper said, "is only Serbism, which drapes itself today in the red flag to hide itself."

A Ustachi official was quoted as saying that "winter will make these wolves come down from their lairs and we will trap them."

The newspaper reported that Jews already had disappeared from Croatian life.

"All have been chased out," it said. "Where are Croatia's 40,000 or 50,000 Jews now? It is not known. There is talk of a small island in the Adriatic."

Nazis Blame Communists.

Berlin, Sept. 25 (A. P.).—DNB reported from Belgrade today that German soldiers and armed Serbian forces had "rendered innocuous a communist gang" which had been terroriziing the Obrenowatz district.

A fight of several hours and a search through a forest in the region near the town of Bjeljina, west of Belgrade, the German news agency said, ended with fourteen of the band dead, including its leader. Ten others were arrested.

Authoritative sources said they were uninformed on a report (broadcast by the BBC) that dive-bombers had attacked 12,000 rebellious Serbs.

T...tish radio said today tha...n Czecho-Slovakia hundreds of German troops are reported to have been rushed to the great Skoda Arms Works following an explosion which killed and wounded many Nazi workers.

"In spite of the presence of the German troops, another explosion occurred which destroyed the power station," BBC added.

The Columbia Broadcasting System recorded the British broadcast here.

De Gaulle Forms Government

SEP 26 1941

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 25—Gen. Charles de Gaulle announced today creation of a "national committee" with himself as president "for the exercise of direction of policy and administration of Free France."

Other committee members, all designated "national commissioners," are:

Rene Pleven, economy, finance and colonies; Maurice De Jean, foreign affairs; Gen. Paul Louis Le Gentilhomme, war; Vice Admiral Emile Henri Muselier, navy; Gen. Martial Valin, air; Prof. Rene Cassin, justice and education; Andre Diethelm, interior, labor and information; Commander George Theirry D'Argenlieu, commissioner without department.

De Facto Government

Herve Alphand, former financial attache of the Vichy French Embassy in Washington, has been named Free French Director of Economic Affairs.

De Gaulle previously had announced that the new body would serve as a de facto government of Free France.

Free French sources said they expected Britain and her allies to give recognition soon. Two Free French representatives sat yesterday as members of the Inter-Allied Council.

Frenchwomen Aiding R. A. F. To Be Jailed

SEP 26 1941 [By the Associated Press]

Vichy, Unoccupied France, Sept. 25—Frenchwomen in the German-occupied zone aiding fallen R. A. F. crews will be deported to German concentration camps, occupation authorities announced in Paris today in renewing warnings against any assistance to British airmen.

Men caught helping the British already are subject to the death penalty.

German authorities in Paris arrested Emile Lisbonne, Jewish Senator from the Drome department and former Minister of Health in the Chautemps Cabinet, on a charge of illegal traffic in coal.

Other arrests of black market operators were reported from Toulouse. French authorities also sentenced a business executive in Rabat, Morocco, to five years at hard labor for Free French activities as both French and Germans continued to combat political and economic threats to their present order.

The French sentenced a lawyer for "remarks liable to exert a bad influence on the popular spirit."

One of the special anti-Communist courts in Paris sentenced eleven persons to terms up to life, and at Dijon two more were sentenced on charges of Communist activity at the demarcation line at Chalons Sur Saone.

Berlin Reports Convoy Sunk Off West Africa

Berlin, Sept. 25 (AP)—The high command announced tonight almost complete annihilation of a twelve-ship England-bound convoy off West Africa, declared that a new and secret Nazi U-boat technique had made the convoy system increasingly vulnerable and said almost 1,000,000 tons of British ships had been sunk since the start of the Russian war.

All but one of the ships attacked by a U-boat fleet off West Africa were sunk, a special communique said. A few hours later a High Command spokesman, citing this latest attack as one example, produced the 1,000,000-ton figure to support his contention that the submarine has been developed as a weapon of offense faster than defenses against U-boats have been devised.

British System "Slipping"

The convoy system, the spokesman said, is the most effective British system of defense yet devised at sea—yet, he contended, this system is slipping in the face of the new, "naturally secret," U-boat method of attack.

Only a few months ago, he said one half to three quarters of ships attacked in convoys escaped; today, he pointed to the reported escape of but one ship off West Africa, and eleven sunk.

A high command statistician further calculated that the slightly less than 1,000,000 tons of shipping reported sunk since June 22 carried goods which would have filled a European freight train 455 miles long—"exclusive of the locomotive," the expert added.

British Losses Highlighted

Germans find special satisfaction in noting British ship losses since the Russian war started, because of British assertions that the Russians would keep Germany so busy that the battle of the Atlantic would have to be neglected by the Nazis.

A brief communique placed the British tonnage losses off West Africa at 78,000 tons, and said the only ship to escape was a small one.

[It was the first report of a major South Atlantic U-boat attack in some weeks. It immediately recalled recent stories of interned sailors escaped from Dakar, French Senegal, and of the movement in and out of Dakar harbor of some fifteen submarines, flying the French flag but manned by German-speaking crews. Vichy has denied there are any German forces in French West Africa.]

"Powerfully Protected"

The convoy, it was stated, was "powerfully protected by destroyers," but the fate of these was not mentioned.

Berlin commentators immediately began to figure that the tonnage sunk would represent 110,000 tons of cargo destined for England, and went on to speculate that if the ships were loaded with food, it would be enough to feed the industrial city of Hull, for instance for seven months.

Dienst aus Deutschland, which serves frequently to present the views of the Foreign Office, predicted that September sinkings by the German Navy and air force would exceed the German-reported August toll of 537,000 tons. (The British presented no figures for August, but indicated the toll was less than 300,000 tons.)

The Berlin newspaper "Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung" said that in the last two weeks Nazi submarines and speedboats alone have sent to the bottom sixty-two merchantmen totaling 387,000 tons.

11 Ships Sunk, Nazis Say

Berlin, Sept. 25 (AP)—Germany declared today that U-boats off West Africa had destroyed eleven merchantmen of a convoy of twelve ships sailing toward England "despite powerful protection by destroyers."

"Only one small steamer managed to escape," said a special communique. "Eleven ships of a total of 78,000 tons were sunk."

Britain has lost almost 1,000,000 tons of shipping since the start of the Russian war June 22, a German High Command spokesman said.

The British convoy system was slipping in the face of "a new and naturally secret U-boat technic," he said.

The spokesman said that in the world war and at the beginning of this war U-boats generally sought out ships sailing alone or with little protection, it being assumed that submarines had no chance against convoys. Now, he said, in consequence of a new secret technic, convoys have become increasingly vulnerable.

Only a few months ago half to three-quarters of any attacked convoy would escape but it is different today, he went on, referring to the German report of sinking eleven out of twelve ships off West Africa.

Neither the special nor the general communique from Berlin today located the attack on the convoy more precisely than off Africa.

There have been stories—covered by Vichy's blanket denials—that Dakar, French West Africa, westernmost port of the continent, is being used or being prepared for use as a U-boat base. There has been at least one attack on a large convoy in the region of the Cape Verde Islands, just off Dakar. Also the American freighter Robin Moor was torpedoed by a German submarine 700 miles south of the Cape Verde Island on May 21.

Among the latest of the Dakar stories was that of two Danish seamen who reached Cape Town about two weeks ago from Dakar where they had been interned. They told of the nightly coming and going of fifteen submarines which flew the French flag while in port at Dakar but which carried German-speaking crews.

The 1,231-ton Swedish freighter Garm has been sunk by war action with a loss of six lives, the American Swedish News Exchange reported today from Stockholm. The report said fourteen members of the crew had landed safely in Iceland.

DAKAR U-BOAT BASE SUSPECTED AGAIN

Belief Bolstered By Report Of Big Convoy Raid "Off West Africa"

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 25—A German announcement today that heavy damage has been inflicted on a Britain-bound convoy "off West Africa" raises again the grave question whether the Nazis are using Dakar or other French African ports as U-boat bases.

British versions of the incident are still to come. There is a strong implication in the German statement, however, that a base of some sort has been developed, perhaps with the tacit "collaboration" of Vichy, on the coast of French West Africa.

New Strain Involved

If that should prove true, the German-American relations would come under added strain and Washington and Vichy would be instantly at loggerheads.

The South Atlantic bridgehead via Dakar has been stressed by President Roosevelt as a danger point for the New World should it be placed at Germany's disposal.

The Nazi South Atlantic submarine raids might have another strategic purpose, aimed as much at American "shoot-first" naval operations in the North Atlantic as at England-bound cargoes from the south.

BRITISH LAND PLANES GUARD SHIP CONVOYS

SEP 26 1941

Single-Seaters Catapulted From Freighters to Attack Bombers

NEW YORK, Sept. 25 (AP)—Single-seater fighter planes catapulted from the decks of British freighters are proving effective in helping to move convoys between Iceland and England, travelers reaching here said today. The British press service confirmed their stories.

Pilots Risk Death

These land planes—risking death for the pilot because of their inability to land on water—have been attacking German bombers and spotter planes sent out to get information for U-boat flotillas.

The planes, carrying four machine guns and several 50-pound bombs attached to the wings, are not expected to return to the vessel after they are thrown into the air. They try to make land and if this is impossible because of fuel shortage due to a long flight, they attempt a "mush" landing near a ship and the pilot takes to a rubber raft.

Some observers called the planes "suicide" units, but the British press service said casualties were infrequent.

Il Duce Greets All Gibraltar 'Suicide Raiders'

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Sept. 25.—Officers and sailors who took part in a raid three nights ago on the inner port of Gibraltar were received today by Premier Mussolini, and a communique said all of them were there.

The Italian high command has announced that three supply vessels were sunk by the tiny, secret "assault boats" which sped through the formidable port defenses, and a fourth ship was driven aground and probably lost. (The British said the Italians sank only a "hulk.")

(The statement that all the participants were present to hear Il Duce's eulogy is surprising. Such raids are considered almost suicidal. An "indispensable minimum"—presumably one man to each boat—guides the tiny torpedo craft toward the target, and a return trip is considered next to impossible.)

The communique said that "Il Duce received all the officers and sailors who took part in the attack, addressing to them words of admiration and eulogy, interpreting the feelings of the Italian people."

R. A. F. Guns Sink Six Ships

LONDON, Sept. 25 (AP).—The Air Ministry News Service said today that Britain's new Hurricanes, armed with either four 20-mm. cannon or twelve machine guns, sank two German anti-aircraft ships and four mine sweepers off the Belgian coast in a single day recently. The pilot of one twelve-gun fighter said the effect of his fire was "like putting the enemy through a sawmill," the news service said. Last year's Hurricanes had eight machine guns.

British Attack Nazi Ships

LONDON, Sept. 25 (AP).—American-made Hudson bombers of the coastal command bombed a large German supply ship off Norway yesterday, while Hurricane fighter planes cannonaded a mine sweeper off Dunkerque, France, the Air Ministr announced today. The attacks were made despite bad weather, which prevented more extensive operations

Meanwhile today it was announced that a very small number of enemy aircraft crossed the southeast coast of England last night and that one of them dropped bombs at a point near the coast. There were no casualties and only slight damage, however, the Government stated.

British Blast Libya Road

CAIRO, Sept. 25 (AP).—The Libyan coastal road supplying the besiegers of Tobruk was machine-gunned yesterday, the R. A. F. Middle East command announced today. One gasoline truck was directly hit and burned out, while many other vehicles were damaged, some colliding in the confusion caused by the British guns, it said.

Dover Area Is Bombed

BERLIN, Sept. 25 (AP).—German bombers raided the Dover harbor area last night, the high command announced today, after daylight attacks on railroads on the Scottish east coast.

No night attacks were made on Germany, it was stated.

SEP 26 1941

BERLIN, Sept. 25 (AP)—In North Africa, today's High Command communiqué said, German pursuit planes yesterday shot down seven British fighters and one bomber without losses.

German fliers were reported by D. N. B., the official news agency, today to have bombed and set afire British supplies at the Axis-besieged Libyan port of Tobruk in raids Tuesday and yesterday. Aerial bombs, it said, landed on gasoline stores and a pumping plant inside the Tobruk fortifications.

Palermo Also a Target

ROME, Sept. 25 (AP).—British air raids last night on the Sicilian city of Palermo and on Tripoli, Bengasi and Bardia, in Libya, were reported today by the Italian high command.

The R. A. F. dropped high explosives and incendiary bombs during the Palermo raid, the Italians said, causing damage to civilian buildings but no casualties. Anti-aircraft artillery shot down one British plane, it was said.

Big German Searchlight Illuminates the Channel

LONDON, Sept. 25 (AP) — The Germans have installed a powerful searchlight on the French coast which lights up the Channel and the British shore, coastal residents reported today.

Every clear night the giant beam spreads fanwise across a 30-mile stretch of water, it is so bright that any boat on the Channel would be easily visible. Motorists on the British shore have been momentarily blinded by it.

The light is located south of Dunkerque and was first seen two weeks ago.

American In R. A. F. Missing

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 25—Pilot Officer T. P. McGerty, of the American Eagle Squadron fighting with the British, was listed today as missing from an operational flight over occupied territory. McGerty was born in Los Angeles June 30, 1920.

McGerty had many dogfights with German airmen over France.

His mates said that on one day they had a fierce brush with a "mess of Messerschmitts" on a sweep and "airplanes got splattered all over the sky."

"When the squadron got back Tom McGerty was missing," they said. "Nobody knows whether he crashed, bailed out or what."

The youngster once told his fellow-flyers that he was "never more than 150 miles from Los Angeles before, but when I did travel I traveled far—all the way to Britain to fight with the R. A. F."

British Charge French Force Jibuti Natives

Somalis Are Driven At Gun Point To Lines Outside Port, Sources In London Declare

London, Sept. 25 (AP)—Authoritative British sources charged today that French Colonial officials at Jibuti were driving some natives at gun point to British lines outside that blockaded Somaliland port.

They denied British forces had attacked Somaliland posts and said such reports from Vichy may have resulted from the attempt of some Somalis to return to the French lines despite threats of being shot.

They probably were mistaken for British colonial forces, these sources said.

Berlin Thinks Swastika Brands All Nazis in U. S.

It's Just Like the Star of David for the Jews in Reich

BERLIN, Sept. 25 (AP).—The average Berliner believes that every German national living in the United States must wear a Nazi swastika in the same manner that Jews in Germany, since Sept. 19, have had to wear a large yellow Star of David on their left breasts.

Whoever launched this whispering campaign a few days ago did a good job of it. It is all over Berlin and people are repeating it everywhere.

American In Berlin Cuts Shoe Soles From Valise

Berlin, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Arthur K. Dunning of Bath, Me., secretary of the American Chamber of Commerce here, solved the shoesole problem by turning cobbler and now is tramping Berlin's streets on what used to be his suitcase.

With considerable red tape involved in getting new shoes and Dunning's favorite cobbler called into the army, the secretary remembered a set of tools he used when caught here in the last war.

"It looks like I won't be traveling anywhere for a long time," he said as he carved new soles from a suitcase in his office.

Japan May Use Own Ship to Get Americans Out

Vessel May Transport U. S. Nationals Home, Then Take Japanese Back

TOKIO, Friday, Sept. 26 (AP).—The Japanese government is considering the dispatch of a ship across the Pacific to accommodate stranded Americans here and to pick up Japanese nationals from the United States, a spokesman announced today.

Post offices here began accepting mail yesterday for the United States on a Japanese ship which authorities said would depart next week. Apparently the two-way evacuation plan would be carried out by this same ship. Direct mail service has been suspended several weeks.

Koh Ishii, Cabinet information-bureau spokesman, said the evacuation scheme was intended only "to serve an inconvenience" when asked if the plan were an approach to the bigger problem of severed Japanese-American trade relations.

Ishii would not say whether either the mail or evacuation ship would call directly at a United States port.

Meanwhile the steamer Anhwei anchored alongside the Yohohama pier to evacuate British nationals. The Britons immediately boarded the ship, which was expected to sail for Singapore this afternoon.

Leader of Tohokai Envisages Destruction of Japan if She Submits to Us

SEP 26 1941

TOKYO, Sept. 25 (AP)—Japanese conversations with the United States are compatible with the spirit of the Tripartite Alliance, Saburo Kurusu, Japan's Ambassador in Berlin when the pact was signed, declared in an interview published today.

The Berlin-Rome-Tokyo pact will be a year old Saturday.

Mr. Kurusu, interviewed by the Japanese press at the Foreign Office, said the alliance aimed fundamentally at peace and only secondarily at establishment of a new world order; hence the talks between President Roosevelt and Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura, Japanese Ambassador, were in harmony.

"Japan and America are responsible for the maintenance of peace in the Pacific," Mr. Kurusu declared. "Therefore they are responsible for the maintenance of world civilization." Foreign Minister Teijiro Toyoda will be host at a luncheon for Axis envoys and military attachés Saturday, it was announced today, in celebration of the anniversary of Japanese signing of the Axis pact.

Moscow Well Provisioned.

Separate Peace Denied.

The Berlin radio said today that the Finnish Minister of Commerce, Vaino Tanner, had restated Finland's determination to fight on Germany's side to victory. The Columbia Broadcasting System recorded the German broadcast, which said:

"Mr. Tanner, Finnish Minister of Commerce, was in Pressburg yesterday. Press representatives asked him the same old question about the possibility of a separate Finnish peace with the Soviet Union. Mr. Tanner answered that the Soviet Union's repeated breaches of word and treaty had undermined all Finnish faith in the masters of the Kremlin. Finland, he declared, will fight on Germany's side to the final victory."

Production of Raw Silk Is Curtailed

Japanese Move Due to U. S. Freezing Order

TOKYO, Sept. 25 (AP)—The ministry of agriculture announced formally today the curtailment of the reeling of raw silk from cocoons for the 1941 fiscal year.

Production was ordered reduced to 450,000 bales from 550,000 bales in view of the effects on the Japanese silk industry of the United States freezing order.

The Times-Advertiser reported such "drastic reduction" was most likely to stimulate the amalgamation of smaller reelers, a step which the Government has been encouraging in order to achieve better regulation.

The National Federation of Silk Reelers called an emergency meeting to discuss the problems facing the industry.

Confederate Flag Buried With Anzac in Far-Off Syria

Australian Soldier Carried Stars and Bars Into Last Battle; Richmond, Va., Relatives Give Him Old Banner on Visit

SEP 26 1941

By EDWARD KENNEDY
Associated Press Correspondent

CAIRO, Egypt, Sept. 25—An American Confederate flag, carried into battle in Syria by an Australian soldier who admired the lost cause it stood for, now lies buried with him in the rugged hills near Djezzine.

Friends of Private Christopher Moody Walker of Melbourne, killed in action in the recent successful British-Free French Campaign against Vichy Forces, said he had carried the silken stars and bars in his pocket.

Walker was given the flag a few years ago when he visited distant relatives at Richmond, Va. He formed a deep attachment for the South and learned many southern songs which he sang to his comrades in Syria. Often he argued in favor of the Confederacy.

Walker, a 35-year-old six-footer, was, in peacetime, chief copyreader for a Melbourne newspaper and had been offered a commission as an official army broadcaster but refused this, preferring to fight as a private.

After the armistice in Syria a comrade who was wounded and captured in the action near Djezzine returned to the spot and found Walker's body in an unmarked grave with the flag still in his coat.

The comrade replaced the flag and, marking the grave as best he could, left the body there.

Burma Given Warning Against Complacency

Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham Says Britain Must Speed Preparations

Rangoon, Burma, Sept. 24 (AP) (Delayed)—Britain "must draw full value from the time that is yet ours" to prepare for war in the Far East, Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham said in a press conference today while on tour of his British Far Eastern command.

He praised Burma's war effort, but warned against complacency.

The commander in chief said that the present upsurge of fighting in China might indirectly affect Burma, through which the central Chinese Government is getting supplies over the Burma road, and therefore Burma must "do all that is possible to assist China."

Gen. Zuloala Discharged.

Buenos Aires, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—General Angel M. Zuloala, chief of the United States-trained Argentine Air Force, was removed from his command tonight by War Minister Juan Tonazzi after 20 aviation officers had been arrested as conspirators against the state.

The 56-years-old Zuloala submitted his resignation yesterday to express his dissatisfaction both with his subordinates whom the government charged with plotting an uprising, and with his superiors who acted against them without consulting him.

But Tonazzi chose to fire him, a few hours after returning from a good-will visit to Chile and going into a conference with Acting President Ramon Castillo. The president has charged Radical party members, Nationalists, and others were behind the plot, but has given no further details of the extent or purposes of the conspiracy.

Although shorn of his command, Zuloala remains in active service at the disposal of the war ministry.

Military sources said a complete reorganizatoin of the army air force was anticipated. The war minister was said to be determined to punish the plotters.

Tonazzi signed the decree just before a special cabinet meeting called by Acting President Ramon Castillo to consider the international situation. When the meeting ended Castillo declared that the air force plot had not been discussed because it was a matter for him to decide personally.

German Envoy's Status.

Actually, the Zuloaga ouster was the latest of a series of disciplinary measures affecting military men. Gen. Benjamin Menendez recently was ordered confined to his home for two months for writing a letter to the pro-Nazi newspaper El Pampero, which some political circles interpreted as a call for a revolution.

Colonel Imprisoned

Lieut. Col. Urbana de La Vega was imprisoned for several months this year at the army garrison Campode Mayo on a charge of taking part in an alleged revolutionary plot.

Gen. Juan Bautista Molina, accused of leading the plotters, now is awaiting trial on a charge of conspiring against the security of the state.

As for the latest affair, the public had no official information as to just what the authorities suspected. Of the many rumors, one was that a Nazi-inspired Putsch had been afoot; another spread by the Government's critics was that the Government itself prepared the affair to increase its favor with popular opinion.

Presumably up for discussion at the cabinet meeting, aside from the prompt action taken Tuesday night which led to the arrest of some 20 Argentine officers of aviation, occupation of the country's military airdromes and the temporary grounding of its air force, was the status of German Ambassador Edmund von Thermann.

Von Thermann had been designated, by a congressional committee investigating subversion, as a leader of pro-Nazi activities and had subsequently been censured by the Argentine Congress in terms which were tantamount to a request for his expulsion.

In Rio de Janeiro, the Newspapero-Jornal praised the Argentine authorities for quick action and likewise said they had acted to crush a Nazi plot intended to "open a wedge in this hemisphere for realization of Nazi plans."

A crowd gathered quickly today in front of headquarters of the Anti-Axis Accion Argentina group when the secretary posted a sign reading: "Nazi mutiny expected tomorrow! Argentines, be alert!"

The secretary, Enrique Corominas, admitted, however, that he knew of no plans for a revolt and explained: "Signs like this put the people on their toes."

Argentina Quiet, But Rumors Spread

(By the Associated Press)

Buenos Aires, Sept. 25—The Government declared today that all danger was past from a movement described officially as a coup d'etat conspiracy, but rumors continued to fly thick and fast as the public sought explanations of the mysterious plot.

Acting President Ramon Castillo said absolute tranquillity prevailed following the Government's occupation of military airports, arrest of some twenty aviation officers, and immobilization of the nation's 200 first-line warplanes.

SEP 26 1941

Zuloaga Ouster Denied

He denied that Gen. Angel M. Zuloaga had been relieved of command of the United States-trained air force, although the possibility that the 56-year-old officer had resigned was not excluded.

The Andi news agency said it was informed by a high military source that Zuloaga was out as a result of the abortive plot among air corps officers.

And it quoted its informant as saying Zuloaga himself asked to be relieved of command, not admitting complicity in any plot, but being offended by the army's attitude.

The general was among those who greeted War Minister Juan Tonazzi on the latter's return today from a trip to Chile.

Rumor Accuses Regime Itself

Current rumors ranged from one that the incident was an incipient totalitarian-inspired putsch to another that the Government itself planned the affair to arouse popular feeling in its favor. The identities and political leanings of the arrested officers were not disclosed, however.

Authorities still apparently have not found thirty-four cases of ammunition, disappearance of which gave the clue to the conspiracy and led to swift Government intervention.

Acting President Castillo charged that Radical party members, Nationalists and others were involved. At the same time, he said the plotting had little importance.

Heavy Guards At Airfields

Troop detachments as large as battalions, which total 900 men in the Argentine army, patrolled the airfields, military planes were ordered grounded until Saturday and aerial bombs and ammunition were under guard.

The charge by Castillo, member of the Conservative National Democratic party, that Radicals, Nationalists and others had plotted against the Government drew a concrete protest from the House of Deputies, where the Radical party is dominant.

Radicals Balk

The angered radicals, actually followers of a liberal middle-of-the-road policy, blocked House approval of a proposed $110,000,000 loan from the United States for execution of Castillo's economic rehabilitation program.

Party spokesmen said the chamber would not vote any Administration proposal until the political atmosphere had cleared.

Election-Control Move Alleged

They declared the Government sought to control December elections in the Buenos Aires province, where Argentina's largest provincial electorate will cast the vote, which observers declared, would lay the groundwork for the Presidential election of 1943.

Castillo has been Acting Chief Executive since President Roberto Ortiz became ill in July, 1940.

PAPER CHARGES NAZI PLOT TO ATTACK CHILE

SEP 26 1941

Says Conspiracy Was Aimed Also At Most Of South America

Asserts German Staff Had Set Blitzkrieg For Wednesday Morning

[By the Associated Press]

Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Sept. 25—The newspaper O Jornal praised the Argentine Government tonight for its quick action in dealing with an abortive plot, and blamed the plot on Nazi plans.

[By the Associated Press]

Santiago, Chile, Sept. 25—The newspaper Critica charged today that the plot uncovered this week in Argentina was a Nazi conspiracy involving a military attack on Chile designed to prevent unity in the Americas.

No source for the information was given other than the newspaper's own correspondents.

Nazi plotters, it was said, also planned eventual blows against Bolivia, Paraguay, Uruguay and Brazil by provoking a separatist movement in the Bolivian eastern provinces to surround Paraguay and threaten southern Brazil with "a military spearhead according to the German technique of lightning warfare."

Staff Planned Attack

"The German general staff planned the form of attack and selected Wednesday at 3 o'clock in the morning as the date most favorable for action," Critica's story said.

[First news that Argentina was moving to frustrate a plot involving air force officers was obtained Tuesday night.]

Critica said the plan was to be carried out by a "simple tieup between pro-Nazi military leaders in Argentina and the military command of the Third Reich."

How Plan Was To Work

It went on: SEP 26 1941

"Let us suppose that the Nazi plan in Argentina had been successful. A Fascist government would have been in control of all Argentine activities. Twenty-four hours later, without a previous declaration of war, hostilities would have begun against Chile in the following manner:

"A division of the Argentine fleet would have taken control of the Straits of Magellan, which would have been mined.

Fifth Column's Part

"The naval action would have been accompanied by a land action against southern Chile from Patagonia in sixteen different directions.

"At the same time a fifth column in Chile would have gone into action. Revolts would have been started by Nazi units in cities of southern Chile. Railway, water, gas and light plants would have been dynamited. Telephone and telegraph communications would have been cut. The Fascist armies then would have marched northward to cooperate in the installation of a totalitarian regime in Chile."

3 Transmitters Located

Police investigating Nazi activities in Chile today located three radio transmitters near La Union, southern Chile, which they said were clandestine.

It was reported that authorities would inquire into the relations between the "Association of the Friends of Germany," which numbers many Chileans in its membership, and German Nazi organizations.

Evidence of the existence of a branch of the Gestapo with headquarters at Valparaiso also was reported in some circles.

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 25 (AP)—The Federation of Government Workers threatened tonight to order a general strike of government employes which would tie up offices, communications, and armament factories if its demands for punishment of those responsible for a shooting affray in which troops killed six workmen Tuesday are not met.

Union leaders canvassed their memberships to get out 100,000 participants tomorrow for a giant protest demonstration against the shooting when victims will be buried. They were killed when troops opened fire on 1,000 demonstrators seeking a mass interview with President Avila Camacho.

Official reports list six men as killed. Labor leaders said 10 were killed outright and that deaths among the wounded brought the total to 15.

2D BOMB ON SHIP REPORTED

Mexican Paper Says Explosive Hidden In Nazi Vessel

Tampico, Mexico, Sept. 25 (AP)—The newspaper El Mundo said tonight it had learned reliably that another bomb was found yesterday hidden in the machinery of the steamer Puebla, the former 9,660-ton German liner Orinoco seized by Mexico last April.

One bomb was found on the ship about two months ago.

Panama Does Not Forbid Merchant Ship Arming

Panama, Panama, Sept. 25 (AP)—A Government spokesman said today that Panama thus far "has abstained from authorizing specifically" the arming of merchant ships flying the flag of Panama.

Informed circles took this to mean that arming is not forbidden but must be done at the expense and risk of the owners.

The United States-owned Pink Star sunk recently off Iceland, was under the Panamanian flag as are many ships of American ownership.

BILL TO REPEAL NEUTRAL LAW GIVEN SENATE

McKellar, Sponsor, Says Act Violates Principles Of Freedom Of Seas

President Says Arms Embargo Had Much To Do With Coming Of War

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 25 — The Senate received a resolution calling for outright repeal of the Neutrality Act today, amid a mounting tumult of controversy over that issue.

It was introduced by Senator McKellar (Dem., Tenn.), long a firm supporter of the Administration's foreign policy, with a statement that the act violates the principle of freedom of the seas.

SEP 26 1941

However, it was not clear whether the repealer had the official backing of the Administration. President Roosevelt and his lieutenants have been studying the question whether to ask outright or only partial repeal of the act.

Roosevelt On Embargo

Today, Collier's magazine released the text of a preface written by Mr. Roosevelt for the publication of his collected public papers and addresses of 1939, in which he said that the failure of Congress to repeal the old arms embargo section of the act in July, 1939, "had much to do with the coming of war when it did—less than two months later."

The President said that, although he approved the embargo when it was passed originally in 1935 and when it was extended from time to time, he "regretted" his action because the embargo "played right into the hands of the aggressor nations."

The embargo was repealed in November, 1939, and a new neutrality law passed. At present the principal provisions of the Neutrality Act prevent American ships from being armed or from traveling into combat zones.

Should All Be Repealed

McKellar, in introducing his resolution, told the Senate the law should be repealed in its entirety. The Government, he said, was "paying virtually no attention to it," and it should be withdrawn from the statute books for that reason and because it interferes with the freedom of the seas.

"By keeping this law," he said, "we are indirectly consenting to Germany's claim that she controls part of the waters of the Atlantic Ocean."

The passage of the act was a "mistake" in the first place, he said, and had "done no good but merely cluttered up a situation already bad."

Bridges Against It

After McKellar concluded, Senator Bridges (Rep., N. H.) said that he had voted against the Neutrality Act in 1939 and that he had "been against it ever since."

"The law was passed under the whip and spur of the Administration," remarked Senator Tobey (Rep., N. H.).

"That is right," Bridges replied. "The very people who insisted upon its passage are now asking its repeal."

Senator Taft (Rep., Ohio) meanwhile took the position that repealing the act would be the equivalent of a declaration of war. At a minimum, he said, it would authorize the Administration to carry on an undeclared war. He predicted a bitter battle in the Senate over the issue.

House Ready, He Says

Representative Wadsworth (Rep., N. Y.) was of the opinion that the House was ready to repeal or modify the act, and said he hoped it would be "wiped off the statute books."

"In all our history," he said, "we fought for the right to sail the seven seas at will. In the Neutrality Act we surrendered that right. That always seemed to me morally wrong."

Senator Schwartz (Dem., Wyo.), generally regarded as a middle-of-the-road man where foreign policy controversies are concerned, surprised some of his colleagues by announcing that he was "very much in favor of arming our merchant ships."

None Of Act Left

Representative Woodruff (R-Mich) said: "Every informed member of Congress, and every informed observer in Washington knows that President Roosevelt has not left a vestige of the Neutrality Act unviolated in spirit, if not in letter.

"Judging by Mr. Roosevelt's past performance, it would matter little to him whether the Congress did or did not modify or repeal the ragged remnants of the Neutrality Act, because Mr. Roosevelt in effect repeals or modifies and amends statutes to suit himself when he feels the occasion requires."

At an America First meeting in Boston, Senator Gerald P. Nye (R-ND) described the resolution to repeal the Neutrality Act as "amounting to a declaration of war, coming as it does on the heels of the President's order to the navy to shoot."

Congress Largely to Blame For War, Roosevelt Says

Asserts Repeal of Arms Embargo in July, 1939, Would Have Made Axis Pause; Adds He Foresaw Clash in 1937

SEP 26 1941

NEW YORK, Sept. 25 (AP)—Failure of Congress to repeal the American arms embargo in July, 1939, had much to do with the outbreak of the European war a month and a half later, President Roosevelt declared today in the fourth article of a series appearing in Collier's magazine.

"I cannot say that the repeal of these arms embargo provisions would by itself have stopped the war," he wrote. "I believe, however, that at least it would have been a strong factor in preventing the outbreak from occurring as quickly as it did."

The President said he was convinced that "Germany and Italy, both of which had spent so many years, and had sacrificed so much food and leisure and decent living and so many individual liberties to the task of building up vast stores of tanks and guns and planes, counted very heavily upon the fact that under our arms embargo law we could not sell a single plane or tank or gun to Great Britain or France once war was declared."

Urged Leaders to Act

Because of that conviction, Mr. Roosevelt continued, he called a conference in July, 1939, of the Republican and Democratic leaders of Congress to urge upon them further the necessity of repealing the embargo.

"It appeared clear at this conference, however, and was so stated by the Congressional leaders, that practically all of the Republican members of the Congress would vote against repeal and that about 25 per cent of the Democratic members would," the President wrote.

He said he found that "this opposition was based upon the belief that there would be no war in Europe before the following January, when the Congress would again assemble in regular session and that, therefore, there was no need for immediate legislation. It was at this conference that Senator Borah of Idaho made the now famous statement that his own 'private information' was more reliable than that collected by the State Department of the United States, and that his own 'private information' was to the effect that there would not be any war in 1939."

Laid Responsibility on Them

Under the circumstances, the President said, he felt that it would be useless to insist upon the repeal legislation but declared that "I made it clear to them at the conference that the opponents would have to take the sole responsibility for the results of their opposition."

The approach of war was visible to him as early as 1937, the President reiterated, when he made a speech in Chicago calling for a quarantine of international aggressors "in order to protect the health of the community against the spread of the disease."

His repeated warnings to the nation and Congress were largely ignored, Mr. Roosevelt said, because "there were, unfortunately, many Americans as there were many citizens in other democratic nations throughout the world, who refused to believe that war was probable, or even that it was possible."

Says Opinion Shifting

In the last two years, however, the President said he detected a rising belief among the American people that "although they did not want to become a part of the war, the war was, nevertheless, very strictly and emphatically becoming more and more a part of their business and concern."

Growing realization of "the true nature of the Nazi design upon the world" had led to the complete disappearance of "the feeling of strict neutrality and aloofness which influenced the American people in September of 1939 and during the beginning of 1940," the President continued.

"The modern type of lightning attack on land and in the air has brought the area of conflict physically so close to us that we now realize that we are the subject of potential armed attack as soon as the Axis powers come within striking distance," the Chief Executive wrote.

"With full appreciation, however, of the grave danger to the United States, to the Western Hemisphere, and to civilization itself, our people have resolutely determined to arm themselves to the teeth, and at the same time, to help to the limit those nations which are still resisting the aggressors and which still stand between us and a Nazi attack. To that end, the people of the United States, clearly thinking their way through, have dedicated themselves—with all their resources, their industry, and [illegible] manpower."

NYE CRITICIZES MOVE TO REPEAL NEUTRALITY ACT

Senator Declares Resolution "Amounts to Declaration of War"

BOSTON, Sept. 25 (AP)—A measure introduced in Congress today for repeal of the Neutrality Act was described tonight by Senator Gerald P. Nye (R-N. D.) as "amounting to a declaration of war, coming as it does on the heels of the President's order to the Navy to shoot."

At America First Meeting

"I don't know that the repealer advocates dare say this will be a step to keep us out of war, which they have said of each succeeding step starting with the arms embargo repeal," the senator said in a speech prepared for an America First meeting.

He shared the platform with former Senator Rush Holt of West Virginia at an extra-policed rally in Mechanics Hall.

Charging interventionists with "dragging into this war controversy that cheap, wholly un-American issue called anti-Semitism," the senator said:

"I know for a fact by reason of close and intimate contact that there is not a shred of anti-Semitic spirit in the mind and heart of Col. Charles Lindbergh or of Senator Burton K. Wheeler (D-Mont.)."

Charging President Roosevelt with issuing "engraved invitations" to war, Nye declared:

"We are brought face to face with the challenge of war at a time when the Congress of the United States would vote by large margins against a declaration of war."

The senator declared ". . . . Nearly 90 per cent of the people of America, who, though they want to aid certain causes abroad, are determined that that aid shall not be our own undoing . . . .

"It does seem to me," Nye asserted, "that the challenge confronting America in this hour is one of determining what it is we want to fight. . . . . If there is any fighting to be done, we ought to fight the causes that bring this consequence that is called 'Hitlerism.'"

Referring to what he called American change of thought in the last year, the senator declared, "Leaders of the interventionist cause who a few months ago were charging the noninterventionists as being associates of Earl Browder, Stalin and Communism today are accepting the companionship of both Stalin and Browder."

Nye declared that steps toward war started with repeal of the arms embargo and continued through passing of the lend-lease bill. The President's last speech, he said, was "nothing more and nothing less than a declaration of war by presidential proclamation.

"If President Roosevelt finally gets what he has been issuing engraved invitations for," the senator declared, "if we get into a shooting war in Europe, that war must always be referred to by historians as 'President Roosevelt's War.'"

Food-For-Europe Plan Expected To Be Shelved

SEP 26 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 25—After hearing from Secretary Hull that it was Germany's direct responsibility to feed the populations of countries she has subjugated, some highly-placed members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee predicted today that no action would be taken on legislation urging the State Department to work out a plan for sending American food to conquered nations.

However, Senator Taft (Rep., Ohio) said he hoped early consideration would be given to the legislation, which has the backing of former President Herbert Hoover.

Makes Hull Letter Public

Senator Connally (Dem., Texas), chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, who made public a letter from Hull regarding the food measure, said that action on the bill "has been postponed indefinitely." That was interpreted by other influential members of the committee as meaning that the proposal had been shelved.

In his letter, Hull declared that "the responsibility and manifest duty to supply relief (to conquered nations) rests with the occupying authorities, as it is well known that the German authorities have removed from the countries under occupation vast quantities of foodstuffs belonging to the peoples of those countries and within those countries have diverted food supplies from children to persons working in behalf of the German military effort.

"The removal of such foodstuffs is in the primary sense responsible for the lack of stocks of foods in those countries at the present time.

Notes Germany's Duty

Hull added that it was "extremely difficult to understand why, in the light of the direct responsibility for the German government to replace stocks of food removed from occupied countries and its direct responsibility for the feeding of the populations of the occupied territories, no effort has been made to have the German government carry out the duty which it assumed when it undertook to take over by force the countries concerned."

The State Department head added that Germany has not "put forth any claim to poverty of food for its own people and its huge armies, which are striking at the roots of freedom and civilization wherever they can."

Britain rejected a Hoover plan for feeding civilians in German-occupied countries nine months ago, announcing permission would be refused "for the passage of food through the blockade" because it would aid the German war effort.

This was interpreted by Berlin political circles as officially confirming that "the British blockade is directed against the whole of Europe."

The British contended that feeding of peoples of the occupied countries was a responsibility of the conquerors.

Only three weeks ago, however, authorized Germans declared that Germany had no obligations under international law to feed the population of occupied Russian areas.

The German occupying force must merely keep order and has no duty to release supplies of its own to an enemy population, they declared, and even has the right to feed its troops from supplies of occupied areas.

Wickard Thinks Food Won't Rise Much Higher

New York, Sept. 25 (AP)—Claude R. Wickard, Secretary of Agriculture, said in an interview today that he did not believe food prices would go much higher.

"While prices have risen in recent months," he said, "I don't see any reason why they should go very much higher and I don't think they should."

He said the increased production program should stabilize domestic demands, as well as provide supplies for Britain and create "stock piles" for distribution in Europe after the war.

The Secretary said he long had held that "the best way to shorten the war and get the kind of peace we want" was to build stores to fortify America's hand at the next peace conference.

Wickard attended the two-day conference here of farm organizations in twelve Northeastern and Middle Atlantic States on agriculture's role in the defense program.

50,000,000,000 Eggs Fixed as Goal for 1942

Poultry Experts Believe Record Can Be Set

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 (AP).—The astronomical goal of 50,000,000,000 eggs in 1942—a record-breaking production—was set today by officials planning the food supply for national defense and British aid.

The staggering order came from poultry experts at the Department of Agriculture in their annual forecast of the poultry and egg situation.

"To supply sufficient eggs for domestic and lend-lease needs in 1942 a total egg production of a little over four billion dozen eggs is needed," was the formal announcement, with officials confident that such a production peak could be attained.

The goal represents a big increase over the 44,000,000,000 egg total which government experts are hoping for this year, despite the record to date. In the first eight months of the year production was 30,212,000,000 and poultry experts do not look for more than 10,000,000,000 more in the final quarter, which would make the 1941 total 4,000,000,000 short of expectations.

Agriculture Department officials said today that farm prices for both eggs and poultry had advanced rapidly in recent months and that prices for 1942 were expected to maintain these levels or advance. Although costs of corn and other chicken feed will advance, officials said, the higher prices for eggs and poultry products would more than compensate.

They estimated layers on farms—hens that produce eggs—at about 250,000,000 at present and said these would increase to more than 350,000,000 by Jan. 1. Non-farm production is expected to contribute to the over-all egg total.

British egg needs alone in 1942 were estimated at the equivalent of 6,000,000,000 eggs. Another British food need will be 18,000,000 pounds of dressed and boned chicken meat in cans.

300 FIRMS ADDED TO U. S. BLACK LIST

Exports Now Barred To 1,800 Business Groups In Other American Nations

Economic Defense Board Includes Air France, French Overseas Air Line

SEP 26 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 25—The Economic Defense Board announced tonight a supplementary "black list" of firms in the other American nations, adding 300 individuals and firms, including Air France, the French overseas air line, to the original list of 1,800 business institutions issued on July 17.

The announcement, made by Secretary of State Hull in conjunction with other members of the Economic Defense Board, also designated the names of sixty-five firms which have been deleted from the original "proclaimed list of certain blocked nationals."

In issuing its original black list the State Department said it included persons or firms "deemed to be acting for the benefit of Germany or Italy or nations of those countries and persons to whom the exportation directly or indirectly, of various articles or materials is deemed to be detrimental to the interest of national defense."

Lists Effective

The general effect of the original black list, depriving firms named on it of American supplies, has been to interfere with their business and in some instances cause them to close their doors.

Tonight's announcement stated that "additions to the list have been made on the basis of the continuing study" and that the new list includes a number of firms and individuals "who have been acting as 'cloaks' for effecting transactions with firms already on the proclaimed list."

Locations Of Firms

The new list contained the names of seventeen firms in Argentina, fifteen in Bolivia, forty-one in Brazil, seven in Chile, thirty-eight in Colombia, twenty-five in Costa Rica, twelve in Cuba, six in the Dominican Republic, fifty-six in Guatemala, six in Haiti, forty-five in Mexico, four in Nicaragua, six in Panama, four in Paraguay, thirteen in Peru, thirteen in Salvador, three in Uruguay and one in Venezuela.

Air France, the French air line which connects South America with France, was named in the sections of the list pertaining to Argentina, Brazil and Chile.

The newspaper El Pampero in Buenos Aires, which has been characterized as pro-Nazi, was named on the Argentine list.

Italian Air Line Listed

Lati, the Italian overseas air line, which provides the last remaining aerial link between the American continent and the Axis nations, was also named on the Argentine list. A considerable number of vitally needed articles are reported to have been shipped from South Amercia to Germany and Italy on Lati planes, and Axis diplomats and officials have utilized that air line in reaching the American continent.

The Transocean News Agency, which was ordered out of the United States on a charge of issuing Axis propaganda, was named on the "black list" in Chile, Colombia, Uruguay, Mexico and Guatemala.

Six Hotels Named

Six hotels in Guatemala were also included in the list of fifty-six individuals and firms blacklisted in that country.

The State Department said of the sixty-five firms deleted from the original list:

"They represent situations in which satisfactory corrective action has been taken by the firms concerned and where the appropriate authorities have been satisfied that removal from the list is now warranted. In a few cases deletions have been made because the firm or individual in question is not presently resident or operating in the particular country."

The name of the Deutsche Lufthansa, the overseas German air line, was deleted in Honduras, Panama and Costa Rica because it does not operate now in those countries.

TREASURY DRAFTS PROFITS-LIMIT BILL

Morgenthau Reveals Aides Prepare Legislation To Take All Over 6%

Wall Street And Congress Previously Had Regarded Possibility Lightly

SEP 26 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 25—Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of the Treasury, shook up Congress and the Stock Market today by disclosing that Treasury experts already were drafting proposed legislation to carry out his suggestion that corporation profits be limited to six per cent. until the emergency ends.

When the Treasury Secretary first advanced this idea yesterday, there had been an apparent disposition in Congress to regard it as one not to be taken too seriously. That seemed to be the feeling in Wall Street also, for stock dealings this morning were slow.

But, at midday today, Morgenthau told a press conference that his aides were putting into legal language for presentation to Congress his proposal that all corporation profits in excess of six per cent. be siphoned into the Government's coffers by taxes.

"We will be ready whenever Congress wants to get to work on it," he said.

Chance Of Becoming Law

Wall Street took this to mean that the move had the blessing of the Administration and a fair chance, perhaps, of becoming law. Prices of many stocks quickly fell one to five points, although some recovered before the close.

At the Capitol, many legislators frankly did not know what to think and were reluctant to discuss it, even anonymously. Some were inclined to wonder whether Morgenthau's purpose was not primarily psychological. It was noted that the Treasury head told his press conference:

"One reason I made this suggestion at this time was that I felt that the complacency of the country called for some kind of statement from me."

Never Gives Answer

Asked directly whether the President had indorsed his idea, Morgenthau replied that he never answered such questions.

Morgenthau originally advanced his suggestion while testifying before the House Banking Committee on pending legislation to permit the Government to control prices.

He indicated at his press conference, however, that he thought such legislation should go to the House Ways and Means Committee—the taxing group—rather than be considered as part of the price-control measure.

Urges Longer Work Week

As the Banking Committee continued hearings today on the latter bill, it heard Leon Henderson, Price Administrator, advocate a longer working week in certain industries to attain what he said was a badly needed increase in production.

Henderson asserted that the average working week for manufacturing industries was forty and three-[illegible]ths hours and added: "I would doubt if we are getting within thirty to thirty-five per cent. of the full efficiency of our machine-tool capacity."

A lack of trained workers, he said, was keeping many machine tools from operating around the clock with three shifts of operators.

No Action Planned

Henderson also said he had no present intention of taking any action with regard to advertising, but added that if "abuses" such as undue increases in advertising rates developed, he would not be "frightened" from action by any "waving of the freedom of the press at me."

He made his statements in response to a question from Representative Steagall (Dem., Ala.) at a House hearing on pending price control legislation.

Windsor Pledges Help In Assuring Safety Of Eastern U. S., Indies

Expresses Confidence That England Will Win; Throngs Acclaim Couple in Capital

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25—The Duke of Windsor, one-time ruler of the British Empire, brought to Washington today a pledge of British support for defense of America's eastern coast line.

The Duke, vacationing from his duties as governor of the Bahamas, addressed the National Press Club near the end of a crowded day that included a visit with President Roosevelt, two cabinet members, and Chairman Emory S. Land of the Maritime Commission.

"It is the settled policy of the British Government," the Duke said, "to assist the United States to the utmost in providing for the security of their eastern coast line, and as the West Indies have formidable, strategic importance as air bases for attacks on this continent, their effective defense against all aggressors is important for the safety of the American people."

Studying Unemployment Curb

Sharing in the ovation given the Duke was his American-born duchess. For the occasion she wore her third ensemble of the day—a black skirt and light blue silk waist. She wore blue earrings, a beanie hat, and a nose veil. The Duke was attired in the same double-breasted gray flannel suit that he wore when he alighted from the train early in the day.

Speaking in clipped, British phrases, the Duke said that as governor of the Bahamas he is spending his time in Washington "to explore means whereby serious unemployment in the Bahamas may be averted."

The Duke said that the British "neither fear nor envy the greatness and power of America."

"On the contrary," he declared, "they rejoice with every increase because they know that the ideals and the principles of humanity and the law respecting actions which have guided the United States for so many years are the same as those for which the British Commonwealth of Nations is now fighting."

Cheered on Drive

The Duke and Duchess drove from the massive, red brick British Embassy to the club at an hour when hundreds of thousands of government employes were being released from work. They jammed the curbs, and the Duke responded to their cheers with a wave of the arm or an informal military salute, while the Duchess nodded, smiled, and waved.

The Windsors planned to leave tomorrow afternoon for the Duke's ranch near Calgary, Saskatchewan.

The Duchess changed her costume soon after arriving. When she stepped from the train she wore a black, tailored suit with large gold buttons and a turquoise ornament.

Her black hat was trimmed to match her blue dotted blouse and she wore large turquoise earrings and black gloves.

When she joined her husband to call on the President she had changed to a severe wool dress of Wallis Blue and a juliet cap with a nose veil.

SEP 26 1941

The Duke had visited Secretary of State Hull and afterward expressed to reporters confidence that Britain will win the war.

Government employes jammed the corridors and the streets in front of both the State Department and the Commerce Department where the Duke discussed world shipping with Land.

Talks with Jones

Land told reporters that he had assured the Duke that everything possible is being done to speed deliveries of needed ships.

The Duke also talked with Secretary of Commerce Jesse Jones and James J. McEntee of the Civilian Conservation Corps.

After the White House call, the Duchess abandoned the motorcycle escort that had previously heralded her appearances and slipped off alone, except for plain clothesmen, to have luncheon at the apartment of her aunt, Mrs. Buchanan Merryman.

Visit White House

The Duke and Duchess entered the White House at 11.50 a. m. and departed 27 minutes later without disclosing the subject of their conversations with the President.

The former king, hurrying through the State Department corridors, told newsmen that he had discussed the international situation in a general manner with Secretary Hull.

When the Duke's entourage swept up to the southeast entrance to the department his chauffeur and a plain-clothes policeman slipped on the macadam street surface and fell, as they were about to bow the royal visitor out of his car. They picked themselves up immediately and walked around the machine to their stations.

The Duke's visit to the department caused a brief interruption in the serious business of international affairs. Clerks, mostly girls, stopped typing and filing, to form a line down both sides of the corridors through which he passed to reach the office of the Secretary of State. They applauded as he marched past, hatless and smiling.

"Looks Like Nice Boy"

One stenographer remarked that "he doesn't look like 45; he looks more like a nice boy."

(The Duke actually is 47.)

The Duchess remained at the British Embassy, where the couple breakfasted, while the Duke made this first of his official calls.

When the Duke emerged from the embassy after breakfast he was greeted by appaluse from several scores of girl clerks employed there. Observers noted that he had changed his tie and collar from that which he wore upon his arrival soon after 7 a. m. His tie was red and black striped and his collar matched his shirt of blue-gray.

Another crowd had collected in front of the Embassy to cheer the royal visitors and when he reached the Commerce Building where the Maritime Commission is house, government clerks leaned from the windows to wave while others crowded the corridor through which he passed.

BRITAIN WILL AID DEFENSE OF OUR COAST, DUKE SAYS

SEP 26 1941

Windsor's Press Club Speech

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 (AP).—Following is the text of the Duke of Windsor's speech at the National Press Club:

It is very interesting to come to Washington at the present time, and I thank you for giving me this opportunity of meeting you all this afternoon. It reminds me of a similar occasion almost twenty-two years ago when I was the guest of the National Press Club during my first visit to Washington. As the arrangements for these proceedings do not seem to permit of much individual conversation, I am going to ask you to bear with me for a few minutes while I speak to you collectively.

I would like, first of all, to say a few words about the British colony of which I have been Governor for over a year. Of course, when London and the other cities were bombarded and Great Britain was threatened with invasion, I could not help wishing, like every Briton in every part of the world, to share the fortunes of my countrymen at home. In war time, however, one serves wherever one is told, and although it is a very different post to the ones I held in the first World War, I have applied myself to the administration of the Bahamas to the best of my ability.

Throughout their history the Bahamas have been intimately and in a large measure economically connected with America, and from their proximity to Florida an especially close and friendly contact has always existed with that state. War conditions have, to some extent, isolated the colony temporarily from the mainland and the supply of its essential imported commodities has naturally become reduced. Life is hard in the Bahamas today, and while the people are glad to bear without complaint any sacrifices that hostilities may impose, it is my duty as Governor to further their interests whenever these do not conflict with the war effort. For this reason I am availing myself of the few hours I am spending in Washington to explore means whereby serious unemployment in the Bahamas may be averted, and at the same time a way out in the event of circumstances proving too strong to avoid it. Meanwhile, I have, in full agreement with my Executive Council, instigated legislation with a view to lessening the hardships of the working people and improving the conditions under which they live.

The Bahamas are proud to have become a link in the chain of American bases in the British West Indies, for only quite recently the Navy Department has selected a site on the Island of Great Exuma, where construction of a seaplane base has begun this week. As Governor, I can assure your navy of our cordial co-operation in the working out of all details which involve our mutual interest and that we look forward to contributing with your naval men to the great scheme on which our two countries have embarked in the Caribbean and which is bound to become important in the future of the Western Hemisphere.

But I would like to make it clear that the British have not regarded these bases solely as the purchase price for much-needed American destroyers, although that was the form in which the arrangement was made. It is the settled policy of the British government to assist the United States to the utmost in providing for the security of their eastern coast line, and, as the West Indies have formidable, strategic importance as air bases for attacks on this continent, their effective defense against all aggressors is important for the safety of the American people. The British neither fear nor envy the greatness and power of America. On the contrary, they rejoice with every increase because they know that the ideals, the principles of humanity and the law-respecting actions which have guided the United States for so many years are the same as those for which the British Commonwealth of Nations is now fighting. May America ever remain "the land of the free and the home of the brave!"

America has taken another prudent step from its own point of view, in occupying Iceland, which was the first of the great stepping stones by which the dictatorships of the old world might march to the conquest of the new. Although this far-ranging action of America was taken for the sake of the safety of America, it would be silly to pretend that Britain was not very glad to see it done. The occupation of Iceland by American and British forces was a proof that the bridge across the Atlantic Ocean would not be broken down and that arms and supplies which Congress has resolved should be sent to Britain should reach the hands for whom they were made. Here I think is another illustration of the saying of old free traders whose ideas may have a part to play in the future reconstruction of the world—"all legitimate interests are in harmony."

It has been a great pleasure to me to meet the President again today, whom I found looking well despite his sad bereavement and the great responsibilities which are his. I would like to pay a tribute to his generous heart, which beats in sympathy with the poor and oppressed of every land, and to his strong hand, which is uplifted in wrath against tyranny and aggression.

I think it is well for us to remember how many millions there are now striving to defend their hearth and home and their right to live their own life in their own land. The British Empire is as one in its inflexible, unwearying resolve to fight against the evil forces which produce such conditions until they are destroyed. This time of struggle and sorrow may be long, but it will only last until the righteous cause has prevailed. Thereafter, an opportunity would be presented to the English-speaking peoples to render further service to all mankind in guiding them by their example and by their aid out of the dark valley of death and destruction into an age more rich in culture and prosperity, more warm, more cheered by security and social justice and more lighted by hope than any which history has known.

Ickes Moves To Increase Plane 'Gas'

SEP 26 1941

Threefold Increase in Production Planned, Possible Curb on Sky Joy-riding

Washington, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—In a move to assure adequate fuel for the fighting planes of the United States, Britain and Russia, the Administration, it was disclosed today, is making plans for a three-fold increase in American production of aviation gasoline.

Saying that a serious shortage of aviation fuel threatened, Secretary of the Interior Ickes said he and Jesse Jones, Federal Loan Administrator, were drafting a program calling for construction of 50 new refining plants for 100 octane gasoline. He estimated the plants would cost $150,000,000.

The Defense Petroleum Coordinator told his press conference that the Navy recently had gone into the market for 600,000 barrels of aviation gasoline for lend-lease purposes, but had failed to receive bids.

At the Navy Department, it was said the Navy had been able to obtain sufficient aviation fuel for its own needs. A Navy spokesman expressed confidence, too, that the 600,000 barrels of plane fuel for the lend-lease program would be found.

Situation Called Bad.

"The situation with regard to high octane aviation gasoline, "is bad," Ickes said, adding that increased shipments to Russia and Britain had intensified the situation.

The Coordinator said, however, that he expected "we will be able to get along" until the new refining capacity can be completed.

Asked if he expected any curtailment of commercial flying because of a fuel shortage, Ickes said, "I hope not," then commented that the situation might be improved by curtailing "joy riding" in airplanes.

The present high octane production capacity in the United States was listed as 40,000 barrels daily. Ickes said he wanted to bring this to 120,000 barrels. Construction of high octane refineries requires eight to nine months, he estimated.

Under tentative plans, as outlined by Ickes, the oil industry would finance some of the 50 new plants. Others might be constructed by aid of Government loans, and the Government itself might build some refining facilities.

Ickes said such new plants would be "widely scattered," but that he could give no information as to possible locations of the projected plants.

1,500 TANK CAR SHORTAGE SEEN

Railroads Expedite Shipments, But Tense Situation Is Alleged

SEP 26 1941

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 25—A shortage of 1,500 railroad tank cars below the present requirements of the petroleum industry was reported today in oil company circles.

The shortage, it was said, was seriously hampering supply of gasoline and other petroleum needs to both the East and West coasts and to the South.

Railroads were said to be expediting c" shipments in an effort to relieve the situation. The Pennsylvania Railroad, for instance, is moving about 500 tank cars a day in three solid trains from pipe-line terminals in Ohio to Eastern refineries.

Oil experts said the tank-car shortage indicated a huge rise in rail transportation of oil since J. J. Pelley, president of the American Association of Railroads, stated a few weeks ago that 20,000 tank cars were available to carry oil from the Southwest to Eastern refineries.

With several hundred filling stations in the East already empty of gasoline, despite the 7 P. M. to 7 A. M. curfew on gasoline sales, the oil men accepted the report of tank-car shortage as a grave matter.

The gasoline shortage, they said, appeared to be deepening in the Eastern seaboard with the effect of the transfer of American ocean tankers to Great Britain being felt in growing degrees.

It was stated that, at present, the nation had about 150,000 railroad tank cars. About half of these are owned by General American Tank Car Company and Union Tank Car Company, from which they are rented by various firms.

Of the total number of cars, the army and navy own about 1,000 and about 2,500 more are suitable only for such products as milk, cottonseed oil and other farm products. About three per cent., or around 4,500, are always out of service for repairs.

These figures indicate that approximately 142,000 tank cars, with capacities of about 10,000 gallons each, now are transporting petroleum and its products.

This total was said to be the greatest tank-car operation in the history of the United States, but one which already was being heavily supplemented, on both the East and West coasts, by motor-truck transportation as refineries demand supplies with which to continue operations.

It was asserted that many of the rail carriers which previously had been available to the East and deep South had been transferred to California, Oregon and Washington to make up for the withdrawal of tankers from the West Coast into both the transatlantic and transpacific routes.

Some quarters predicted that completion of the Plantation pipe line across the South from Louisiana, scheduled for late December or early January, would release several thousand tank cars from that region, which now receives practically all its gasoline supplies by rail.

In the meantime, some comfort was derived from the fact that gasoline supplies on the Eastern seaboard were reported up 11,000 barrels last week in reversal of a heavy withdrawal trend which ruled throughout the summer.

HENDERSON FOR A LONGER WEEK IN ARMS PLANTS

At Price Control Hearing He Calls Production Level Too Low.

CAR OUTPUT CUT DEFENDED

Henderson's Aid Says Motor and Similar Industries Will Get Less Materials.

SEP 26 1941

Washington, Sept. 25 (A. P.).—Price Administrator Leon Henderson today advocated a longer work week in certain selected industries, chiefly those working on defense orders, to attain what he said was a badly needed increase in the production level.

Testifying before the House Banking Committee on the administration's price control bill, Mr. Henderson said that even now the average work week for all manufacturing industries in this country was forty and three-tenth hours.

"Right at the present time," he said, "I would doubt if we are getting within 30 to 35 per cent of the full efficiency of our machine tool capacity."

Explaining that he was talking about three-shift capacity, he said one of the reasons for the lag was the lack of trained men for the extra shifts.

"It has always seemed to me," he went on, "that one of the rearrangements that could be made would be longer hours in certain selected industries."

Mr. Henderson also said that he wished newspapers generally would "interest themselves in what are fair prices," during discussion of a suggestion by Representative Dewey, Republican, of Illinois, that the Government issue a quarterly "fair price catalog" to guide the buying public. Mr. Dewey said that the country's two leading mail order houses issue about 107,000,000 price publications annually and expressed the belief that if the public had some similar list of prices from the Government, it would do much of its own "policing" the price situation.

Representative Ford, Democrat, of California, asserting that prices are going to be the country's biggest news during the emergency, asked whether newspapers could not render much the same service that Mr. Dewey suggested.

"I wish papers generally would interest themselves in what are fair prices," Mr. Henderson responded.

Defends Motor Output Cut.

Detroit, Sept. 25 (A. P.).—Joseph L. Weiner, assistant to Federal Price Administrator Leon Henderson, told a special House committee hearing here today that many industries such as automobile and refrigerator manufactories would simply "have to get along on less material than they did in the past."

Testifying before the committee seeking to determine the extent of labor migration because of the defense effort, Mr. Weiner's testimony was in sharp conflict with that yesterday by Charles E. Wilson, president of the General Motors Corporation, who said that priorities allocations far ahead of need had forced the curtailment of consumer goods production.

Taking the stand to defend the price administrator's cut of 50 per cent in automobile production, Mr. Weiner declared that England and Germany abandoned the production of private automobiles when they were faced with similar shortages of raw materials. During the few months since the curtailment began, Mr. Weiner said, automobile production for civilian use actually has been greater than during the same period of 1940.

The supply of steel available for civilian production is only 70 per cent of a year ago, he said, and added that the chief problem facing the Government was to "determine what production can best be postponed."

"What we have been trying to do," he told the committee headed by Representative Tolan, Democrat, of California, "is to put some order into the competitive struggle for materials. There are certain essential services such as transportation and public utilities which are so vital to the welfare of the nation that they must be provided with materials."

He declared that the Government is "quite concerned" over a threatened shortage of railroad cars."

Offers Insurance On Goods In Japan

New York, Sept. 25 (AP)—American marine insurance operators today came to the aid of importers with goods stranded in Japan and Japanese-controlled ports, with an offer to insure them against losses incurred by gunfire, torpedoes, bombs or other implements of war.

Millions of dollars' worth of such goods are reported piled up in Japanese areas after the recent suspension of steamer sailings from those ports.

No announcement as to the rates to be charged for the insurance was made, it being said that coverage would be granted only on specific applications and then only to cargo owners who already were covered by war-risk-insurance policies and whose goods had been held 15 days or more at a transshipment port.

The insurance offered does not cover losses through capture or seizure.

SEES POSSIBLE USE OF WASTE SCRAP

Metallurgist Says Powder Method Would Speed Up Defense Work

SEP 26 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Cambridge, Mass., Sept. 25—A new method of making a cheap alloy powder from scrap metal that is now wasted and using it to make materials for defense more quickly than is now possible was described today by Dr. John Wulff, Massachusetts Institute of Technology metallurgist.

Addressing a metallurgy conference attended by representatives of many leading defense industries as well as army and navy officials, Dr. Wulff declared that powders of various substances could be used to produce bombs, lubricants, resistant paints and other things "important to our defense effort."

He said the method involved taking scrap metals that cannot be used efficiently for melting and reducing them to powdered form by gravity and corrosion techniques.

Using stainless steel as one example, Wulff said that ordinary treatment of that metal to form other products entails "the most difficult machining processes in the world."

But, he declared, reducing it to powder form and then making new products by comparatively simple molding techniques eliminated great machine costs.

Wulff added that the science of powder metallurgy applied both to scrap metal and even good metal enables the manufacture of some products which cannot be made otherwise.

Such products, he said, include heated carbide tools, which are among the hardest cutting materials known. Produced by powder metallurgy through combination of tungsten carbide with cobalt powders, he said the finished tools make it possible to speed up machining costs with otherwise obsolete low-speed equipment.

He asserted that powders also were used in making parts for X-ray, incandescent lamps, and contacts in telephone exchanges more quickly than heretofore.

Declaring that the addition of powdered metals to other materials produces a resultant product with useful porousness, he said the science had been applied by pioneers in making bearings for machines that are difficult to oil.

He asserted that oil could be applied to the bearing before it was placed in the machine and that the intercommunicating pores would result in constant oil seepage, assuring long life for the bearing.

Senate Approves Bill To Take Over Property

Measure Giving President Power Of Requisition Still Needs House Vote

Washington, Sept. 25 (AP)—On a voice vote, the Senate gave final approval today to legislation permitting the President to take over certain property needed for national defense.

The measure, a compromise between different bills passed earlier by the Senate and House, must be approved finally by the House before going to President Roosevelt for signature.

Under the bill the President ald not requisition personal sporting firearms or weapons nor any machinery in use by an operating firm and indispensable to the firm's continued operation.

MERCHANT CREW LAW EASED

Roosevelt Signs Bill Relaxing Requirements For Able Seamen

Washington, Sept. 25 (AP)—President Roosevelt signed a bill today relaxing the law regarding the composition of crews on merchant ships.

In the discretion of the Secretary of Commerce, half of a vessel's roster of seamen may be composed of men who have spent only twelve months on deck but who have been granted the rating of able samen. Existing law provides that only twenty-five per cent, of the crew may be one-year men.

America First Material Taken For Grand Jury

SEP 26 1941

Justice Department Agents Silent on Nature of Washington Data

Washington, Sept. 25.— (AP.) — Government investigators revealed today that they had subpoenaed material from the local office of the America First Committee in connection with the Justice Department's grand jury inquiry into alleged violations of the Foreign Agents Registration Act.

The material was enclosed in half a dozen mail sacks, but William P. Maloney and Edward J. Hickey, special assistants to the Attorney General in charge of the inquiry, refused to say what the papers and documents included.

The investigation already has resulted in the indictment of Frank Burch, Akron, Ohio, attorney, for failure to register as an alleged agent of the German Government.

During the day the grand jury heard five witnesses, among them Prescott Dennett, secretary of the Make-Europe-Pay-War-Debts Committee and the Islands-for-War-Debts Committee.

Bales of unused postage-free envelopes, given Congressmen for their official mail but discovered by Federal agents in the Washington office of two anti-war groups, were disclosed today to be part of the evidence in the district grand jury's investigation of suspected Nazi agents.

Department of Justice officials took the envelopes from the offices of the Make-Europe-Pay and Islands-for-War-Debts committees. They were unaddressed, but contained speeches of non-interventionist members of Congress.

Special Assistant Attorney General Maloney declared in open court that "known German agents" gave money to both committees.

Government Reveals Use Of Second 'Spy' Radio

New York, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—The Government today introduced testimony that a second "spy" radio transmitting set was operated near New York to give Germany information.

The first radio, discussed during three weeks of the trial of 16 defendants on charges of espionage conspiracy, was established and operated by William G. Sebold, a counter-espionage agent. It sent and received more than 500 messages to and from a German Gestapo station in Hamburg.

The Government contends that

several other defendants, including Axel Wheeler-Hill and Joseph Klein, operated the second station and reported, among other things, ship movements in and out of New York Harbor.

Roscoe Ammon, engineer and radio salesman, testified that in July, 1940, Klein bought radio equipment for broadcasting outside both commercial and amateur bands and, according to Klein's specifications, "with a range of 3000 miles."

Edgar Stover, director of YMCA schools, testified that Wheeler-Hill had enrolled in a radio code class.

Two CIO Unions Back Roosevelt Foreign Policy

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 25—The CIO Transport Workers Union of America adopted at its biennial national convention today a recommendation of its executive board indorsing President Roosevelt's foreign policy.

"We declare, with him, that all governments, nations and peoples opposed to Hitler are our friends and allies," the resolution said, adding:

"This battle against Hitlerism must e carried on not for the sake of the British Empire, nor for that of Soviet Russia, or Nationalist China—but for the security and protection of our own United States."

Public Employes Shift Stand

Lansing, Sept. 25 (AP)—The national convention of the State, County and Municipal Workers—CIO, reversing previous opposition to participation in European wars, today indorsed lend-lease aid to anti-Axis powers and "all steps necessary" to guarantee the delivery of such assistance.

By a vote og 183 to 7, delegates from thirteen States adopted a resolution which denounced "the appeasement crowd as persons who would stand ready to "sell-out America," and called for the "swift and crushing military defeat of Fascism."

Group Formed to Better U. S.-Japanese Relations

New York, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—Formation of a committee on Pacific relations to strengthen amicable relations between the United States and Japan was announced today by Mark R. Shaw of Boston, acting chairman.

Shaw, a former YMCA secretary in Japan, and O. K. Armstrong, Springfield, Mo., writer who was named committee secretary, issued a statement signed by William Henry Chamberlain, former Tokyo correspondent, Cambridge, Mass.; Paul Hutchinson, associate editor of the Christian Century, Chicago; Ralph Townsend, member of the staff of Scribner's-Commentator Magazine, Lake Geneva, Wis., and others.

The statement declared Far Eastern problems "need not lead to armed conflict between our country and Japan, provided an intelligent, vigorous effort is made to understand and adjust them."

The committee will meet in Washington in October.

SAYS LEGION'S RED-AID STAND LED TO CHARGE

Gov. Heil Explains Why He Claimed F.D.R. Controlled Convention

MILWAUKEE, Sept. 25 (AP)—Gov. Julius P. Heil explained today that approval by the American Legion of a resolution calling for aid to Russia prompted his statement yesterday that the organization's national convention was controlled by President Roosevelt.

"I talked to hundreds of Legionaires while they were here last week," the governor said. "Not one of them favored the resolution for aid to Russia."

The measure, calling for all aid to the Soviet nation, was adopted on a roll call vote, 874-604.

The Governor's remarks that "the great white father had all his people here . . . and they were controlled," were made to the Milwaukee Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The explanation came while high-ranking Legionnaires were denouncing Wisconsin's Republican chief executive, Milo J. Warner, of Toledo, Ohio, immediate past commander, asserted the Governor owned the Legion an apology. National Commander Lynn U. Stambaugh, of Fargo, N. D., said the convention was democratic and that the delegates voted as they pleased.

New York, Sept. 25—Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn of Ontario predicted today Germany would overrun Europe and then would use enslaved Europe "to keep on hand the war machine which will ultimately be thrown against the North American continent."

In a coast-to-coast broadcast, he said "ultimately there will be no boundary line between the two of us (United States and Canada)." Because of the need and necessity of national defense we are going to be drawn closer and closer together."

British To Let Woman Pacifist Quit Trinidad

London Arranges For Release Of Miss Muriel Lester, Held Because Of Lectures

New York, Sept. 25 (AP)—Assurance that Miss Muriel Lester, British social worker and pacifist, would be allowed to leave Trinidad for England soon, was received today by John Nevin Sayre, secretary of the International Fellowship of Reconciliation.

Sayre asserted he had received a cable from London, signed by William Paton, associate secretary of the provisional committee of the World Council of Churches, stating that the British Government had arranged for her release.

She was detained in Port of Spain, Trinidad, August 28, when British officials said her pacifist lectures were contrary to British wartime interests.

'Falsehood' Is Charged By Willkie

GOP Candidate, at Movie Hearing, Denies Senator's Citation of 'Campaign Oratory'

Apology Fails To Ease Tension

Counsel for Producers Says Probers Do Not Progress by 'Extraneous Matter' About Him

SEP 26 1941

Washington, Sept. 25.—(AP.)—A shouted assertion by Wendell L. Willkie that Chairman Clark, Democrat, Idaho, was guilty of telling "an absolute falsehood" wound up a turbulent hearing today by a Senate Interstate Commerce subcommittee investigating alleged propaganda in the movies.

Willkie thundered this accusation into a microphone on the committee table before him when Clark asserted that the 1940 Republican presidential nominee had described his campaign pledges to keep this country out of war as "campaign oratory."

"You had better check that," broke in Willkie, who was seated with other counsel for the movie producers at the end of the committee table, and had been listening to testimony by Harry M. Warner, president of Warner Brothers.

"I have," Clark replied, "and I also recall your designation of them as campaign oratory."

Hits Clark's Speeches.

"You have made statements all over the country about what I have said that have no semblance to the facts," Willkie replied.

"I just charged you with saying some of your campaign pledges were 'campaign oratory,'" Clark said.

"I made no such statement," Willkie replied heatedly. "When you say that you speak an absolute falsehood."

As the hearing broke up, Willkie explained to reporters that when he referred to "campaign oratory" in a statement made before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee several months ago, he was alluding to his campaign warning that the country was likely to become involved in war by April, 1941, if the Roosevelt Administration were returned to office.

Hastily checking the record of Willkie's statement, Clark approached Willkie and told him that he (Clark) apparently was mistaken in linking the "campaign oratory" phrase with the former candidate's campaign pledges.

Unmollified By Apology.

Unmollified, Willkie told Clark:

"We won't get anywhere in this investigation of alleged propaganda by engaging in references to my speeches and remarks." He went on to complain that "time after time" members of the committee had sought to bring in "extraneous matter about things I have said."

"I think you have been accorded every courtesy," Clark replied with some warmth.

"That's merely a matter of your opinion," Willkie snapped as Clark walked away.

At one point during Warner's testimony, Senator Tobey, Republican, New Hampshire, said Aubrey Blair, former secretary of the Screen Actors Guild, had complained to him that during the filming of a picture titled "Captured" in 1936, Army flying personnel, planes, gasoline and food had been made available free to the movie colony.

Blair charged further, Tobey went on, that during filming of "West Point of the Air," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer had "deliberately wrecked" six or more Government planes to make the picture more effective.

"We produced the picture," interrupted Robert Rubin, counsel for M-G-M, "but we didn't wreck any planes."

SEP 26 1941

British Bias Charged, Denied.

Senator Tobey said today he had reliable information that British purchasing commissions here had declined to employ persons of Irish, German or Jewish descent.

Tobey injected this statement into the hearing on alleged propaganda in the movies. Two persons whom he described as reputable had told him, Tobey said, that a secretarial school had sought to supply the British offices with workers and had been informed that jobs would be available for all except those of Irish, German or Jewish extraction.

"This amazed, shocked and angered me," Tobey asserted.

A statement by Senator Tobey that he had heard British agencies in Washington refused employment to any of Irish, German or Jewish descent was countered today by a British declaration that "any American citizen is eligible for employment if his parents were born in the United States."

Senator Tobey, Republican, of New Hampshire, laid before a Senate committee today charges that motion picture companies had been granted the free use of army personnel, bombers and equipment and in one instance had "deliberately wrecked six or more Government planes for picture purposes."

These charges were contained, Mr. Tobey told a Senate Interstate Commerce sub-committee, in information furnished to him by Aubrey Blair, whom he identified as a former secretary of the Screen Actors Guild. Mr. Blair complained, Mr. Tobey said, that in the making of a picture entitled "Captured," in 1936, army personnel at March Field had been dressed in German army uniforms to take part in the film. Mr. Blair also charged, the committee heard, that army planes were repainted, army gasoline used and film company employees fed at the field's commissary.

Harry M. Warner, president of Warner Brothers, who was on the stand at the time in the committee's inquiry into alleged war propaganda in the movies, said he knew nothing about the production of the picture.

Reciting further charges by Mr. Blair, Mr. Tobey said it was alleged that in the production of "West Point of the Air" by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, the company had "deliberately wrecked" six or more Government planes in order to make the picture more effective.

SEP 26 1941

Denies Planes Were Wrecked.

At this point, Robert Rubin, general counsel for M.-G.-M., broke in to say:

"We produced the picture but we didn't wreck any planes."

Earlier in his appearance Mr. Warner testified that Senator Nye, Republican, of North Dakota, one of the chief critics of the movies, had indorsed the film, "Confessions of a Nazi Spy," in 1939.

Mr. Warner read into the record a telegram from Ed Harrison of the Warner advertising staff who quoted Mr. Nye as expressing a hope that more pictures would be produced "of a kind dealing with propaganda emanating from foreign lands."

The picture, which previous witnesses had included in a list of alleged propaganda films, was viewed by Senator Nye, Mr. Warner said, at a private showing here on May 11, 1939.

Mr. Nye, who is co-author with Senator Clark, Democrat, of Missouri, of a resolution pending before the sub-committee for a formal inquiry into propaganda, was quoted by Mr. Harrison as saying in an interview with the advertising man:

"Any one who truly appreciated the one great democracy upon this earth will appreciate this picture and feel a new allegiance to the Democratic cause."

Film Based on Federal Trial.

Mr. Warner said the picture was based on facts that were developed in a Federal court trial and said it depicted the operations of a Nazi spy ring in this country.

"I cannot conceive how any patriotic citizen could object to a picture accurately recording a danger, already existing within our country," Mr. Warner declared. "Certainly it is not in the public interest for the average citizen to shut his eyes—ostrich-like— to the attempts of Hitler to undermine the unity of those he seeks to conquer.

"The experience of Norway and its Quislings and the sad fate of too many other countries is too recent not to be in our memories. And we certainly have no apology for producing 'Confessions of a Nazi Spy.'"

Mr. Warner began his testimony by reading a long statement in which he said that he had received no suggestions from the Roosevelt administration as to the type of pictures Warner Brothers should produce. He said, however, that he made no secret of his anti-Nazi attitude.

Not Sure We Should Enter War.

While describing himself as "unequivocally" in favor of giving Great Britain and her allies "all supplies which our country can spare," Mr. Warner added:

"Frankly, I am not certain whether or not this country should enter the war in its own defense at the present time. The President knows the world situation and our country's problems better than any other man. I would follow his recommendation concerning a declaration of war."

While opposed to Nazism, Mr. Warner denied that any pictures produced by his company were propaganda. He said that Mr Nye had said the picture "Sergeant York," was designed to create war hysteria and noted that Senator Clark of Missouri "has added 'Confessions of a Nazi Spy' to the isolationist blacklist."

"Sergeant York," Mr. Warner testified, was a "factual portrayal of the life of one of the greatest heroes of the last war," adding that "if that is propaganda we plead guilty."

He said that all the Warner pictures against which propaganda complaints had been made, including "Underground," had been profitable. Previous witnesses had said the alleged propaganda films lost money.

Neither, he continued, was the Warner company swayed in its policies by any fear that it might lose profitable business in England if that country lost the war. This charge had been made against film companies in general in previous testimony.

Admiral Stark Paints Gloomy Picture of Shipping Losses

Navy Convoying Has Cut Sinkings in Last 60 Days, Lease-Lend Hearing Told

WASHINGTON- Sep 25-

By the Associated Press.

A House Appropriations Subcommittee got a glimpse of the battle of the Atlantic, it was learned today, in the testimony of Admiral Harold R. Stark, Chief of Naval Operations, on the new $5,985,000,000 lease-lend appropriation bill.

Admiral Stark appeared before the committee in executive session to testify on naval phases of the measure and some committee members, who declined to be quoted by name, said he gave a rather gloomy picture of shipping losses.

His report, they said, included these details:

The Navy is now convoying as many ships as necessary to waters somewhere in the vicinity of Iceland where the Royal Navy picks them up for the final lap of their voyage to British ports.

The sinking of convoyed ships has dropped materially in the last 60 days, but the rate is still more than the total replacement capacity of American shipyards.

Shooting Policy Not Enough.

Shipping losses, however, indicate that the Navy's new shoot-on-sight policy will not, of itself, be sufficient to keep the sea lanes open to Britain.

The United States at present has several battleships, a sizable fleet of destroyers and a "number" of cruisers in the North Atlantic and countless miscellaneous naval craft based at Iceland.

Still greater expenditures under the lease-lend program will be necessary for both merchant ships to replace losses and for corvettes, torpedo boats and similar anti-submarine vessels to help Britain cope with the U-boat menace.

At the end of yesterday's session some members of the committee manifested displeasure over Secretary of the Navy Knox's failure to appear for testimony on the Navy's share of the pending appropriations. They complained that he was out making speeches instead.

Too Much "Miscellaneous."

A few members also said that there was too much "miscellaneous" among the naval items and that unless specific explanation was forthcoming, the "miscellaneous" might be eliminated.

Meanwhile, Representative Day, Republican, of Illinois, disclosed that he would sponsor an amendment which would prohibit the use of any of the appropriation for aid to Russia.

Democratic leaders have said they anticipated that such a limitation would become the major fight when the measure reaches the floor in about two weeks. Expressing belief that such a proposal could be defeated easily, Speaker Rayburn said it would be "unfortunate" to make "any change at all" in President Roosevelt's request.

Passage of Ban Predicted.

But Representative Day expressed the opinion that enough Democrats would join the almost solid Republican ranks to write in the Russian limitation.

"We're against the idea of gifts to Russia," Representative Day said. "We have enough danger here already from Communist influences."

Meanwhile, lease-lend officials said yesterday they were negotiating with Great Britain and other countries to determine the "how and when" of repayments for lease-lend aid, but no specific arrangements had been completed.

Saying that the Lease-Lend Act permits repayment by return of the lease-lend articles themselves or of similar articles or anything else of value, one official questioned the wisdom of making any definite arrangements at the present time.

Military Secrets Held Payment.

Another said that, in the case of Britain, the United States already is getting a type of payment when the British pass on their military secrets.

Neither official desired to be quoted by name at this time. They agreed, however, that there was no intention to negotiate payment for each batch of airplanes or rifles. Instead, some overall agreement may be reached with each country some day.

Four More Warship Launchings to Set Record for Navy

New Destroyers to Bring September Tonnage to Total Never Equaled

WASHINGTON- Sep-25-

By the Associated Press.

The Navy hit its fastest shipbuilding pace since World War days this week with a program of six warship launchings in five days.

The new men-of-war—the battleship Massachusetts and five destroyers—brought to 10 the total floated in the month, the best monthly performance since the start of the two-ocean construction program.

Launching of the destroyers Cowie and Knight at the Boston Navy Yard will climax the week's record performance. The destroyers Rodman and Hambleton will hit the water at Kearny, N. J., tomorrow.

The destroyer Macomb was launched at Bath, Me., Tuesday as a smaller echo of the 35,000-ton splash made that day by the Massachusetts, fourth battleship floated of the 17 being built to make this country defensively impregnable in the Atlantic and Pacific simultaneously.

The previous launchings this month were: Two slim, fast, new-type 6,000-ton cruisers, the Atlanta and the San Juan; the submarine Greenling and the destroyer Hobson.

The impressive record probably has never been surpassed in total tonnage for a single month, Navy sources said, but in number of ships was far exceeded in July, 1918, when 17 destroyers were launched. Fourteen of them slid down the ways on Independence Day of that year.

Harking back to World War construction stunts, Navy sources recalled that the destroyer Ward was launched 17½ days after the laying of her keel at the Mare Island (Calif.) Navy Yard. No such stunt-launchings have been essayed in the current naval construction acceleration, but the Navy has reported an average of 12½ per cent speed-up in every ship under construction.

5 Officers Of Italian Ship Denied New Trial

Group, In Jail At Reading, Pa., Convicted Of Sabotaging Their Vessel

Philadlephia, Sept. 25 (AP)—Five officers of the Italian liner Belvedere, who were convicted of sabotaging their vessel under the Espionage Act of 1917, were denied a new trial today by Judge Herbert F. Goodrich, of the Third United States Circuit Court of Appeals.

Judge Goodrich held that the Espionage Act could be applied to officers and crews of foreign vessels in American ports for "tampering or damaging" their ships, and that it is not necessary for foreign vessels to be in the course of foreign commerce at the time the damage is done.

No date was set for sentencing. The officers are Captain Romano Tomicich; Vittorio Battistella, chief engineer; Romiro Fonda, first engineer; Luigi Cernobich, third engineer, and Antonio Godel, chief electrician. All are now in Berks county jail at Reading, Pennsylvania.

PENALIZED FOR FLYING OVERWARSHIP MALAYA

Pilot Who Flew Press Photographer Is Suspended by CAB

WASHINGTON, Sept. 25 (AP)—The Civil Aeronautics Board suspended today for sixty days the commercial pilot certificate of Hugh C. Robbins, who on April 6 flew a newspaper photographer over the British battleship Malaya in New York harbor.

The board found that Mr. Robbins flew at an altitude of less than 500 feet over the Malaya, and closer than 500 feet to other aircraft in flight.

The board said that Mr. Robbins's actions, "even though not constituting a violation specified in the show cause order, and therefore, not a ground for our present action, indicates an action which would not redound to the credit of an airplane pilot."

"The acts complained of are alleged in the order to show cause (why his certificate should not be suspended or revoked) to have been committed on a civil airway," the board said. "Although no proof of this fact was introduced at the hearing by counsel for the administrator and such proof is not necessary to sustain a suspension or revocation of respondent's pilot certificate, nevertheless, we take judicial notice of the fact that the acts complained of were committed over the British battleship Malaya which was at anchor approximately 1,500 feet off Tompkinsville, S. I., N. Y., which is within the limits of a civil airway, and regard this fact as increasing the gravity of the offenses committed."

Secretary Knox filed a complaint suggesting that the board take action against Mr. Robbins.

Mr. Robbins carried as a passenger on the flight a photographer for The New York Daily News.

China Missionary Survives 1-Man Japanese Firing Squad

Officer Apologizes (In Chinese) After 'Underling's' Bullet Moves Sleeve Of Priest's Cassock

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 25—A Japanese soldier forced the Rev. John T. H. Joyce, 31, a Catholic missionary on Sancian Island, South China, to walk ten paces, and about face, then he pulled the trigger of his rifle.

The bullet moved a sleeve of the priest's cassock and embedded itself in a wall.

"I wasn't conscious at the time of being particularly upset," Father Joyce wrote the Maryknoll fathers in a letter they released today, "but I was quite mortified afterward to recall that as a prayer for preparation for a possible death I had recited to myself the grace before meals instead of the act of contrition."

The shooting episode resulted from Father Joyce's attempts to explain to the soldier why a Chinese farmer had a rifle and bullets in his home.

It brought an apology from the naval officer in charge of the Japanese landing party which visited the island, Father Joyce wrote. Coming to the mission where a small shrine church marks the spot where St. Francis Xavier died, the naval officer wrote on a pad in Chinese:

"I had no way of preventing this underling from shooting the gun Sorry!"

Analyzing The WAR

Food Reservoir Necessity Stressed

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

ONE OF THE GREAT moments of the war was reached in ancient St. James' Palace, London, yesterday when Britain and her 10 Allies—meeting in the spirit of the Roosevelt-Churchill Atlantic charter to which all pledged adherence—agreed to set up a great pool of food and other supplies for European rehabilitation at the conflict's end.

SEP 26 1941

The move savors of a new and kindlier international order. Quite understandable from the practical viewpoint was the fact that the Allied action in thus casting their bread upon the waters was accompanied by the hope that it would return quickly in the shape of support for their cause by all the peoples of the tortured old world.

DeWitt Mackenzie

Whatever the immediate reaction may be, Europe certainly is going to need that reservoir of food, and the supplies for economic recovery. The finish of the war, unless it comes quickly, is going to see such widespread suffering and economic disorganization as the World War never produced, bad as it was.

THE PITY of it is that thousands now alive will have perished of hunger, and of the diseases which fatten on privation, before the post-war aid can reach them.

It's an ironic circumstance that Europe must pass through this trial before aid can be administered. The British blockade cuts off food from the outside world; the widespread military operations are ravaging the grain fields of the continent.

From the humanitarian viewpoint the question of post-war aid in the shape of food comes first. The experts tell us that provisions for economic revival will have to follow quickly, however, unless the world is to pass into a period of economic chaos which will make the last great depression look like a mole-hill at the foot of a mountain.

THE ALLIED conference was brought back from consideration of the future to the problems of the moment by Ivan Maisky, Soviet ambassador to Britain. After subscribing for Russia to the Allied program and the Atlantic charter—an adherence which in itself was a notable event—the envoy reminded the meeting that the pressing business is "correct allocation of all economic resources and war supplies with a view to the early liberation of all the European peoples now oppressed by Hitlerite slavery."

He may well have had in mind the crucial battle of the Ukraine, where Red Marshal Budyenny is trying to stem the German rush toward the Caucasus. The old Cossack cavalry leader and his men are having to substitute courage for airplanes, tanks and other equipment, although British planes already are operating in Russia and it is reported today that English tanks may soon be fighting there.

Whether there is time for the Allies to get aid to Budyenny soon enough to enable the Bolshevists to hold their present positions is extremely doubtful. A further retirement seems almost inevitable. However, if the Russians are to keep Hitler out of the Caucasus they must hold his armies along the line of the great Don River, which swings itself protectively across the entrance to his pathway southward to oil and the strategic positions of the Middle East.

ENGLISH NEWSPAPERS already are speculating whether Britain may send troops through Iran (Persia) into the Caucasus to back the Muscovites in this battle upon which so much hinges. As the result of the Anglo-Russian occupation of Persia, Britain presumably is in position to give such military assistance if it seems desirable.

The British have between 750,000 and 1,000,000 troops in that part of the world, ready for action. They are under command of Sir Archibald Wavell who, by the way, recently flew to London for a conference with Prime Minister Churchill. Back of them are the vast resources of India, which has become one of the foremost arsenals of the world.

Whether the British decide to send an expeditionary force into the Caucasus, some sort of major operation seems called for somewhere to create a diversion and thus relieve the German pressure in the Ukraine drive. The gravity of Budyenny's position makes it imperative that whatever move the British make, be made immediately.

"INSTRUMENTAL DEVICES, OPERATING WITHOUT HUMAN ATTENTION, AUTOMATICALLY FEED TO THE STATIONS BEHIND THE LINES INFORMATION ON MOVEMENT OF AIRCRAFT WHICH ENABLES SKILLED OPERATORS ON FILTER BOARDS TO PLOT THEIR COURSES," HE SAID.

"AUTOMATIC DEVICES DO NOT DISCRIMINATE BETWEEN FRIENDLY AND HOSTILE AIRCRAFT; FILTER BOARD OPERATORS MUST DO THIS IN A FEW SECONDS FROM THEIR KNOWLEDGE OF THE POSITION AND MOVEMENTS OF FRIENDLY AIRPLANES. HOSTILE TRACKS ARE TRANSMITTED IMMEDIATELY TO AN OFFICER WHO WITH MORE INSTRUMENTS -- ALSO SECRET -- CAN DETERMINE ALMOST INSTANTANEOUSLY THE TIME AND PLACE AT WHICH HIS OWN ARMY'S FIGHTER CRAFT CAN INTERCEPT THE OPPONENTS. Battle Rages for Crimea; Britain and Russia Plan Joint Caucasus Defense

Wavell And Soviet Officer To Discuss Campaign At Iran Conference

Canadian General Says Invasion Of Continent Must Come

SEP 27 1941

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 26—British and Russian leaders were reported rushing plans tonight for joint defense of the Caucasus against Germans now hammering at the Crimean peninsula.

General Sir Archibald P. Vavell, British commander in India, was understood to be en route to Teheran, Iran capital, for a conference with Col. T. Novikov, Russian commander, and in London Capt. Oliver Lyttleton, British Middle Eastern political and economic coordinator, arrived for conferences with Prime Minister Churchill and his Cabinet.

Wavell First Went To London

General Wavell, Britain's Middle Eastern military expert, had preceded Lyttleton to London, then returned to Cairo for a conference with General Sir Claude J. E. Auchinleck, Egyptian military leader, before going to Iran.

Captain Lyttleton is charged with a steady flow of British and American armaments through Iran to the Soviet forces now pressed back into the Donets basin of the Ukraine west of the Caucasus.

Unofficial dispatches from Simla, India, also said that General Wavell was organizing an expeditionary force in Iran for service in southern Russia.

Iran Rail Director Named

Brig. Gen. Sir Godfrey Rhodes, a leading British railroad expert and a World War engineer, was appointed director of transportation for Iranian railways. These lines would play an important part for an expeditionary force to the Caucasus.

Authoritative sources showed anxiety over the southern German drive, and said the Nazis had hurled 70,000 men into a sicklelike sweep aimed at removing the Crimean Black Sea naval bastion aiding in the defense of the Caucasus.

A heavy battle has been raging nearly forty-eight hours, London sources said, with the Germans calling on waves of parachute troops to equalize the difficulties of the boggy terrain and the constriction of their tanks and infantrymen on the four-mile-wide isthmus of Perekop, which joins the Crimean peninsula to the Russian mainland.

The attack "continues to develop," these sources reported, with the confined area making the fight a hot one despite the use of only four or five German divisions—"a comparatively small proportion of the total German force on the Southern Front."

Although details had not reached London, some quarters believed that, in addition to the Perekop assault, the Germans might attack also via the causeway east of the Perekop Isthmus. The whole manoeuvre was described as "potentially extremely dangerous" to the Russians, since possession of Crimea is essential to full control of the Black Sea and would provide a gangplank to the Caucasus via the Strait of Kerch.

German seizure of Crimea, therefore, would increase the threat to Russian oil supplies and also to the route by which Britain and the United States hope to send equipment to the Soviet armies via the Persian Gulf and Iran.

British military writers were taking an increasingly grave view of the general Russian situation, suggesting that the Red Army might lose all the coal-wealthy and industrialized Donets Basin area by Christmas. British sources said there were indications the Germans might push on along the north shore of the Sea of Azov toward Rostov while continuing a drive for Kharkov, vital point of the Donets district.

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 26—German parachute troops and mechanized infantry are assaulting the Crimean Peninsula in a great battle which has been in progress for twenty-four hours, London sources stated today.

"The attack continues to develop," an authoritative source said, although particulars are lacking.

Some sources said difficulties of terrain on the boggy Perekop neck which joins the Crimea to the mainland made use of parachute troopers essential for the Germans.

Concentrate On Isthmus

The main force of the thrust was said to be concentrated directly on the isthmus, five to eight miles wide.

Possession of the Crimean Peninsula is virtually essential to control of the Black Sea and would make possible a short cut for the Germans toward the Caucasus, since they could by-pass the Sea of Azov by hurdling the narrow Strait of Kerch on the east.

(The British radio, quoting a Moscow spokesman, said whole battalions of German shock troops had been blown to bits by Russian minefields as they sought to storm the Crimea after a heavy artillery bombardment.

All Forms Of Arms Used

(The broadcast, heard in New York by CBS, confirmed that parachute forces, tanks, infantry and nearly all the forms of arms the Germans could bring up were participating in the bitter onslaught.)

Some London quarters believed the Germans, in addition to attempting a frontal assault on the narrow neck of the Crimean Peninsula and landing parachute troops behind the lines, might attack also by means of a causeway which carries a railway to Crimea east of Perekop and possibly by bridging the narrow channel near the causeway.

Small Force Believed Used.

Because of the narrow front the Crimea attack is regarded here as diverting only a small portion of the German forces on the southern front. The bulk are believed still concentrating on thrusts farther north toward Kharkov and eastward along the Black Sea with Rostov as the goal.

British military writers are beginning to take an increasingly serious view of the Russian situation and suggest that the Red armies may be ousted from the entire Donets Basin area, in the extreme Eastern Ukraine, by Christmas.

Battalions Are Blown To Pieces, Reds Claim

NEW YORK, Sept. 26 (AP).—The British radio today quoted a Moscow spokesman as saying whole battalions of German troops were blown to pieces by vast minefields in a strong attack on the Crimea. The broadcast was heard by Columbia Broadcasting System.

The Moscow spokesman was quoted as saying the Russians had the situation in the Crimea in hand.

The radio said the Germans attacked Wednesday night after a heavy artillery bombardment. Tanks, mechanized infantry and a number of parachutists were used.

"The Russians had foreseen the German tactics and waited behind vast mine fields," the radio quoted the spokesman. "Whole battalions of Germans are said to have been blown to pieces.

"The enemy withdrew to reform eight hours later, but they were caught in the well-aimed fire of Russian long-range artillery from the isthmus and from the bay to the west of the isthmus.

"Just before noon yesterday the German attack was renewed. The Moscow spokesman said that one German infiltration was made in the Russian lines, but it was soon surrounded and annihilated."

Approaches To Peninsula Declared Strewn With Fallen Germans

Leningrad Defenders Are Holding Firm, Soviet Communique Asserts

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, Saturday, Sept. 27—German troops storming the approaches to the Crimea have been mowed down by the thousands and Red defenders still stand unbeaten outside Leningrad, Soviet war dispatches said today.

Repeated Nazi lunges on a narrow front protecting the Crimean naval bases were met by a deadly Soviet fire of machine-guns, cannon and landmine explosions, and Red airmen also blasted the German infantry, these reports said. The battlefield was said to be strewn with Nazi dead.

Communique Reticent

The early morning communique again merely reported continued fighting along the entire front, but other dispatches said Russian troops successfully repulsed German attempts to cross the Volkhov river, one hundred miles south of Leningrad.

Red airmen were credited officially with destroying 118 Nazi planes Wednesday, with only 29 Soviet losses.

On the Volkhov the Germans forced a crossing at one place but were annihilated in seeking to form a bridgehead, the Soviets said.

In the outskirts of Leningrad itself, unending Red counter-attacks were said to be beating the Germans back despite the enormous and still growing pressure of the invaders.

5-Mile Gain Claimed

Five more miles of bloody terrain along one of the city's approaches were bitterly regained, it was declared, and four more outlying Russian villages fell again into Soviet hands.

Semi-official acknowledgement that the German offensive was still rising in power, although still breaking upon the rock of Russian resistance, suggested that the Nazis had loosed their supreme offensive to date.

Leningrad's aerial defenders, still in heavy action, reported that in the ninety days of their struggle for the city they had shot down 324 German planes over its fronts

Trying Every Expedient

German ground troops, it was declared, were trying every desperate expedient, even to sending battalions forward in suicidally close formation in "psychological attacks" intended to suggest that the invading forces were overwhelming. These thick waves, Russian dispatches said, were being all but annihilated.

While the battle for Leningrad thus appeared to be reaching a fury which even for that mighty struggle was extraordinary, the Soviet Government asserted that its Ukrainian armies east of Kiev were far from done for and still were maintaining a fierce and orderly resistance.

Specifically denied as "a fresh Hitlerite fake" were German claims to the capture of many thousands of Russian soldiers in that theater.

Odessa Holds Out

In the far south, Major General Petrov, the defender of Odessa, wirelessed the official Communist and Government organs that the city still held firmly against every German and Rumanian assault, and estimated that the attacking divisions had lost as much as three quarters of their original strength.

Despite the arrival of heavy German reinforcements in artillery, bombers and mine throwers, he reported, major Russian positions still were unbreached, while the strange Red army of Odessa — regular troops, farmers, laborers, Cossacks—simply "dug in deeper."

"The battles for Odessa,' he summed up, "have forged a mighty and gallant family of defenders. The difficulties are immeasurable, but among the heroic defenders of the city there are no cowards, no whimperers. They know that the whole world is watching their struggle. The defenders of Odessa will fight to the last drop of their blood."

Wavell on Way to Confer With Soviet Chief at Teheran—Russians Say Battalions of Foe Are Blown Up.

BULLETIN.

Teheran, Iran, Sept. 26 (A. P.).—Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, British Commander in India, is en route to Teheran to confer with Col. T. Novikov, the Russian commander here, on joint Russo-British defense of the Caucasus, it was learned tonight.

Gen. Wavell has been in London conferring with British Government officials on aiding the Russians to defend the oil-rich Caucasus against German forces which have reached the Soviet mainland above the Crimea.

Fight Still Rages In Novgorod Area, Russians Claim

SEP 27 1941

Nazis Declared Halted At River Near City Abandoned Month Ago

By the Associated Press.

MOSCOW, Sept. 26.—Fighting near the ancient city of Novgorod, which the Red Army abandoned a month ago, still is raging, with the Russians successfully thwarting all German attempts to cross the Volkhov River, a frontline dispatch to the army newspaper Red Star reported today.

Novgorod is about 100 miles south of Leningrad, where Red Star earlier had reported Soviet forces more than matching the German strength, conceded to be increasing despite what were called colossal Nazi losses.

In the most recent German attempt to cross the Volkhov, which flows between Lake Ilmen and the Gulf of Finland, the newspaper said two German battalions were assigned the task, but had to retreat when heavy losses were inflicted on two companies. A small group which succeeded in crossing was wiped out, Red Star said.

The dispatches located the action only half a mile from Novgorod and said that heavy Russian field guns facing the city had destroyed four German batteries in the past week.

More Counterthrusts.

Red Star again reported an increasing number of Russian counterthrusts outside Leningrad, and said a series of battles had pushed the besiegers back from several advanced lines.

At one point, it declared, Russian forces gained 5 miles and recaptured four villages.

Red Star said Russian flyers had shot down 324 German planes on the Leningrad front alone in the course of the 90-day struggle for mastery of the city's skies.

Fierce Resistance Near Kiev.

Fierce resistance still is being maintained on the Kiev front, the government asserted, denouncing as a "fresh Hitlerite fake" German claims of hundreds of thousands of Red Army captives and 570 tanks east of Kiev.

(The German high command said today the number of prisoners had reached 574,000 and was growing steadily.)

The first Russian mention of British flyers in action in Russia came in an announcement that British and Russian fighter pilots operating together had bagged 26 German planes on one sector of the front. Seven of the downed German planes were credited to the British. The communique said the British and Russians lost one plane each.

Nazis Fail at Leningrad.

Red Star said a German division failed in a desperate attempt to capture one of the most important sectors of the Leningrad defenses.

The attack started at 7 p.m. with heavy artillery fire. Then two battalions of Germans advanced behind a smoke screen but were repulsed by powerful Russian artillery, the paper said.

An hour later 400 motor cyclists reinforced by tanks charged the Red lines, only to be checked by mine-throwers and gunfire.

Finally, two more battalions tried a "psychological attack," marching forward boldly in close order, but again Soviet gunfire drove them back with heavy losses, and "thus another German attempt to break through closer to Leningrad failed," Red Star concluded.

"The fierce struggle is continuing on the Kiev front," the Soviet Information Bureau said.

"No doubt the German invaders possess numerical superiority there. The Germans certainly plan to capture thousands of prisoners and hundreds of tanks. But this plan is still to be carried into practice."

The bureau pictured fighting in the vast pattern of attack and defense as proceeding all along the German-Russian battle line.

Two Added to Delegation.

Two men were added to the seven-man Russian delegation expected to open conferences soon with British and United States missions, now in Moscow, on the problem of supplies to supplement Russian resources.

They are Maxim Litvinov, former foreign commissar, and Lt. Gen. Filip Golikov, who headed a recent military mission to Washington.

It lasted an hour and fifty minutes.

[The Moscow radio said that the raiders were driven off by anti-aircraft fire.]

BULLETIN.

NEW YORK (AP).—The fortified islands of Oesel and Dagoe, Russian strongholds guarding the entrance to the Gulf of Finland, "are proving impenetrable to all German attacks" and 15,000 Germans who landed on them have been "wiped out," the British radio said today quoting a broadcast from Leningrad. The Germans have announced capture of Oesel.

NAZI ARMY EXPECTS TO FIGHT IN WINTER

SEP 27 1941

Pressure On Reds Will Not Let Up In Cold Season, Reich's People Told

Germans Claim Half Million Prisoners Taken In Ukraine Campaign

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Sept. 26—The German nation was informed by word and deed tonight that the high command expects a winter campaign in the east, even as a new official reckoning put the toll of the Ukrainian Red army entrapment at more than half a million prisoners and said the total was "still growing."

DNB said that the Russians, by counter-attacks, now were testing the German front to find out where the next offensive thrusts might be expected, and added:

"Although the advance already has gone far, it is generally recognized that one cannot figure on German pressure against the Soviet armies letting up during the winter months."

Blankets Commandeered

At the same time dispatches from German-occupied Oslo told of a decree by which Norwegians must surrender wool blankets for use by the German army. Civilians and stores possessing such blankets must deliver them up by September 30, on pain of prison sentences up to three years and heavy fines. Certain exceptions were made for persons living in northernmost areas and for areas hard hit by war. The blankets will be paid for on a basis of German army appraisal.

These war reports, none of them bearing the cachet of the high command, were distributed tonight.

Repulse of Russian tank-supported counter-attacks in the north sector Thursday, with six tanks destroyed.

Silencing of certain Russian naval guns in Leningrad harbor and at Kronstadt by German artillery.

Destruction of nine Russian ships in Lake Ladoga by German planes, while the ships were trying to land troops and material.

Destruction of sixty-six Russian planes on the entire front Thursday.

Two official bulletins during the day laid stress almost exclusively on the Ukraine campaign, calling it the greatest example of their principal aim—annihilation of the Soviet armed forces. Berlin hailed the number of prisoners taken there as the greatest yet claimed in any one offensive.

For days the Germans have been reporting the steady destruction of four Russian armies, trapped in two German pockets east of fallen Kiev.

Tonight's special communique said this destruction was nearly complete with 574,000 prisoners in hand and as yet incalculable booty.

Other German sources, dealing with the continuing fighting from Moscow south, said the German armies and air squadrons had dealt a telling blow to the rail and road systems by which Russia hoped to supply her still resisting forces.

These systems are most dense in the conquered Ukrainian areas west and southwest of Kharkov, toward which the Ukrainian advance now is pounding.

Rail Terminals Taken

Many terminals of west-east Russian railroads now are in German hands, spokesmen said, and "it remains to be seen how the Russians will solve the transportation problem on the north and south rail lines." Roads in the zone of operations were described as poor.

With air squadrons relentlessly pounding the rail facilities of the Kharkov area, news agency reports said German and allied troops had made additional territorial gains in the south, repulsing counter-attacks in which the Russians used both cavalry and tanks.

The air bombardments were said already to have destroyed railway tracks and armament plants from Moscow to Kharkov, center of the industrial Donets basin.

Last Remnants of Four Trapped Armies Declared On Verge of Annihilation

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sept. 26.—German forces now have captured 574,000 Russian prisoners on the Ukraine front east of Kiev and the last remnants of four trapped Soviet armies are on the verge of annihilation, a special communique from Adolf Hitler's headquarters announced tonight.

It said the figure still was "rising steadily" and that seized war material "cannot even be estimated."

This was the second bulletin claiming that huge sections of the Red Army were being herded swiftly into German prison camps. It added 82,000 captives within a few hours after the first special announcement of the day, which placed the figure at 492,000.

Indicating that mop-up operations beyond the captured Ukraine capital, Kiev, were progressing at lightning pace, the first bulletin referred to the Russians as "remnants" of Marshal Semeon Budyenny's Ukrainian forces and the second called them the "last remnants."

These were the only official reports on the land drive but the high command said also that the air force had destroyed railroad tracks and armament plants in the regions of Moscow, Tula, a rail center south of Moscow, and Kharkov, center of the industrial Donetz River Basin area.

D.N.B. said German and other Axis forces had made new territorial gains in the southern sector after repulsing several Soviet counterattacks.

Russians Using Cavalry.

Other dispatches said the Russians again were resorting to cavalry in counterattacks in an undesignated area of the southern zone, using horses in co-ordination with tanks and infantry. In one thrust, they said, the Russians lost 17 out of 40 tanks.

To the north, German soldiers entrenched east of the Dvina River about 300 miles south of Leningrad were said to have beaten off heavy attacks apparently made by the Red Army in an effort to ease the pressure on the besieged northern city.

The Germans said great masses of Soviet troops were unable to break into the Nazi positions.

It was not disclosed where the engagement occurred, but some sources said it apparently was in the neighborhood of Velizh, 10 miles northwest of German - occupied Smolensk.

(Russian dispatches said the Germans in this area were routed at a cost of more than 2,500 German dead.)

Leningrad Siege Intensified.

The Germans, meanwhile, intensified their siege of Leningrad, which was pictured as being reduced to burning ruins and wreckage. The Germans and Russians were fighting desperately in house-to-house combats in Leningrad's factory suburbs, German reports said.

Far to the south of the besieged city, D.N.B. said, an armored division attacked two Soviet infantry divisions and drove them into retreat with heavy casualties.

The news agency said the retreating Russians, held up at a stream, were attacked a second time. Seventeen hundred prisoners were reported taken.

The German air force was reported to have raided the railway line running from the Kharkov industrial area in the Donets Basin to the Crimea. A squadron leader said the Russians had built long zig-zag trenches, camouflaged machine-gun nests and artillery positions in that area.

The part German pursuit planes are playing in the war in the east was praisedby Lt. Col. Heinrich Gehrts in an article. He said they often dashed out on raids on their own initiative without a command from higherup. Lt. Col. Gehrts said the pursuit squadron of Col. Werner Moelders had downed 1,357 Russian planes up to Sept. 10.

NORWEGIANS LOSE BLANKETS

All Must Be Given Up to Troops of Conquerors as Freezing Weather Approaches.

Berlin, Sept. 26 (A. P.).—A DNB dispatch today indicated a German expectation that the war on the eastern front would continue into the winter and hinted at new German offensives.

"It is generally recognized now," said the official German agency, "that one cannot figure on the pressure of German troops on the Soviet armies letting up during the winter months."

Norwegians Lose Blankets.

Oslo, Sept. 26 (A. P.).—Norwegian citizens and stores must surrender their wool blankets for use by the German Army in accordance with a decree issued today.

The decree ordered every one possessing blankets to deliver them up before September 30, regardless of whether or not he owns them. Failure to do so or attempts to evade the decree were made punishable by a prison sentence up to three years or by a heavy fine.

The covers are to be paid for on the basis of appraisal by the German Army, it was stated in the decree, which excepted persons living in the northernmost districts of Norway and areas hit by the war.

Rains Make Russian Roads Ribbons of Sticky Mire

By HENRY C. CASSIDY,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

WITH THE RED ARMY ON THE CENTRAL FRONT (Delayed) (AP).—Russian roads, one of the factors aiding the Red Army in the fight against the Germans, already have started clutching at enemy wheels and tractor treads to slow down the German panzer divisions.

Under sodden autumn skies and intermittent rains the dirt tracks which wind across vast expanses of Western Russia have become ribbons of sticky mire.

It is good going when you average 6 or 7 miles an hour in a day's driving.

Our truck transport rolls steadily down the main cobblestone highways toward the front, while on the side roads light four-wheel American and six-wheel Russian trucks plow through the mud.

Tractors taken from collective farms and road crews recruited from army units tug any bogged-down cars over washed-out bridges and through swampy hollows.

Columns of as many as 30 trucks at a time carry cargoes along the roads while wiry, sure-footed little horses plod across the slippery fields.

Transport on this side of the lines, known here as the "brother of the Red Army," shows no signs of faltering.

Soviet Hurling British Planes Against Finns Near Leningrad

Number of Spitfires Reported Already Shot Down; Flyers Identified as Reds

(The Associated Press correspondent with the Finns has filed the following two delayed stories.)

SEP 27 1941

By PAUL SJOEBLOM,
Associated Press War Correspondent.

WITH THE FINNISH FORCES ON THE LENINGRAD FRONT, Sept. 23 (Delayed).—British aircraft have suddenly appeared against the Finns in East Karelia north of Leningrad. A number of Spitfire fighter planes already have been shot down in aerial combat, I am told.

Finnish officers say that so far only Russian airmen have been identified in the wrecked machines. They say that they do not know whether the British are flying any of them.

Despite the superior quality of the British aircraft, the Finns say they are having little difficulty in shooting them down.

The reason suggested for this is an assertion that most of Russia's trained pilots were killed in the early weeks of the war, and that the men sent up nowadays are finding the new foreign machines unmanageable and too speedy.

Reports indicate that several Red fighters were shot down over Leningrad today during Finnish air raids.

WITH THE FINNISH ARMY ON THE SVIR RIVER FRONT, Sept. 22 (Delayed).—While Russian shells screamed overhead and burst in trees 200 yards away, I watched heavy Finnish guns bombard freight cars on the Murmansk Railroad and other military objectives today in the Karelian town of Lodeinoe Pole on the southern shore of the broad Svir River.

From an artillery observation post on heights overlooking the Soviet positions 2 miles away, huge geysers of smoke and debris were seen thrown into the air every time a Finnish shell landed.

In the railroad yard, seen clearly through field glasses, a big fire started the moment a shell hit. Officers said that judging from the size and intensity of the conflagration the shell must have hit an ammunition dump.

Freight Cars Target.

I looked through the range-finder at the special target of the battery of 8-inch guns situated in the woods some distance behind us. The target was a line of freight cars near the fire.

The officer made rapid calculations and shouted instructions to a telephonist in a dugout a few yards below this hill. Word was relayed to the battery. Then came the order to fire.

The woods behind us thundered and the ground shook as a volley hurtled through. Through the range-finding telescope I could see seven bursts of smoke as the shells exploded in quick succession in the vicinity of the railroad tracks. When the dust had cleared, the cars could be seen still standing undamaged.

The next volley barely missed. The officer corrected his range calculations again. The third time there came cries of approval from soldiers and officers watching nearby.

Even with the naked eye they could see that a bulls-eye had been scored. Through field glasses it was established that the freight cars had been wrecked.

Aim at Water Tower.

The next target chosen was a brick water tower. A 6-inch gun captured from the Russians a few hour searlier was given the task of demolishing it. The gun was a brand-new American model of 1940-41, I was told. The first shot landed behind the tower.

Then Russia nbatteries across the river started firing, but the projectiles landed 300 yards from the Finnish battery. Eight Russian fighters identified as of American design roared over in search of the Finnish battery, failed to find it, and flew back to their own lines.

Then Russian batteries across the shots at the water-tower but missed. The Finns attributed the failure to faulty gun or ammunition.

A town of 30,000, Lodeinoe Pole is believed by the Finns to have been evacuated. The Svir is more than a mile wide at this point and prevents a direct crossing. Finnish troops are said to have crossed the stream twenty-five miles to the northeast and to be driving hard along the Murmansk Railway.

U. S. Planes Assembled In Four Days By Russians

London, Saturday, Sept. 27 (AP)—The crew of a British coastal command plane, the first to fly into Russia as far as Moscow, reported today that with homemade assembly tools the Russians had put a consignment of American-made warplanes into the air within four days of delivery.

The Air Ministry said the proper tools were due to arrive in a week or two.

Meanwhile, Soviet Ambassador Ivan Maisky informed Gen. Charles De Gaulle that the Russian Government recognized him as the Free French leader and was prepared to give him "every help and assistance in the common cause against Hitlerite Germany and her allies."

SEP 27 1941

Berlin, Sept. 26 (AP)—Germany ordered the closing of Iranian legations in Germany and the occupied countries today, and the departure of officials. The reason given was Iranian action against Germans after British-Russian occupation of the country.

Teheran, Iran, Sept. 26 (AP)—Thousands of Kurdish riflemen led by rebellious mountain chieftains were reported today to have established a "free state" in the Iranian border province of Kurdistan between British and Russian zones of occupation.

TEHERAN--add Kurds xxx occupation.

The Teheran government sent troops to reenforce Gen. Hassan Moghadam's under-sized regiment of 2,000 men at Kermanshah so that he could comply with a British request that he undertake a campaign against the tough Kurdish guerrillas who have been plundering non-Kurd villages and ruling the whole province by gun law.

British military sources said they did not wish to use their own forces to crush the Kurds--especially since that would involve operations in an agreed-upon neutral strip.

The Kurds nurse a grievance against the British because they fought as their Allies against the Turks in the World War but failed to gain national independence in the peace settlement.

Kurdish lands overlap the frontiers of three countries--Iran, Iraq and Turkey.

British Faith in Turks Seen Expressed in Plane Consignment

SEP 27 1941

Ankara Dispatch Reports Arrival of First of 36 American-Made Craft

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Sept. 26.—The disclosure that Britain has consigned some American-made warplanes to Turkey was interpreted generally in London today as indicative of British confidence that the Turks are determined to resist Axis blandishments and remain loyal to their commitments as non-belligerent allies of Britain.

Authoritative sources said nothing had occurred to weaken in the slightest their "absolute" faith in Turkish friendship.

36 Released by British.

A dispatch from Ankara disclosed the plane deal, telling of the arrival of four Curtiss-P-40 pursuit ships, first of a consignment of 36 released by the British Near East forces after it was learned that Germany had declined to send warplanes to Turkey under a trade agreement.

Turkey was understood to have put fighter planes first on her list of needs from Germany in exchange for vegetable oils, chrome and other products.

Britain stepped into the breach with the Curtis craft from the United States.

Assurances Believed Given.

Authoritative sources here said they believed the United States never would have approved the deal except for confidence that the Turks were ready to defend their frontiers, and that probably some fairly concrete assurances to that effect were given.

Amid recurrent reports that the Germans have been urging Bulgaria to attack Turkey, British papers have missed few opportunities to hint to the Turks that they would be wise to call in help beforehand.

Despite the plane consignment, there were no indications here that the Turks yet had taken up that idea seriously.

England Must Invade, Canadian Officer Says

London, Sept. 26 (AP)—Lieut. Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, general officer commanding the Canadian corps in Englad, told a group of visiting Canadian editors tonight "there will have to be an invasion of the Continent."

The Canadian corps, he told the newspapermen in a significant interview at his headquarters somewhere in England, "is a dagger pointed at the heart of Berlin—don't make any mistake about this."

These troops, he went on, are on call for "useful service," and the only qualification is that there be a useful objective and a proper time for action.

Not With Missiles Alone

"I don't think you can bring a proud and well-organized nation to her knees with missiles alone," McNaughton said in predicting the continental invasion.

There is no better located spot than England, he went on, for an offensive action along the coast of Europe from Gibraltar to Spitsbergen.

He conceded, however, that a British invasion of the Continent may not be attempted until after Germany tries to invade the British Isles.

Asked if more man power were needed for the present dominions army overseas, the commander said there had been no shortage to date, that men had been brought over as fast as ships were available to carry them, and that as to the future, balanced and coordinated plans should be made for maximum effort through a long war.

Urges Training In Canada

Col. George Drew, Canadian Conservative leader in Ontario, suggested in a broadcast tonight that empire shock troops with unequaled striking power be trained in the vast spaces of Canada for an invasion of Europe.

Emphasizing that his suggestion was purely a personal one, he said:

"What is required are fast, hard-hitting units which can be transferred easily by ships. If a successful offensive is to be launched in Europe it must be by fast, powerful land units working in close cooperation with airborne and parachute troops."

Raid Reported

A roundabout British press report that Canadian soldiers already had made a daring night raid on the coast of France excited the imagination of the troops here, but Canadian headquarters and British military authorities said no raids had been made.

An authoritative source said the report "might have originated with a German propagandist seeking information. The fact that the story comes from New York does not mean that it could not have originated with German sources."

Starts Concentrated Attack On Occupied Area Between Cap Gris Nez And Calais

Squadron Of Hurricane Fighters Attacks 6 Nazi Naval Vessels Off Dunkerque

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 26—The Royal Air Force started a concentrated attack on the occupied French area between Cap Gris Nez and Calais tonight.

Soon after a thick haze lifted from the Dover Strait the distant thunder of heavy bombs rolled across the Channel, punctuated by the thump of German anti-aircraft.

Fighters Attack Ships

Earlier a mixed squadron of super-armed and super-powered Hurricane fighter planes attacked four German minesweepers and two anti-aircraft ships off Dunkerque.

The Air Ministry reported that the Hurricanes, which carry four cannon or twelve machine guns, left two minesweepers blazing furiously and probably lost. Both anti-aircraft ships were said to have been damaged.

Patrol Vessel Sunk

Other fighters sank a small German patrol vessel off Cherbourg, the Air Ministry said.

Anti-aircraft guns and searchlights went into action in London tonight when a hostile plane was heard, but no bombs were dropped. There were a few casualties in the area around London, where high explosive bombs were scattered.

New York, Sept. 26 (AP)—The official Dutch Aneta agency quoted a private letter from the Netherlands today as saying that 40,000 German evacuees had arrived in Amsterdam from the Rhineland, indicating the effect of R. A. F. bombings.

Spurt on Libyan Front.

LONDON, Sept. 26 (AP).—An authoritative source said today there had been a spurt of activity on the Libyan front, particularly artillery action. Axis aircraft have made new raids, but without causing damage, this informant said.

British Reported Massing Large Forces in Egypt

ROME, Sept. 26 (AP).—The newspaper Il Popolo d'Italia of Milan reported today that the British were massing large forces in Egypt and indicated that major operations against the Axis' North African forces might be imminent.

With the favorable season for desert warfare approaching, it said, considerable movements of British troops have been observed between the Giarabub and Siwa Oases, about 120 miles inland from the Mediterranean coast.

Italian troops from Fort Uolchefit and the Chilga outpost in Ethiopia repulsed British attacks Wednesday night with the British suffering losses, the Italian high command announced.

In North Africa, the Italins said, they shot down two British planes which attacked Misurata Wednesday and another at Bengasi.

Italian planes again bombed the Micabba airport on Malta last night, the communique declared.

BERLIN, Sept. 26.—Informed Germans said today a 6,000-ton British freighter was set afire by German air bombs at the mouth of the Thames last night.

France Wants No Help, Says Deat In Statement For U. S.

Collaborationist, Citing American "Misunderstandings," Denies His Country Is "Enslaved Or Tortured"

SEP 27 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Paris, Sept. 26—Marcel Deat, editor of the Paris newspaper L'Oeuvre and leading journalistic proponent of collaboration between France and Germany, declared today in a statement for Americans that the United States labors under three misconceptions in regard to France.

The politician who, with Pierre Laval, was the target of an assassination attempt August 28, said that contrary to American belief France wants no help, is neither enslaved nor tortured although occupied, and rejects the idea of anybody occupying her empire for her.

He said Frenchmen want America, in turn, to answer three questions: Why the United States regards herself as threatened; why the United States, which two years ago pursued an independent policy, "is now apparently absorbed in European, Russian and Oriental problems"; and who dominates "the Anglo-American amalgam"—the United States or Britain?

"The misunderstandings never would have arisen if thousands of Americans were still coming and going in France as they used to, if you had one hundred newspapermen here instead of only four or five and if communications by mail and telegraph were easy and quick," Deat said.

"The first misunderstanding is the American idea that France wants help. Help is the last thing on earth France wants today. We have finally learned we must become strong enough to help ourselves.

"The second misunderstanding is the ludicrous idea that we are enslaved or tortured. The fact is, we were beaten militarily, exactly as we deserved to be after twenty years of confusion and weakness. Nearly 2,000,000 of our soldiers were taken off to Germany as a logical result of our having declared a war for which we were not prepared.

"Our marshal (Petain) made what must have been the most favorable armistice terms in history for a non-existent army. Does America realize that this period of armistice is only temporary—that it will end when the threat of invasion ends. The armistice terms are scrupulously followed by both sides.

"I feel that only a person who is traitorous or unfaithful by nature would disapprove of our keeping loyally to terms which we accepted in exchange for the right to maintain a government in France and keep our empire for ourselves.

France "Wants No Help"

"We have more food, clothes and raw materials than any other country in wartime Europe and unlike our former allies we don't cry out: 'Send us help or we perish.' The France of today wants no help.

"A third American misunderstanding is that we want someone to occupy our empire for us. We do not. We succeeded in defending Dakar and we nearly succeeded with Syria. We are now strong enough to do the job ourselves and we are going to do it. If America understands that she will understand France better.

"A final American understanding is that we have become pitiful and finished as a great power. Actually France is refitting herself to occupy her right place in the world of culture and economic activity. She will succeed. Are Americans informed of the complete reorganization of our political and social structure, our new labor and business laws and organization, our new system of education and new york in art, literature and science?

French Defeat "Lucky"

"Our lightning defeat in our disorganized, weakened condition was one of the luckiest things of our existence, because it forced us to begin the rebuilding of France spiritually, socially, economically and politically. The one thing we dread now is some foreign plant to use France as a battleground. Under the simplicity of Marshal Petain's honorable and truly French leadership we are well on the way to a new birth, while the rest of the world is still enmeshed in war.

"If America thinks of France as striving to wipe out a quarter century of mistakes by a self-directed return to the old French character, she will be near the truth."

Frenchmen Executed As Communists In Yard Of Paris Prison

Vichy Seen As Seeking To Show It Can Curb Unrest Without Nazis

[By the Associated Press]

Vichy, Unoccupied France, Sept. 26—Three Frenchmen died by the guillotine today in the courtyard of Sante Prison in Paris, condemned by a new tribunal of state which was set up to show the Germans that the French themselves can crush prolonged unrest from a hidden opposition.

The three, all formerly identified with French Communism, were Adolphe Guyot, once the Communist leader of the Seine (Paris) department; Jacques Woog and Jean Cathelas, former Deputy.

New Sentences Due

The tribunal is expected to issue new condemnations shortly, among them the former Communist Deputy Gabriel Peri, whose case is believed already decided. Another under death sentence, Fresco Foscardi, remains at large.

All those sentenced so far by the tribunal of state were convicted in secret sessions for fomenting or organizing disorders. Those guillotined today were the first it had sentenced to death.

Through the operations of this court, which is separate from anti-Communist tribunals also operating in Paris and elsewhere, the Vichy Government hopes to curb the spread of German reprisals against French hostages for attacks on Germans and other manifestations of opposition.

Seeks To Stop Reprisals

Pierre Pucheu, Vichy's dynamic Minister of the Interior, is in Paris trying to sell the Germans on the idea of stopping these reprisals—which already have cost thirty-five lives—until the new French courts can have a chance to get things under control.

In Vichy itself, a flurry of scattered activity indicated to some observers that something was brewing. Some of its manifestations:

A conference was held between Vice-Premier Jean Darlan and German Embassy Secretary Rahn, who came to Vichy from his new post on the Nazi diplomatic staff in Paris. Rahn was invited to dine tonight with Marshal Petain.

Brings New Proposals

Jacques Benoist-Mechin, former Vichy Secretary of State and regarded as a leading advocate of collaboration, came here with Rahn, and authorized circles said he brought along preliminary proposals for "marked resumption" of French-German negotiations.

A round of conferences was attended here by Gen. Henri Dentz over the disposition of the troops who were defeated under his command in the Syrian war with the British and de Gaullists. It is now believed these troops will remain in France, rather than go to African garrisons.

General Koelz, newly named to the command of Vichy forces in Algeria, started his tour of duty by inspecting the important garrison of Blida, south of Algiers.

to hand down a new list of condemnations soon.

The three put to death today were communists: Adolphe Guyot, comunist leader of the Seine (Paris) Department; Jacques Woog and former Deputy Jean Cathelas.

SEP 27 1941

The name of Gabriel Peri, another former communist Deputy, was mentioned as probably among those whose cases now have been decided at further sittings of the tribunal.

A fourth man who was given the death sentence six days ago, Fresco Foscardi, has not been found. He was tried in absentia.

All those sentenced so far have been convicted in secret sessions of fomenting or organizing disorders.

This court is separate from the Anti-Communist tribunal which deals only with communist activities.

Diplomats Take Proposals to French Capital.

Vichy, Sept. 26 (A. New French-German conversations began today, when Vice-Premier Admiral Darlan conferred with Secretary Rahn of the German embassy, recently assigned to the Nazi diplomatic staff in Paris. It was expected that Herr Rahn would dine tonight with Chief of State Petain.

Today's talks coincided with a crowded seven-hour visit by Gen. Henri Dentz, who commanded French forces against the British and Free French in Syria. He was in conference almost the whole time, some of it with Marshal Petain, on the use to which his idle Syrian veterans are to be put.

There had been reports that they would re-enforce France's African garrisons, but it is said now they are likely to remain in France.

Exiled Leader Declares Il Duce Was Forced to Send In Additional Troops.

London, Sept. 26 (A. P.).—Premier Emmanuel Tsouderos of the refugee Greek Government declared today that he had received reports of frequent clashes btween Germans and Italians occupying Greece and said that it had been necessary to import fourteen Italian divisions to occupy the southern part of the country.

"Curiously," he added, "the Italians are somewhat better disciplined than the Germans."

Speaking at a press conference, he said that Greek airmen and naval forces are now operating with the British in the Middle East and that no part of the Greek Navy or Merchant Fleet has fallen into Axis hands. Half the merchantmen and a quarter of the navy were destroyed during the evacuation, he said.

The exiled Premier, who arrived in London four days ago, declared that Bulgaria could hardly be regarded as other than a belligerent, having for a long time been used as a German military base.

"If the Bulgarians had not provided facilities for the Germans," he said, "the invasion of Greece would have been very considerably delayed."

They're Saying In Berlin

SEP 27 1941

Berlin, Sept. 26 (AP)—Americans in Berlin are busy these days knocking down with smiles a story going the rounds that every German national in the United States has been compelled to wear the swastika, and that this is what led to orders that Jews in Germany must wear a yellow star of David on their left breasts.

Jews have been wearing the Star of David since September 19, and throughout the city one hears the people saying:

"The Jews must wear the yellow star because America compels our Germans over there to wear the swastika."

Offices of American newspaper correspondents and the United States Embassy have received frequent inquiries whether the rumor is true The first inquiry to the Berlin Bureau of the Associated Press came from someone who said he had heard that Milwaukee was the first city to enact such a regulation.

Official press officers said the Government had nothing to do with the story and insisted that they knew nothing about it.

Reich to Order Listing Of All War Stock Sales

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sept. 26.—Walther Funk, Minister of Economics, announced today that a decree to be made effective shortly would compel the registration of all shares which have changed hands since the war began.

This measure, disclosed at a meeting of the Reich's economic chamber, was expected to halt what the Minister called "excessively rising" share pices.

The effective date of the decree has not been fixed, but Funk already has forbidden banks to make loans for purchases of mining stocks and colonial bonds after October 31.

Funk's announcement said business concerns would be encouraged "to invest their liquid assets and reserves in the Reich's treasury bonds."

Authoritative quarters, explaining Funk's action, said previous warnings against speculation had gone unheeded.

Wartime profiteering repeatedly has been called un-Nazi and many decrees have forbidden the unjustified increases in commodity prices and wages.

Winant Would Couple Science With Force To Erase Naziism

Tells Gathering Of Savants In London That Such A Union Would Serve "Human Needs"

SEP 27 1941

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 26—The coupling of scientific methods with force of arms to stamp out Naziism was put up to the world scientists today by John G. Winant, United States Ambassador, as science's first service to "human needs."

Winant told representatives of twenty-two countries attending the International Conference on Science and the World, over which he presided at an afternoon session, that the "first service of science to human needs was integration of the scientific methods and applied science in support of the allied forces organized to destroy Naziism."

The Nazis, he asserted, have "stolen and run amuck with the great scientific discoveries of the human race," using them "to enslave the human spirit."

[Associated Press]

Prime Minister Churchill, in a message, told the scientists their presence was "striking proof of that universal desire for liberty of thought which all the power of the Gestapo will never entirely stamp out."

All the resources of science will be required "to repair the trail of material and moral havoc which the Germans leave behind them," Churchill wrote.

Sir John Orr, a British dietetic expert, proposed a commission of United States and allied government representatives which would plan a world-wide post-war food policy to bring an "adequate health diet" within reach of everybody.

London, Sept. 26 (A. P.).—John G. Winant, United States Ambassador, told the International Conference on Science and the World Order today that the first service by science to human needs should be application of scientific methods to crush Hitler.

Science should support the Allied armed forces that are organizing to destroy Nazi power, he asserted at the conference's opening session.

Prime Minister Churchill, in a message to the conference, said that all the resources of science would be required to repair the trail of material and moral havoc which the Germans leave behind them.

Mr. Winant, who presided at the afternoon session, declared: "Nazism has stolen and run amuck with the great inventions of free and inquiring minds and is using them not to liberate but to enslave the human spirit."

He said that the Germans had "with relentless efficiency and cruelty degraded the dignity of the individual and attempted to abolish the rights of man."

"Science was obligated to satisfy the primary needs of man so that the essentials of life are recognized equally as part of the rights of man. We must abolish both hunger and the sword as a means of forcing labor," he added.

Sir John Orr, a British dietetic expert, proposed the formation of an international commission "to prepare plans for a world-wide food policy which will bring an adequate health diet within reach of everybody." He suggested that the commission be made up of representatives of the United States and Allied governments.

Representatives of twenty-two countries are attending the three-day conference, held under the auspices of the British Association for the Advancement of Science, and Mr. Churchill said that their presence was "striking proof of that universal desire for liberty of thought which all the power of the Gestapo will never entirely stamp out."

"The freedom that our scientists enjoy is a valuable weapon to us," he added, "for superiority in scientific development is a vital factor in preparation of victory."

MARY CHURCHILL SIGNS

Prime Minister's Daughter a Private Now.

London, Sept. 26 (A. P.).—The War Office announced today that Mary Churchill, youngest daughter of the Prime Minister, has become a private in the Women's Auxiliary Territorial Service.

Mary Churchill, 18 years old, was reported last May engaged to Lord Duncannon, 28-year-old son of the Earl of Bessborough. He is a captain, aid-de-camp to Lieut.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton of the Canadian Corps.

At that time the report of the engagement was authoritatively described as "a little premature."

Today's announcement said that Mrs. Churchill had given Mary every encouragement to join the ATS and that Private Churchill is at present in training with her friend, Miss Judith Montague, whose mother is a cousin of Mrs. Churchill, at the ATS reception depot in the southern command.

"Miss Churchill now has passed her preliminary selection test for anti-aircraft work and will shortly be posted to a mixed battery for technical training in the operation of anti-aircraft fire control instruments," the announcement added.

Controlled Undies

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 26—Streamlined and stamped underwear for women is the latest wrinkle in Britain's war effort.

The Board of Trade announced that the new Government-controlled undies would have no frills, little if any lace and would be within reach of everybody's pocketbook.

Each garment will bear a monogram, but not the fancy silk-woven initials sometimes used. Instead, it will carry the cold Government stamp—CC 41 (CC meaning controlled commodity).

Luxury underwear, however, still will be obtainable, but not controlled, and it is possible that a pair of pink pants (uncontrolled) may cost $15.

Controlled undies were listed as "slips, knickers, panties, vests, camiknickers, night dresses and pajamas."

George Arliss Fined $18,000 By Lord Mayor Of London

Veteran Actor Charged With Failing To Register Foreign Securities With Bank Of England

SEP 27 1941

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 26—George Arliss, 73-year-old Disraeli of stage and screen, was fined the sterling, equivalent of more than $18,000, by the Lord Mayor of London today for failing to register ome $52,000 in American and Canadian securities with the Bank of England under war-time regulations.

Arliss entered a technical plea of guilty, but "indignantly repudiated" the charge as a reflection on his honor and denied any intent to evade the law. He formally pleaded mitigating circumstances and his fine, in fact, was only a fraction of the $158,000 penalty to which he was liable.

Arliss testified he thought he had observed all Government regulations regarding his money and securities. His lawyer said the actor and his wife "have surrendered in dollars or tendered securitie for regulation to the amount of something between £80,000 and £100,000" ($320,000 to $400,000).

Arliss said he had left most of his financial affairs in the hands of his New York agent and added: "I am not very intelligent in this matter now I was less intelligent then."

The Lord Mayor, looking over exhibits of letters from Arliss, observed: "These are the letters of a very intelligent finance man."

He then ruled the affair a case of gross negligence calling for a severe penalty.

charges, while technically pleading guilty, also was fined 10 guineas (about $42) costs.

Mr. Arliss was charged with failing to register securities valued at £13,160 (about $52,000) and the crown prosecutor, F. D. Barry, had declared the actor was liable to a fine of £39,480 (about $158,000).

Mr. Arliss testified that he believed he had observed all regulations regarding his money and securities. Asked whether he understood the regulations, he replied, "I'm afraid I don't."

He told the court that he had left most of his financial affairs in the hands of a New York agent because "I had what I call my own business to attend to."

The Lord Mayor, before whom the case was heard, observed that the actor's letters "are the letters of a very intelligent finance man."

When the case was called, Mr. Arliss, who has been acting on stage and screen for 55 years, playing Disraeli, Cardinal Richelieu and other famous characters, advanced from the rear of the courtroom and stood in front of a bench occupied by counsel.

The Lord Mayor directed that he be given a chair, and the 73-year-old Arliss, unlike other defendants, sat throughout the proceedings.

Defense counsel told the court:

"Mr. Arliss and his wife have surrendered in dollars or tendered securities for registration something between £80,000 and £100,000 (between $320,000 and $400,000). The honor of Mr. Arliss is at stake and I intend to fight every inch of the case."

French Protest Arrests By Japanese In Indo-China

Hanoi, French Indo-China, Sept. 26 (AP)—French authorities protested strongly to the Japanese today over the arrest of one hundred Chinese and Anamites here and at Haiphong for alleged anti-Japanese activities.

The seriousness of the view taken by the French was indicated by the presentation of the protest both to Japanese authorities here and to Tokyo through diplomatic channels.

This action followed the closing of streets in Hanoi and Haiphong by Japanese military authorities without warning and a subsequent search of private homes and French and Chinese-owned hotels.

An announcement from the Hanoi Government called the Japanese activity "an incontestable violation on the part of the Japanese high command of French sovereignty solemnly guaranteed by the Japanese Government in all agreements between itself and the French Government.

FRENCH INDO-CHINA PROTESTS TO TOKIO

Charges Many Arrests in Far East Colony.

SEP 27 1941

Vichy, Sept. 26 (A. P.).—French Indo-China authorities have protested vigorously to Japan, charging violation of French sovereignty as a result of sudden, widespread arrests by Japanese troops in the French colony, it was announced officially today.

The strongly worded protest declared that the action of the Japanese command was an "indisputable violation of French sovereignty, despite the solemn guaranty by the Japanese Government in all accords signed up until now between it and the French Government."

Full French sovereignty in the Asiatic colony was insisted on in a protocol signed between France and Japan only two months ago giving Japanese troops the right to occupy bases in southern French Indo-China.

A communique issued by French authorities in Hanoi, the capital, said, "On the night of September 25-26 Japanese military forces at Hanoi and Haiphong carried out without warning police operations, including police lines across streets, searches and arrests.

Hundred Arrested

"Some one hundred persons, Chinese and Annamites, thus were taken into custody.

"The French authorities raised a vigorous protest against these operations, which constitute on the part of the Japanese command in Indo-China an indisputable violation of French sovereignty in spite of the solemn guaranties by the Japanese Government in all accords signed up to now between it and the French Government.

JAPAN, TONED DOWN, MARKS YEAR IN AXIS

SEP 27 1941

Observes Anniversary In Subdued Manner, Preoccupied With Peace

Silences Some Pro-Fascist Leaders, Stresses Talks With U. S.

[By the Associated Press]

London, Saturday, Sept. 27—The British Government was understood today to have told Japan it would resort to "drastic action" if Mrs. Denzil Clarke, Japanese-born wife of Lieutenant Colonel Clarke, assistant press attache at the British Embassy in Peiping, China, is not found soon and returned alive. She has been missing a week in that Japanese-occupied city.

[By the Associated Press]

Tokyo, Saturday, Sept. 27—The first anniversary of Japanese adherence to the Axis alliance was observed today in a subdued manner, with only official functions scheduled and certain pro-Fascist leaders silenced by order of the Government.

In a speech to the empire on the eve of the anniversary, Nobubumi Ito, director of the Cabinet Information Board, declared the primary purpose of the alliance was world peace and that Japan to this end would retain her ties.

Not Like Pact Of Past

"The tri-power pact," he added, "is not like the military alliance of the past, which was made for accruing advantages for the prosecution of war."

The newspaper Chugai Shogyo, organ of big business, likewise observed: "The fundamental purpose of the tri-partite pact is to restore peace." Then, referring to current Japanese-American talks in Washington, it added:

"It is significant that the anniversary of the pact comes at a time when Japan and the United States are trying to do their best."

Answers Criticism

The English-language publication Japan News Week, retorting to earlier criticism of its position, prepared an editorial declaring that American attempts to destroy Nazism were just while German attempts to destroy democracy were unjust, because democracy sought only to allow each nation to choose its form of government, whereas Naziism would impose its will on other nations.

In the year that has gone since the signing of the pact Japan's economic military and naval positions have outwardly worsened, although some competent observers believe her inherent strength is still untouched despite food shortages and lack of oil, gasoline and raw materials.

12 More Months Of War

The empire has gone through twelve more draining months of war with China, has seen her world threat substantially vanish through British-American action, has found herself at economic odds with Britain and the United States and isolated from contact with her allies due to the outbreak of the Russian-German war.

Despite all this, however, Japan has clung to her objective—the so-called East Asia coprosperity sphere, and has intensified her action against China.

Japanese Reaffirm Axis Tie in Marking Pact Anniversary

Spirit of Three-Power Treaty Is Declared Diplomacy's Keynote

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, Sept. 26.—A Japanese spokesman opened the empire's observance of the first anniversary of Japanese signing of the Axis pact, which falls tomorrow, by declaring today the alliance's primary objective was world peace and that Japan would retain her ties to this end.

SEP 27 1941

Nobubumi Ito, who was named director of the Cabinet Information Board by Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye a month before the signing last September, made the statement in a broadcast.

Ito declared that, whatever the changes in the future and whatever the difficulties, "the spirit of the three-power pact constitutes the keynote of our diplomacy and that will not be affected in the least by activities of third powers to alienate the three countries from each other."

Foundation of New Order.

Japan regards the pact as the foundation for creation of a new world order, Ito said, wherein Japan is to take the leading role for East Asia.

The anniversary observance was subdued, with only official functions scheduled and some pro-Fascist leaders silenced by government order.

In the year since the Axis alignment was announced, Japan has gone through another draining 12 months of war with China and has seen her world trade, with 6,000,000 tons of shipping on the seas, virtually vanish through freezing of credits and the spread of the war.

Ito stressed peace aims of the Axis. "The real meaning of the spirit of the three-power pact is clear," he said, "from the imperial rescript (a pronouncement by the Emperor) granted on the day of its conclusion and from the message of Konoye.

"In the rescript it is stated 'We fervently hope that cessation of disturbances and restoration of peace will be realized as swiftly as possible.'"

Not Like Military Alliances.

Ito said the pact was "not like military alliances of the past," which were made for advantages in the prosecution of war.

The English-language publication Japan News Week, replying to criticism by the newspaper Chugai Shogyo, prepared an editorial for publication tomorrow declaring that it is just for the United States to attempt to destroy Nazi-ism, while it is unjust for Germany to attempt to destroy democracy because Nazi-ism would impose its will on other nations, whereas democracy seeks only to allow each nation to choose its own form of government.

Several issues of Japan News Week have been suppressed because of its use of anti-totalitarian matter.

In Chungking the leading Chinese daily, Ta Kung Pao, declared that Japan was "anything but enthusiastic over her Axis ties."

The paper said the Japanese entered the alliance a year ago hoping to share in the spoils, but "all she has achieved has been diplomatic isolation."

Axis Diplomatic Fete Scheduled in Berlin

SEP 27 1941

BERLIN, Sept. 26 (AP).—Diplomats of Germany, Italy and Japan started today their observance of the first anniversary of the signing of the tripartite pact which lined Japan up with the Rome-Berlin Axis.

A reception for the diplomatic and press representatives of the three powers was scheduled for this afternoon and a spokesman said there would be an exchange of international telegrams.

Asked whether there was still a possibility other nations would join, he replied, "There always exists the possibility, but we cannot name a special nation or date."

Japan to Create Reserve Of Food for Emergency

Cabinet Decides to Increase Output, Cut Consumption

TOKIO, Sept. 26 (AP).—The Cabinet adopted an emergency foodstuffs program today aimed at increasing production and cutting down consumption. Coupled with a rise in rice imports, this would result in enlarging food reserves against the future.

The government hopes to increase planting of wheat, barley and potatoes by utilizing land now idle.

Measures to reduce consumption include mixing some starch from potatoes and sweet potatoes with flour, and the use of substitutes for rice and barley in making sake (rice wine) and soya sauce.

The Cabinet decision was disclosed in an address by Lieutenant General Teiichi Suzuki, chief of its planning board, who said that to insure a supply of foodstuffs for the principal cities it is necessary to collect and store suitable amounts of staple foods now. This year's rice crops have been affected by bad weather, Suzuki said, and therefore, there must be economy in consumption.

TOKIO MAY SEND AMERICANS HOME

SEP 27 1941

Plans to Remove Japanese Nationals From U. S.

Meanwhile, British nationals went aboard the evacuation ship Anhwei, which docked today at Yokohama. They will go to Singapore.

Doctors Perform Operation With Five-Ton Crane

By the Associated Press.

CAIRO, Egypt, Sept. 26.—R. A. F. doctors, forced to improvise in the absence of usual equipment in a western desert first-aid station, have performed four delicate spinal operations with the aid of a five-ton crane.

Readjustment of spinal bones without damaging the nerve systems and paralyzing the patients, a medical officer explained, required that the injured men be raised gently, with even pressure, to positions in which they were suspended by the feet.

Lacking a special table and pulleys, the R. A. F. doctors requisitioned the crane, normally used to lift engines from damaged aircraft.

"All four operations have been successful," said the medical officer, "but it was tricky business and I think the crane operator prefers his usual job."

Neutrality Revision Wins Favor Over Plan For Outright Repeal

McKellar Proposal Offered on His Own Initiative, He Says

WASHINGTON, Sept. 26

By the Associated Press.

Administrative lieutenants in Congress were reported today to have rejected a proposal for outright repeal of the Neutrality Act and to be ready to work instead for legislation making vital revisions.

The repeal proposal was introduced yesterday by Senator McKellar, Democrat, of Tennessee, a consistent administration supporter. Senator McKellar, who told the Senate that the neutrality law established a policy which "no great nation like ours can indulge in," said today he had acted entirely on his own responsibility. He added he did not know whether the administration would approve complete repeal of the neutrality law.

Revision Favored.

One well-advised leader told reporters that Senator McKellar's measure was not acceptable to the administration. He said the legislation recommended by President Roosevelt probably would follow the lines indicated Wednesday by Chairman Connally of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Senator Connally suggested that the Neutrality law be amended to permit the arming of American ships and to allow them to enter presently-forbidden belligerent ports and combat zones.

The Texas Senator declared that some provisions of the neutrality law—such as that granting the Government control over munitions exports—should be retained.

Senator Bridges, Republican, of New Hampshire and a supporter of administration foreign policy in most respects, told reporters that he favored either complete repeal or substantial modification of the law.

Can't Legislate Peace.

"I was one of the six Senators who voted against it in 1939," he recalled, "and I still don't believe you can legislate peace. In times of crisis the Nation should not be handicapped in dealing with foreign nations by laws of its own making."

Senator Bridges said, however, that legislation to modify the law doubtless would command more votes than a proposal for complete repeal.

It generally was assumed that President Roosevelt would discuss the entire question of neutrality repeal or revision with his congressional leaders next Monday and would weigh well their advice on what legislation to recommend.

On the basis of informal polls, the congressional group was expected to assure the Chief Executive that both houses would grant safe majorities to legislation lifting present restrictions against the arming of merchant ships and against travel in designated belligerent areas.

Bars Goods to 300 More Firms

Wallace's Defense Board Adds New Names to Axis Blacklist.

By Lloyd Lehrbas

Washington, Sept. 26 (A. P.).—The Economic Defense Board, headed by Vice-President Wallace, further centralized control of economic warfare and kindered defense measures today by taking over the issuance of all export licenses in the $4,000,000,000-a-year foreign trade of the United States.

In line with President Roosevelt's order of September 15 to "intensify the policy of preventing shipments to Axis-dominated countries," the economic defense board began absorption of the State Department's division of controls, which heretofore has colaborated with the export control administrator in regulating exports and issuance of export licenses.

Mr. Walace's super-defense board already has taken over the previously independent and army-directed export control administration with the objective of integrating its functions into the broader work of the board.

At the same time the economic defense organization issued a supplementary blacklist containing the names of 300 persons and firms in the other American republics to whom no more shipments of American goods will be permitted.

300 More Firms on List.

The 300 blacklisted firms have been added to the original proclaimed list of certain blocked nationals which contained more than 1,800 individuals and firms in Latin American countries. The names of sixty-five firms on the original list were deleted yesterday because satisfactory corrective action had been taken.

In announcing the original blacklist it was stated it was comprised of persons or firms "deemed to be acting for the benefit of Germany or Italy or nationals of those countries and persons to whom the exportation directly or indirectly, of various articles or materials is deemed detrimental to the interest of national defense."

On the basis of a continuing study of economic affairs in the other American requplics, the new list includes firms charged with acting as cloaks for effecting transactions with firms already on the proclaimed list.

Some Forced to Close.

Many of the firms already on the blacklist have suffered severely, it was said, even to the extent of being forced to close, for they were dependent on supplies from the United States.

On the latest list are Air France, the French trans-Atlantic airline, and Lati, the Italian overseas air service, which have provided one of the few remaining aerial links between South America and Axis countries. Curtailment of their fuel or other needed supplies as a result of the blacklist action might force a abandonment of their service.

The newspaper El Pamero in Buenos Aires, also named, has been charged with pro-Nazi activities in stirring up anti-American feeling in Argentina.

The Transocean News Agency, which ceased business in the United States when German consuls here were ousted, was named on the proclaimed list in Chile, Colombia, Uruguay, Mexico and Guatemala.

Examine Willkie's Record, Wheeler Urges

OAKLAND, Calif., Sept. 26 (AP).—Senator Burton K. Wheeler told an America First rally last night that the record should be examined concerning Wendell Willkie's business connections.

The isolationist Democrat from Montana said Mr. Willkie was a director of a New York shipbuilding company holding millions in defense contracts.

"I make no accusation about Willkie's patriotism, but the record should be examined."

Mr. Wheeler's speech was scheduled for broadcast over Station KSFO, but the station said the Senator himself canceled the arrangements because he departed from his prepared text.

The Senator was heckled and one man was ejected from the auditorium.

Sea Hides Fate of Captive Americans

Washington, D. C., Saturday, Sept. 27 (AP).—The German Foreign Office informed the State Department today that it had no information concerning the Nazi raider Tamesis or the fate of two Americans—Francis J. Vicovari and Ned Laughinghouse—wounded when the Egyptian steamship Zamzam was shelled and sunk by the raider in the South Atlantic, April 17.

Since more than five months have passed without any clue to the disappearance of the sea raider with the two wounded Americans, presumably in the ship's hospital, fears were expressed here that the Tamesis has sunk.

The British Navy has made no report of the sinking of the Tamesis or any other German vessel fitting its description. The State Department has made almost continuous efforts to secure information of the two Americans.

Vicovari, a New Yorker who was co-leader of 24 young Americans en route to drive ambulances for the British and Free French forces in the Near East, was wounded when the Tamesis fired eight or nine shells into the Zamzam when the Egyptian vessel was half way between Pernambuco, Brazil, and Capetown, South Africa.

The following day all passengers and crew except Vicovari and Laughinghouse were transferred to the German motorship Dresden and landed at St. Jean de Luz in German-occupied France after a 33-day voyage zigzagging through the British blockade. All later were released.

146 Americans Released.

A German report revealed that Laughinghouse, a tobacco man from Wilson, N. C., also had been wounded.

When the Zamzam hove to after being shelled, the 322 passengers and crewmen, including 148 Americans, were taken aboard the raider.

DEMANDS CLARK LET SENATE ACT ON FILM INQUIRY

McFarland Puts Challenge to Chairman; Assails Tobey on Racism.

DARRYL ZANUCK ON STAND

Says Anti-Nazi Pictures Follow Trend of Popular Thinking in Time of World Upheaval.

SEP 27 1941

Washington, Sept. 26 (A. P.).—Senator McFarland, Democrat, of Arizona, challenged Chairman Clark, Democrat, of Idaho, today to submit to the Senate the question of continuing an investigation by a Senate Interstate Commerce sub-committee of alleged war propaganda in the movies.

In a heated exchange, Mr. McFarland served notice that he intended to ask the House committee investigating un-American activities to look into the source of some charges laid before the Senate group, charges which Mr. McFarland declared could only have the result of arousing race prejudice.

The Arizona Senator said he would object to [illegible] further questioning of the type indulged in by Senator Tobey, Republican, of New Hampshire, yesterday when Mr. Tobey aired charges that the British Purchasing Mission here had put a ban on the employment of any person of Irish, German or Jewish descent.

Senator McFarland said he was assured by British embassy officials that there was no truth in the statement. Turning to Chairman Clark, Mr. McFarland shouted:

"I challenge this committee to go before the Senate of the United States and ask it if this investigation shall continue. I challenge you to see whether the Senate wants a committee, which is supposed to pass upon whether an investigation shall be made, to make an inquiry of this sort."

McFarland Is Aroused.

Senator McFarland said he felt certain that the committee could get no more than eighteen votes, far short of a majority, in support of a move to continue the present inquiry.

"Thank you, Mr. McFarland," Senator Clark replied. "I notice people never holler until they are pretty badly hurt."

"Talk about me being hurt," Mr. McFarland shouted back, his voice unsteady with emotion, "you are the one who is going to be hurt before this thing is over."

"The committee will engage in debate with you on the floor of the Senate and not before," Chairman Clark replied, as he called James Stahlman, publisher of the Nashville (Tenn.) Banner to the stand to testify about a letter Mr. Stahlman had written Will Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers-Distributors of America, in 1938 complaining about alleged attempts of the movies to "censor" newspaper comment.

SEP 27 1941

Statement by Willkie.

Wendell L. Willkie, counsel for the motion picture producers issued a statement charging that the committee investigation was "one of the first attempts in America to suggest to the American people what they should read or see."

Chairman Clark said the committee intended to summon Mr. Hays as a future witness.

The chairman read Mr. Stahlman's letter to Mr. Hayes to the committee. It said that the advertising agency of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer had ordered the withdrawal of advertising from the Banner because of criticism by columnist Jimmy Fidler of the picture "Marie Antoinette." A postscript added, however, that the advertising schedule had been ordered reinserted.

Howard Dietz, publicity and advertising director for M.-G.-M., said in a statement, meanwhile, that the discussion of withdrawing advertising from the Banner was "a tempest in a teapot, a mountain out of a molehill, or choose your own cliche." Mr. Dietz added that M.-G.-M. never had withdrawn advertising from the Banner and added that "the postscript to Mr. Stahlman's letter bears out what I say. His complaint died aborning before his letter was even mailed."

Another Letter Offered.

Mr. Stahlman furnished the committee with a copy of a letter written to him September 1, 1938, by Robert B. McNitt, editor of the McNaught Feature Syndicate in which Mr. McNitt asserted that it was "mighty serious business when the publicity director of a movie house presumes to tell a newspaper what it shall publish."

Mr. McNitt wrote that Mr. Dietz had telephoned him shortly after Mr. Fiddler's column appeared and had said that while M.-G.-M did not intend to sue for libel it "proposed to take whatever steps were necessary to stop Fiddler from talking as he did about M.-G.-M., its artists and its pictures.

"To condemn the motion picture industry for dealing with subjects as timely, as vital and as important as the current upheaval in the world is to subject the industry to an impossible censorship," he declared.

Mr. Zanuck said the "unfairness of the method being used" at the current hearing was demonstrated by a charge he said was made by Senators Nye, Republican, of North Dakota, and Clark, Democrat, of Missouri, that Twentieth Century-Fox had "sabotaged" a picture called "The Great Commandment" because the film preached peace and good will. Mr. Zanuck said the film had played in 1,087 theaters thus far and had returned to the company only $33,000 of the firm's $200,000 investment in it. The public, he said, stayed away from religious pictures.

He later was informed, Mr. McNitt said in the letter, that Mr. Dietz had taken steps to cancel M.-G.-M. advertising in newspapers which would not agree to revision of Fidler's column

Mr. Stahlman testified that the orders for cancellation of advertising in the Banner, later withdrawn, were contained in a telegram from a man identified as "Peters," connected with Donahue & Cole, New York advertising agency which represented M.-G.-M. Mr. Dietz previously had told the committee that the threats to withdraw advertising from the Banner were made by a local theater manager who was not authorized to take such steps.

Darryl Zanuck on Stand.

Darryl F. Zanuck, production chief for Twentieth Century-Fox, told the committee that the movie industry had been asked by the Government to make "training pictures for the United States Army," but denied that any Government representative has suggested the production of propaganda films. He said the movies were only following the trend of popular thinking in producing some films dealing with anti-Nazi themes.

McFarland Goes After Tobey.

Senator McFarland read into the record two letters from R. I. Campbell, acting British Ambassador, denying that Anthony Eden ever had said that Britain was not a democracy and denying that British authorities in this country had refused to employ persons of Irish, German or Jewish descent. Mr. Tobey previously had raised the two questions.

"The truth will bear the test," Mr. Tobey remarked.

An uproar of applause both for Tobey and McFarland then interspersed the following exchange:

McFarland: "With all respect and regard for the Senator, statements such as he has made only go to create race prejudice along the lines of the recent speech of Mr. Lindbergh. We in the United States are composed of all races, but above all we are Americans. I think the Senator is doing far more harm by creating race prejudice than by anything else he could do."

Tobey: "What I am doing is trying to keep race prejudice from being established. If it is true that people are discriminating against races in employment opportunity then they are the ones who are fostering race prejudice."

New York, Sept. 26—Kenneth Leslie, editor of the Protestant Digest, announced today that 700 Protestant churchmen had joined the publication in denouncing Charles A. Lindbergh's Des Moines speech as "the beginning of the last phase of a definite plan to destroy democratic government in this country."

"The past decade has written large what we Christians have long known, that anti-Semitism is anti-Christianity," the statement said. "Christians dare not repeat the mistake of German Christians who failed to speak forth their condemnation early."

Sum Left To 2 In Latvia Will Buy Defense Bonds

Court Orders $1,500 Made Available For Purchase Of Bombs "To Be Delivered" By R. A. F.

Houston, Texas, Sept. 26 (AP)—Because war in Europe bars turning over $1,500 from the estate of Raynolt Grundy to his two sisters in German-controlled Latvia, the money will be invested in national defense bonds by court order.

The order, filed today, stated that the money thus "may be used in purchase of food for Britain or bombs for Germany, to be delivered via the air route on any object that the R. A. F. may choose."

Walter Chalmers, deputy county clerk, said that when world conditions permit the bonds will be delivered to the sisters. Grundy, a seaman, died aboard ship in New York harbor November 1, 1940.

2-GERMANS MEET AGAIN—U. S. AGENTS

Playmates Of 30 Years Ago Are Government Witnesses At Spy Trial

One Testifies Man Accused Sent Photos Of Defense Instruments To Nazis

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 26—More than thirty years ago William G. Sebold and Walter Nipken played together on the streets of Mulheim an der Ruhr, Germany.

Today they met again for the first time in more than twenty years in Brooklyn Federal Court. Each had been active in American counter-espionage activities and each was credited by the Government with uncovering a spy ring

SEP 27 1941

Government Witnesses

They were star Government witnesses at the trial of sixteen men charged with espionage conspiracy. An additional seventeen defendants have pleaded guilty.

Nipken, like Sebold, joined the alleged spy ring under F. B. I. instructions, fed it information of doubtful value and, finally, cracked it.

Tells Of Second Ring

Sebold, principal witness for three weeks, had told of his assignment by the German Gestapo; his building of a "spy" radio station with F. B. I. help, his hoarding of Gestapo funds while alleged spies here grumbled against their German masters and of information gathered on America's modern war machines for transmission to Germany.

Today Nipken took the stand and told of an alleged second ring. He testified that, as a highly responsible tool engineer in the airplane parts factory of Air Associates, Inc., Bendix N. J., he was addressed last December 28 by a machinist, Karl Reuper, now a defendant.

Approached For Plans

"Reuper came to my home," Nipken testified. "He approached me for plans, drawings and information on aircraft and defense, which he said he would send to Germany.

"He promised me that I would be very well paid after returning to Germany—that large estates would be set aside for us—and at the same time any expenses would be paid by another party."

Nipken said he stalled—and consulted the F. B. I. the next day. Within a week, he said, he told Reuper to count him in.

Speaks Of Danger

"Reuper told me that he had been especially trained in Germany for spy work in the United States and that his specific job was to secure defense secrets and create discontent and bad feeling in the whole defense industry," Nipken continued.

"I told him about the danger involved in his work, and he told me I didn't have to worry. He said he was especially trained for this and nobody could get anything out of him, even if he was killed."

Photos Taken

Nipken said that on Reuper's instructions he took microphotographs of drawings, blueprints and defense instruments—he mentored specifically hydraulic pumps, aircraft de-icing apparatus, machine-gun sights, anti-aircraft guns and other defense equipment—and turned them over to Reuper, who, he said, sent the stamp-size pictures to Germany via China.

"Then, later," related Nipken, "Reuper told me that they had received the films in Germany and found them poor. They couldn't make anything out of the pictures we sent. They told me to get better photographing equipment."

Windsors' Washington Reception Tumultuous

Washington, Sept. 26 (AP)—The vacation-bound Duke and Duchess of Windsor waved farewell to the Capital this afternoon from the rear platform of a private railroad car which will carry them on the next lap of their trip to the Duke's ranch at Calgary, Alberta.

Their departure ended a day and a half of visits, sightseeing and social engagements in the course of which thousands of Washingtonians gave them a tumultuous reception.

Officials At Station

At the station to see them off, besides several thousands of the public, were the Duchess' aunt, Mrs. Buchanan Merryman; a few friends, officials of the British Embassy and of the State Department.

The Duke, who is Governor of the Bahamas, made his last calls at the War Department, where he conferred with Henry L. Stimson, Secretary of War, and at the Navy Department, where he talked with Acting Secretary James V. Forrestal.

Clerks Line Curbs

Government clerks lined curbs and the corridors of both buildings where he stopped. A smaller group of sightseers applauded him when he made an unscheduled stop at the Lincoln Memorial.

The Duke, a diminutive figure in the shadow of the mighty, seated figure of Lincoln, stood silently with his hands clasped behind his back and read the Gettysburg address imprinted on one wall of the memorial.

"Marvelous, isn't it?" he murmured. "I had read it, but really——"

Asks Of Assassination

Recalling that Lincoln had been shot in a theater, the Duke questioned members of his party about what had happened to the assassin and asked whether the motive had been "personal or political."

The Duchess did not leave the embassy during the morning, and after the Duke had rejoined her they posed for newsreel cameras in the embassy garden, the Duke expressing appreciation for a good time in America and for the aid the United States has sent to Britain.

Receive Friends

Later, they received several friends, including Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence W. Robert, Jr., of Atlanta, and Lady Mountbatten, wife of the commander of the British aircraft carrier Illustrious, and her daughter.

For their Western trip the Duchess donned a suit of blue faille, white blouse, blue and white hat, blue alligator leather shoes and white gloves. Her large earrings did not match, one being of gold, while the other was a multi-jeweled cluster.

First Visit to Baltimore

By The Associated Press.

BALTIMORE, Sept. 26—When the train bearing the Duke and Duchess on their way to Canada paused here for a brief stopover, the Duchess pointed out familiar buildings near the Pennsylvania Railroad station.

Curiosity seekers were barred from the train platform as the Duchess paid her first visit since her marriage to the city in which she was reared. A crowd of several hundred persons, railroad employes and passengers gathered across the tracks for a glimpse of the couple as they appeared on the observation platform of their car.

Two More Destroyers Launched At Kearny

One Is Sponsored By Mrs. Nannie Hambleton Martin, Of Easton, Md.

Kearny, N. J., Sept. 26 (AP)—Two new additions to the United States' war fleet, the destroyers Hambleton and Rodman, slid down the ways of the Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company yards today into the Hackensack river.

The Hambleton left the ways at 1.19 P. M. after christening by Mrs. Nannie Hambleton Martin, of Easton, Md., grandniece of the late Purser Samuel Hambleton, U. S. N., after whom the vessel was named. The Rodman, sponsored by Mrs. Albert K. Stebbins, Jr., wife of Major Stebbins, of the United States Army, slid into the water at 1.29.

The two $5,000,000 craft will be commissioned within sixty days.

Launching Of 14 Ships Scheduled For Today

Washington, Sept. 26 (AP)—Spokesmen for the army, navy and the Maritime Commission in speeches tonight hailed this country's progress in providing merchant ships for the struggle against the Axis.

On the eve of "Liberty Fleet Day," when fourteen merchant vessels will slide down ways in the greatest mass launching since the first World War, they told of what had been done toward providing tonnage and what still had to be done.

"The commission," said Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, U. S. N., retired, chairman of the Maritime Commission, "is proud of the accomplishment made by the nation's ship workers during the early phase of the all-out effort which the President has asked every American to make.

"But neither the ship workers nor the commission are content. We all realize that more and still more merchant ships must be built to carry cargoes so vitally essential to the ultimate defeat of those aggressors who are threatening the liberty of all the peoples of the world."

Rear Admiral Samuel M. Robinson, of the navy's bureau of ships, called the launching of fourteen vessels in one day "a gesture which should definitely silence those critics in our midst who would have us believe that neglect of our defenses during the long years since 1919 placed us so far behind in the international race that it was useless for us to attempt to catch up."

Maj. Gen. Edmund B. Gregory, the army's quartermaster general, described America's outlying bases as the "far-flung sentinels of democracy."

"If they are to be truly effective, a chain of ships must be welded to link them to the mainland," he said.

The speeches were broadcast.

The present program of the Maritime Commission, Admiral Land said, contemplates the completion of approximately 1,200 merchant ships between now and the end of 1943—two ships a day during the next two years.

Pleading for utmost speed, the chairman declared:

"Every hour a ship is out of service, either delayed on the ways in the shipyard or idle in port, while vitally essential cargoes are undelivered, is a telling blow struck against the cause which America champions. Too many such hours—too many such blows—and the cause is lost."

Ceremonies incident to the launchings will be conducted tomorrow in shipyards on the Atlantic, Pacific and Gulf coasts. A message from President Roosevelt will be broadcast at each launching.

PRIORITIES SYSTEM REVISION IS SLATED

Defense Industries To Get Allocations Of Goods Instead Of Ratings

Nelson Outlines Plan In Calling For Passage Of Price Control Bill

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 26—A forthcoming major revision of the priorities system, under which defense industries will get specific allocations of raw materials instead of so-called preference ratings, was outlined to the House Banking Committee today by Donald M. Nelson.

The executive director of the newly created Supply Priorities and Allocations Board, testifying in behalf of speedy enactment of the Administration's price control bill, said the new system still was under study but asserted he thought its adoption unavoidable.

Notes Present Difficulty

Nelson told newsmen he was not quite sure exactly how the plan could be carried out, but said he intended to use the agricultural implements industry as "a guinea pig" on which to test his idea.

Under the existing priorities system, he explained to the committee, firms are given certain ratings, such as 1-A, in the order of their importance to the defense program and the civilian population.

"But a manufacturer can't operate unless he knows how much material he's going to get and when he'll be able to get it," the former vice-president of Sears-Roebuck, Inc. said, "He can't get that information from a mere preference rating, because many other firms in the same business may have the same rating."

Urges Control Bill

Where manufacturers find they can't get materials under their priority ratings, he went on, they come in and ask for a higher rating.

"When you get them all up to A-A ratings," he added, "you're right back where you started."

At the opening of his remarks, Nelson said that as a businessman he was fundamentally opposed to price fixing but declared that in the current emergency, he believed the Administration's price control bill should be enacted at once to prevent "an inflationary period that will completely destroy us."

SEP 27 1941

He told the House committee that he knew of no other method of solving some of the problems created by the defense program.

Calls For Quick Action

For that reason, he said, the pending price control measure should be enacted "as rapidly as possible."

"If we are properly to handle a defense program of the size of ours and avoid an inflationary period that will completely destroy us," he said, "we must have some form of price control.

Prior to the hearing, Nelson said that he thought it was too late for adoption of the "universal price ceiling" proposed by Bernard M. Baruch, World War head of the War Industries Board.

"If we could have put such a plan into operation say about March 1, before the sharp increase started, I would have been in favor of it," Nelson said. "But I don't think the public would have stood for it then, and you have to be guided by what is practically possible."

Opposes Controlling Wages

In response to questions, Nelson said he was opposed to controlling wages by legislation because "you can't have concentration camps in this country for violators."

He said he was opposed to Secretary Morgenthau's proposal for one hundred per cent. taxation of corporations' profits in excess of six per cent., explaining he thought that the profit system had to have an incentive to make it work.

As to farm prices, Nelson said he thought there should be a ceiling over them, but added he did not know just where it should be.

On Small Businesses

Chairman Steagall (Dem., Ala.) asked Nelson about complaints that some small factories had not received much defense business.

"It would be a national disaster if in building the defense program we destroy small business," Nelson said. "Small business has been hurt more than it should have been.

"There has not been enough consideration of the small and medium-sized manufacturers in placing contracts. I am sure that the problem is going to be solved. It must be solved."

PLAN FOR CEILING ON PROFITS SCORED

Morgenthau Proposal For Six Per Cent. Limit Called "Preposterous" By Disney

Would Kill Incentive In Small Business, House Member Declares

SEP 27 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 26—The proposal by Henry Morgenthau, Jr., Secretary of the Treasury, for one hundred per cent. taxation of all corporation profits above six per cent. was described today by a member of the House Ways and Means Committee as "too preposterous for Congress to swallow."

Representative Disney (Dem., Okla.) added that the suggestion would be "a fine way to kill all incentive in small businessmen."

"I'm afraid Mr. Morgenthau is shooting the moon," he said. "The proposal to assess one hundred per cent. of excess profits over six per cent. has no parallel even in England.

Case In England

"There, as I understand it, there is one hundred per cent. taxation of excess profits above the average earning of the corporation, but the company is entitled to a twenty per cent. rebate of these taxes for bad years after the war."

Disney said England tried "such a notion" as Morgenthau's plan, but "a the demand of labor, which needed employment" by business, had to change."

Meanwhile, Donald Nelson, executive director of the new Supply Priorities and Allocations Board, announced he was opposed to Morgenthau's proposal because he, too, believed it would destroy business incentive, which, he said, was essential to the preservation of this country's free enterprise system.

KNUDSEN UNSATISFIED

Said to Have So Reported on Defense Progress.

Washington, Sept. 26 (A. P.).—William S. Knudson, director of the Office of Production Management, was reported to have told congressmen today that he was not satisfied with the progress of the defense program "and probably never will be."

After Mr. Knudsen testified before a House appropriations subcommittee considering the $5,985,000,000 lend-lease appropriation, Chairman Cannon, Democrat, of Missouri, declined to say that Mr. Knudsen had made a "favorable report," then agreed with Representative Taber, Republican, of New York who said:

"I think we can say that Knudsen said that he was not satisfied with the progress of the program and probably never will be."

ONLY ABLE TO FIND 5,192 TANK CARS

SEP 27 1941

Oil Industry Body Reports On Hunt For 20,000 Declared Idle By Pelley

Ickes, In Announcing Survey, Says Difficulties Of Shipment Growing

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 26—A committee from the oil industry reported today that it had been able to locate only 5,192 of the 20,000 idle tank cars which J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, told a Senate committee were available for moving gasoline and oil to the East Coast.

The oil committee's report was made public by Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, the defense petroleum coordinator, who said in an accompanying statement that "repeated requests" from his office for information as to the location of the 20,000 cars had produced "no satisfactory information."

He declared, too, that oil companies had encountered "increasing difficulty" in obtaining cars.

Asks For Cross Check

In submitting the report of the East Coast transportation committee of the oil industry to Ickes, W. Alton Jones, chairman, recommended that the petroleum coordinator's office undertake "a reconciliation of actual inventory of cars available as of September 7 with the statements heretofore made by Mr. John J. Pelley before the Senate committee."

This recommendation was made, Jones said, "in order that the public misunderstanding on this question be cleared as promptly and completely as possible."

After the report was made public, Pelley issued this statement:

"I see no point in a controversy about just how many surplus tank cars are available.

"The figures I gave the Senate committee were furnished by the people who own the tank cars.

Shipments At Present

"We are now moving to the Atlantic seaboard 75,000 barrels of oil her day, although the general rate reductions have been in effect only ten days. Railroads and oil companies are completing arrangements for a further substantial movement to the Eastern seaboard.

"So far as I know, the oil companies who are now moving and propose to move the oil are having no difficulty in getting tank cars."

Pelley's testimony figured importantly in the conclusion of the Senate committee that there was no real prospect of a shortage of gasoline or oil on the Eastern seaboard, provided use was made of available transportation facilities.

MILLION WPA WORKERS WILL GET PAY BOOST

Increase Proposed To Keep In Line With Higher Living Costs

30,24-12069

30,24——12069

Commissioner Expects Additional Idle Due To Priorities

SEP 27 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 26—Pay raises were projected today for more than 1,000,000 WPA workers and, at the same time, Howard O. Hunter, Works Projects Commissioner, said rolls of that agency would be increased in the winter to care for thousands of persons made jobless by operation of defense priorities.

Hunter did not announce definitely how much the pay increases would be, but said ten per cent. would be "a good guess." He predicted some wage action within thirty days.

"The idea," Hunter said, "is to bring earnings nearer into line with the increased cost of living." He said the present WPA wage schedules had been in effect for two years, and in that time industrial wages had increased thirty-two per cent. and food prices fifteen per cent.

Monthly Wage Schedule

The WPA monthly wage schedule now runs from $31.20 to $81.90 in the South, $39 to $94.70 in Northern States, and $44.20 to $94.90 in the West.

Hunter pointed to predictions by some sources that 1,000,000 to 3,000,000 persons would lose their jobs this winter as defense priorities close down large segments of non-defense industries.

He told his press conference, "I think we will have to ask Congress for more money."

To Meet Situation

WPA rolls must be increased to meet the situation, he said, regardless of stipulations in the last WPA appropriation that the rolls should be kept at an average of approximately 1,000,000 persons during the fiscal year. WPA was cut from $1,375,000,000 last year to $875,000,000 this year.

"It is too important to total defense of the country," the commissioner declared, "to let large numbers of people be thrown out of work and then do nothing about it."

Hunter reported present WPA employment at 1,024,629, the lowest on record. He said 1,200,000 persons now were eligible for WPA, if jobs were available. He estimated August unemployment throughout the nation at 5,200,000.

Is It or Is It Not Furniture?

Federal Reserve Board Is Kept on Jump Interpreting Installment Credit Law.

Washington, Sept. 26 (A. P.).—A bridge lamp is furniture, but a clothes hamper is not.

This isn't double talk; it is just some of the twenty-four-hour-a day advice that's pouring out of the Federal Reserve Board in interpreting the installment credit regulations which began on the first of this month.

While doubting that confusion over the restrictions were any more than could be expected, one sleepy-eyed official said that there were still a lot of questions to be answered after he and his staff had worked nights for four weeks.

The rules set minimum down payments up to one-third of an article's cost and fixed a maximum time of eighteen months for paying the balance on twenty-four different types of merchandise.

SEP 27 1941

Furniture Puzzles.

Furniture seems to be one of the favorite question marks. The board started out by excluding floor coverings and draperies from the definition of "furniture."

Since then the experts have ruled, on separate occasions, that lamps, mirrors, unpainted furniture, stools, kitchen and breakfast room sets, porch tables, chairs, swings and kitchen cabinets are "furniture."

But Chinaware, cooking utensils, ordinary electric fans, wall clocks, and non-electric carpet sweepers are not furniture.

Then, there's the problem of one of these new-fangled gadgets that is part radio and part bed or other furniture. The required down payment on radios is 20 per cent, but only 10 per cent on furniture. The board solved this one saying that whichever part of the gadget cost most determined the classification. Thus a $100 bed with a built-in $15 radio is still a bed.

The procedure is still too new, officials said, for all the kinks to be straightened out.

But for the customer, it's simple. All he has to do is go to his favorite store and buy on whatever terms the store is willing to offer. In most cases, officials said, these terms are no different from what they have been. Cash ro single-payment charge account transactions are not regulated at all. The rules cover only instalment sales.

Tougher Nut for Stores.

The nut is a little tougher for the store to crack. But storeowners are supposed to be getting a regular diet of advice from local commercial organizations and the Federal Reserve banks.

Except in the case of furniture, the restricted items are pretty well identified. Such things as automobiles, vacuum cleaners, refrigerators and pianos are mentioned by name. In each case, a minimum down payment is given. At present, the time limit on payments is eighteen months for all these items.

Another question has arisen concerning articles placed in customers' homes for, say, ninety days trial. Does the eighteen-month payment limit start at once or after the trial? The answer is that, as long as the customer pays nothing or promises nothing and has the right to return the goods, the trial time don't count.

P. S. The Federal Reserve Board reserves the right to change the rules at any time, but must give public notice of the alterations.

Heaviest Submarine In World, the Surcouf, Is at Portsmouth

Free French Vessel Undergoes Repairs Under Lease-Lend Act

WASHINGTON—Sep 26

By the Associated Press.

The heaviest known submarine in the world, the 4,300-ton Surcouf of the Free French forces, was disclosed officially today to be at Portsmouth, N. H.

SEP 27 1941

The Navy announced that the Surcouf, which was one of a number of French submarines whose crews decided to put in with the British after the fall of France, was in the Portsmouth harbor for repairs under the Lease-Lend Act.

Also, the British submarine Parthian was reported at Portsmouth and the British destroyer Burnham, the former United States destroyer Aulick, at Boston, both for repairs.

The Surcouf is so big that it carries a small airplane along with eight guns, 10 torpedo tubes and a crew of 150. It has a cruising radius estimated at 12,000 miles. The ordinary submarine is about half the size of the Surcouf.

While the heaviest, the Surcouf is not technically the largest submarine. It is exceeded slightly in length and beam by the new United States submarines Narwhal and Nautilus

The announcement brought to 27 the total of British and Free French craft disclosed to be undergoing, or to have undergone, repairs in the United States. It was released in line with the Navy's policy announced September 19 for sanctioning mention of the combatant craft in United States port provided no mention is made of time of arrival or departure, length of stay, recent movements of the ship, or any other information helpful to hostile operations.

Crimea Holds Key To Caucasus

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

THE MOST IMPORTANT news from the Russo-German war front is the Moscow claim that the Bolshevists have thrown back a heavy Nazi attack on the strategic Crimean peninsula inflicting severe losses on the enemy.

This assault by the Nazis represents an attempt to gain control of the Black Sea for an attack on the Lower Caucasus in conjunction with the German drive through the Ukraine toward the northern gateway to the Caucasus. The loss of the Crimea, on which lies the chief Soviet naval base of Sebastopol, would represent a major disaster for the Reds.

DeWitt Mackenzie

Beyond this, while literally millions of tired, grimy soldiers continue the bloody thousand-mile battle at close grips, the Russian theater hasn't produced a report from either side which on the face of it would greatly alter the position during the last 24 hours.

MAYBE THERE has been an invisible change. Perhaps a hard-pressed line somewhere has grown brittle and will snap before long, letting all hell roll through the gap. War is like that.

We do not know that the Germans have unleashed more power against the besieged city of Leningrad, but the soldiers and civilians who side by side are defending this ancient and proud metropolis still hold their ground. Likewise in the Ukraine the Nazis continue to fling themselves against hard-bitten Marshal Budyenny's army in their effort to smash through into the Caucausus.

Hitler's headquarters claim the Nazis are continuing to destroy the four Red Armies which the German high command announced several days ago had been surrounded east of Kiev, capital of the Ukraine. The number of prisoners is said to have swelled to the colossal total of 492,000.

HOWEVER, reports from Berlin say that even the Nazi press was in the doldrums through lack of news. Up until the announcement from the Fuehrer's headquarters the newspapers hadn't even been able to tell a waiting public what had happened to those four armies which were being "annihilated."

By the way, the constant German use of that word "annihilated" finally drove me to apepal to an American newspaper colleague in Berlin to explain just what was meant. Annihilation to me has signified pretty much the end of all things, and it began to seem from the number of Russian troops "annihilated" in the Nazi announcements that there couldn't be any Bolshevist soldiers left.

The answer is that by annihilation—vernichtung—is meant complete elimination as a military force either by death or capture. That is, if any army is eliminated, there is nothing left which could be withdrawn and reorganized for further resistance. Well, it must be some solace to be alive though captured.

MOSCOW DESCRIBES the German claim of the wholesale capture of Reds in the Kiev sector as "a fresh Hitlerite fake." Time will tell which side is right.

Speaking of fakes, that is a curious tale which comes out of Berlin today that the reason German Jews are being compelled to wear a yellow Star of David on their left breasts is because all German nationals in the United States are forced to wear the swastika. Nazi officials say the government knows nothing about the report.

Stories like that frequently crop up in war. Sometimes they are deliberately manufactured for purposes of propaganda, and then again they are just the result of a mysterious spontaneous combustion. Be it said, too, that this type of fiction isn't copyrighted by any one nation.

Helsinki, Finland, Sept. 26-(AP)-Leading Finnish newspapers were unanimous today in deploring the British note to Finland warning that further hostilities against Russia might bring active British enmity.

The Labor organ, Sosialidemokraatti asserted that because the Finns cannot place "the slightest measure of trust in the treacherous Soviet neighbor who has consistently broken all her promises" Finland was obliged, despite a desire for peace, to remove the threat from the east.

Asserting the course recommended by Great Britain would mean national suicide, the Uusi Suomi maintained that Finland must wage the war until the national security and lasting peace had been established.

Despite the British alliance with the Finns' foe, Finland cannot regard England as an enemy, the newspspaper said, but added "we cannot fight our war according to the wishes of England, least of all when these wishes serve the interests of our centuries-old, hereditary enemy. We have made our decision with a clear conscience, realizing our cause is just. This realization cannot be shaken by threats."

(NY) MILWAUKEE, SEPT 26-(AP)-JOHN CUDAHY, FORMER AMBASSADOR TO BELGIUM, ASSERTED TONIGHT THAT THE U.S. STATE DEPARTMENT HAD DEEMED IT "INADVISABLE" TO ACCEPT A REPORT FROM HIM ON HIS OBSERVATIONS DURING A RECENT TRIP TO GERMANY WHICH INCLUDED AN INTERVIEW WITH ADOLF HITLER.

SEP 27 1941

"I HAD HARDLY LANDED IN NEW YORK LAST JUNE," HE SAID IN AN ADDRESS OVER THE CBS NETWORK, "WHEN I CALLED THE STATE DEPARTMENT, BUT THE ACTING SECRETARY, SUMNER WELLES, GAVE ME TO UNDERSTAND THAT HE THOUGHT IT INADVISABLE TO SEE ME BECAUSE OF PRESS SPECULATION AND SO I HAVE NEVER REPORTED ON WHAT I LEARNED IN GERMANY."

IN AN INTERVIEW WITH HITLER PUBLISHED IN THIS COUNTRY, CUDAHY QUOTED THE GERMAN FUEHRER AS SAYING AN INVASION OF THE AMERICAS WAS A MILITARY IMPOSSIBILITY.

REFERRING TO THE WORLD WAR, THE FORMER AMBASSADOR SAID THAT A LONG STUDY OF IT BY THE STATE DEPARTMENT IN AN EFFORT TO DETERMINE WHAT PROMPTED AMERICA'S ENTRY INTO IT RESULTED IN CONGRESSIONAL ENACTMENT OF THE NEUTRALITY LAW.

"WE WERE RESOLVED," HE SAID IN AN ADDRESS OVER THE CBS NATIONWIDE NETWORK "TO AVOID INCIDENTS AND PITFALLS THAT MADE A RECORD AND EMBROILED US ALMOST, IT SEEMED, UNWITTINGLY IN THAT WAR 24 YEARS AGO. AND THAT IS WHY CONGRESS ENACTED A NEUTRALITY LAW.

"YOU HEARD ABOUT FREEDOM OF THE SEAS THEN BUT EVERY SENSIBLE PRUDENT MAN RECOGNIZED THAT IF PEOPLE INSISTED UPON APPROACHING THE RAGING FIRES OF EUROPE THAT SOMEONE WOULD GET BURNT AND THAT 130,000,000 FELLOW AMERICANS WOULD GET BURNT TOO. AND SO IN THE BELIEF OF THE GREATER GOOD FOR THE GREATER NUMBER AND IN THE CAUSE OF PEACE, AMERICAN SHIPS AND AMERICAN CITIZENS WERE BY LAW KEPT AWAY FROM THE WARRING ZONE."

SEP 27 1941

ASKING WHAT HAD SO CHANGED THE PUBLIC JUDGMENT "THAT EVEN A VOICEFUL MINORITY CAN THINK OF WAR NOW," HE CONTINUED;

"IS IT BECAUSE WE WERE WRONG, OR IS IT BECAUSE OF FEAR? FEAR THAT THIS COUNTRY MAY GO DOWN AS I SAW NEUTRAL, PEACE-LOVING BELGIUM GO DOWN BEFORE THE BRUTAL HITLER WAR MACHINE."

CUDAHY SAID THAT WHEN HE INTERVIEWED HITLER AT BERCHTESGADEN RECENTLY, THE NAZI LEADER SAID THE INVASION OF THE AMERICAS WAS A MILITARY IMPOSSIBILITY."

"WE CANNOT ANNIHILATE HITLER BY IGNORING HIM," CUDAHY CONTINUED, "OR BY DECIDING UPON HIS ANNIHILATION. LET US FACE THE FACTS. IF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE WEIGH THE EVIDENCE AND IF WE ENTER THIS WAR IN EUROPE, LET US DO SO IN THE AMERICAN WAY, BY A DECLARATION OF CONGRESS. AND LET US BEFORE DOING SO ATTEMPT AT LEAST TO ESTIMATE THE COST.

"ABLE MILITARY MEN HAVE TOLD ME THAT AN AMERICAN EXPEDITIONARY FORCE OF AT LEAST 8,000,000 MEN WILL BE REQUIRED TO INVADE GERMAN DOMINATED EUROPE AND SENATOR PEPPER X X X IS REPORTED TO HAVE SAID THAT 'IN LESS THAN TWO YEARS TIME WE WILL BE SPENDING $100,000,000,000 A YEAR AND THE TOTAL COST TO AMERICA WILL NOT BE A CENT LESS THAN $300,000,000,000.'"

THE FORMER AMBASSADOR, WHO ADVOCATED PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S REELECTION, DECLARED THAT THE UNITED STATES WAS NOT AT WAR AS A RESULT OF THE CHIEF EXECUTIVE'S "SHOOT ON SIGHT" ORDER TO THE NAVY, "FOR WE HAVE FAITH THAT OURS IS A GOVERNMENT OF LAWS, NOT A GOVERNMENT OF MEN."

WASHINGTON, SEPT 26-(AP)-MRS. BENNETT CHAMP CLARK, CHAIRMAN OF THE LOCAL CHAPTER OF THE AMERICAN FIRST COMMITTEE, TODAY ACCUSED THE JUSTICE DEPARTMENT OF AN EFFORT TO SMEAR THE COMMITTEE.

SHE REFERRED TO THE DEPARTMENT'S ACTION IN HAULING AWAY SACKS OF MATERIAL FROM THE COMMITTEE OFFICES IN CONNECTION WITH A CURRENT GRAND JURY INQUIRY TO DETERMINE WHETHER AN ACT REQUIRING FOREIGN AGENTS TO REGISTER HAS BEEN VIOLATED.

SEP 27 1941

THE MATERIAL SEIZED, SAID MRS. CLARK, WIFE OF THE SENATOR FROM MISSOURI, WAS "JUST FRANKED SPEECHES BY VARIOUS SENATORS." SHE SAID "THE ROTTEN-EGG TECHNIQUE HAS FINALLY REACHED WASHINGTON."

WENDELL BERGE, ASSISTANT ATTORNEY GENERAL, SAID THE DEPARTMENT WAS NOT INVESTIGATING ANY GROUP BECAUSE IT OPPOSES ADMINISTRATION POLICIES. HE SAID THE SUBPOENA CARRIERS MERELY GATHERED UP MATERIAL WHICH HAD BEEN TRANSFERRED TO THE AMERICA FIRST COMMITTEE OFFICES FROM THE APARTMENT OF PRESCOTT DENNETT, SECRETARY OF THE MAKE-EUROPE-PAY-WAR-DEBTS COMMITTEE.

DENNETT HAS BEEN A WITNESS BEFORE THE GRAND JURY FOR SEVERAL DAYS.

"THE (JUSTICE) DEPAGTMENT LEARNED THAT CERTAIN MATERIALS HAD BEEN TRANSFERRED FROM MR. DENNETT'S WASHINGTON APARTMENT TO THE AMERICA FIRST COMMITTEE WITHIN AN HOUR AFTER MR. DENNETT HAD BEEN SERVED WITH A SUBPOENA," BERGE SAID.

MRS. CLARK SAID SHE DID NOT KNOW WHO DELIVERED THE SPEECHES TO HER OFFICE AND ASSERTED SHE DID NOT KNOW DENNETT.

THE WASHINGTON STAR QUOTED REP. HAMILTON FISH (R-NY) AS SAYING THAT DENNETT HAD CALLED FISH'S OFFICE AND SAID HE HAD 500 OLD SPEECHES BY THE REPRESENTATIVE. ONE OF FISH'S SECRETARIES, THE CONGRESSMAN RELATED, DECIDED TO OBTAIN THE SPEECHES FOR USE BY FISH'S OFFICE, AND ACCORDINGLY SENT A HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES TRUCK AFTER THEM.

SEP 27 1941

THE TRUCK, FISH CONTINUED, CAME BACK LOADED WITH SACKS ADDRESSED TO THE AMERICA FIRST COMMITTEE, SO THE SECRETARY REJECTED THEM, TELLING THE DRIVER TO TAKE THEM TO THE COMMITTEE.

NEW YORK, SEPT 26-(AP)-SUPREME COURT JUSTICE CARROLL G. WALTER RULED TODAY THAT BANKS OR TRUST COMPANIES NEED NOT RECOGNIZE CLAIMS OF NAZI HEADS OF OCCUPIED NATIONS FOR DEPOSITS MADE IN NEW YORK CITY BY FIRMS WHICH TRANSFERRED HOLDINGS FROM THE OCCUPIED COUNTRIES.

JUSTICE WALTER MADE THE RULING IN DENYING A MOTION BY THE CHASE NATIONAL BANK, THE CENTRAL HANOVER BANK AND TRUST COMPANY AND THE COMMERCIAL BANK AND TRUST COMPANY AND THE COMMERCIAL BANK AND TRUST COMPANY TO ENJOIN FOR A YEAR PROCEEDINGS IN A SUIT BROUGHT BY TWO HEADS OF THE ROYAL LEATHER COMPANY OF THE NETHERLANDS.

THE TWO, DR. HANS I.L.ADLER AND MAX WEIL, THE FIRM'S DIRECTORS AND MANAGERS, SEEK TO WITHDRAW $450,000 DEPOSITED WITH THE BANKS BEFORE THE LOW COUNTRIES WERE INVADED.

WHEN THEY CAME TO AMERICA LAST SPRING AFTER TRANSFERRING THE FIRM'S SEAT TO CURACOA, DUTCH WEST INDIES, THEY IMMEDIATELY CLAIMED THE FUNDS WHICH WERE SENT HERE FROM 1937 TO 1939. THE SEAT TRANSFER TOOK PLACE BEFORE THE NETHERLANDS OCCUPATION.

THEY OBTAINED A PERMIT TO TRANSFER THE MONEY TO THE COLONIAL TRUST COMPANY, BUT THE BANKS DECLARED THEY COULD NOT TURN IT OVER BECAUSE THEY RECEIVED LETTERS LAST YEAR FROM THE FIRM AT OISTERWIJK, HOLLAND, SAYING THE POWERS OF THE TWO HAD BEEN REVOKED BY STOCKHOLDERS.

FURTHERMORE, THE BANKS WERE NOTIFIED BY DR.HUBERT HUPPERTZ, REICH COMMISSIONER OF THE NETHERLANDS, THAT THE NAZIS APPOINTED HIM "FIDUCIARY" FOR THE LEATHER COMPANY AND HE WAS THEREFORE IN CHARGE OF ITS ASSETS.

THE BANKS CLAIM IT IS NOT CLEAR WHO HAS AUTHORITY OVER THE MONEY.

NAZIS CALL UKRAINE VICTORY TURNING POINT IN WHOLE WAR

BERLIN CLAIMS UKRAINE GAINS DOOM RUSSIA

SEP 28 1941

Declares Victory East Of Kiev Marks Turning Point In War

Says U. S. And British Aid Will Not Arrive Until Too Late

BY ALVIN STEINKOPF

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Sept. 27—Russia has been all but knocked out and the turning point of the whole war has arrived, authorized German sources declared tonight, as the result of a German victory east of Kiev announced by the high command as a triumph "unparalleled in history."

In what Germans called the most destructive battle ever fought, a triumphant war bulletin from Adolf Hitler's headquarters said that Soviet defenses of the Dnieper river had been "uprooted" by the tremendous encirclement operation now brought to a successful conclusion; that five Russian armies were wiped out, 665,000 prisoners taken and that a vast array of munitions was seized or destroyed.

Moscow Drive Hinted

With Hitler's armies hammering at the gates of Leningrad, pushing ever eastward through the Ukraine and reported already at the headwaters of the Volga river, German sources attached particular significance to the communique's terse remark that "exploitation of these successes is in full swing."

Other dispatches, possibly hinting at the direction in which the high command was following up its gains, reported the air force bombing Bryansk, midway between Moscow and Kiev, and other towns along the double-track railway connecting those cities.

German flyers were said to be scouting far into the Russian interior against Russian railways and other transport lines. They apparently were contending against considerable Russian air resistance for it was asserted that eighty-nine Russian planes were destroyed Friday.

Claims Black Sea Ships Sunk

The German air force sank freighters of a total tonnage of 50,000 during the last week in the Black Sea, DNB stated tonight. Three freighters of a total of 10,000 tons were sent to the bottom off northwest Crimea, it was said.

Off besieged Odessa, which is receiving supplies and reinforcements by sea, according to DNB, nine freighters of 15,000 tons were sunk.

The Russian navy was said to have been hard hit by the German air force. DNB listed one cruiser, two destroyers and an anti-aircraft ship sunk in the Black Sea, and a cruiser sunk in the Gulf of Finland near the naval base of Kronstadt. In addition two battleships and six destroyers were damaged heavily in the same area, the agency said.

Would Be Natural Bar

The source of the Volga was reached at Seliger Lake, 200 miles southeast of Leningrad, informed sources said. The 2,325-mile-long river reaches to the Caspian Sea, and would be a natural obstacle behind which Russian armies might retire if forced out of Moscow and the Don Valley.

The German press and authorized spokesmen quickly expressed the view that effective help for Russia no longer was possible.

"Too late," said DNB, discussing prospects of United States assistance.

Scoff At Long Routes

"North American and British help for Russia has remained on paper and will stay there if Russia must depend on long, inefficient transport routes over Iran and through the Arctic seas via Siberia," declared the official German news agency.

Some German observers concluded that the blow in the Ukraine had crushed Russia's last hopes, others that it was "the turning point in the whole war."

SEP 28 1941

Military sources were enthusiastic over the news that a large section of Russian Marshal Semeon Budenny's forces had been eliminated from the fight along with "884 tanks, 3,718 cannon and an unsurveyable amount of other war material."

Although radios throughout Germany blared with a fanfare of trumpets heralding the high command announcement, the German public took the news undemonstratively.

Newspapers Enthusiastic

Newspapers, however, competed in expressing boundless enthusiasm.

"This triumph on the anniversary of the three-power pact stabs our enemies in London, Moscow and Washington in the heart," declared the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung.

German strategists envisioned all sorts of military possibilities.

Time, they said, now is on Germany's side because Russia needs a breathing spell and the German army seems determined to give her none. They said they expected swiftly-developing German operations of first magnitude.

Lists Five Advantages

Dienst Aus Deutschland, a news commentary with close official connections, said the battle of Kiev had given the Germans these five advantages:

1. Russia has lost irreplacable men and material.
2. Large German forces now are released for other assignments.
3. The Germans have reached terrain better suited for tanks and other mechanized weapons.
4. A continuous, organized Russian front in the south has been broken.
5. More important Russian industrial regions now are directly menaced.

Compared To Other Battles

Germans compared the front-line reports with other great engagements of history for scope and decisiveness and found many aspects in which the Kiev encirclement tops anything in war archives.

They pointed out that virtually not a man of the five entrapped armies escaped and that the high command said the Russians' "bloody losses again were very high."

The tally of 665,000 prisoners exceeded by 200,000 the captives claimed in the Western front battle of Alsace-Lorraine and were more than twice those announced in the double battle of Minsk and Bialystok.

Bigger Than Flanders Battle

The Kiev action was unprecedented in area, larger even than the battle of Flanders, a German military spokesman declared.

Dispatches said one well developed defensive system was taken and swiftly transformed into a link in the ring of weapons forged around the Russians by the combined armies of Field Marshal General Gerd von Rundstedt and Field Marshal General Fedor von Bock.

These reports told also of Col. Gen. Heinz Guderian's tanks wallowing in bottomless mud and of hundreds of commandeered Russian farm horses dragging them out of the softest spots.

Smashing Of 5 Russ Armies Termed The Deciding Blow

SEP 28 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Sept. 27—Five trapped Russian armies have been wiped out in the Ukraine and 665,00 men captured in a great German victory, the high command announced today, and authorized sources immediately acclaimed the triumph as a crushing blow to Russia and the turning point in the whole war.

Military observers said the fight, which Germans called "the greatest destructive battle" ever fought and which the communique itself labeled "unparalleled in history," opened vast new military possibilities to Germany.

Spokesman and the press expressed the belief that outside help no longer could be effective for Russia and DNB, speaking specifically of United States aid, declared flatly, "too late."

"The exploitation of these successes," said Hitler's command, "is in full swing."

In the next sentence, the high command reported new air smashes against Moscow and Tula, a rail and arsenal center south of the Russian capital.

Volga Reported Reached

Nazi spearheads driving ever deeper into the Soviet Union were reported by informed quarters to have reached the head waters of the Volga river 200 miles southeast of Leningrad as the official word came of the end of the long and violent struggle in the vast territory east of Kiev—the route to the industrial Donets Basin.

On the Leningrad front, DNB said, German heavy batteries have put the waterways to the besieged Russian city under telling fire.

The Leningrad waterfront itself, as well as the harbor of the big Kronstadt naval base and the port of Oranienbaum, on the narrow neck of the Finnish Gulf west of Leningrad, are under the range of German guns, the agency said.

Cruiser Reported Hit

A cruiser of the Russian Kirov class, already bombed, was hit by German shells yesterday and broke into fire after a terrific explosion, it said. A Soviet battleship was forced to shift its position and a submarine was abandoned in sinking condition.

All the encircled troops in the Kiev area were declared to be either dead or captured—annihilated, in the full sense of the word as used by German military leaders.

Vast booty also was claimed, "including 884 tanks, 3,718 pieces of artillery and unsurveyable quantities of other war material" captured or destroyed.

Few Tanks Captured

One spokesman emphasized the "comparatively small" number of Russian tanks knocked out of the fight and declared that "would seem to be an indication that Russian material reserves indeed are diminishing."

That five Russian armies were involved in the Kiev battle instead of the four previously announced was described as the high command's secret, kept to itself to confuse the Russians on the Red Army strength which escaped before the encirclement was effected.

RUSSIANS DENY ANY GERMANS ARE IN CRIMEA

SEP 28 1941

Official Moscow Spokesman Says Fighting Is Still Outside Peninsula.

LENINGRAD ATTACK REPULSED

Reds Report Besiegers Have Lost Tens of Thousands Trying to Take City.

MOSCOW, Sept. 27 (A. P.).—German soldiers have not set foot in Crimea, S. A. Lozovsky, official Russian spokesman, declared in a press conference today. "All the fighting for Crimea takes place outside Crimea," he said.

"Incessant fighting, day and night, is raging on the distant approaches of Leningrad," he added. "The Nazis say they are advancing but even if they crawl they would already have been there. Leningrad is a hard nut to crack."

The German besiegers of Leningrad already have lost "tens of thousands of lives but they will not capture the city no matter how many more tens of thousands of German lives are lost."

The Russians repulsed a German attack at the approaches to Leningrad last night as fighting continued along the entire front, it was officially reported. The Russians also said their forces won successes on the central front, where a sustained counter-drive has been reported driving the Germans back to the west.

This afternoon's communique announced that over 4,000 officers and men of enemy forces had been killed on the approaches to Leningrad, and sixty-six aircraft and thirty-four tanks and other war material captured or destroyed. It added that over 300 German soldiers and officers were killed on the central front and twenty-four tanks and other war equipment were destroyed.

The Red Air Force, giving full support to the central front offensive, destroyed thirty German airplanes last Wednesday and destroyed sixty-five tanks and 220 trucks, it was claimed.

Earlier Russian dispatches indicated that the Russian defenders of the Crimea had mowed down thousands of Germans at the approaches to that peninsula jutting into the Black Sea.

[The British radio in a broadcast heard by CBS said the town of Zaporozhe on the east bank of the lower Dnieper was holding out against German operations in the Ukraine. The broadcast said the railway line between the Crimea and Zaporozhe had not been cut, but that Zaporozhe is being continuously shelled.]

Slaughter in the Crimea.

The Nazis were said to have launched their drive toward the Crimea from an occupied village in the lower Dnieper valley.

How far the invaders have progressed was not clear, but Russian spokesmen said that "the battlefield was strewn with corpses when the enemy managed to wedge into our advanced line of defense in a narrow sector of the front." This thrust was nullified by Russian counter-attacks, they said, supported by artillery and bombers.

"The enemy lost no less than two infantry regiments, two-thirds of his mine-thrower batteries and part of his artillery, and was forced to retire to his starting point," a dispatch from the front declared.

Only two narrow land routes are available for an invasion of Crimea—the four-mile-wide Isthmus of Perekop and a causeway across the shallow Sivash Sea to the east.

R. A. F. units on the Russian front have entrenched themselves with their Russian comrades-in-arms, coming out of their earthworks and taking to the sky whenever necessary to rout the Germans, according to a descriptive dispatch published today by the Russian army newspaper Red Star.

"The wide field, surrounded by hills, seems deserted but actually it is seething with life," said the dispatch. "The flyers are in deep trenches — some British, others Soviet.

Standing groups of pilots are studying maps of possible places for aerial battles. Bushes are scattered over the field—these camouflaged the fighters. On the left are the Russian little Falcons, or 'Split seconds', and straight ahead are the Hurricanes pride of British aviation.

"The healthy, high spirited English pilots, gathered at the entrance of the trenches, are approached by Soviet commanders.

"Comrades of air flights, they warmly greet each other and converse with the aid of an interpreter."

Denies Kiev Fight Has Ended and That Any German Is Yet on Crimean Soil

BY HENRY CASSIDY

MOSCOW, Sunday, Sept. 28 (AP).—The Germans have failed to set a single boot on Crimean soil in the battle raging for that vital Black Sea peninsula, and they are "pushing ever nearer their own grave" in fighting on the Kiev front, a Soviet spokesman declared today.

"All the fighting for Crimea is taking place outside of the peninsula itself," said S. A. Lozovsky, Vice-Commissar of Foreign Affairs.

Scoffing at German claims of the capture of a half million Russians on the Kiev front, Lozovsky said that, instead of ending, the fight there continues with undiminished fury.

"The Germans are trying desperately to achieve their main aim of annihilating Soviet manpower," he added. "Now I can say again that the farther they push eastward, the nearer they are to the grave."

Today's early morning communique was a reiteration of similar pronouncements for days—fierce fighting along the whole front.

At the other end of the long front, Russian and German forces are locked in "incessant" day and night battle for Leningrad, Lozovsky declared, but he asserted he was "absolutely confident that the Germans never will take the city."

REDS ATTACKING.

"They already have lost tens of thousands of lives," he said, "but they will not capture Leningrad no matter how many more tens of thousands of German lives are lost.

"Incessant fighting day and night is raging on the distant approaches to Leningrad. The Nazis say they are advancing, but even if they crawled they would already have been there. Leningrad is a hard nut to crack."

Dispatches from the front reported that the Red Army, pounding the German lines on a wide front in an effort to take the initiative in as many sectors as possible, had made a smashing counter-attack on the Leningrad front in which it recaptured a village.

Reds Say Caucasus Drives Proves Nazis' Need Of Oil To Win

SEP 28 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, Sept. 27—The weekly Moscow News, published for English-speaking people in the Soviet Union, said today that Germany was attempting to seize Russia's Caucasian oil fields quickly in order to be able then to turn against England.

The German army, the paper said, has concentrated huge forces in the southern Ukraine in order to replenish its oil stocks there before turning west.

"It is only in the east that winter is a serious obstacle for offensive operations of the Blitzkrieg variety," the paper said, "but without oil no major military operations are possible during the winter even in the favorable climates.

Cites Needs On Western Front.

"This applies particularly to the Western front, where the air force and the fleet play a dominant role. In undertaking a campaign in the Ukraine and beyond to the Caucasus, Hitler never ceased to think of the unsolved problems of the west.

"That is why it may be said that the German high command is playing for big stakes by making the furious push in the direction of the Black Sea."

"Effective action simultaneously east and west is essential in order to foil Hitler's latest attempt to keep his war machine going.

The paper said that Germany had used up at least two thirds of her oil reserves on the Eastern front.

'Red Star' Describes Wait in Trenches for Call to Action

MOSCOW, Sept. 27 (AP).—Royal Air Force units on the Russian front have intrenched themselves with their Russian comrades in arms, coming out of their earthworks and taking to the sky whenever necessary to rout the Germans, according to a dispatch published today by the Russian Army newspaper, "Red Star." The story was headlined: "Soviet and English Flyers Routing Fascists Side by Side."

"The wide field, surrounded by hills, seems deserted, but actually it is seething with life," the dispatch said. "The flyers are in deep trenches—some British, others Soviet.

Finns May Defer Elections

Helsinki, Finland, Sept. 27 (AP)—President Risto Ryti proposed today that parliamentary elections, due next year, be postponed until 1944 because of the emergency.

HELSINKI, Finland, Sept. 27 (AP)—The Finns declared officially tonight they had captured Praeza, 20 miles southwest of Petrozavodsk, and wiped out a Soviet division and a crack armored regiment in that section.

The Leningrad-Murmansk rail line runs through Petrozavodsk.

The Finnish Command also announced occupation of Konevitsa monastery, on an island just off the west shore of Lake Ladoga in territory seized by the Soviet Union in the war of 1939-40.

Finnish troops that seized the site yesterday found the principal buildings undamaged and part of the fortifications also intact, they reported.

Signs Of British Troop Aid To Russia Multiply

SEP 28 1941

Teheran, Iran, Sept. 27 (AP)—The British legation said today that Gen. Archibald P. Wavell, British commander in chief in India, was flying on an urgent, secret mission. The legation acknowledged that many difficulties had been encountered in arranging movement of supplies into Russia.

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 27—Signs that Britain plans to send troops from India and the Middle East to aid Russia in defending the all-important Caucasus became increasingly evident today as the German war machine fought almost at the door of that oil-rich area.

The need for speedy British help was stressed by the German attack on the Crimea, but the British kept the Axis guessing as to what actual forces and material might be sent through the new Iran door into the Caucasus.

Nazi Claims Discounted

Russian losses in the fighting east of Kiev "undoubtedly were severe," authoritative sources here conceded, but they declared that German claims of the disintegration of Soviet troops in that area and the capture of 665,000 prisoners "probably were much exaggerated."

"Strenuous fighting" continues all along the front, these sources reported.

On the north the Germans were said to hold most of Oesel, the Riga Bay island fortified by the Russians to guard the approach to the Gulf of Finland.

Leningrad Gains Called Slight

These informants said the Germans suffered heavy losses to achieve only slight progress in the assault on Leningrad and that the Rusians had made successful local counter-thrusts in the Smolensk sector.

There was some doubt here whether the German attack on the Crimean peninsula was developing into a full-scale operation or merely a sideshow to operations toward Kharkov, in the center of the industrial Donets river basin, and farther east along the Black Sea coast.

Five Signs Of British Aid

Four German divisions and Nazi parachute troops were reported to be pounding at the Crimea in a furious battle, and informed sources said capture of that finger of Russian land would give the Germans partial command of the Black Sea, making a sea invasion of the Caucasus a possibility.

Observers noted these signs that Britain was planning the fullest help for Russia:

1. Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, British commander in India, was reported about to meet Col. T. Novikov, Russian commander in Teheran, the Iranian capital.

2. Both General Wavell and Gen. Sir Claude J. E. Auchinleck, British Middle East commander, have been in London in the past two months for conferences with Prime Minister Churchill and Gen. Sir John G. Dill, chief of the British imperial staff.

Troop-Landings Reported

3. The announcement that Capt. Oliver Lyttleton, British Middle East political and economic coordinator, is in London for conferences with Churchill and the Cabinet.

4. Reports — not confirmed but not denied—that British troops and supplies were being landed constantly at Bandar Shahpur, Iranian port at the head of the Persian Gulf, and were moving swiftly northward.

5. Appointment of a transport expert, Brig. Gen. Sir Godfrey Rhodes, as director of transportation through Iran. Iran's railroads would play an important part in dispatching an expeditionary force to Russia's help.

"Must Invade Continent"

Amid the swiftly moving British-Russian developments there came a hint of action in western Europe in the future. Lieut. Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, commander of the Canadian Corps in England, told a group of Canadian editors touring England that "there will have to be an invasion of the Continent."

He said he did not think "you can bring a proud and well-organized nation to her knees with missiles alone."

He gave no light on when a British invasion of the Continent might come, but admitted that it might not be attempted until after Germany has tried to invade the British Isles.

SIGNS INCREASE OF HELP GOING TO CAUCASUS

Retention Of Peninsula Regarded As Vital To Russians

General Wavell Arrives In Iran On Secret Mission

BY NOLAND NORGAARD
[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 27—The German attack on Crimea is developing into the fullest scale assault possible down the narrow Perekop Isthmus, authoritative military quarters here said tonight, but they expressed the belief that the peninsula cannot be taken unless the Germans are able to wipe out the Soviet Black Sea fleet.

Retention of the Crimea by the Red army was regarded as vital to the Russian stand because in German hands it would become the springboard for a power drive eastward toward the Caucasus and Russia's great oil fields.

There were increasing signs that Britain already was moving forces into position to help Russia defend the Caucasus. An authoritative source said large quantities of military supplies were moving toward the Caucasus front from the Persian Gulf.

Wavell Arrives In Iran

General Sir Archibald P. Wavell, returning to his military command in India from conferences in London, arrived in Iran today on what the British legation there called an urgent and secret mission. He was expected to go over plans with Russian military leaders in Iran.

The aid Britain already is giving Russia was expected to be summarized by Prime Minister Churchill soon before the House of Commons.

British sources said that despite the intensity of the Nazi attempt to storm a way into the Crimea, cramped quarters in the five-mile-wide Perekop Isthmus prevented the use of more than about three assault divisions.

This was said to be only a "flea bite" compared to other fronts where scores of divisions were hurled into action by each side.

Sea Attack Called Risky

A Russian informant declared any German attempt to land troops by sea on the Crimea to support the attack down the isthmus would be "very risky business" unless Germany could get into the Black Sea a stronger naval force than the Russian Black Sea fleet.

This source speculated that such a move might start with an Axis attempt to seize the Turkish-guarded Dardanelles, through which German and Italian warships might move into the Black Sea.

On the Arctic front the approach of winter and increasing apathy of Finnish armies no longer fighting on their own soil has curtailed operations, a British source said.

Easier In Swamp Lands

He added that from Leningrad south "there certainly was no reason to expect that winter would hamper operations" and said that in fact operations would be easier in some swampy areas when the ground was frozen.

This source declared Russia's greatest danger seemed to be from the German drive through the Ukraine toward Kharkov.

On the outskirts of Leningrad, he said, fighting "has developed into one of those melees where opposing forces are so mixed that there are no distinguishable lines, but our best information seems to show the Russians are better than holding their own."

To Improve Turkish Fort

A British contracting firm will build extensive dock facilities of considerable military potentiality at the Turkish Mediterranean port of Alexandretta, it was announced.

Foreign observers regarded the announcement as another indication that Britain has been assured that Turkey, her non-belligerent ally, will not yield to Axis economic or military demands.

The contract involves $800,000 and a similar contract was reported pending for the port of Mersin, a Turkish army base.

SEP 28 1941

Both Linked To Syria

Both Alexandretta and Mersin are linked by railroad with Aleppo, in northern Syria, and probably would have great military value should Turkey become a belligerent.

Belief in some quarters that Turkey was determined to resist the Axis and maintain firm friendship with Britain already had been heightened by deliveries of United States warplanes to the Turks.

Approximately 2,000 factories had a part in making and assembling the tanks.

Maisky Puts Problem Up to Conference in London.

London, Sept. 27 (A. P.).—Ivan Maisky, Soviet Ambassador, called on scientists at the International Conference on Science and the World Order today to solve immediate problems for crushing Germany.

"If Hitlerite Germany wins the war," he said, "there will be no freedom, no democracy, no culture, no science and no planning in the world.

"We in the Soviet Union never have believed in the so-called 'pure science.' We have always believed that science must help humanity.

"Science and scientists cannot, and will not, escape their duties in this most terrific and most scientific of all wars."

Prof. C. H. Desch, adviser to the Iron and Steel Research Council, said control of the world's natural resources would be necessary after the war.

"It appears," he said, "that certain minerals, such as oil and tin, are within calculable distance of virtual exhaustion. Copper, gold and phosphates, at the present rate of production, are believed to have a further life of less than a century. Coal and iron may last for thousands of years.

A detailed account of housing and feeding research programs in the United States was given by Prof. Alvin H. Hansen of Harvard, who concluded:

"I wish to stress the need for research and action with respect to international relations. In the post-war world, Britain will be confronted with a difficult problem in the international balance of payments. Her exports must rise perhaps double in order to obtain adequate imports, but Britain cannot export to a depressed world.

SEP 28 1941

King George VI sent the scientists a message saying: "The social benefits which scientific research by free practice under the right guidance can bestow on mankind will grow ever greater. It is right that such benefits should be shared among all peoples alike. I am happy, therefore, to join with you in welcoming the many distinguished scientists from overseas and in thanking them for the gift of their knowledge."

Envoy Adds That Soviet Replacements Are Inadequate For Own Needs

Thanks British Workers For One-Week Record Production For Red Army

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 27—Ivan Maisky, Soviet Ambassador, thanked British workers today for a record production during a Tanks-for-Russia Week and turned to world scientists to enlist help in crushing Hitler.

Three months of war have brought Russia "serious" tank losses, Maisky said in abroadcast. He disclosed a ten-per-cent. production increase during the wek in which all tanks built by the British were to be sent to the Russian front.

Too Great For Replacement

While Russian tank losses have been less than the German, the Ambassdor said, they are still too great for replacements "from the normal monthly output, even under peacetime conditions."

He added that under Stalin's scorched-earth policy a number of tank plants had been dynamited to keep them out of German hands, but he said a greater number had been moved out of the danger zones.

Maisky addressed scientists from twenty-two countries assembled at the International Conference on Science and the World Order. Dr. Eduard Benes, President of the provisional Czech Government, also spoke.

Capitalism Assailed

Hugh P. Vowles, of the Institute of Mechanical Engineers, asserted that "the first step in planning the postwar world is to get rid of capitalism, lock, stock and barrel."

Capitalism, he said, has restricted production as markets shrank to keep up prices and profits, and even has destroyed goods which people urgently need.

They constitute the seventh age group to sign up since the Government launched compulsory registration last April.

and sea blockade between Italy and the North African coast cost her the sinking of one and the damaging of two of every five convoyed troops and supply ships.

Compilation Of Losses

A compilation of the losses listed in British communiques since September 1 showed twenty-three ships of 3,000 to 8,000 tons sunk, besides four liners of more than 20,000 tons each. In addition the communiques said the Italians lost two destroyers.

A 10,000-ton eight-inch-gun cruiser was listed as torpedoed and thirty supply ships were reported damaged severely.

Observers here believed the hopes of Axis legions in the North African desert for much-needed equipment and fresh troops were hard hit by the sinkings.

Each of four big liners lost it was estimated, could carry up to 5,000 soldiers. Loss of life, however, was presumed to have been relatively small since the troopships were heavily escorted.

Also Report 30 Troop Or Supply Craft Badly Damaged

British and Netherlands submarines —sometimes raiding into gunfire range of Italian harbors—and bombers of the Mediterranean fleet arm were credited with sinking one and damaging two of every five Italian ships which tried the Mediterranean crossing during the month.

200,000 Tons This Month

These were the sinkings, totaling 200,000 tons, listed since September 1:

Four liners of more than 20,000 tons each, and each capable of carrying 5,000 German and Italian troops.

Twenty-three troop and supply ships of 3,000 to 8,000 tons each.

Two destroyers.

Besides thirty troop and supply ships reported damaged, the British said a 10,000-ton 8-inch gun cruiser was torpedoed.

Loss Of Life Thought Small

Loss of life in the troopship sinkings was relatively small, observers here believed, because they were escorted closely and rescue was near.

Little doubt was expressed, however, that the losses were a hard blow to the hopes of Axis commanders in North Africa for badly needed equipment and fresh troops for the coming winter campaign in the Libyan-Egyptian desert.

The number of ships attempting the crossing was taken as an indication Axis leaders were trying desperately to strengthen their African forces in anticipation of a bitter struggle.

The North African landing places for Axis supplies and troops also have been reported battered repeatedly, with the R. A. F. returning day after day to Bengasi, Bardia and Tripoli, where the Spanish quay and remnants of convoys it sheltered were among the hardest hit of all North Africa objectives.

Teheran Sends Artillery To Help Troops Against Guerrillas

By DANIEL DE LUCE
Associated Press Correspondent

Teheran, Sept. 27—Kurdish sharpshooters hidden above mountain trails in the mutinous province of Kurdistan repulsed small Iranian army patrols today, according to advices from the vest pocket war front.

Meanwhile motorized batteries of heavy German-made artillery speeded westward from Teheran to blast the strongholds of the "Free Kurd State."

Brand new 155-millimeter guns which never had been in action—guns that remained silent during the Russian and British invasion of Iran—rolled out of this capital this morning with a column of large troop trucks, bound for Kermanshah, there to strengthen Gen. Hassan Moghadam's regiment for an offensive against thousands of Kurdish guerrillas.

Between British And Russians

The Kurd revolt is taking place in the no-man's-land between the British and Russian armies of occupation and is reported to be led by the wily Sayyad Mahmud, a nationalistic agitator, who was imprisoned several years ago at Baghdad by the British-Iraqi security police and recently escaped to Iran.

He is said to be preaching a war of independence among the tribes of his race which people a region along Iran's border with Iraq.

The challenge flared as a sequel to the flight of the ousted Shah, Reza Pahlavi, and his replacement by his son, Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, under British-Russian influence.

New Flareup In South

From the south came reports from foreign sources of another flareup.

There Naser Khan, chief of the Kashgai tribe, was said to have armed thousands of nomads and seized control of the single highway between the important Persian Gulf port of Bushire and Shiraz, once proudest city of old Persia. The Kashgai chief was said to be attempting to organize nation-wide resistance to occupation of Iran territory by British or Russian troops.

The new Government at Teheran ordered the chief's arrest.

Reports circulated through the capital that the Government had appointed Hossein Ala, former Minister of Commerce, as Iran's new Minister to the United States, and Hassan Taghi-Zadehi, former professor of languages at Oxford University, new Minister to London.

Bombers Sweep Channel in Daylight Attacks.

SEP 28 1941

London, Sept. 27 (A. P.).—In a far-flung battle which raged for hours today over northern France and the English Channel, British flyers were declared authoritatively to have shot down twenty-one German planes with a loss of fourteen of their own.

[The British lost twelve Spitfires in channel fighting today said DNB, the German official news agency.]

Early advices indicated that bombing operations, benefitted by the weather, included a successful day attack on the railway center at Amiens.

Cologne and other objectives in the west of Germany were attacked by British bombers last night, the Air Ministry said today, despite unfavorable weather, which had stalled attacks for a week.

"Docks at Calais and Dunkirk also were bombed," the communique said. "One of our aircraft is missing."

At least twenty German bombers and fighters were destroyed or damaged when low-gliding R. A. F. bombers attacked fifty of them parked on an airdrome, the British said in a supplementary announcement.

The Government reported little German activity over Britain last night, although some damage and a small number of casualties at one place in East Anglia were admitted. Anti-aircraft guns and searchlights were in action for a time in the London area when a hostile plane was detected overhead, but no bombs fell in the capital.

Berlin, Sept. 27 (A. P.).—British warplanes dropped fire bombs and high explosives over northwest and southwest Germany last night but did no material damage, an official announcement said today.

Two freighters of 7,000 and 8,000 tons were bombed last night east of Hull, informed Germans said. In reviewing air force activities they gave the total of ships sunk in the past seven days as 50,000 tons—six freighters and one tanker.

Amiens and La Bassee Rail Centers Raided; 21 Nazis Shot Down in Dogfights

LONDON, Sept. 27 (AP).—Strongly-guarded British bombers, raiding northern France by daylight in the heaviest attacks since last Sunday, battered the Nazi-held coast of France today and smashed inland at the railroad centers at Amiens and La Bassee.

An Air Ministry communique said that in dogfights which developed over wide areas of northern France the Royal Air Force shot down twenty-one German fighters with a loss of fourteen of its own. The communique said no British bombers were lost.

Returning British pilots said they met more German fighters than they had encountered over France in a long time. An Air Ministry news service said the British bombers and fighters "plowed their way through the German fighters which came up to meet them."

One Polish squadron was said to have brought down six Nazi fighters, including "one of the radial-engined craft which have been encountered over France lately."

Ground observers on the southeast coast said the British formations "filled miles of sky" at times during the day-long procession to France.

Cologne and other objectives in western Germany were raided by British bombers last night, the Air Ministry said, despite unfavorable weather which had stalled attacks for a week.

"Docks at Calais and Dunkerque (two French ports) also were bombed," a communique said. "One of our aircraft is missing."

Authoritative sources said the attacking units were small. At least twenty German bombers and fighters were destroyed or damaged when low-gliding R. A. F. bombers attacked fifty of them parked on an airdome, the British said in a supplementary announcement.

Anti-aircraft guns and searchlights were in action for a time last night in the London area when a hostile plane was detected overhead, but no bombs fell in the city.

Nazis Claim 17 British Planes

BERLIN, Sept. 27 (AP).—D. N. B., the German official news agency, said seventeen British planes were shot down today in English Channel fighting. They included one Bristol Blenheim bomber, D. N. B. said.

British warplanes dropped explosives and incendiaries in northwestern and southwestern Germany during the night but did no material damage, an official announcement said. "I refuse to believe the war can be won by the present methods. We are in great danger, and not much time is left."

Rationing Of Bread Is Ordered In Italy

SEP 28 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Sept. 27—Italy's bread was ordered rationed today, starting next Wednesday, and a group of measures was approved by the Cabinet to conserve material, defend the lira and pay for the war through heavy taxation of profits.

The rationing was announced after Premier Mussolini informed the Cabinet that the 1941 grain crop was insufficient for the country's needs.

Most of the measures revised and reinforced previous decrees intended to discourage Italians from investing their cash in property or industrial securities rather than Government bonds, with which Italy is paying for the war.

Allowances Fixed

Chief among the Cabinet's rulings were these:

1. The basic daily bread ration was fixed at 200 grams, about six and one-half ounces, with ordinary workers allowed 300 grams, or about ten ounces, and workers at heavy tasks 400 grams, or about thirteen ounces.

2. A uniform twenty per cent. tax on profits from the sale of business securities listed on stock exchanges was substituted for a previous scale running up to fifty per cent. A new brokers' surtax of four per cent., to be paid by the buyer, was imposed.

To Prevent Tax Evasion

3. Certain shares of private companies were ordered registered to prevent evasion of a twenty per cent. tax on their profits.

4. Partly for military security against air raids and partly to stimulate industrial development, plants are to be decentralized in zones of new hydroelectric power in southern Italy, Sicily and Sardinia.

5. Foreigners were allowed to buy clothing and other consumer goods on the same basis as Italians providing they have fixed residence in Italy.

Party Given Voice

6. Government and Fascist party agents and representatives of public institutions are to see that private concerns operate "effectively."

7. The Fascist party was given a voice in the filling of public offices to guarantee that appointees are good Fascists.

Il Duce told the Ministers that the harvest had been lower than the forecasts, although slightly higher than 1940. He estimated the crop at 71,500,000 quintals, or about 262,000,000 bushels, as compared to 71,000,000 quintals last year.

Financial Measures Require Registration Of Stock Holdings

BY RICHARD MASSOCK

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Sept. 27—The Italian Government today announced a far-reaching series of measures designed to step up the country's war effort, including bread rationing, increases in taxes, curbs on inflation, decentralization of industry and the weeding out of lukewarm Fascists from public office.

The Cabinet, meeting under Premier Mussolini, approved the group of laws.

These measures revised and reinforced previous decrees intended to discourage Italians from investing their cash in property or industrial securities rather than in the Government bonds with which Italy is paying for the war. Their aim is partly also to prevent an inflationary flight from the lira.

Harvest Fails To Meet Needs

The Cabinet, after hearing il Duce himself report that the 1941 grain harvest "does not cover the needs of the population," announced that bread rationing would begin October 1. Cards already have been distributed.

The basic daily ration was set at 200 grams (about 6½ ounces). Workers are allowed 300 grams (10 ounces) and heavy workers 400 grams (13 ounces).

Pure white flour long has been unavailable in Italy, and bread has been adulterated with lower-grade ingredients, in steps taken to stave off rationing. Spaghetti, a mainstay in Italian diet, has been rationed for many months. It likewise has been adulterated.

Lower Than Forecasts

Mussolin reported to the Cabinet that the grain harvest had been lower than the forecasts, although slightly higher than in 1940. He estimated the crop at 71,500,000 quintals, or about 262,000,000 bushels, as compared with 71,000,000 quintals last year.

The grain harvest a communique said, "is very deficient as compared to last year's while the needs for the armed forces and the occupied territories have increased."

Italy, it was said, must send food to the occupied territories in the Balkans, particularly Greece.

Heating Restrictions

It was announced a week ago that October 1 also would bring rationing of shoes and clothing. Yesterday authorities declared that heating of buildings would start ten days later this winter, beginning December 1 in northern Italy, December 10 in central Italy and December 20 in southern Italy, with furnaces to be fired only seven hours a day. In Rome, where heating begins December 10, it began last year on December 1 and lasted for one hundred days, to March 10.

Premier Mussolini proposed the law giving the Fascist party a voice in filling public offices or other political jobs in order to guarantee that the appointees are good Fascists.

Delegates To Sit On Boards

The Cabinet further passed a measure providing for representatives of the Government, the Fascist party and public institutions to watch over the operations of private concerns to see that they are "effectively carried out." These "delegates" are to serve without pay and have no place on the boards or in the management of firms.

The financial measures adopted provide:

SEP 28 1941

All private deals in real estate are declared null and void unless registered and tax-paid within sixty days. This would nullify transfers of property made to evade a sixty per cent. tax on the profits from such sales.

A uniform twenty per cent. tax on profits from the sale of business securities on the stock exchanges substituted for a previous variable scale running up to fifty per cent., with a new broker's surtax of four per cent. to be paid by the buyer. A sixty per cent. tax on profits from real estate companies not quoted on the Stock Exchange remains unchanged.

Register Stockholders

Holders of shares of private companies must be registered to prevent evasion of a 20 per cent. tax on their profits. A communique said that this also would permit a closer check on Stock Market operations which "with an unreasonable and sudden price fluctuation disturb the tranquillity of economic circles and the serenity of labor."

Fascist organizations called their members to mass meetings tonight, where they heard speeches of encouragement by leaders who told them to have patience, because victory was certain.

The Secretary of the Fascist Party, Adelchi Serena, gave orders to restaurants to avoid any public display of food, as many customarily did on tables which showed what foods were available.

Convicted Of Attack On Army Transports

SEP 28 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Sept. 27—The Brussels newspaper Bruesseler Zeitung carried today an announcement attributed to the German command of occupation forces in Belgium and northern France that twenty "Communist" hostages were executed yesterday. The nationalities of the executed men were not given.

The reason given for the mass shooting was that Communists were believed to have stolen a large quantity of high explosives from a storage place in northern France September 23 and used it to attack French trains and German army transports the night of September 25.

Radio Listeners Sentenced To Die

Berlin, Sept. 27 (AP)—Two persons were sentenced to death by German courts today for listening to foreign broadcasts and spreading the news they heard.

These were the first known instances of the death sentence for tuning in on foreign stations.

"Lying Broadcasts"

One of the condemned persons, Johann Wild, 49, of Nuernberg, DNB said, "intentionally arrayed himself on the side of Germany's enemies by regularly listening to lying, agitating radio broadcasts."

On the basis of what he heard, the official news agency asserted, the condemned man wrote a pamphlet containing "invective against the Führer and other leading state personalities as well as the army."

executed for other offenses.

"Despite all warnings," said DNB, of the two death sentences, "various countrymen still allow themselves to be misled into listening to untrue foreign reports and spreading them.

"They thereby permit themselves to be misused as the cheap tool of enemy agitation, cripple their own powers' resistance and stab the national community in the back by treasonable support of the enemy."

Executions In Belgium

At the same time execution of twenty persons of unnamed nationality was announced in Belgian newspapers.

The two death sentences announced in Berlin were the first known instances of the extreme penalty being applied for tuning in on foreign stations.

Announcement of twenty executions was attributed by the Brussels newspaper, Bruesseler Zeitung, to the German command of occupation forces in Belgium and northern France. Execution of the men was laid to the belief that so-called Communists had stolen a large quantity of high explosives from a storage place in northern France, September 23, and used it to attack French trains and German army transports the night of September 25.

Specific Charges Given

One of the two persons sentenced for the radio offense, Johann Wild, 49, of Nuernberg, "intentionally arrayed himself on the side of Germany's enemies by regularly listening to lying, agitating radio broadcasts,"

DNB said. The agency added that he wrote a phamphlet of "invectives" against Hitler and other German leaders.

The second case was of a Polish housekeeper, Pelagia Bernstowicz, 45, who was working for a German doctor in Grandenz. She was accused of using her employer's radio to listen to foreign stations when the doctor was away, and inviting in a circle of Polish friends to listen.

Aside from the fact that Poles are forbidden to possess radios, she was accused of "arousing her Polish friends to resistance against the German Reich" by listening to the broadcasts.

Others Draw 10 Years

Those accused of listening with her were sentenced to 10 years' imprisonment.

DNB also listed five other cases in which sentences of four and five years were handed down.

DNB said spreading the news from foreign broadcasts, if permitted, would force constant denials of "enemy lies," making the task of German soldiers doubly difficult or impossible because of "premature revelations" of German operations.

Paris, Sept. 27 (AP)—The German occupation authorities announced they shot two more Frenchmen this morning.

The German announcement said the two were executed after being convicted of illegal possession of arms.

Anti-Red Sentences

Vichy, Sept. 27 (AP)—Fourteen residents of Avignon were sentenced today by the so-called Anti-Communist Court at Bordeaux on charges of furthering party propaganda. One was sentenced to life, three to fifteen years' imprisonment, and the others to varying terms plus fines.

New Demands On Vichy

SEP 28 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Vichy, Unoccupied France, Sept. 27. Marshal Petain's Cabinet met today for a discussion which a communique said was limited to internal problems but which informed persons said included new German proposals for further collaboration.

These proposals were said to have been brought from Paris by Jacques Benoist-Mechin, former Vichy Secretary of State and a leading collaborationist.

Conferred With Abetz

Benoist-Mechin himself said in a press conference that he had come to Vichy for the meeting after conferring with Otto Abetz, Hitler's representative in Paris, who recently visited German general headquarters.

Asked if there had been any developments in French-German relations, Benoist-Mechin replied:

"Events are happening in Europe. As the clouds over the rest of Europe clear away, French-German relations progress."

"No Longer A Problem"

He expressed belief that even if the Russian campaign were not ended this year, the Germans already had won sufficient positions that Russia "is no longer a problem."

Pierre Boisson, governor of French West Africa and the defender of Dakar, left for Dakar by plane today before the Cabinet meeting.

New Bohemia Ruler Named

Berlin, Sebt. 27 (AP) — Adolf Hitler today appointed Reinhard Heydrich, chief of security and right-hand man to Heinrich Himmler, Reich's Protector in Bohemia and Moravia. Heydrich succeeds Baron Constantin von Neurath at Prague.

The official announcement said Neurath, former Foreign Minister, had requested Hitler to "temporarily relieve" him of his duties in former Czecho-Slovakia until he has regained his health.

Emergency In Bohemia?

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 27—The British radio, heard tonight by CBS, reported that the first act of Reinhard Heydrich, new Nazi protector of Bohemia and Moravia, was to proclaim a state of emergency in those sections of old Czecho-Slovakia.

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Sept. 27—Reinhard Heydrich, German Chief of Security, and right hand man to Heinrich Himmler, head of the Gestapo, was named by the Führer today to take over the job of Baron Konstantin von Neurath at Prague as Reich Protector in Bohemia and Moravia.

Von Neurath, former Foreign Minister, asked Hitler to relieve him "temporarily" for reasons of health, an offiifficfiiiiial announcement said. He had held the post since the dismemberment of Czecho-Slovakia in March, 1939.

Heydrich, 37, is a group leader of the black-uniformed S S, which he entered in 1931. After a rapid rise in that organization he became director of the Berlin office of the Gestapo in April, 1934. Two years later he was appointed chief of the Security Police, in which post he combines the direction of Security headquarters of Himmler's Gestapo organization, the Prussian Gestapo and the Bavarian political police.

Heydrich was sent to Norway shortly before the state of civil emergency was recently declared for the Oslo area to ombat strikes and sabotage.

Russo-German Peace Urged In Tokyo

SEP 28 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Tokyo, Sept. 27—Japan observed in subdued fashion today the first anniversary of her adherence to the tripartite pact with Germany and Italy, and a prominent newspaper commentator urged that Germany patch up peace with Russia and turn against Britain if Axis aims for a "new world order" ever are to be realized.

The commentator, Teiichi Muto, writing in the newspaper Hochi, said:

"What we desire of Germany is that she should not lose fighting strength against Britain on account of the war against Russia, which is of secondary importance at present.

Would Close Russ War

"It is highly desirable that Germany should bring the war with the Soviet Union to a close as soon as possible and thus revert to warfare against Britain, which was the original object of the present European war."

He said Japan had been taken completely by surprise in August, 1939, when Germany made a non-aggression pact with Russia, but had decided this was "in line with the needs of the times," only to be surprised again when Germany went to war with Russia last June 22.

Urges Separate Peace

War against Russia might be interpreted as a requisite to war against Britain, he said, but Japan nevertheless would be considerably encouraged if Germany and Russia made a separate peace when a certain state of the campaign was reached.

Foreign Minister Teijiro Toyoda, speaking at the Government's only ceremonial recognition of the first anniversary of the Japanese signing of the Axis pact, urged the three Axis nations today to "surmount whatever difficulties may be in the path."

He was host to the German and Italian Ambassadors at a luncheon in the Hotel Imperial. Each signatory was urged to renew faith in the tripartite ideal. Toyoda described this as an "accomplishment of the noble mission of mankind" for which, he said, mutual cooperation, trust and patience were essential.

Messages Sent To Partners

Both Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye and the Foreign Minister sent anniversary messages of a similar nature to Germany and Italy, Domei said. Konoye addressed Führer Hitler and Premier Mussolini, while Toyoda addressed Foreign Ministers Ribbentrop and Count Ciano.

Konoye's messages read: "I wish to express hearty congratulations on the occasion of the first anniversary of the signing of the tripartite pact and to pay deep respect for the progress being made in construction of the new order."

Holiday decorations of the capital were limited to little German, Italian and Japanese flags on street cars and in a few downtown theaters and newspaper offices.

Reviews "Great Strides"

Yosuke Matsuoka, who was the man of the hour as Foreign Minister when the pact was signed last September 27, but was shelved in a cabinet shakeup following the outbreak of the German-Russian war June 22, spent the day in the Karuizawa Mountains, where he is recovering from an illness.

(Matsuoka took a leading part in the negotiations which led to the signing of the Russian-Japanese friendship pact April 13.)

Toyoda said Germany, Italy and Japan were making great strides toward their "new orders," although "the constructive efforts of Germany and Italy in Europe and those of Japan in East Asia are still confronted by many difficulties and, therefore, increased efforts will be required."

Capture Of Changsha, Important Hunan Capital, Claimed By Army

[By the Associated Press]

Chungking, Sunday, Sept. 28—Chinese dispatches today denied the fall of Changsha and claimed Chinese troops, in a furious battle, had recaptured four points in an area some twenty-five miles northeast of the Hunan province capital.

Dispatches from Changsha dated 8 P. M. last night said dead and wounded littered the battlefield after a fight which raged along the entire front. Heavy Japanese casualties were reported.

Tokyo, Sept. 27—The first anniversary of Japan's signing of the three-power pact with Germany and Italy was observed quietly today while the Tokyo press expressed jubilation over the reported Japanese capture of Changsha, important capital of Central China's province of Hunan.

The Japanese army, after having previously announced that its troops had entered Changsha's suburbs, stated in Shanghai today that Changsha had been captured.

On Strategic Railroad

The city is on the Canton-Hankow railway and is said to have important rice and wheat stores.

The Times and Advertiser, controlled by the Foreign Office, said "the Hunan campaign is driving home to Chungking that Japan is not leaving settlement of the China affair to any diplomacy or attrition."

The paper claimed that the Japanese have encircled half a millon Chinese troops in Central Hunan, and it said the reported capture of Changsha meant that the Chiang Kai-shek regime had now lost Hunan's food supplies and thus would be deprived of important agricultural reserves.

"The Changsha campaign," the paper said, "comes at a time when an American military mission is either en route to or already has arrived at Chungking.

American Help Discounted

"Chiang Kai-shek's general staff will have to show General Magruder his desperate position. Whether the American officer can help is a matter of little doubt—he cannot."

[President Roosevelt on August 26 announced that a military mission headed by Brig. Gen. John Magruder would be sent to China soon to make lease-lend aid to China effective.]

The only official public observance of the three-power pact anniversary was a meeting in a Tokyo auditorium attended by 5,000 people who cheered a message from former Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka, who negotiated and signed the agreement, saying that it was all Japan could have done at the time. "I firmly believe," he said, "that Japan after all should proceed on her way in accordance . . . with the letter and spirit of the three-power pact."

Messages Exchanged

Among several messages between Japanese and Axis statesmen were two from Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye to Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini very briefly offering congratulations.

A prominent commentator, Teiichi Muto, writing in the newspaper Hochi, advocated that Germany and Russia sign a peace so that Germany can turn full force on Great Britain and hasten establishment of the European new order.

Hitler And Mussolini Observe Anniversary

Berlin, Sept. 27 (AP)—Adolf Hitler, Benito Mussolini and Japanese Premier Prince Konoye exchanged telegrams today on the occasion of the first anniversary of the signing of the three-power pact which aligned Japan with the Axis.

Hitler's telegram to Mussolini said the pact was the foundation of the new order. Future generations, he said, would appreciate the fact the signatory powers had saved the world from "the deadly menace of Bolshevism."

Il Duce answered with a telegram asserting that decisions as great as those of the past year lie ahead.

The embassy said her kidnapping a week ago had been prompted by anger over an article in a Peiping newspaper.

JAPANESE DELAY SHIP

Craft Sails After Rigorous Seach of Britons.

Tokio, Sept. 2 (A. P.).—The steamship Anhui, sent to Japan to remove British nationals, sailed from Yokohama for Singapore tonight after a delay occasioned by the rigorous search of the 361 British and Indian passengers.

The Japan Times and Advertiser, controlled by the Foreign Office, said that "not one seam of a suit, not one fold of a skirt was left unnoticed."

"Every hat and every shoe was closely inspected," it added. "As a result, three diamonds and $50 in American money were discovered under the soles of a certain Indian gentleman's shoes."

Jiro Ohba, chief customs inspector, said that the rigid examination was imposed because of the strict measures taken by British authorities toward departing Japanese at Hongkong.

The Japanese Foreign Office announced that the steamship Hei Maru was dispatched on September 22 from Kobe to remove about 300 Japanese from India, the Near East and East Africa and that the ship's return is expected about November 15.

Sir John Grieg Latham, Australian Minister to Tokio, is among the Anhui's passengers. He was quoted by the Japan Times and Advertiser as saying he had been called home to report but expected to return to Tokio before Christmas.

Consuls May Manage Chinese Affairs

MANILA, P. I., Sept. 27 (AP).—Travelers arriving from French Indo-China reported today a movement afoot to place Chinese affairs in Indo-China in the hands of United States consular officials to give the Chinese greater protection from the Japanese military.

The Japanese were said to be increasing steadily their pressure on Chinese, and French authorities seemingly were unable to afford them full protection.

Reports persisted that the Japanese were overreaching the terms with France under which they entered Indo-China. Their troops were said to be filtering into Laos Province, near the Thailand frontier, which was not mentioned in the Japanese-French agreement as a district for Japanese occupation.

French authorities were said to have protested Japanese exports of rice from Indo-China. These reportedly amounted to 530,000 tons in the first eight months of 1941—at a rate which would exceed the annual 700,000-ton limit stipulated.

TOKIO, Sept. 27 (AP).—Domei, the Japanese news agency, reported today that the 7,880-ton French cruiser Lamotte-Picquet, flagship of the Vichy government's far eastern squadron, had sailed for Saigon, Indo-China, from Osaka, where she had been undergoing repairs since Sept. 15. Promises to Protect New Craft on All Seas; 2 Are for Britain

REICH WARNED

By Associated Press.

With 14 new cargo ships sliding down the ways, America put a vital span yesterday into the "bridge of ships" by which this Government expects to contribute to the downfall of Chancellor Hitler.

It was the largest mass launching since World War days, and was notable, too, because among the vessels which hit the water were three of the new "Liberty Ships," designed for mass production.

The launchings took place on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts and the Gulf of Mexico.

President Roosevelt signalized the occasion with the unusual device of an electrically- transcribed speech, heard at all the launching ceremonies, in which he called the event a "telling blow at the menace to our nation."

PRAISES WORKERS.

He told the shipworkers of America they were doing "a great job" and had "caught the true spirit with which all this nation must be imbued if Hitler and other aggressors of his ilk are to be prevented from crushing us."

"With every ship," he said, "they are striking a telling blow at the menace to our nation and the liberty of the free peoples of the world. They struck 14 such blows today."

He reiterated this nation's insistence upon maintaining the freedom of the seas in the face of Axis submarines and raiders, with an assertion that to the best of this country's ability the new vessels will be protected "from torpedo, from shell, or from bomb."

HITS OPPONENTS.

"We Americans as a whole," he said, "cannot listen to those few Americans who preach the gospel of fear—who say in effect that they are still in favor of freedom of the seas, but who would have the United States tie up our vessels in our ports. That attitude is neither truthful nor honest."

The President focused attention particularly on the launching of the "Patrick Henry," one of the Liberty Ships, at Baltimore, by recalling the Virginian's famous "Give me liberty or give me death."

"There shall be no death for America, for democracy, for freedom," Mr. Roosevelt said. "There must be liberty, worldwide and eternal. That is our prayer—our pledge to all mankind."

SHIPS FOR BRITAIN.

In addition to the three ships of the Liberty Fleet, the new vessels included six ships of the Maritime Commission's "C" types, two ships built with lease-lend funds and ordered by the British Government, one of combination passenger and cargo design, an army transport and an oil tanker.

All are part of the Maritime Commission's program for building some 1,400 merchant vessels by the close of 1943. Contracts for 312 of the Liberty Ships have been let.

Here's Timetable of Day's Launchings

Yesterday's mass ship launchings, all Eastern daylight time, were:

Chester, Pa., 7 a.m., C-2 cargo ship Surprise.

Sparrows Point, Md., 11 a.m., the C-1 cargo ship James McKay.

Richmond, Calif., 1 p.m., the British emergency cargo ship Ocean Voice.

Protection Pledge Renewed

Washington, Sept. 27—President Roosevelt acclaimed today's launching of fourteen cargo ships as "a telling blow at the menace of our nation," and emphasized his intention to protect American merchant vessels "from torpedo, from shell or from bomb."

U. S. Launches 14 Ships; Roosevelt Sees Blow to Axis

"The Spirit Nation Needs"

America's shipbuilders, the President said, "have caught the true spirit with which all this nation must be imbued if Hitler and other aggressors of his ilk are to be prevented from crushing us."

"We Americans as a whole," he continued, "cannot listen to those few Americans who preach the gospel of fear—who say in effect that they are still in favor of freedom of the seas but who would have the United States tie up our vessels in our ports. That attitude is neither truthful nor honest.

The Protection Pledge

"We propose that these ships sail the seas as they are intended to. We propose, to the best of our ability, to protect them from torpedo, from shell or from bomb."

The day was designated "Liberty Fleet Day" to mark the first launchings of emergency freighters in the Maritime Commission's vast construction program. Three of the "Liberty ships"—sometimes called "ugly ducklings" because of their workaday design—were on today's launching schedule.

First Launched At Chester

The first of the fourteen cargo ships slid down the ways at 6.05 A. M. in the Sun Shipbuilding and Drydock Company yards at Chester, Pa.

She was the 8,800-ton motor ship Surprise. Sponsoring the vessel was Mrs. Walter F. George, wife of Senator George, of Georgia.

"There Must Be Liberty"

Mr. Roosevelt noted that the first of the Liberty ships, built at Baltimore, was to be called the Patrick Henry, and he recalled that Revolutionary patriot's famous demand: "Give me liberty or give me death."

"There shall be no death for America, for democracy, for freedom!" the President proclaimed. "There must be liberty, worldwide and eternal. That is our prayer—our pledge to all mankind."

The nation's shipbuilding program must be speeded to an eventual goal of two vessels every day, Mr. Roosevelt asserted.

Six Warships Launched

The navy this week also reached the fastest launching pace since the start of the two-ocean construction program. Six warships, the battleship Massachusetts and five destroyers, slid into the water.

The Maritime Commission's present construction program calls for the completion of approximately 1,400 merchant ships by the end of 1943, with the President's two-a-day goal expected to be reached next spring.

Britons Send Congratulations

Contracts for the construction of 312 "ugly ducklings" have been awarded. Of these, 112 are scheduled to go to the British under the lend-lease act.

On the eve of Liberty Fleet Day, Britain's Minister of War Transport, Lord Leathers, and Sir Arthur Salter, head of the British shipping mission in the United States, sent congratulations to the commission.

President's Talk on Launchings

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27—Following is the text of the speech President Roosevelt delivered by radio recording today at the launching of fourteen merchant ships in various parts of the country:

My fellow Americans:

This is a memorable day in the history of American shipbuilding—a memorable day in the emergency defense of the nation. Today, from dawn to dark, fourteen ships are being launched—on the Atlantic, on the Pacific and on the Gulf, and among them is the first liberty ship, the Patrick Henry.

While we are proud of what we are doing, this is certainly no time to be content. We must build more cargo ships and still more cargo ships—and we must speed the program until we achieve a launching each day, then two ships a day, fulfilling the building program undertaken by the Maritime Commission.

Our shipbuilding program—not only that of the Maritime Commission, but of the Navy—is one of our answers to the aggressors who would strike at our liberty.

I am speaking today not only to the shipworkers in the building yards on our coasts, on our Great Lakes and on our rivers—not only to the thousands who are present at today's launchings—but also to the men and women throughout the country who live far from salt water or shipbuilding.

Tradition of Free Seas

I emphasize to all of you the simple, historic fact that throughout the period of our American life, going way back into colonial days, commerce on the high seas and freedom of the seas has been a major reason for our prosperity and the building up of our country.

To give you one simple example: It is a matter of history that a large part of the capital which in the middle of the past century went into the building of railways and spread like a network into the new undeveloped areas across the Mississippi River, across the plains and up into the Northwest, was money which had been made by American traders whose ships had sailed the seas to the Baltic, to the Mediterranean, to Africa and South America, and to Singapore and China itself.

Through all the years after the American Revolution your government reiterated and maintained the right of American ships to voyage hither and yon without hindrance from those who sought to keep them off the seas or drive them off the seas. As a nation we have realized that our export trade and our import trade had a definitely good effect on the life of families not only on our coasts but on the farms and in the cities a hundred or a thousand miles from salt water.

Since 1936, when the Congress enacted by the present Merchant Marine Law, we have been rehabilitating a merchant marine which had fallen to a low level. Today we are continuing that program at accelerated speed.

Hails Speed of Workers

The shipworkers of America are doing a great job. They have made a commendable record for efficiency and speed. With every new ship they are striking a telling blow at the menace to our nation and the liberty of the free peoples of the world. They struck fourteen such blows today. They have caught the true spirit with which all this nation must be imbued if Hitler and other aggressors of his ilk are to be prevented from crushing us.

We Americans as a whole cannot listen to those few Americans who preach the gospel of fear—who say in effect that they are still in favor of freedom of the seas but who would have the United States tie up our vessels in our ports. That attitude is neither truthful nor honest.

We propose that these ships sail the seas as they are intended to. We propose, to the best of our ability, to protect them from torpedo, from shell or from bomb.

The Patrick Henry, as one of the Liberty ships launched today, renews that great patriot's stirring demand:

"Give me liberty or give me death."

There shall be no death for America, for democracy, for freedom! There must be liberty, world-wide and eternal. That is our prayer—our pledge to all mankind.

2 Off Zamzam Feared Lost At Sea

SEP 28 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 27—The German Foreign Office informed the State Department today that it had no information concerning the Nazi raider Tamesis or the fate of two Americans—Francis J. Vicovari and Ned Laughinghouse—wounded when the Egyptian steamship Zamzam was shelled and sunk by the raider in the South Atlantic on April 17.

Since more than five months have passed without any clue to the disappearance of the sea raider with the two wounded Americans, presumably in the ship's hospital, fears were expressed here that the Tamesis has sunk, carrying Vicovari and Laughinghouse to their death.

r .y Have Hit A Mine

The British navy has made no report of the sinking of the Tamesis or any other German vessel fitting its description, but it was conjectured that the raider may have been sunk in some unreported sea battle, hit a mine, or gone down in a storm somewhere in the South Atlantic.

The State Department has made almost continuous efforts to secure information of the two Americans. On August 9 the German Government, in answer to inquiries by the American Embassy in Berlin, reported Vicovari and Laughinghouse were believed to be still aboard the raider.

In answer to urgent inquiries just made, the German Foreign Office notified the Embassy it had no information concerning the Tamesis.

Hope Dims For Lost Seamen

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 27—The Navy Department reported today that its search for the twenty-six crew members of the sunken American-owned merchant ship Montana had yielded only "negative results."

This was taken to indicate that the navy held little hope of finding any of the crew alive.

The Montana was sunk September 11 in waters approaching Iceland. It flew the Panamanian flag and was reported to carry a cargo of lumber.

The navy said that it had searched over an area of several thousand square miles "surrounding the positions where the lifeboats of the steamer were reported to have left the ship after the vessel was attacked."

British Cruiser At Boston

Washington, Sept. 27 (AP)—The Navy Department announced today that the British cruiser Newcastle was at Boston, but did not say why it was there.

The report on the presence of the ship was the latest in a series of such reports issued under a new policy of giving out some information on vessels repaired, refueled or otherwise assisted under the lend-lease program.

Aid Repayment Plan Sent To Britain

SEP 28 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 27—The basis for repayment under the first big lend-lease agreement since the War-aid Act was passed last March has been forwarded to the British Government, but House members who were told about it said today they were still unaware of its terms.

Dean Acheson, Assistant Secretary of State, told a House appropriations subcommittee considering the new $5,985,000,000 lend-lease proposal yesterday that the "basis of discussions" with Great Britain regarding conditions of repayment for American supplies had reached the point where Britain could be asked how she felt about them.

Latin-American Aid Pacts

He also told the subcommittee that several agreements already had been concluded with Latin-American governments. These are believed to be with Paraguay, Haiti and the Dominican Republic. The terms of those agreements have not been made public either, nor were they furnished the subcommittee, members said.

Under the Lend-Lease Act, the President may "sell, transfer title to, exchange, lease, lend, or otherwise dispose of" any military equipment or supplies of any kind to any Government "whose defense the President deems vital to the defense of the United States."

Exchange Idea Indicated

President Roosevelt in first proposing the lend-lease program said he wanted to take the dollar sign from aid to nations resisting Axis aggression and make no more money loans such as were made in the World War.

He has never stated definitely how he expected Britain, or any other country benefiting under the aid program, to pay back. He has indicated, however, that it would be largely an exchange proposition, with beneficiaries repaying with goods or other commodities needed by the United States after the war.

American Tax Burden Exceeds England's, C. Of C. Review Cites

Washington, Sept. 27 (AP)—The United States Chamber of Commerce said today that the new tax bill would bring the tax burden of the United States above that of Great Britain, whether measured on a per capita basis or as a percentage of national income.

Commenting that there was a general "erroneous belief" that the tax burden is higher in Britain, the chamber, in its periodical Washington review, said a "conservative estimate" for Federal, State and local taxes approximated $22,500,000,000, or a per capita figure of $168, for the current fiscal year and that the per capita burden was likely to reach $180 for a full year of new taxes.

The per capita tax in Britain for the current period is $165 and after a full year of operation of new taxes will be about $173, the chamber said.

On the basis of national incomes, the chamber said, United States taxes would take twenty-five per cent. and British taxes twenty-two per cent.

A. E. F. To Middle East?

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 27—The decisive battles of the war will be fought and decided in the Middle East, Demaree Bess, a foreign correspondent, predicted today upon arrival on the Yankee Clipper from Lisbon. He has been in Europe and the Middle East four years.

Bess said he believed the war would last three more years, declaring that neither side had shown any signs of cracking.

"You can't beat Germany unless her army is beaten," he said, "and the implication from that is an American expeditionary force."

U. S. At War's Verge: Knox

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 27—Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox and Senator Elbert D. Thomas (Dem., Utah) urged in separate declarations today that Neutrality Act restrictions be lifted to give the United States a free hand in protecting its world interests.

Knox asserted in an article in the Foreign Commerce Weekly that "the United States stands today on the threshold of World War No. 2."

"I was against the neutrality acts at the time of their passage," he said, "I can only once again urge their repeal."

The magazine for which he wrote is an official publication of the Department of Commerce.

30.24-12083

30.24—12083

Would Let Roosevelt Scrap Act

Senator Thomas said he was opposed to "tying the hands of the Chief Executive in this time of crisis" and proposed that President Roosevelt be given complete discretionary authority to scrap the neutrality legislation.

"We have been abandoning our neutrality step by step," Thomas, a high-ranking member of the Foreign Relations Committee, told reporters.

"There is not much left of the Neutrality Act now except the prohibitions against the arming of merchant ships, against sending ships into belligerent ports and against Americans traveling on belligerent vessels.

Would Keep Arms-Export Curb

"There are some parts of the neutrality law which might be retained, such as that providing Government control over munition exports, but I think the President should be given a free hand to decide what is needed and what is not."

Thomas said a simple bill could authorize the President "to fix such regulations regrading neutrality as he deemed necessary in the national interest according to the circumstances of the time."

Secretary Knox followed up his declaration that war was near with an assertion that "it is imperative that we take every necessary measure to preserve our foreign commerce and the lives of our merchant seamen from dstruction by commerce raiders."

Knox Tells Navy's Role

Discussing the navy's role, he added: "We must both hunt down enemy raiders and at the same time convoy our ships to protect them against such hostile craft as elude our patrols.

"The proportion in which the two methods might be combined is, of course, a military secret of the first importance. . . . Suffice it to say that our naval experts are studying both offensive and defensive methods of protecting our shipping and, if necessary, will combine them into the most efficient system."

Three Sea Routes To Defend

He referred to President Roosevelt's promise to protect shipping in the "defensive waters" of the United States and gave an indication of where those waters are by saying:

"There are three principal routes along which we must protect our ocean trade: The North Atlantic route to Europe, the sea lanes southward to both coasts of South America, and the long sweep across the Pacific westward to Australia, the East Indies and India."

South Pacific Bases Needed

In this connection he said the nation was "deficient" in naval bases in the South Pacfic. Seaplane needs have been partly filled in those waters, he said, by the establishment of bases on Johnston Island, Palmyra Island and Samoa, but "we still lack bases from which we can operate surface craft in the South Pacific."

The article was published during Knox's absence on an inspection of the naval base at Bermuda.

Senate Fight Foreseen

Congressional leaders expected to confer with Mr. Roosevelt regarding modification of the neutrality law early next week. Indications were that the President would request major changes but would not ask that the present law be repealed entirely, as proposed by Senator Kenneth McKellar (Dem., Tenn.), an Administration supporter.

Although one Administration leader said the Senate and House votes for modification of the act "will be as safe as an investment in the Washington Monument," there were signs that a substantial Senate fight would be made.

Thomas said he assumed "there will be the usual opposition to any new proposal," and Senator Gerald P. Nye (Rep., N. D.) asserted that "thus far the Administration has not designated its proposed repeal or modification of neutrality as a move designed to keep us out of war."

"Step Toward War," Says Nye

"Only for the lack of that claim, does the proposal differ from all the others which we see now as having been steps toward war," he asserted.

Nye, an opponent of Administration foreign policy, told newsmen that the existing neutrality provisions "are all that remains of law to prevent our being pushed straight into the war.

"Because of that, the new repeal or revision legislation might well be called an indirect declaration of war. I don't think such legislation can be enacted, because Congress obviously is not ready to vote for a declaration of war."

FIGHT THREATENED ON NEUTRALITY ACT

La Follette Makes Clear Opposition Will Resist Any Revision

President And Leaders In Congress Expected To Confer Tomorrow

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 27—Opponents of Administration foreign policy were organizing today for a fight against revision of the Neutrality Act, and Senator La Follette (Prog.-Wis.) made it clear that opposition Senators would resist any changes.

President Roosevelt is expected to confer with his Congressional lieutenants Monday and to decide then what recommendations to make in a formal message to Congress later in the week.

La Follette Opposes Move

"I am opposed to either repeal or modification of the Neutrality Act," La Follette told reporters. "Either proposal would be another step toward actual participation in the war. Therefore, either would be violative of the pledges President Roosevelt made in the 1940 campaign."

Saying that the Administration had not yet given a clear-cut outline of what changes were wanted in the Neutrality Act, La Follette added that "apparently they are trying to decide whether to bury it completely or to leave a skeleton hanging up."

Another Administration opponent, Senator Johnson (Rep., Cal.), will return here early next week and, other Senators said, is expected to call a meeting of the "non-interventionist bloc" immediately after Mr. Roosevelt announces his recommendations.

SEP 28 1941

Present Neutrality Law

Johnson is ranking minority member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and has been in the forefront of the Congressional battles against Mr. Roosevelt's international policies.

The present neutrality law, enacted in 1939, forbids the arming of American merchant ships and prevents them from entering belligerent ports or combat areas fixed by the President. In addition, it prohibits Americans from traveling on the vessels of belligerent nations.

On the Administration side of the neutrality revision question, there were two separate declarations today that President Roosevelt should be given a free hand in dealing with foreign policy.

War Near, Knox Says

They came from Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy, and Senator Thomas (Dem., Utah), a high-ranking member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee. Knox, writing in the Foregin Commerce Weekly, said that this country was standing "on the threshold of World War No. 2" and added:

"I was against the neutrality acts at the time of their passage. I can only once again urge their repeal."

Thomas told reporters he did not want to "tie the hands of the Chief Executive in this time of crisis" and asserted that the President should be given "as much freedom as possible in handling our foreign relations."

NAZIS CERTAIN TO BEAT SOVIET, FLYNN ASSERTS

America First Official Declares U. S. 'Next' To Fight For England

SEP 28 1941

Says Britain 'Has No Intention' To Invade Continent To Attack

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 27—John T. Flynn expressed certainty tonight that Germany would conquer Russia and declared that the United States was next on "England's list" to fight the Nazis because "England has no intention of invading the Continent and attacking Hitler."

In an address prepared for broadcast, the chairman of the New York chapter of the America First Committee asserted that "America has been selected, is being prepared and propagandized to fight, not her own battle, for she is not mixed up in this, but England's battle.

Says "We Are Dupes"

"Yet," he said, "we are such dupes that we allow British statesmen and propagandists to tell us that she is fighting ours.

Germany, he declared, has more guns, tanks and planes than the combined armies of the world. He quoted John J. McCloy, Assistant Secretary of War, as stating the Nazis had 10,000,000 men under arms.

Asks Of "Stake In War"

"If we fight the Germans we will have to have as many men in our army and as many planes, guns and tanks as they have, because we will have to go 3,500 miles away from our bases to fight them on their own soil and behind their own fortifications," he said.

"Are you aware of any stake you have in this war, is any material or spiritual thing of ours . . . involved to such a point that you are willing to raise these vast armies, send them throughout the world and cripple your whole economic and social system for years in the effort?

Paint To "Stop Hitler"

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 27—Five thousand union painters, working on a Saturday for the first time in twenty years, today donated their $50,000 in wages to a "stop-Hitler" campaign.

On each of 1,000 jobs the painters displayed signs showing why they were working a sixth day and explaining the money earned would go to the Committee to Defend America. Posters read "Stop Hitler now" and "Help Britain defend America."

Legion Sons Won't Fight Naziism Alongside Reds

Indianapolis, Sept. 27 (AP)—National headquarters of the American Legion announced today that C. M. Wilson, national director of the Sons of the American Legion, had sent a "sharply-worded" refusal of an invitation by the Soviet Embassy at Washington to participate in sending messages to an "anti-Nazi youth meeting" in Moscow tomorrow.

"The Sons of the American Legion, with more than 500,000 members throughout the country, will not be duped into becoming affiliated with or cooperating with Communists or any other foreign-inspired youth movement," Wilson said in answer to the invitation extended through D. Chuvahkin, first secretary of the U. S. S. R. Embassy.

Wilson said his organization was governed in policy by mandates of the American Legion and pointed out that the Legion said by resolution in its Milwaukee convention its "opposition to Communism remains unaltered" and that it regarded "Communism, Fascism and Naziism as equally false and dangerous."

Jan Valtin Suggests U. S. Adopt 'Positive Slogan'

Tells Librarians 'Defense of America' Is Too Negative

MOHONK LAKE, N. Y., Sept. 27 (AP).—Jan Valtin, writer and former Communist, suggests America adopt "a positive slogan," such as "the reconquest of the world for democracy," rather than "defense of America," which he terms "too negative."

The author of "Out of the Night" proposed the slogan to the New York State Library Association last night after noting "a decided increase of Communist activity in America" since the war between Russia and Germany.

"Communism appears to be growing more and more respectable since Stalin and Hitler are no longer in agreement," he observed. Mr. Valtin maintained that France "likely would become Bolshevistic if Hitler loses," because the French "have lost their idealism and faith in democracies."

Dr. Harold F. Peterson, professor of history at the Buffalo State Teachers' College, said the United States "will be lucky to win the friendship of Latin America in time."

The association elected Robert W. G. Vail, of Albany president, and Alice L. Jewett, of Mount Vernon, vice-president.

California Labor's Russian Aid Stand

San Francisco, Sept. 27 (AP)—The California State Federation of Labor favors sending planes, tanks and other war material to Russia for its war against Germany, but believes "this aid should be given without any moral support."

The federation's annual convention took this stand last night after turning down nine other proposals favoring degrees of support for the Soviet Union.

Senators to See 6 Films in Test On Propaganda

D. Worth Clark Says Bid for a Formal Investigation May Hinge on Viewing

SEP 28 1941

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP).—Chairman D. Worth Clark, Democrat, of Idaho, predicted today that the decision of a Senate committee on whether to recommend a formal investigation of alleged war propaganda in the films will depend largely on the members' reaction to the showing of a half-dozen films.

The committee plans to view during the week of Oct. 6 some of the pictures mentioned in the testimony it has received. Senator Clark told reporters that, so far as he personally was concerned, the films themselves would speak louder than any of the dozen witnesses who have testified in three weeks of stormy hearings. The hearings were recessed yesterday until Oct. 6.

Among pictures which were described to the committee as possibly containing propaganda were "Convoy," "Flight Command," "Escape," "That Hamilton Woman," "Man Hunt," "The Great Dictator" and "Sergeant York."

A list of those to be viewed by the committee has not yet been compiled.

Senator Clark said that after hearing testimony from both sides he was undecided whether there had been a concerted effort by motion picture producers to put the public in a frame of mind where it would approve American entry into the war.

He said he believed, however, that the evidence taken by the Interstate Commerce subcommittee tended to show that five major companies virtually controlled the production, distribution and exhibition of motion pictures.

The chairman said the committee might recall to the stand Howard Dietz, advertising and publicity manager for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer pictures, who previously had denied that M.-G.-M. ever canceled any newspaper advertising in retaliation for unfavorable reviews on its pictures.

James Stahlman, publisher of "The Nashville (Tenn.) Banner," later told the committee his newspaper had received a telegram from a national advertising agency representing M.-G.-M. canceling advertising because the paper refused to withdraw a column written by Jimmy Fidler, Hollywood commentator. Mr. Stahlman said the cancellation order later was withdrawn.

Senator Clark said Will Hays president of the Motion Picture Producers of America, had agreed to testify before the committee.

The subcommittee is considering a resolution by Senators Gerald P. Nye, Republican, of North Dakota, and Bennett C. Clark, Democrat, of Missouri, for a formal inquiry into alleged war propaganda.

Ten Mail Sacks From Dennett's Office Turn Up

Fish's Secretary Finds Them in House Building, Thinks Trucker Dumped Them

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27 (AP).—Sought in a grand jury investigation into whether the foreign agents registration act has been violated, ten document-filled mail sacks turned up today in the House Office Building.

Walter L. Reynolds, secretary to Representative Hamilton Fish, Republican, of New York, announced that he had discovered them across a hallway from Mr. Fish's storage room on the sixth floor of the building. They were not, he emphasized, in any spot under Mr. Fish's jurisdiction.

Prescott Dennett, secretary of the Make-Europe-Pay-War Debts Committee, was subpoenaed by the grand jury earlier this week. Subsequently, the Justice Department asserted that twenty or thirty mail sacks of papers were removed from Mr. Dennett's office after the subpoena was served.

Government investigators went to local offices of the America First Committee and hauled away several sacks which they said were among those which had been in Mr. Dennett's apartment. Mrs. Bennett Champ Clark, chairman of the local chapter of the America First Committee and wife of the Missouri senior Senator, said the sacks contained "just franked speeches by various Senators." She accused the Justice Department of trying to smear her organization.

Mr. Reynolds gave this account in relating the discovery of the sacks today:

Mr. Dennett called Mr. Fish's office last Tuesday to say that he had about 500 old speeches by the Representative and was told the office would send for them. A truck from the house postoffice was dispatched, and returned with several mail sacks addressed to the America First Committee which Mrs. Fish's office refused to accept.

Communiques of Belligerent Powers

German

BERLIN, Sept. 27 (AP).—A communique from Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's headquarters:

The big battle near Kiev is finished, as reported in a special announcement. In a two-sided encirclement in a tremendous area we succeeded in uprooting the Dnieper defenses and destroying five Soviet armies without even the weakest units having had a chance to escape entrapment.

In the course of operations carried out in closest co-operation between the army and air force, a total of 665,000 prisoners were taken; 884 tanks, 3,718 cannon and an unsurveyable amount of other war material either were captured or destroyed. The opponents' sanguinary losses again were very high.

Thus, a victory was won which is unparalleled in history. Exploitation of these successes is in full swing. The air force bombed armament plants in the Tula region and military objectives in Moscow.

In the fight against British supply shipping, combat planes sank two freighters aggregating 25,000 tons from a convoy east of Hull last night. Additional air raids were directed against harbor facilities on the south and east coasts of the isle.

Weak Royal Air Force groups entered the German Bight and western Germany last night. Bombs caused insignificant damage.

MOSCOW, Sept. 28 (Sunday) (AP).—A Soviet Information Bureau communique:

During Saturday our troops fought the enemy along the entire front.

During Thursday forty-four German aircraft were destroyed. We lost nineteen planes.

MOSCOW, Sept. 27 (AP).—A Soviet Information Bureau communique:

In the course of the night of Sept. 26, our troops fought the enemy along the whole front.

According to incomplete figures within the last few days more than 4,000 German soldiers and officers have been killed, and sixty-six enemy planes, thirty-four tanks, thirty guns, thirty machine guns, twenty mine throwers, nearly 100 trucks and a large quantity of rifles, automatics and ammunition have been destroyed at the approaches to Leningrad.

On Sept. 25, the enemy tried to launch an offensive on one sector of the Leningrad front, but was repulsed with heavy losses. More than 200 German soldiers and officers were left on the battlefield.

In three days of strenuous fighting, Commander Krivenko's detachment operating in the northwestern direction of the front annihilated the 1st Battalion and the 3d Regiment of an S. S. division and several companies. Nearly 1,500 German soldiers and officers were killed and four tanks and several anti-tank guns destroyed in this action. This detachment [illegible] four German anti-tank guns, two mine throwers, three trucks and one wireless station.

HELSINKI, Sept. 27 (AP).—A Finnish high command communique:

Our forces occupied Konevitsa Monastery (an island in Lake Ladoga) on Sept. 26 at 12:30 p. m.

The principal monastery buildings near by were found undamaged. The main landing stage of the monastery, on the other hand, was burned, while two landing stages on the eastern part of the island, built by the Bolsheviks, were intact. When leaving, the enemy neglected to destroy part of the fortifications and connected buildings.

A Finnish air force communique:

Friday, our bombers successfully bombed the Petroski railroad station and the Suoju station north of the city along the Murmansk line, hitting trains at both places.

Between Petroski and Lotinanpelto two armored Red trains were bombed heavily. Northwest of Petroski, at Verhovshka, enemy heavy artillery positions were bombed twice, and direct hits were scored.

Southwest of Petroski in an air fight against six Red fighters Finnish flyers shot down five. Later in the same area, three Red fighters were shot in another combat.

West of Petroski Finnish flyers shot down one Red bomber, and ground fire destroyed five Red planes. Enemy losses totaled fourteen planes, whereas only one Finnish plane failed to return to its base.

Another Air Ministry communique:

Blenheim aircraft of the bomber command, with strong forces of fighters, carried out successful operations over northern France this afternoon. The railway center at Amiens and the railway junction near La Bassee were bombed with good results.

Twenty-one enemy fighters were destroyed by our fighters. Fourteen of our fighters were lost, but the pilots of three are safe. None of our bombers is missing.

During an offensive patrol this morning one of our fighters was lost.

A communique of the Air and Home Security Ministries:

A communique of the Royal Air Force Middle East command:

Tripoli and Bengasi were raided by aircraft of the R. A. F. on the nights of Sept. 24 and 25.

Aircraft of the fleet air arm also took part in the operations at Tripoli, where considerable damage was done. Bombs fell on barrack blocks, near a power station and in the harbor area. Searchlight positions were machine gunned.

At Bengasi, shipping and harbor installations were attacked. Direct hits were obtained on vessels, and fires broke out. Bombs also fell at bases of the central Cathedral Juliana moles.

In daylight operations in Libya and Tripolitania, our aircraft bombed a motor transport column on the coast road east of Sirte. A number of lorries were blown up and a tank truck was blown off the road while other vehicles were set on fire. Direct hits were obtained on motor transport concentrations.

Between Tripoli and the Tunisian frontier, bomber aircraft of the R. A. F. also attacked motor transports and machine-gunned aircraft on the ground.

Merchantmen were sighted off Tripoli, and one ship, which received two hits, exploded and sank in flames. Another ship probably was damaged by a near miss. All vessels in the convoy were machine-gunned.

Aircraft of the South African Air Force effectively bombed a camp and supply depot near a landing ground at Gembat.

The harbor at Palermo was raided by heavy bombers of the R. A. F. during the night of Sept. 24. Bombs hit a drydock and many fires broke out near by.

In Ethiopia, our aircraft machine-gunned enemy troops in the Deberach area.

From all these operations our aircraft returned safely.

ROME, Sept. 27 (AP).—The Italian high command communique:

In North Africa, on the land front at Sollum, German troops captured some British troops and vehicles.

Tripoli, Bengasi and Palermo again submitted to enemy air raids. There were no casualties. Two enemy bombers were brought down by ground defenses of Bengasi. One enemy machine was shot down by fighters. A fourth enemy aircraft was forced to land in our lines and the crew were taken prisoner.

IN OTHER ENGAGEMENTS IT WAS SAID THAT "DURING THE LAST FEW DAYS A TANK UNIT KILLED MORE THAN 1,500 OFFICERS AND MEN."

THE RADIO ALSO SAID A UNIT COMMANDED BY COMRADE DENISOV ANNIHILATED A PICKED NAZI REGIMENT FROM HAMBURG IN THREE DAYS OF FIERCE FIGHTING.

ANOTHER UNIT WAS SAID TO HAVE KILLED 500 GERMAN SOLDIERS AND CAPTURED A LARGE TRANSPORT COLUMN.

WITH THE RED ARMY ON THE WESTERN FRONT, SEPT. 27-(AP)-THE POLITICAL COMMISSAR, WHOM PREMIER JOSEPH STALIN HAS CALLED "THE FATHER AND SOUL OF THE REGIMENT," IS BACK AT HIS OLD POST PECULIAR TO THE RED ARMY, SHARING COMMAND WITH MILITARY OFFICERS.

THE POLITICAL COMMISSAR SYSTEM, WHICH WAS DROPPED AFTER THE RUSSIAN-FINNISH WAR IN 1939-40, WAS REVIVED SOON AFTER GERMANY LAUNCHED HER DRIVE TO THE EAST. NOW COMMISSARS ARE SEEN SIDE BY SIDE WITH THE COMMANDERS OF EACH ARMY, DIVISION AND REGIMENT. EACH SMALLER UNIT HAS A "POLITICAL WORKER."

RELATIONS BETWEEN THE POLITICAL AND MILITARY OFFICERS, BASED ON A TRADITION FOUNDED MORE THAN 20 YEARS AGO, APPEAR TO BE CLOSE AND SYMPATHETIC AND THE SYSTEM, AFTER A ONE-YEAR LAPSE, SEEMS TO WORK SMOOTHLY.

SEP 28 1941

EXCEPT FOR RED, DIAMOND-SHAPED INSIGNIA ON THEIR COLLARS, COMMISSARS LOOK LIKE ANY OTHER KHAKI-CLAD OFFICERS IN THIS ARMY.

THEY COUNTER-SIGN ALL MILITARY ORDERS, GO INTO ACTION AND GENERALLY SHARE IN THE MILITARY AS WELL AS POLITICAL LIFE OF THEIR UNITS.

I TALKED WITH SEVERAL OF THEM BEHIND THE FRONT LINES.

THEY HAVE A THREE FOLD TASK, ONE SAID, LISTING POLITICAL EDUCATION, MILITARY EDUCATION AND THE REALIZATION OF MILITARY OBJECTIVES.

LECTURES, NEWSPAPERS, BOOKS, MOTION PICTURES AND TRAINING IN THE CARE OF EQUIPMENT ARE INCLUDED IN THE EDUCATIONAL PROCESS.

MOSCOW--FIRST ADD NIGHT LEAD RUSSIAN (BJT) XXX A VILLAGE.

THE MID-DAY COMMUNIQUE STATED THAT MORE THAN 4,000 GERMAN OFFICERS AND MEN HAD BEEN KILLED ON THE APPROACHES LENINGRAD IN THE REPULSE OF A GERMAN ATTACK, AND THAT 66 AIRCRAFT AND 34 TANKS AND OTHER WAR MATERIAL WERE CAPTURED OR DESTROYED.

A DISPATCH TO THE ARMY NEWSPAPER RED STAR SAID THAT THE RECAPTURED VILLAGE--VILLAGE "N"---WAS RETAKEN BY THE RUSSIANS WITH AN ASSAULT IN WHICH PLANES, TANKS AND INFANTRY WERE COORDINATED. THE GERMAN AIR FORCE, ACCORDING TO THE SOVIET ACCOUNT, DID NOT APPEAR IN THE LOW AUTUMN SKY.

SEP 28 1941

ALTHOUGH IT WAS APPARENT THAT THE GERMANS WERE NOT WEAKENING IN THEIR VIOLENT PRESSURE, THE RUSSIANS SAID THAT THEIR FORCES HAD SCORED SUCCESSES ON THE CENTRAL FRONT WHERE THEY HAVE BEEN REPORTED MAINTAINING A SUSTAINED COUNTERDRIVE PUSHING THE GERMANS BACK TO THE WEST.

THE SOVIET COMMUNIQUE SAID THAT MORE THAN 300 GERMAN OFFICERS AND MEN WERE KILLED IN ONE ACTION ON THIS FRONT, AND THAT 24 TANKS AND OTHER EQUIPMENT WERE DESTROYED.

RED STAR PUBLISHED A DETAILED ACCOUNT OF THE OPERATIONS OF BRITISH AIRMEN WORKING ON THE FRONT WITH THEIR RUSSIAN ALLIES.

THE ACCOUNT SAID THAT "HEALTHY, HIGH-SPIRITED" ENGLISH PILOTS ARE FLYING THEIR HURRICANE CRAFT ALONGSIDE RUSSIAN LITTLE FALCONS."

TASS REPORTED THAT PREPARATIONS FOR TRAINING UNDER THE NEW UNIVERSAL MILITARY TRAINING PROGRAM, TO START OCT. 1, WERE IN FULL SWING IN OFFICES AND FACTORIES. MANY MOSCOW PLANTS AND FACTORIES ALREADY HAVE FORMED TRAINING UNITS, THE AGENCY SAID.

THE TEXT OF THE MESSAGE:

"SO LONG AS FINLAND IN ALLIANCE WITH GERMANY IS CARRYING ON AN AGGRESSIVE WAR AGAINST AND ON THE TERRITORY OF AN ALLY OF BRITAIN, HIS MAJESTY'S GOVERNMENT ARE BOUND TO CONSIDER FINLAND TO BE A MEMBER OF THE AXIS SINCE IT IS IMPOSSIBLE TO SEPARATE THE WAR WHICH FINLAND IS WAGING AGAINST RUSSIA FROM THE GENERAL EUROPEAN WAR.

SEP 28 1941

"IF, THEREFORE, THE FINNISH GOVERNMENT SHOULD PERSIST IN INVADING PURELY RUSSIAN TERRITORY A SITUATION WILL ARISE IN WHICH BRITAIN WILL BE FORCED TO TREAT FINLAND AS AN OPEN ENEMY NOT ONLY WHILE THE WAR LASTS BUT ALSO WHEN PEACE COMES TO BE MADE.

"HIS MAJESTY'S GOVERNMENT WOULD GREATLY REGRET SUCH A DEVELOPMENT IN VIEW OF THE FRIENDSHIP WHICH ALWAYS EXISTED BETWEEN BRITAIN AND FINLAND.

"ALTHOUGH THE FINNISH GOVERNMENT HAVE EXPELLED THE BRITISHN MINISTER FROM HELSINKI, HIS MAJESTY'S GOVERNMENT ARE READY TO OVERLOOK THIS ACT OF DISCOURTESY AND WOULD WELCOME EARLY RESTORATION OF NORMAL DIPLOMATIC INTERCOURSE BETWEEN THE TWO COUNTRIES.

"BUT THE FINNISH GOVERNMENT WILL REALIZE THAT FOR THIS TO BE POSSIBLE THE FIRST ESSENTIAL IS THAT FINLAND SHOULD TERMINATE HER WAR AGAINST RUSSIA AND EVACUATE ALL TERRITORIES BEYOND HER FRONTIERS OF 1939.

"AS SOON AS THIS HAS BEEN ACCOMPLISHED, HIS MAJESTY'S GOVERNMENT WOULD BE READY, FOR THEIR PART, TO STUDY SYMPATHETICALLY ANY PROPOSALS FOR IMPROVEMENT OF RELATIONS BETWEEN BRITAIN AND FINLAND EVEN THOUGH CONTINUED PRESENCE OF GERMAN ARMIES ON FINNISH SOIL MIGHT RENDER

DEAT, WHO WAS WOUNDED BY AN ASSASSIN ON AUG. 28 ALONG WITH PIERRE LAVAL, FORMER VICE PREMIER OF THE VICHY GOVERNMENT, DECLARED THE UNITED STATES LABORS UNDER THREE MISCONCEPTIONS TOWARD FRANCE AND IN TURN ASKED AMERICA THREE QUESTIONS.

"THE FIRST MISUNDERSTANDING IS THE AMERICAN IDEA THAT FRANCE WANTS HELP," DEAT SAID. "WE HAVE FINALLY LEARNED WE MUST BECOME STRONG ENOUGH TO HELP OURSELVES.

"THE SECOND MISUNDERSTANDING IS THE LUDICROUS IDEA THAT WE ARE

ENSLAVED OR TORTURED. THE FACT IS WE WERE BEATEN MILITARILY EXACTLY AS WE DESERVED TO BE AFTER 20 YEARS OF CONFUSION AND WEAKNESS...

"A THIRD AMERICAN MISUNDERSTANDING IS THAT WE WANT SOMEONE TO OCCUPY OUR EMPIRE FOR US. WE DO NOT. WE SUCCEEDED IN DEFENDING DAKAR AND WE NEARLY SUCCEEDED WITH SYRIA. WE ARE NOW STRONG ENOUGH TO DO THE JOB OURSELVES AND WE ARE GOING TO DO IT."

DEAT SAID FRENCHMEN WANT AMERICA TO ANSWER THREE QUESTIONS: WHY THE UNITED STATES REGARDS HERSELF AS THREATENED? WHY THE U.S. WHICH TWO YEARS AGO PURSUED AN INDEPENDENT POLICY, "IS NOW APPARENTLY ABSORBED IN EUROPEAN, RUSSIAN AND ORIENTAL PROBLEMS? WHO DOMINATES BRITISH-AMERICAN RELATIONSHIPS, THE UNITED STATES OR BRITAIN?

UNDATED TRIPARTITE PACT (PMS BUDGET)

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

ONE YEAR AGO TODAY JAPAN, GERMANY AND ITALY BECAME THE THREE MUSKETEERS OF WORLD TOTALITARIANISM, SIGNING A 10-YEAR ONE-FOR-ALL AND ALL-FOR-ONE PLEDGE AIMED UNMISTAKABLY AT INTIMIDATING AND NEUTRALIZING THE UNITED STATES.

THE AXIS WAS IN THE ASCENDANT THEN, BRITAIN SEEMED TO BE STAGGERING, RUSSIA WAS GERMANY'S OFFICIAL FRIEND, AND JAPAN--WITH VAULTING AMBITIONS DESPITE HER LONG AND WEARISOME INVOLVEMENT IN CHINA--WAS INCLINED TO CONGRATULATE HERSELF ON HER SHREWDNESS IN LINING UP WITH ADOLF HITLER.

SEP 28 1941

THE HITLER "NEW ORDER FOR EUROPE" WAS TO HAVE ITS ORIENTAL COUNTERPART, WITH JAPAN AS ITS MASTER.

TODAY, SLIGHTLY PERPLEXED AFTER THE YEAR'S WHIRL OF EVENTS, JAPAN APPARENTLY FINDS HERSELF WONDERING ABOUT THAT GERMAN TIE. ONLY THE MOST PERFUNCTORY OBSERVANCES OF THE PACT ANNIVERSARY ARE BEING HELD IN TOKYO TODAY AND JAPAN SEEMS TO BE ANXIOUSLY SEEKING SOME MEANS OF SAVING FACE.

AT THE OUTSET OF HER FIRST YEAR AS A TRIPARTITE PACT MEMBER, JAPAN'S HOPES WERE HIGH. SHE SIGNED A "PEACE TREATY" WITH THE GOVERNMENT OF HER CHINESE PUPPET, WANG CHING-WEI OF NANKING; SENT A NEW AMBASSADOR TO WASHINGTON, AND EVEN WAS REPORTED TO HAVE SENT OUT SOME VAGUE FEELERS ON MEDIATING THE EUROPEAN WAR.

BRITAIN REACTED TO THE PACT BY REOPENING THE BURMA ROAD, CHIEF SUPPLY ROUTE FOR THE FREE CHINA OF CHIANG KAI-SHEK, WHICH HAD BEEN CLOSED AT JAPANESE INSISTENCE.

JAPANESE FOREIGN MINISTER YOSUKE MATSUOKA LATER WENT ON A STATE VISIT TO BERLIN AND ROME, TALKING TO HITLER AND BENITO MUSSOLINI ABOUT THE BLUEPRINTS FOR THEIR "NEW ORDER."

ON THE WAY HOME, HE STOPPED IN MOSCOW AND SIGNED ON EASTER SUNDAY A 10-YEAR NEUTRALITY PACT WITH SOVIET RUSSIA, INCLUDING PLEDGES OF MUTUAL RESPECT FOR JAPAN'S PET OFFSPRING, MANCHUKUO, AND FOR RUSSIA'S MONGOLIAN PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC, SCARRED BY BORDER WARFARE.

BUT THE UNITED STATES ADOPTED THE LEASE-LEND PROGRAM AND COMMITTED HERSELF TO VAST MATERIAL SUPPORT FOR BRITAIN AND CHINA. BRITAIN MEANWHILE RAPIDLY BUILT UP AN IMPOSING MILITARY AND NAVAL FORCE AT SINGAPORE, AND THE DUTCH EAST INDIES POLITELY SCORNED JAPAN'S DEMANDS FOR THE LION'S SHARE OF SUCH VITAL WAR SINEWS AS OIL, TIN AND RUBBER.

ON TOP OF ALL THIS CAME A STARTLING DEVELOPMENT THAT TANGLED THE THREADS OF JAPANESE DIPLOMACY: GERMANY ATTACKED RUSSIA.

ARTICLE 5 OF THE THREE-POWER PACT SPECIFICALLY STATED THE TREATY DID NOT APPLY IN ANY WAY TO RELATIONS WITH RUSSIA. SO JAPAN REMAINED NEUTRAL, BUT SHE LOST LITTLE TIME IN GETTING RID OF FOREIGN MINISTER MATSUOKA, THE MAN WHO HAD PUT HER IN THE EMBARRASSING POSITION OF BEING FRIENDS TO BOTH SIDES.

SEP 28 1941

MINDFUL OF HER OWN "NEW ORDER," JAPAN MOVED INTO ALL FRENCH INDO-CHINA WITH OSTENSIBLE FRENCH CONSENT AND EDGED TOWARD THAILAND, SINGAPORE AND THE INDIES.

THE UNITED STATES, THE BRITISH EMPIRE AND THE DUTCH EAST INDIES PROMPTLY FROZE JAPANESE ASSETS. THE UNITED STATES ALSO EMBARGOED SHIPMENT OF MUCH-NEEDED AVIATION GASOLINE TO JAPAN.

THE UNITED STATES STARTED SENDING AID TO RUSSIA AND COLDLY TURNED DOWN JAPANESE REPRESENTATIONS OVER SHIPMENT OF AVIATION GASOLINE TO VLADIVOSTOK. RUSSIA FLATLY TOLD JAPAN THAT ANY INTERFERENCE WITH THOSE SHIPMENTS WOULD BE AN UNFRIENDLY ACT.

AT THIS JUNCTURE, THE JAPANESE GOVERNMENT BEGAN TALKING ABOUT PATCHING THINGS UP WITH THE UNITED STATES, WHICH HAD THE FULL BACKING OF BRITAIN IN THE DELICATE MANEUVERING.

SEP 28 1941

PREMIER PRINCE FUMIMARO KONOYE SENT A PERSONAL NOTE TO PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, PRESUMABLY WITH A VIEW TO INSTITUTING NEGOTIATIONS FOR A SETTLEMENT OF PROBLEMS IN THE PACIFIC.

UNITED STATES AND JAPANESE TALKS ARE CONTINUING, BUT THUS FAR THERE HAVE BEEN NO TANGIBLE RESULTS.

IN FACT, AS U.S. NAVY SHIPS SAIL UNDER ORDERS TO SHOOT ON SIGHT ANY GERMAN OR ITALIAN SUBMARINES OR RAIDERS, JAPAN SEEMS MORE AND MORE INCLINED TO TAKE REFUGE IN A SENTENCE OF THE TRIPARTITE TREAT WHICH MAY CONTAIN A JOKER:

"THEY (JAPAN, GERMANY AND ITALY) FURTHER UNDERTAKE TO ASSIST ONE ANOTHER WITH ALL POLITICAL, ECONOMIC AND MILITARY MEANS WHEN ONE OF TH THREE CONTRACTING POWERS IS ATTACKED BY A POWER AT PRESENT NOT ENGAGED IN THE EUROPEAN WAR OR IN THE CHINESE-JAPANESE CONFLICT."

THE KEY WORD THERE IS "ATTACKED," A WORD WHICH JAPAN HAS SHOWN AN INCLINATION TO DEFINE TO THE EXTENT NECESSARY TO KEEP HER FROM TAKING ON ANY MORE OPPONENTS.

SEP 28 1941

THE HELP WHICH RUSSIA GETS THIS FALL AND WINTER FROM THE WEST WILL TAKE THE FORM OF BRITISH AND INDIAN TROOPS OPERATING THEIR OWN TANKS AND ARMORED CARS IN DEFENSE OF THE CAUCASUS, ACCORDING TO THE BEST OF THE PRESENT INDICATIONS.

THERE HAS BEEN A GREAT DEAL OF TALK IN BRITAIN AND THIS COUNTRY ABOUT THE NECESSITY OF ECONOMIC AID TO RUSSIA, BUT VERY LITTLE ABOUT HOW IT IS TO GET THERE. THE RUSSIANS' PRIMARY NEED IN THE NEXT FEW MONTHS PROBABLY WILL BE TANKS. IN BRITAIN THEY ARE SPEEDING UP PRODUCTION OF THESE IMPORTANT MONSTERS AND PROMISING THAT RUSSIA WILL HAVE A LION'S SHARE OF THIS PRODUCTION. BUT IT IS ONLY NECESSARY TO LOOK AT THE MAP TO REALIZE THAT THE BUSINESS OF GETTING A TANK TO RUSSIA--BY SEA TO IRAN, OVER THAT COUNTRY'S PRIMITIVE TRANSPORTATION FACILITIES TO BESIEGED SOUTHERN RUSSIA--IS A MATTER OF MONTHS.

THE RUSSIANS, HOWEVER, ARE PRESSING THEIR NEW ALLY EVER HARDER FOR AID. GENERAL SIR ARCHIBALD P.WAVELL, WHO IS IN CHARGE OF THINGS IN THE IRANIAN AREA WHERE THE BRITISH AND RUSSIAN ARMIES HAVE EFFECTED A MILITARY JUNCTION, HAS BEEN CANVASSING THE SITUATION--AND NO DOUBT COUNTING TANKS--ALL THE WAY FROM SIMLA TO CAIRO AND LONDON

30.24 — 12091

AND NOW HAS HEADED BACK AGAIN TOWARD TEHERAN. WHEN HE GETS TO THE IRANIAN CAPITAL HE MAY BE EXPECTED TO PLAN WITH THE SOVIETS THE ENTRY INTO MOTHER RUSSIA OF A BRITISH MECHANIZED FORCE WHICH WILL TRY TO HOLD PART OF THE CAUCASAN LINE, SAVE THE SOVIET OIL SUPPLY AND KEEP OPEN THE SUPPLY ROUTE FROM IRAN.

GENEGAL WAVELL IS NOT LIKELY TO MAKE THE ERROR HE DID LAST WINTER, WHEN HE STRIPPED THE NORTH AFRICAN FORCES OF EQUIPMENT IN ORDER TO SEND IT TO GREECE, WHERE IT WAS LOST FOREVER.

THE EQUIPMENT WHICH GOES INTO RUSSIA THIS FALL AND WINTER--IF IT DOES GO THERE--IS ALMOST CERTAIN TO BE THAT WHICH IS NOW AVAILABLE EAST OF SUEZ--IN SYRIA, IRAQ AND IRAN, WITH MAN-POWER ADDED FROM INDIA. THE BRITISH WILL HAVE TO COUNT ON THIS BEING ENOUGH TO HOLD THE FORT UNTIL NEW PRODUCTION FROM ENGLAND CAN GET EAST IN REAL QUANTITY NEXT SPRING.

SEP 28 1941

MEANWHILE IVAN MAISKY, THE SHREWD AND DYNAMIC RUSSIAN AMBASSADOR WHO HAS MANAGED TO STAY IN LONDOC FOR NEARLY TEN YEARS, THROUGH RUSSIAN PURGES AND TREMBLY DIPLOMATIC RELATIONS, CAN BE COUNTED ON TO KEEP PRODDING A SHARP DIPLOMATIC NEEDLE AT THE BRITISH ON EVER-MORE PRODUCTION OF MATERIEL FOR THE U.S.S.R.

IT WAS MAISKY WHO, ALMOST SINGLE-HANDED, COMBATTED FOR TWO YEARS THE DILIGENT EFFORTS OF THE NON-LAMENTED COMMITTEE ON SO-CALLED NON-INTERVENTION IN THE SPANISH WAR. THIS WAS A BODY CONCEIVED AND KEPT ALIVE BY BRITAIN AND FRANCE; OSTENSIBLY DEVOTED TO KEEPING THE SPANISH CIVIL CONFLICT FROM BECOMING A WORLD WAR, BUT SERVING ACTUALLY TO KEEP HELP FROM REACHING THE SPANISH REPUBLIC WHILE GERMANY AND ITALY, MEMBERS OF THE COMMITTEE, TESTED THEIR NEW WEAPONS ON THE REPUBLICAN SPANIARDS AND DRILLED THEIR PHONEY VOLUNTEERS IN REAL CONDITIONS OF WAR.

IN THOSE DAYS IT WAS BRITAIN'S SUAVE, YOUNG ANTHONY EDEN WHO, AS FOREIGN SECRETARY, HAD THE JOB OF TRYING TO SHUSH MAISKY, WHICH HE NEVER SUCCEEDED IN DOING. NOW, CURIOUSLY ENOUGH, IT IS EDEN, AGAIN FOREIGN SECRETARY, WHO MUST TRY TO KEEP MAISKY SATISFIED WITH BRITAIN'S HELP.

THAT THE RUSSIAN HAS LOST NOE OF HIS DRIVE WAS PROVED EARLY THIS WEEK, WHILE THE 31 MEMBERS OF THE INTER-ALLIED COUNCIL WERE DISCUSSING, UNDER THE PORTRAITS IN ST.JAMES'S PALACE, HOW TO FEED AND REBUILD EUROPE WHEN (ANF IF) HITLER IS BEATEN.

MAISKY, A PUDGY GHOST AT THIS MENTAL FEAST, POLITELY BUT SHARPLY REMINDED THE ALLIES THAT THE MAIN THING TO DO NOW IS TO GET HITLER BEATEN.

LEAD UNDATED 108TH WEEK OF THE WAR

(ADVANCE) WHILE THE GERMANS CLAIMED TO HAVE PUSHED THEIR ADVANCE INTO THE SUBURBS OF LENINGRAD IN SAVAGE STREET-TO-STREET FIGHTING LAST WEEK, THE 108TH OF THE WAR, THEY UNLOOSED A POWERFUL PUSH TO SEIZE THE CRIMEA, THE PLUM-SHAPED PENINSULA OF SOUTHERN RUSSIA WHICH WOULD GIVE THEM VIRTUAL CONTROL OF THE BLACK SEA.

AS THE WEEK CLOSED, THEY FURTHER CLAIMED TO HAVE CONCLUDED THE BATTLE OF KIEV WITH CAPTURE OF 665,000 PRISONERS AND ANNIHILATION OF FIVE SOVIET ARMIES, AND IN THE NORTH TO HAVE REACHED THE HEADWATERS OF THE VOLGA RIVER AT SELIGER LAKE, 200 MILES SOUTHEAST OF LENINGRAD.

AS IN THEIR INVASION OF CRETE, THE GERMANS SAID NOTHING OF THEIR CRIMEAN DRIVE, BUT BRITISH SOURCES SAID IT WAS ON A LAND, AIR AND SEA SCALE, WITH PARACHUTE TROOPS BEING BROUGHT INTO USE. THE RUSSIANS SAID THOUSANDS OF THEM WERE BLOWN UP BY THICKLY-SOWN MINES AND CLEVERLY CONCEALED PILLBOXES AND ARTILLERY. THE RUSSIANS DENIED THE GERMANS HAD SCORED ANY GREAT ANNIHILATION EAST OF KIEV, AND SAID THEIR COUNTERATTACKS AT LENINGRAD DROVE THE GERMANS BACK MANY MILES.

SEP 28 1941

THE INVASION OF THE CRIMEA APPEARED TO BE AN ATTEMPTED SHORT-CUT TO THE CAUCASUS OIL FIELDS, AND THE BRITISH APPARENTLY WERE MAKING PREPARATIONS TO JOIN THEIR RUSSIAN ALLIES IN A STAND TO DEFEND THEM. ASIDE FROM RUSHING TANKS, PLANES AND PILOTS TO RUSSIA, THE BRITISH APPEARED TO BE GETTING READY TO SEND AN ARMY. GEN.SIR ARCHIBALD P.WAVELL WAS ON HIS WAY TO IRAN AFTER CONFERENCES IN LONDON AND CAIRO, TO CONFER WITH THE RUSSIAN COMMANDER AT TEHERAN.

DURING THE WEEK THE THREAT TO TURKEY APPEARED TO HAVE EASED. BULGARIAN OFFICIALS DECLARED THEIR COUNTRY DOES NOT INTEND TO JOIN IN THE WAR. TURKEY RECEIVED AMERICAN-MADE PLANES FROM BRITAIN, AND GAVE THE BRITISH PERMISSION TO DEVELOP MILITARILY IMPORTANT DOCK FACILITIES AT ALEXANDRETTA.

AT SEA, THE GERMANS REPORTED A NEW U-BOAT TECHNIQUE WHICH THEY SAID HAD RESULTED IN LOSS OF 1,000,000 TONS OF BRITISH SHIPPING SINCE THE START OF THEIR RUSSIAN INVASION, AND SAID THEY PICKED 11 OUT OF 12 SHIPS IN A CONVOY OFF WEST AFRICA.

IN THE FAR EAST JAPAN CELEBRATED IN SUBDUED FASHION THE FIRST ANNIVERSARY OF HER ALLIANCE WITH GERMANY AND ITALY, WHILE HER ARMY IN CHINA, IN A NEW DRIVE, CLAIMED TO HAVE CAPTURED CHANGSHA IN HUNAN PROVINCE. SEP 29 1941

By Edwin Shanke
[By the Associated Press]

New York, Set. 29—The British radio said tonight that Czech resentment at the imposition of a state of emergency in the protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia had resulted in an unsuccessful attempt to kill Prof. Bela Tuka, Premier of Slovakia. The broadcast was heard by NBC.

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Sept. 28—Police conducted a city-wide drive today against "profiteering restaurant owners," closing several restaurants, some permanently, on charges of boosting food, beer and liquor prices.

Fines ranged from 2,000 to 18,000 marks (nominally $800 to $7,200).

Berlin, Sept. 28 (AP)—Fifty-three of the Netherlands' 140 daily newspapers must cease publication October 1 because of a paper shortage, the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung in the Netherlands reported today.

Only 130 of 600 other papers, which had editions several times a week, will be allowed to continue publication, and the number of magazines will be reduced sharply.

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Sept. 28—Gen. Alois Elias, Czech Premier, was arrested today on a charge of "preparation for high treason" and a state of civil emergency was decreed for six districts in the

30. 24 — 12095

30.24 — 12095

German protectorate of Bohemia-Moravia because of "a number of actions hostile to the Reich."

Reinhard Heydrich, deputy Reich's protector, hard-hitting right-hand man of Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler, ordered the state of emergency within twenty-four hours after formally relieving 68-year-old Baron Konstantin von Neurath. Von Neurath was said to have requested a temporary leave because of failing health.

Six Big Districts Covered

Districts covered by the emergency order are Prague, Bruena, Maehrisch-Ostrau, Klando, Koenigradz and Olmeutz.

These districts make up the most populous part of the protectorate.

SEP 29 1941

Heydrich called on President Emil Hacha to tell his reasons for ordering the state of emergency and arresting the Premier.

Hacha Pledges Cooperation

He received from Hacha a pledge of cooperation on the part of the protectorate officials and issued a statement saying, "It is expected of the population, which, in majority, recognizes as a fact the common destiny of the European peoples with Germany, that it will not permit itself in any way to be provoked by enemies of the Reich."

The official announcement said Heydrich told the President that "in recent days irresponsible elements in the pay of the enemies of Europe have committed a number of actions hostile to the Reich."

These elements, he continued, "through propaganda connected with these acts sought to bring the population of the protectorate into opposition to the interests of the Reich."

Passive Resistance Noted

Passive resistance of the Czechs has frequently been a source of trouble to the Germans since Adolf Hitler dismembered the republic.

A sign of recent increased activity of the secret police in Bohemia-Moravia has been the more extensive list in the official Gazette of confiscations of property of persons regarded as enemies of the state.

No details were released on regulations under the state of emergency, but it generally includes a cerfew, closing of theaters and other public gathering places, summary executions, exceptionally heavy prison terms and confiscation of property for acts regarded as offenses against the order and security of the state.

Differs From Martial Law

The civil state of siege differs from martial law in that extraordinary powers continue to rest in the hands of the civil administration instead of the army.

The Germans on September 10 ordered a state of civil emergency in Norway to halt the spread of strikes and sabotage. There, too, the drastic step was taken shortly after Heydrich appeared on the scene. He had gone to Oslo to confer with police heads.

Slowdown In Czech Munitions Plants Reported In London

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 28—Czech Government authorities in London said today that increasing sabotage in former Czecho-Slovakia had slowed arms factory output as much as fifty per cent., blown up a number of German troop trains and disorganized transportation.

One troop train was crushed by the collapse of a tunnel in Vlara Pass, Slovakia, just after the train entered it, said reports filtering into London. The Czech Government maintains constant communications with rebel leaders in the homeland by secret channels, the authorities said.

An arms factory "go slow" strike has crippled the output of such great concerns as the Skoda works at Pilsen, the reports said. Peasants were said to be burning granaries throughout the country in night-riding raids and then forming for angry hunger marches by day.

Secret Station Broadcasts

A secret Czech radio station called "the station for national liberation" broadcasts nightly. The announcer declared in the broadcast heard in London tonight that Reinhard Heydrich, newly-appointed German deputy protestor, was "the bloodiest man of all the bloody Nazis."

"Czech people!" he cried. "Heydrich was sent to provoke you to open revolt and to drive all the Czechs to their knees, but the unity of the Czech people will frustrate the Nazi plan."

A Czech Government official thumbing through a sheaf of messages said that workers in some armaments plants were so slow they looked like slow-motion pictures.

Blasts In Powder Works

Recently, he declared, there have been explosions in major Czecho-Slovak powder works. Railway damage was said to have been extensive.

Czech authorities credited some of the increase in sabotage to broadcasts of "Colonel Britton," the originator of the "V" campaign. Dr. Eduard Benes, President of the provisional Government, has made several broadcasts calling upon the people to maintain their passive resistance and to be prepared to "strike for freedom when the time comes."

The incidents of sabotage have increased sharply since the start of the German-Russian war because of the natural inclination of the Slavs of former Czecho-Slovakia to support Russia, the "great mother of the Slavs," authorities said.

Gives Credit To Women

"The temper of the Czech women has had much to do with the strong will of our people to resist," said one official. "A notable example of this was the hunger march of the women of Nachod recently. Their demonstrations are exceedingly embarrassing to the Germans and a source of inspiration to all true Czecho-Slovak men.

"On September 16, the anniversary of the death of President (Thomas G.) Masaryk, the Czech Government in London ordered a boycott on the Nazi-owned Czecho-Slovak newspapers. Our messages say that it was very effective.

"It must have been irritating to the Germans to find the people, almost as one man, reading Czech classics as they rode the streetcars to work.

Pictures Combined Effect

"It would be as if you stepped aboard a New York subway and discovered a whole train absorbed in Shakespeare or Milton.

"All of these incidents, large and small, must have taken their toll of Hitler's patience with the Reichsprotector von Neurath.

"Whether the tempo of the Czech resistance quickens or slackens must be decided by future events. But of one thing the world may be sure. Neither von Neuraths nor Heydrichs will cause them to shirk their responsibilities."

HIGH FASCISTS FACE PURGE, BRITISH SAY

Trouble Indicated By Criticisms In Press, London Circles Assert

Hand Of Nazis Seen In Articles—Italians Tighten Belts Under Bread Ration

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 28—Criticisms appearing in leading Italian newspapers indicate a purge of Fascist officials may be in the offing, informed London circles said tonikht.

These quarters held the view that the critical articles were instigated by the Germans with the object of tightening the Nazi grip on the internal administration of Italy.

Organized Italian resistance to German inroads are "extremely unlikely," the London sources said, but they forecast some advantage would accrue to the Allies in the event the Nazis move to win full control of the Fascist machinery.

"Overly optimistic interpretations of Italy's growing discontent with her war position should be avoided," one informed Londoner said.

Newspaper Says Compulsory Insignia Opened Eyes Of Nation

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Sept. 28—The Transportation Ministry issues new restrictions for Jews today and the newspaper Berliner Börsen Zeitung forecast additional stringent steps against the Jews, possibly including the Ghetto.

Jews, who are now recognized by the Star of David sewn on their clothing, are permitted to enter street cars, busses and other public conveyances only if these are sufficiently empty so that no waiting non-Jews need remain behind.

Not To Appear In Press

Once in the conveyances, the Jews may sit down only if all others have seats. The decree provides that the German press shall not publish these restrictions, which must be made known to Jews through their own organizations.

Börsen Zeitung said that "because the German people have clearly seen that the Jewish question must be solved without sentimentality it welcomes every step leading to a real solution and has confidence its leadership will take all necessary further measures at the proper time."

Called Disagreeable Surprise

The order requiring Jews to wear a big yellow Star of David sewn to their clothing had opened the eyes of many Germans, the newspaper said, adding in heavy, black type:

"For a large section of our people it was a disagreeable surprise to see how many of these unwanted contemporaries still live among us, namely in certain quarters of large cities; how many good houses are occupied by them at a time of homeshortage; with what a free and easy way they go about the streets as though they were alone there.

"The nation—to put it mildly—is astounded by these facts. It again finds its instinctively correct impression confirmed that Jewish wails of complaint throughout the world regarding the alleged suffering of the Jew in Germany are nothing but lying agitation."

RED WARSHIPS DECLARED HIT AT NAVAL BASE

Stukas Seeking Out Remnants Of Baltic Fleet, Nazis Say

Germans Claim Troops East Of Kiev Are On March Again

By Alvin Steinkopf

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Monday, Sept. 29—German reports said today that Kronstadt, island naval base guarding the sea approach to Leningrad, was being shelled by German big guns, and declared that troops which won the great encirclement battle of Kiev were on the march again.

A DNB dispatch early today said German troops east of Kiev had gone ahead so fast that a single German division captured 20,000 prisoners in twenty-four hours.

In the Baltic fighting German dive bombers were said to be seeking out remnants of the Soviet Baltic fleet.

The high command said German big guns had brought warships in Kronstadt harbor and the coastal area south of it "under effective fire." One Russian cruiser was said to have been set afire by the cannonade and a battleship near Kronstadt was said to have been hit by heavy bombs.

Mounted On Mainland

The German guns were believed to be mounted somewhere in the vicinity of Oranienbaum, on the mainland seven miles across the mouth of the Neva from Kronstadt and about eighteen miles from Leningrad.

At Oranienbaum they would command the only channel leading to Leningrad because the waters to the north of Kronstadt are not navigable to large ships. Russian ships still in the Baltic would have no way to reach Leningrad to aid in defense of the beleaguered city.

The communique said shelling started Friday and reports in Berlin tonight declared it was continuing.

Reds Counter-Attack

To the east of Leningrad, near the shores of Lake Ladoga, a Russian counter-attack was reported. The Germans said the attack was "spirited" and that the Russians fought heroically but made no headway.

Eight small boats trying to land Russian soldiers to aid in the attack were said to have been met by fierce machine-gun fire from the shore. One was reported set afire.

In recent hours German bombers and attack planes sweeping over Lake Ladoga have sunk fifteen small boats.

two transports, two gunboats and one tug, dispatches from air force bases said.

Mopping-Up Reported

On the land fronts the Germans were pictured as mopping up scattered Russian units and gathering strength for new assaults against the Red army in a quick followup of the battle of Kiev, which the Germans declare was the turning point of the war.

All Russian troops were said to have been cleared from the narrow peninsula that juts into the Black Sea south of Ochakov, thirty miles east of Odessa.

Bombers and fighters were said to have swept by the hundreds along rail lines in the southern and central sectors, strafing Russian troops and blasting at reinforcements and supply trains. The high command told of bombardments at Kharkov, Moscow and along the southern reaches of the Volga.

In air fights and raids on airfields yesterday 128 Russian planes were said to have been destroyed.

Finn Bombers Blast Petroskoi Rail Station

Helsinki, Sept. 28 (AP)—The Finns said tonight their bombers, concentrating on the Leningrad-Murmansk rail line, battered the important station at Petroskoi in more than a dozen consecutive attacks, hitting tracks and yards and derailing a moving train.

Tracks north of the station, 200 miles northeast of Leningrad, were said to have been cut in several places.

Successes In 3 Seas Credited To Naval Forces And Shore Batteries

Bern, Sept. 28—More Russian parachute troops have landed in Bulgaria and nine of them, fully armed with guns and ammunition in quantities, succeeded in eluding Bulgar authorities, Stefani reported tonight from Sofia.

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, Monday, Sept. 29—Five German ships, including a cruiser, a destroyer, two transports and a tanker have been sunk and two more destroyers damaged by Soviet naval forces and shore batteries in engagements in Arctic waters and the Baltic and Black Seas, the Soviet Information Bureau announced early today.

These officially reported successes at sea were coupled with accounts from the land front that the Red army had captured ten more villages in a drive from Yelnya toward Smolensk and that Nazi siege forces were hurled from three lines of trenches by Red army counter-attacks.

Sunk In Baltic Sea

The cruiser and destroyer were sunk and the other destroyers heavily damaged by Soviet coastal batteries and warships in the Baltic Sea, the early-morning communique said.

The two transports, of 8,000 and 4,000 tons, were sent to the bottom by the Red northern fleet somewhere in Arctic waters and the tanker, of 1,000 tons, was sunk in the Black Sea, it added.

Two German reconnaissance planes were destroyed over Moscow, Saturday, and two bombers yesterday, the communique said.

With the battle for Leningrad continuing with undiminished violence, a correspondent of the newspaper Pravda reported from this second city of the Soviet Union:

"We already have cracked the enemy's advance, now let us bleed him white."

Defenders Attacking

This correspondent pictured Leningrad's defenders as "attacking incessantly, then driving forward without respite."

Izvestia's war reporter on this front said the Germans were fighting back fiercely after being dislodged from their three lines of trenches because they were threatened with being shoved back to the banks of a river, which he did not name.

Along the whole bitterly-contested front from the Baltic to the Black Sea, fighting continued without letup as the war with Germany went into its fifteenth week, a Soviet communique reported.

Need For Aid Stressed

At the same time the need for speed in getting war supplies through to Russia was stressed by Bolshevik, organ of the Communist party central committee, which said United States military production already was surpassing that of the Axis.

The magazine said the American and British people now understand "that the main front in the vast, fierce battle against Hitlerism is in the U. S. S. R. and that this front demands enormous resources of men and materials. . . ."

"On the outcome of this battle," Bolshevik said, "rests the fate not only of Paris, London and Warsaw but also Washington, New York and all mankind."

Rain Falling On Entire East Front, British Say

By Ernest Agnew

London, Sept. 28 (AP)—Authoritative sources today reported it was raining along the entire Russian front and hailed it as one "good factor" in the fighting there.

Following snowfall yesterday in Moscow heavy rains drenched the fighting zones, these sources said, making it impossible for automobiles to travel more than three miles an hour on mud roads.

They reported heavy fighting on the approach to the Crimea, with no new claims by the Germans of advances against the peninsula. Otherwise all advices here on German-Soviet fighting were vague, the sources said.

Reports Of Expedition

Authoritative denials that Great Britain was planning an expeditionary force into the Caucasus Mountains failed to impress either the English public or neutral observers, who appeared convinced the British high command would move if the Germans skirted the Black Sea and started a southward march toward the Iranian oil fields.

Limited transportation facilities through Iran, however, make an expeditionary force there a long and tedious undertaking. In some quarters the belief was expressed that any British thrust into the Caucasus must await German conquest of Odessa and the Crimea.

British tank workers, who broke previous production records during the tanks-for-Russia week, were told they now must do even better. Supply Ministry officials said they planned rapid expansion of the output to supply British, Soviet and all other allied forces.

[By the Associated Press]

Bucharest, Sept. 28 — Rumanian Gen. Virgil Economu reported tonight that German attacks upon Kharkov, most important city of the Donets industrial area, and the rail center of Bryansk already "are in progress." Economu mentioned Poltava, 190 miles southeast of Kiev, as the starting point of one advancing Nazi column.

Pistol-Toting Women Form Integral Part Of Red Army

Writer Finds Them By Thousands Along Front, Ready To Fight If They Have To

SEP 29 1941

By HENRY C. CASSIDY
Associated Press Correspondent

With the Russian Army on the Central Front (Delayed)—Wearing uniforms, packing pistols—and ready to use them—women form an integral part of the Red army and have taken their posts by thousands along the battlefront.

They do not fight unless they have to, but work as nurses, waitresses, stenographers, telephone operators and military clerks.

If their stations are attacked, however, they can and do shoot.

An example of the militarized Soviet women is Natalia, 22-year-old buxom blonde senior nurse and doctor's assistant who goes about her duties at a dressing station four miles from no-man's land with a pistol slapping her hip.

"I haven't had any fighting experience because the Germans never got this far," she said. "But if they do . . ." and she patted her pistol holster . . . "I'm a crack shot."

With Natalia, forty-two other women work in the medical unit, dressing wounds, operating if necessary and helping carry men to the hospital.

At divisional headquarters two or three miles from the front lines girls wearing white aprons over khaki uniforms and black boots wait table as nonchalantly as though serving in a Moscow restaurant.

Civilian women also are seen in the front line areas. Bundled in shawls and layers of heavy clothing they go on working in fields and villages within sound of the artillery.

Troops riding to the front in trucks and men driving tractors close behind the lines often have their wives at their sides.

STALIN GREETS MISSIONS FROM U.S. AND BRITAIN

Harriman Says Groups Will Get To Work Quickly To Speed Supplies

American Planes Already Arriving In Russia, It Is Revealed

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, Sept. 28—American and British missions arrived today for three-power conferences on aid to Russia and their chiefs, W. Averell Harriman and Lord Beaverbrook, were received quickly by Premier Joseph Stalin.

Vyacheslav Molotov, head of the Soviet delegation, and Maxim Litvinov, another Soviet member, joined the talks at the Kremlin.

Stalin received them in his capacity as chairman of the council of people's commissars.

Lord Beaverbrook, who is Britain's Supply Minister, gave a dinner tonight for the American and British delegations at the British Embassy.

American Planes Arriving

Simultaneously with the arrival of the missions today it was disclosed that supplies of American planes, aviation gasoline and lubricants already are reaching Russia.

The impending conferences are designed to plan immediate and long-term aid to Russia. Stalin's quick reception for the chief delegates emphasized the importance with which the Kremlin views the talks.

Harriman said he hoped the conferees would "get down to work immediately." He stressed the "immense importance" of the issues involved and "the absolute necessity for speed."

Welcomed By Oumansky

Constantine Oumansky, Soviet Ambassador to Washington who reached Moscow today, was among the official committee welcoming the Americans and Britons.

Also on hand were representatives of the foreign commissariat, the Red army, navy and air force and the staffs of the British and American embassies.

Talks To Last For Week

Flags of the three nations fluttered in the breeze and a band played their national anthems.

The three-power talks are expected to last a week. Some members of the British and American missions, who arrived earlier in the week, already have done initial spade work.

Major Philip R. Faymonville, Russian-speaking secretary of the mission and former United States military attache in Moscow, intends to remain with several other experts after the conferences end.

The American mission, numbering twenty-three, includes Maj. Gen. James Chaney, Maj. Gen. James H. Burns, Admiral William H. Standley and William L. Batt.

U. S. Mechanics For Mid-East?

By Edward Kennedy

[By the Associated Press]

Cairo, Sept. 28—Establishment of an extensive American civil aviation organization in the Middle East to help the R. A. F. in maintenance of American planes was forecast today by Maj. Gen. George H. Brett, chief of the United States Army Air Corps.

Completing a two-week inspection of British air needs in this area, the general said the United States Air Corps which already has a score of officers and technicians working with the British here could not establish a large scale maintenance organization of its own in Egypt.

Creation of such an organization by American civil aviation, however, could be arranged in Washington, he said, with the cost paid by the United States Government under the Lend-Lease Act.

SEP 29 1941

Maintenance Greater Problem

General Brett said maintenance of United States-built planes for the R. A. F. had become a greater problem than getting them here.

"The flow of arriving planes is steady," he said, "and should be much greater in October and November, but certain tools and spare parts are needed badly.

"Sending planes is not enough. They must be kept fit for service."

The general and his aides came here in a twenty-five-ton Liberator, which crossed the Atlantic and then flew on across the African jungles and desert.

"It was the biggest plane ever to cross Africa," he said, "and the flight was quite an experiment."

German Iran Refugees Reach Ankara Charging Reds Ripped Baggage

Ankara, Sept. 27 (Delayed) (AP)—Some of the first real German refugees of war poured into Ankara from Iran today—hair and clothes mussed, jewelry gone, baggage rifled and spouting imprecations upon the Russians.

It was the Russians, they said, who with fixed bayonets hopped into their trucks frequently on their six-day journey from Teheran to the Turkish border. The 450 diplomats, old men, women and children had boarded a train in Turkey.

ITALIAN FORCE GIVES IN AFTER 164-DAY SIEGE

Rome Admits Surrender Of Garrison In Ethiopia To British

Says Troops Were Out Of Food, Uniforms In Tatters, Shoes Gone

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Sept. 28—Out of food, with uniforms in tatters and shoes worn off their feet by wilderness forays against the British to capture supplies, the Fascist forces at Uolchefit, one of Italy's last strongholds in Ethiopia, have surrendered after 164 days of siege.

Today's high command communique wrote this finis to the hopeless resistance of the isolated garrison:

"In East Africa the garrison at Uolchefit, which has been besieged since April 15, was ordered to cease resistance on September 26 since the garrison had been without food supplies for days past.

"Audacious Sortie" Cited

"Crowning previous brilliant offensive and defensive actions, this Italian garrison carried out a last audacious sortie, engaging and repelling numerically superior enemy forces and inflicting heavy losses on them."

In other sections of that region, the so-called Gondar front, British attacks were "effectively repelled," the high command said.

[The London War Office announced that the Uolchefit garrison had surrendered to British and Ethiopian troops and estimated that only 9,000 to 10,000 Italian and natives forces remained under arms in the Gondar region. Uolchefit's garrison was said to have numbered about 4,000 men and the position was considered a point of considerable importance because it commanded a strategic pass.]

British Cleaning Out

The British seemed intent on cleaning out the last resistance in Ethiopia before the season for active warfare opens in the western desert of Egypt and Libya.

The Uolchefit garrison had no other alternative but surrender. With more men, guns and planes, the British had closed in on the stronghold, cutting any supply route the Italians might have had in the mountains near the frontier of Eritrea, which already was in British hands.

Hardships Stressed

With weak radio reports and an occasional message by plane the garrison was able to report occasionally on its resistance. The men, both white and native soldiers, had been on near-starvation rations for weeks. Cold winds and rains of the uplands added to their hardships.

Now only the similarly beleaguered garrisons of Culguabert, Celga and Gondar itself remain to make a last stand in Premier Mussolini's all-but-lost East African empire.

Fascist Planes In Running Fight With Warships In Mediterranean, Rome Says

By Richard Massock

[By the Associated Press]

Bern, Monday, Sept. 29—A Swiss communique announced today that many waves of "foreign planes" flew over western Switzerland during the night, indicating heavy new British raids on Italy.

The planes were heard traveling south about an hour before midnight and returning an hour later. All Swiss anti-aircraft batteries in the area were said to have entered into "violent action."

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Sept. 28—Italy and Britain are engaged in another of their great running battles between air and sea-power in the western Mediterranean, the Italian high command announced succinctly today.

The Italian air force was said to be attacking "a large enemy naval formation sailing from Gibraltar"—probably a convoy under heavy warship guard. From the communique it appeared to be still too early for the Italians to list any results of the gigantic duel.

Seven Cities Raided

The first concise word of the battle came in a communique which acknowledge that Britain's own air force, apparently on one of its broadest offensives, had struck at not less than seven Italian cities in Libya, Sicily and Sardinia.

The British raiders were said to have struck at Bengasi and Bardia on the Libyan coast, Agrigento, Marsala, Trapani and Porto Empedocle in Sicily, and Cagliari, Sardinia.

Three Civilians Killed

The communique said three civilians were killed and eight wounded at Porto Empedocle. It announced five British planes were shot down in different raids, including one brought down by Italian reconnaissance planes in the Cufra Zone, Libya.

Although the Italian communique did not say that the "naval formation" under attack was a convoy, observers thought it probable that British warships were ushering fresh supplies through to Malta or to General Sir Claude Auckinleck's army of the Nile.

Some observers even thought the ships might be carrying tanks for Russia via the Suez Canal and Persian Gulf.

R. A. F. Reports Big Raid On Italian Air Bases

Cairo, Sept. 28 (AP)—Widespread British air attack against Italian air bases on the islands of Sardinia and Sicily were reported today by the R. A. F. Middle East command.

The communique said attacks were made on Elmas, Sardinia, and Marsala, Borrizo, Palermo, Agrigento and Porto Empedocle, Sicily, during raids Friday night and Saturday. The R. A. F. also left a medium-sized freighter sinking in the Gulf of Taranto, a communique said.

A large number of seaplanes were "severely damaged" at Elmas, while others were attacked at Marsala and grounded planes were "extensively damaged" at Borrizo, where the ground crews were machine-gunned, the communique said.

Palermo's harbor and railways and warehouses at Agrigento, Sicily, were "heavily bombed," the communique said, adding that one German Messerschmitt was shot down and others severely damaged in these and other operations and admitting loss of five British planes.

Berlin Reports New U-Boat Raid

By Louis Lochner

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Sept. 28—Stalking U-boats which tagged the heels of a British convoy for days were declared today to have sent twelve merchantmen and one escorting warship to the bottom of the North Atlantic between Gibraltar and England.

In addition, the high command said, a fourteenth vessel—a tanker of 12,000 tons—was picked off by a far-ranging submarine in the South Atlantic.

Without giving the size of the escort ship, the war bulletin gave the total tonnage of the merchantmen in the smashed England-bound convoy as 67,000 tons.

[The attack apparently was separate from the torpedoings which the Germans said last Thursday sank eleven of twelve convoyed merchantmen, aggregating 78,000 off West Africa. The German account said only a small steamer of this convoy managed to escape.]

New Technique Hinted

The U-boat successes were credited here to a "new submarine technique" at which German naval authorities often have hinted recently, but never have explained.

German bombers were said to have sent two other ships to the bottom near the Faeroe Islands. One was listed as a 2,500-ton steamer, the other as an 800-ton sailing vessel.

German defense patrols and anti-aircraft guns along the English Channel were reported breaking up most of the British formations of raiders day after day. Only individual planes of the R. A. F. have been getting through, the Germans said.

Some raiders were said to have penetrated to the Somme Valley yesterday. The Germans said British bombs dropped there killed ten Frenchmen and injured fifteen others.

Twenty-three British planes were reported officially as shot down yesterday during hour-long air battles along the Channel.

British Bombers Raid France, Strike Inland

Folkstone, England, Sept. 28 (AP)—British bombers, racing through a dense Channel fog, apparently were striking inland tonight from the German-held coast of France.

Formations of eastward-bound bombers were heard crossing the Kent coast after nightfall and within a few minutes explosions as if from heavy bombs were heard from the French coast.

The thunder of the blasts seemed at first to come from the Calais area, then gradually grew more distant, as if the attack were moving steadily inland.

Canada Reveals Airmen Balked At Untidy Ship

200 Refused to Embark, Were Penalized; Official Says Incident Won't Recur

OTTAWA, Sept. 28 (AP).—Air Minister C. G. Power said tonight that "the tides of war, the accidents of weather and the errors of human judgment" combined to provoke a recent incident in which a group of Canadian-trained airmen walked ashore from a trans-Atlantic transport because of conditions they found aboard.

"There need be no fear of any repetition," said Power, who explained that the ship had been halfway around the world and was "dirty and untidy" but that apparently she was all the Admiralty had readily available at the moment. The weather made it impossible, he explained, for the ship to enter dock for cleaning.

"In the end, not 1,000 but a couple of hundred airmen were left on the dock when the ship sailed at the scheduled hour with more than two-thirds of the contingent aboard," he said. These, he added, already have arrived overseas.

The Air Minister said the first airmen to go aboard—Canadians, Australians and New Zealanders—did not like what they saw. A number of them walked ashore and spread the word among those who had not gone aboard.

"Those who remained were disciplined, though not severely—a reduction in pay was imposed—and they sailed a short time later on another ship," Power said. "We recognized that they had grounds for complaint about the accommodations, but we cannot sympathize with their means of expressing it.

"But it can be said that the conduct of the disobedient men, apart from their courteous but firm refusal to sail under the conditions provided, was exemplary, and this was taken into account when discipline was imposed."

The Air Ministry took the attitude that this was a case "where a corrective is urgently demanded" and that "we propose to take steps so that similar conditions will not recur." Furthermore, it said it was presenting its views "very strongly" to the appropriate London authorities.

It said the ship was "a famous passenger liner in her peace-time days" and went on: "She'd taken quite a beating during her service at Crete and elsewhere in the Mediterranean, and the long voyage through the Suez Canal, around Africa and across the Atlantic with a fraction of her normal complement hadn't improved her any. She was dirty and untidy. But, taking into consideration the shortage of shipping, apparently she was all the Admiralty had readily available at the moment.

"To make matters worse, bad weather on our east coast kept the ship from entering dock, where she could be cleaned in the usual way. She came in shortly before she was due to sail."

Legless R. A. F. Pilot's Try At Escape From Nazis Told

Correspondent Quotes German Officer As Saying Attempt Was Made When Planes Delivered New Leg

SEP 29 1941

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 28—Douglas Bader, the R. A. F. pilot who became a fighting ace even though he had no legs, tried to escape from his German captors as soon as he got a new metal leg by special R. A. F. parachute delivery, it was reported tonight.

The story, as told by Harry W. Flannery, CBS correspondent, in a broadcast from Berlin, was that Bader tried to get away August 19, the night the new leg arrived at the French airdrome where he was held to replace one damaged when he was forced down.

Major Eric von Bach was quoted as saying a celebration was held in honor of the event.

"There was a little drinking, I guess," said the German major, "and Bader danced and turned somersaults and generally enjoyed it. Then, when it came time to break up, Bader was nowhere to be found.

"Later some searchers came upon him in a hay loft down the road on his way, he thought, to liberty.

"So they took away one of his legs every night and gave it back in the morning. I suppose he has them both all the time now, since he's probably in a regular prisoner-of-war camp."

London, Sept. 28—H. G. Wells, Brit-

Richard F. Allen, United States Red Cross delegate to Europe, told the scientists, "I am convinced it will take the combined efforts of all the scientists in the world, of all businessmen and all governments, to correct conditions brought about by this war."

Hospitals Pillaged

Commenting on his experiences in France, Allen said: "The Germans denuded hospitals of all supplies and the French were obliged to set up hospitals in churches and schools and were actually using instruments bought in hardware stores for surgical operations."

Dr. V. K. Wellington Koo, Chinese Ambassador to Britain, declared, "The only foundation upon which the magnificent, permanent edifice of peace, security, justice and prosperity can be erected firmly is complete and final victory over the forces of violence and disorder."

British Envoy Gets As Far As Yokohama On Way To U. S., Suddenly Changes Min

French Cruiser, Only Partly Repaired, Unexpectedly Sails From Osaka

SEP 29 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Ottawa, Sept. 28—The Canadian Government today banned all imports from Japan except under special revenue permit. The order-in-council providing for the ban was passed September 23 and made public tonight.

[By the Associated Press]

Tokyo, Monday, Sept. 29—The British Embassy said today the departure of Ambassador Sir Robert Craigie from Yokohama for a vacation trip to the United States has been delayed "for the time being."

The Embassy announcement came as suddenly as its early disclosure that Sir Robert had gone to the Japanese port after canceling all pending engagements here.

No reason was given, but transportation difficulties might be a factor since the Ambassador barely would be able to reach Shanghai in time for the sailing of the American liner President Coolidge.

Craigie Reaches Yokohama

Yokohama, Japan, Sept. 28 (AP)—Sir Robert Leslie Craigie, British Ambassador to Japan, after suddenly canceling all pending engagements at Tokyo, arrived here today with his wife and son, prepared to board the boat for Shanghai Tuesday morning, ostensibly on a three-month leave that will take him to the United States.

"I expect to return to Japan within three months," he said. "There's no political significance to my departure."

Craigie said it was his first leave in four years. San Francisco is his immediate destination in the United States. His departure from Tokyo was made known only a few hours before he reached the railway station. Engagements pending for today had been canceled on account of the hurried packing at the embassy.

Australian Envoy Gone

The British Empire will be left without an Ambassador or Minister in Japan. The Australian Minister Sir John Greig Latham, left last week for Singapore.

The United States Embassy at Tokyo, to dispel rumors regrading the American envoy, Joseph C. Grew, said that he had no intention of taking leave at present.

The British Ambassador's unexpected departure gave a more ominous tinge, however, to increasing tit-for-tat moves between the Japanese and British empires.

Britons Stripped

One of the most recent instances of this was the rigid examination last Thursday by Japanese customs officials on the Yokohama dockside of more than 300 British who were leaving Japan.

Japanese sources said the examination, which included stripping the Britons to the skin and minute examination of their clothing and baggage, was in retaliation for severe regulations applied to Japanese leaving Hongkong and other British ports.

Now the policy of retaliation seemed to have reached the diplomatic field. Japanese Ambassador Mamoru Shigemitsu has been absent from his London post for several months, with no indication yet from the Tokyo Government whether he will return to London, retire, or be replaced by another envoy.

There was speculation that the British Ambassador might stay in the United States or return to England until Tokyo sends another Ambassador to London.

French Ship Quits Japan Only Partly Repaired

Tokyo, Sept. 29 (AP)—The sudden departure of the 7,880-ton French cruiser Lamotte-Picquet, flagship of the Vichy Government's Far Eastern squadron, from Osaka Saturday without completion of scheduled extensive repairs caused considerable speculation among observers here today.

The warship cut short her visit to Japan, sailing for Saigon, French Indo-China, carrying parts for the deferred repairs but minus a new boiler which was supposed to have been installed at Osaka.

Japanese Free Attache's Wife

PEIPING, Sept. 28 (AP)—The British Embassy announced today that Mrs. Denzil Clark, Japanese-born wife of a British press attaché, had been handed over to British officials at the Japanese Embassy after being held for a week by Japanese extremists who abducted her. She was reported suffering from nervous shock but said she had been treated well.

It was reported that these nationals obtain transit of their cash and valuables though dummy agents who take them out in rbaggage that is free from inspection regulations.

It was indicated that egulations for the inspection of baggage belonging to nationals of countries affected by the freezing order might be extended to citizens of other countries.

Nye Claims Movie Propaganda Is Proved By Senate Inquiry

North Dakota Senator Charges That Film Industry Has Even Attempted To Throttle Newspapers

SEP 29 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 28—Senator Nye (Rep., N. D.) declared today that the current Senate investigation of the movie industry "has very clearly revealed the existence of propaganda in the motion picture industry."

Nye, sponsor of a resolution authorizing an investigation of the movies, said "the propaganda is being carried on with the knowledge and consent of the motion picture producers."

The present investigation is being conducted by a Senate Inter-State Commerce Subcommittee, which technically is holding hearings to decide whether an inquiry should be held. A full-fledged investigation would require approval by the Senate, and the Chamber would have to vote funds for its prosecution.

Expenses Questioned

Thus far, Chairman Clark (Dem., Idaho) of the subcommittee has been approving witnesses' expense vouchers and calling for payment from the general funds provided each Senate committee. But Chairman Lucas (Dem., Ill.) of the Senate Audit Committee has to approve the vouchers also, and, on the grounds that no investigation has been authorized, has questioned whether they should be accepted.

Threats Charged

Nye, asserting that he was ready to make a Senate fight to have the investigation authorized officially, said that the preliminary movie inquiry had established "that the industry has exerted pressure to try to control the channels of information, and it has even gone to the extent of seeking to drive newspapers into dropping unfavorable columns. To the credit of the newspapers, they have not been browbeaten.

"The investigation also has demonstrated that picture producers have threatened exhibitors with action from Washington if they refused to show certain pictures," he continued.

"The investigation up to now—and a continuation of the inquiry—have been amply justified."

The subcommittee's hearings were recessed last week until October 6.

Propaganda By Franco In Philippines Charged

Effort Declared Under Way To Implant Idea Of Power Of Spain

Manila, Sept. 28 (AP)—Charges that the Government of Gen. Francisco Franco in Spain is conducting an extensive propaganda campaign among Catholic Filipinos were made today in a pamphlet written by Major Jose M. Hernandez and Lieut. Ricardo C. Galang, professors at the Bangulo Military Academy.

The officers declared that professors and students at certain unnamed educational institutions in the Philippines had been persuaded to contribute financially to the Franco Government.

They also said that some Spaniads in the Philippines had aided the campaign, which included offering Filipinos medical and other scholarships at Spanish universities and the circulation of "cultural" publications to the end that "we might be convinced of the power and strength of the Franco Government. . . ."

COMPROMISE SEEN ON NEUTRALITY

Armed Ships And Opening Of Way To War Ports May Be Result

Some Observers Think That Roosevelt Will Stop Now At Such Steps

SEP 29 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 28—Informed legislators predicted today that President Roosevelt would ask Congress for discretionary power to arm merchant ships and to send them into belligerent ports, rather than seek outright repeal of the Neutrality Act.

If such a course were followed, the Neutrality Act's prohibitions against the arming of ships or their entering combat zones technically would be left standing unless the President found it necessary to put them aside.

A final decision on what will be asked is expected to be reached at a conference between the President and legislative leaders on Tuesday with a formal message going to Congress on Wednesday or Thursday.

Some Urge Repeal

Mr. Roosevelt indicated at a press conference last week that he thought guns should be placed on cargo vessels, but said nothing about removal of any other restrictions in the act.

Since then, however, some highly-placed Administration leaders, notably Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy, have urged repeal of the entire law. It is understood, too, that several of Mr. Roosevelt's advisers have urged him to ask for nullification of restrictions against the delivery of goods to belligerents in American ships.

But at the Capital, leaders were agreed that a request of the latter nature would provoke lengthy and bitter debate in Congress. For that reason, there were some who thought that the Administration would move cautiously, proposing only to arm the ships at this time.

Licensing Is Supported

In either event, responsible sources said the framework of the Neutrality Act probably would be permitted to stand. Administration leaders have said they wanted to retain the act's system of licensing munitions shipments and did not believe there was any necessity for removing restrictions which now keep American citizens off belligerent vessels.

While some Administration followers professed to believe that only perfunctory opposition would be offered to a proposal merely to arm ships, Senator Nye (Rep., N. D.) said strong opposition could be expected to any change in the act.

He said opponents would organize for the fight as soon as it became clear what amendments were to be proposed.

U. S. CHARTERS TWO SHIPS TO IRELAND

Vessels To Operate Between American Ports And The Free State

SEP 29 1941

Will Leave New Orleans Today For New York To Load First Cargo

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 28—The Maritime Commission announced today that it had chartered two vessels to Eire for service between United States and Canadian ports and the Irish Free State. They are the West Hematite and the West Neris, each about 8,500 deadweight tons.

The commission said Irish crews arrived several days ago and had taken over the vessels, now at New Orleans. They will sail tomorrow for New York to take on cargo for the first trans-Atlantic voyage.

Both the West Hematite and the West Neris were part of the World War laid-up fleet which was taken over in 1937 by the Maritime Commission, but have been reconditioned and overhauled.

Has Been Building Fleet

Since the outbreak of the war, Eire has been endeavoring to build up an Irish merchant fleet. In peacetime, her imports arrived principally in British, Norwegian and American bottoms. Now, the British and Norwegian vessels have been diverted to British war service and American-flag ships are forbidden by the Neutrality Act to enter the combat zones around Ireland.

As a result, Irish imports have been sharply restricted and some commodities have been rationed.

The Eire Government began efforts to buy ships here months ago, but succeeded only in purchaseing one former Yugoslavian vessel.

Offer By Roosevelt

Last May 20 President Roosevelt announced that the United States had offered to sell or charter two ships to Ireland and to supply $500,000 worth of food and other supplies for war refugees in the Irish Free State. Until today, however, the American Government had transferred no ships to Eire.

Asked about the long delay between Mr. Roosevelt's announcement and the actual transfer of the West Hematite and the West Neris, a Maritime Commission representative said he presumed it was due to the necessity of reconditioning the vessels.

In response to a similar inquiry, a State Department official said he understood the Irish first decided they did not want the ships, but later reconsidered.

Terms Unannounced

The Maritime Commission did not announce the terms of the charter, made to Irish Shipping, Ltd., but an official said such charters usually were for six months or a year.

Red Cross officials said no arrangements had been made to send relief supplies on the West Hematite and the West Neris. Mr. Roosevelt's offer of $500,000 worth of food, they said, was communicated to the Irish Red Cross, but no reply was received.

In other quarters, the theory was advanced that the Irish were not interested because of the administrative problems such a gift would entail.

Difficulties Explained

It was explained that, under terms of a Congressional appropriation, no Government relief supplies could be made available for other than war refugees. The refugees in Ireland are, in many cases, English who are living with relatives or friends. Thus, the Irish Red Cross would be confronted with the problem of giving relief to one or more members of a household while denying it to the others in the same house.

The West Hematite, 409-foot freighter, was built in 1919 at Seattle and normally carries a crew of thirty-four. The West Neris, 410 feet, was built at Los Angeles in the same year and uses a crew of forty-five.

British Security Sales Twice Amount Reported

New Treasury Figures Of Total Liquidation In U. S. Far Above First Announcement

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP)—The Treasury revised its official figures today to show that the British have sold about twice as many American securities since the war began than formerly indicated.

The new compilation showed that in 1939, 1940 and in the first half of 1941 the British sold $523,118,000 worth of American securities. Previous reports for the same period showed $249,005,000.

The Treasury declined to explain the discrepancy.

The British were reputed to own over $1,000,000,000 of American securities at the war's beginning and the new tabulation indicates that nearly all of them are sold, or obligated since an additional $475,000,000 worth has been pledged as security for a $425,000,000 Reconstruction Finance Corporation loan.

Cable To Churchill Advises Him To Resign

Abe Pickus, Self-Appointed Advisor, Says "Wake Up, Old Man, Resign," In Message

Cleveland, Sept. 28 (AP)—Abe Pickus is at it again.

The self-appointed adviser to world leaders, who has sent cablegrams to Hitler, Mussolini, Stalin, Daladier and Chamberlain, today advised British Prime Minister Churchill to resign.

His cablegram to the Prime Minister, which he said cost him $12.96, began: "Be wise, wake up, old man—resign! You need rest."

The Cleveland tavernkeeper and oil man told Churchill htat the "Russian situation looks dark" and added that the American people "think you are making great mistake by not creating another front."

ROOSEVELT RECTOR CALLS FOR FAITH

President Attends Church At Hyde Park With Norway's Crown Princess

SEP 29 1941

Will Return To Washington Tuesday—First Lady Goes To Capital Before Him

[By the Associated Press]

Hyde Park. N. Y., Sept. 28—President Roosevelt and Norway's refugee Crown Princess Martha, attending morning services at St. James' Episcopal Church, heard the rector declare today that America could help restore world peace by strengthening its faith in the Kingdom of God.

The Rev. Frank R. Wilson asked whether Americans were partly responsible for world conditions and whether they could do anything to bring back peace. Twice his answer was "Yes."

The part of each individual, he said, was to seek to dedicate himself to a faith in God.

Two Prayers

The services included a prayer for the men in the armed services and a prayer for peace—which asked God to "defend us . . . in all assaults of our enemies that we, surely trusting in Thy defense, may not fear the power of any adversaries."

Mr. Roosevelt sat in his family pew. With him were the Crown Princess and her three children, Princesses Ragnhild and Astrid and Prince Harald. Also present were her lady-in-waiting, Madame Ostgaard, and her chamberlain, Wedel Jarlsberg.

The members of the royal party are week-end guests at the Roosevelt home.

Given Bible Readings

With Princess Martha and her children accompanying him, the Chief Executive drove from his home to church in an open car. Just as he and the Princess entered it after the services, Mr. Wilson handed each of them a small booklet of daily Bible readings for the period from October 5 to November 29. The rector urged his most distinguished parishioner to devote a "minute a day" to it, and the President put it in his pocket.

Wearied by a long vigil during the illness of her brother, Hall, who was buried yesterday at nearby Tivoli, N. Y., Mrs. Roosevelt did not attend church. She remained at Hyde Park House, resting, and, after lunch, left for Washington to keep appointments.

Returning Tuesday

The President expects to be back in the Capital Tuesday and to consult Congressional leaders on alteration of the Neutrality Act.

The act now forbids the arming of American merchant ships and bars their entry into prescribed combat zones. Mr. Roosevelt indicated at a press conference last Tuesday that he wanted guns put on American cargo vessels, and that the steps he would recommend probably would be determined this week.

A number of aircraft on the ground at Borrizo, Sicily, were extensively damaged and ground troops were machine-gunned.

Vienna, Sept. 28-(AP)-A wood-chopping machine, a rich-toned small piano and a super-vibrative stringed instrument made of thousands of pices of small wood the size of matchsticks held top attention at Vienna's fifth wartime trade and sample fair which closed today.

The heart of several thousand gas-wood filling stations being established throughout Europe is the wood-chopping device. It converts cordwood into gas-wood size, and the model displayed here cuts 250 cubic feet of wood an hour.

Among the gas-generator machines exhibited by almost 40 German firms there were new motor trucks and tractors with built-in generators for wood or coal, and numerous generators which can be built into power other automatic vehicles.

The little piano which attracted considerable attention is an upright model only two-thirds the size of a normal upright but with a tone approaching that of a grand pianto. The little upright is already in large scale production.

Perhaps the most attention of all was won by a guitar made by a wood-yard laborer, Karl Kohlbeck. He wanted for a long time to make a guitar but was told by veteran guitar makers that a special wood was necessary.

Working in the wood-yard, Kohlbeck discovered that certain laminated woods were highly vibrative. The more single pieces of wood an instrument contained, he reasoned, the better it might sound.

On that principle, he worked nights for seven months and produced a guitar made of ordinary matchsticks. The result astonished him--as well as professional musicians. Kohlbeck continued his experiments and built a viola and a violin of tiny bits of wood. Experts acclaimed the instruments a success.

New York, Sept. 28-(AP)-The German radio broadcast today a high command communique announcing that German submarines had sunk 12 ships totaling 67,000 tons in attacks on a British convoy bound from Gibraltar to England. The broadcast was heard here by N.B.C.

An escort vessel also was reported sunk in the attacks, which the radio said lasted several days. In additional, the broadcast said, Nazi under-sea raiders sank a 12,000-ton tanker in the south Atlantic.

These reported successes, the high command said, brings to 79,000 tons the total British merchant shipping sunk "in the last few days."

New York, Sept. 28-(AP)-A German radio report from Prague declared today the appointment of Reinhard Heydrich, Blackshirt and Gestapo leader, as German protector for Bohemia and Moravia cleared the way for a proclamation of a state of emergency in six of ten districts of old Czecho-Slovakia.

(A Reuters dispatch said the state of emergency already had been proclaimed, less than 24 hours after Heydrich's appointment to succeed Baron Konstantin von Neurath, who asked to be relieved, the Germans said, on account of illness.)

The German wireless said the proclamation of the state of emergency was caused by "actions hostile to the Reich in parts of the protectorate."

Berlin, Sept. 28-(AP)-A DNB dispatch from Bratislava, Slovakia, said today that five persons had been killed and considerable damage caused by collision of two freight trains when an enginaer missed a block signal.

NAZIS SHOOT 24 CZECHS FOR TRYING TO RESTORE NATION'S INDEPENDENCE

Three Former Generals Executed As Leaders Of Abortive Revolt—Two Others Condemned For Buying Up Weapons In Protectorate

Army-Backed Rebellion Was To Come Off Soon, Berlin Says—Unrest Increasing Elsewhere. Reign Of Terror Reported In Bulgaria

By Louis Lochner

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Tuesday, Sept. 30—An attempted revolt by a Czech army group seeking to throw off German rule and restore independence in dismembered Czecho-Slovakia was disclosed today with the announcement that twenty-four persons, including three former generals, have been shot in Bohemia-Moravia on order of a German court-martial.

They were accused of trying to "forcefully separate the protectorate of Bohemia-Moravia from the Reich."

Generals Described As Leaders

The three former military leaders, Army General Josef Bily, Division General Hugo Votja and Brig. Gen. Franz Horacek, were described as "leading men in the opposition group, which had as its goal the reestablishment of an independent Czech state."

The executions followed by not more than forty-eight hours the proclamation of a state of civil emergency by Reinhard Heydrich, chief of the S. S. Security Service, who took over the position of "protector" of Bohemia-Moravia from Baron Konstantin von Neurath last Saturday.

Czechs Rounding Up Arms

DNB quoted the Czech press to the effect that itinerant groups of Czechs had been going around the protectorate buying up and collecting arms of all sorts.

Ladislaus Komzak and Wendel Franc, named especially as members of the wandering arms buyers, were among those shot.

DNB said the revolt in which the arms were to be used against Germans was scheduled to come off soon.

Others who fell under volleys of Nazi executioners were Franz Vins, Johann Pestuka, Jaromir Dedlacek and Dusan Hubert, all of the Prague and all described as "leading Communists."

Other Names Not Given

Names and descriptions of the others put to death were not given by DNB, as was the case of six persons earlier announced as executed for acts of terrorism and resistance to Germany.

The authorities steadfastly denied that the former generals were included until the DNB dispatch was released. They insisted late yesterday that things were in the best order in the six districts of Bohemia-Moravia placed under civil emergency law.

The fate of the Czech Premier, Gen. Alois Elias, who was arrested on a charge of premeditating high treason, still was undisclosed early today. Upon his arrest he was turned over to the German People's Court for sentence—and from this court's verdict appeals may be carried only to Adolf Hitler.

1939 Crisis Recalled

In the short history of the Nazi protectorate this was the second time that shots have silenced Czech patriots. The first time was in November, 1939, when a dozen Czech students were shot as "an example."

Authorized Germans insisted that in the latest purge the number of arrests was "very low—far under one hundred."

All the German public knew of developments in the protectorate were two brief announcements, that Reinhard Heydrich of the German secret police had been appointed protector and that General Elias had been arrested.

Even these brief announcements were printed on inside pages of German newspapers.

Questions by foreign correspondents as to who would take Heydrich's place high in the German secret police, who would succeed Premier Elias, or whether any other important Czechs had been arrested remained unanswered.

One German spokesman said: "Why look for anything sensational? There are so many more sensational happenings in the world."

The authoritative commentary, Dienst Aus Deutschland, said the Czech press unanimously regarded the moves as a last warning to the Czech people.

Dienst reported Czech newspapers said "Measures now instituted undoubtedly will serve to clear the atmosphere and establish order in the protectorate."

The news service expressed the opinion that only small groups in Bohemia and Moravia were involved in seditious activity and that these were being prompted by foreign sources.

That alert Gestapo activity preceded Heydrich's appointment last Saturday, and his prompt declaration of a state of emergency, was indicated in the official Gazette, Deutscher Reichsanzeiger. It published a decree by the Gestapo at Prague dated last Tuesday, confiscating the property of 45 Czechs.

There was no indication that foreign correspondents would be permitted to attend General Elias' trial, which will be held before a German people's court.

Nazis Disclose Executions.

Berlin, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—Six persons have been executed in the protectorate of Bohemia-Moravia, it was disclosed authoritatively today, as Germany enforced a rigid state of civil emergency and held the Premier, Gen. Alois Elias, under arrest on charges of premeditating treason.

Authoritative Berlin sources said that the six persons executed had been tried by courts of the protectorate and found guilty of acts of terrorism and resistance to the Reich.

The number of arrests in the protectorate was said to be "very low—far under 100."

The German public and foreign correspondents in Germany knew no details of the developments in the protectorate, beyond the announcement that Reinhard Heydrich, ace trouble shooter of the German secret police, had Gen. Elias arrested and ordered the state of emergency in six districts within twenty-four hours after taking over the post of Reich's protector there Saturday. Heydrich relieved 68-year-old Baron Konstantin von Neurath who was said to have asked for temporary leave because of failing health.

The districts affected by the emergency decree—forming the most populous part of the protectorate—are Prague, Bruena Maehrisch-Ostrau, Klando, Koenigradz and Olmuetz.

No details were released on measures to be taken under the state of emergency, but it generally includes a curfew closing of theaters and other public gathering places, summary executions, exceptionally heavy prison terms and confiscation of property for acts regarded as offenses against the order and security of the state.

Had Hitler's Blessing.

Gen. Elias, who was trained in the Austro-Hungarian army and became Premier of the Protectorate on April 27, 1939, with Adolf Hitler's blessing, will be tried before the German People's Court, an announcement said.

A report broadcast by the British Broadcasting Corporation that an attempt had been made to assassinate Premier Bela Tuka of Slovakia as a result of Czech resentment was called "a childish lie" today by a Slovak legation spokesman. He said that the legation telephoned Tuka late last night and that he was in the best of health.

In explanation of his restrictions, Heydrich told President Emil Hacha that "in recent days irresponsible elements in the pay of the enemies of Europe have committed a number of actions hostile to the Reich."

The "hostile acts" to which Heydrich referred were not specified, but passive resistance of the Czechs has frequently been a source of trouble to the Germans since Hitler dismembered the Czecho-Slovak Republic in March, 1939.

[Reports from the fugitive Czech Government in London said that increasing sabotage had slowed the output of munitions factories in the former Czecho-Slovak republic as much as 50 per cent. Peasants were said to be burning granaries in night raids, and forming for hunger marches by day. Saboteurs also were reported to have wrecked a number of German troop trains and disrupted communications.]

The official Gazette announced today confiscation of the property of the Catholic foundation St. Valentinus Haus, in the Rhineland, because it was "hostile to the State."

LONDON, Sept. 29—(AP)—Reuters and the British Broadcast corporation quoted the Prague radio today as saying 20 persons had been executed under the state of civil emergency in the protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia.

Six Executed In Bohemia

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 29—The Czech Government in exile announced today that six persons had been executed on orders of Reinhard Heydrich, new Reich's protector for Bohemia-Moravia, including Gen. Josef Bily, former military commander of Bohemia, and Divisional General Hugo Vojtl, deputy commander of the Seventh Army Corps at Bratislava.

Bratislava is the capital of the German-protected state of Slovakia which Germany carved out of dismembered Czecho-Slovakia.

The first news of the six executions, while names were not given, had come previously from the German radio, according to a Reuters transcript of the broadcast which said the condemned persons went before the firing squad yesterday.

The executions were the first imposed by Heydrich, right-hand man of the Gestapo chief, Heinrich Himmler.

This was the first news of the double execution to be published in Berlin. Stuelpnagel's announcement, however, had been given out in Paris on the day the men went before the firing squad.

Dutch Show Defiance

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 29—Aneta, the Free Dutch news agency, reported today that Netherlanders are providing beacons for British flyers and defying German rationing restrictions in continuing resistance to the German forces of occupation.

Czech Victims Include Three Former High Ranking Generals, Described as Leaders of an "Opposition Group Which Had as Its Goal the Re-Establishment of an Independent Czech State"—Fate of Czech Premier, Arrested on Charge of Premeditated Treason, Still Undisclosed

NL UNDATED REVOLT

(By the Associated Press)

German firing squads in Bohemia-Moravia have executed at least 24 Czechs, including three former high-ranking generals, accused of plotting to overthrow their nazi conquerors, Berlin announced today (Tuesday).

The generals who died at dawn, Josef Bily, Hugo Votja and Franz Horacek, were described as leaders of an "opposition group which had as its goal the re-establishment of an independent Czech state."

The executions followed soon after proclamation of a state of civil emergency in that country, which fell to the Germans bloodlessly after the Munich conference. Czecho-Slovakia thus was added to the long list of territories giving the German army trouble while it is engaged in the gigantic task of beating Russia.

Berlin already had announced the execution of six Czechs, and it was not clear whether this 24 included them.

The fate of the Czech premier, Gen. Alois Elias, who was arrested on a charge of premeditated treason, still was undisclosed today. He faces a trial by a German court.

A 10 p. m. curfew was reported by the Prague station to have been imposed on restaurants, hotels, theaters and other places of amusement in the six districts placed under a state of emergency by the Gestapo leader whom Adolf Hitler entrusted with smashing the anti-German manifestations.

German theaters alone were exempt from the curfew, the Prague station said.

Thus former Czechoslovakia—under nazi rule since the spring of 1939—was added to the lengthening list of conquered nations where a rising tide of sabotage, strikes and violence insreased the strain of the huge police and military forces with which the reich patrols most of Europe.

The Germans announced the executions but reported arrests under the state of emergency decreed in the protectorate over the week end were "far under 100." They indicated that foreign correspondents would be barred from the trial of Premier General Alois Elias whose arrest on charges of premeditating treason was one of the first swift moves of Reinhard Heydrich, Gestapo leader named temporary protector of Bohemia and Moravia last Saturday.

Authorized Germans said those executed had been convicted in the protectorate courts of acts of terrorism and resistance to the reich.

They were described as mostly laborers, and Szech reports from London that two of those put to death were former generals were denied.

A German radio broadcast, however, quoted a DNB dispatch from Prague which listed those executed as two former generals, convicted of preparation for high treason; two residents of Prague, convicted of possession arms, and two Czechs from the Bruenn district, convicted of sabotage.

The Czech government in exile said General Josepf Bily, former military commander of Bohemia, and divisional General Hugo Vojti, deputy commander of the army corps at Bratislava, in the Slovak protectorate, were among those executed.

This intimation of trouble extending into Slovakia followed British radio reports that an attempt had been made to assassinate Belu Tuka, nazi-backed Slovak premier.

A spokesman at the Slovak legation in Berlin termed reports of such an assassination attempt "a childish lie."

Dr. Eduard Benes, chief of the provisional Czech government in London, predicted at a luncheon that a new wave of terror would be inflicted upon Bohemia, Moravia and Slovakia.

From France, Belgium, the Netherlands, Norway and dismembered Yugoslavia—even from within Germany—came a steadily lengthening list of other restless moves against the reich.

The official German Gazette announced confiscation of the property of the Catholic foundation, St. Vanentinus Haus, in the Rhineland, because it was "hostile to the state."

Execution of two more men in Paris last Satrday was disclosed by German authorities, bringing to 37 the number shot by firing squads there in intensified efforts to halt a wave of terrorism.

The BBC said tonight that five miners had been executed in France, but it failed to say whether they were in the occupied or unoccupied zone.

Aneta, Free Dutch news agency, reported Netherlands citizens were providing beacons to guide British bombers on raids into the continent despite strict police measures.

Twenty persons were put to death only last week at Lille where dynamite, which the Germans said was stolen by saboteurs in northern France and Belgium, was used to wreck German troop and French supply trains.

With more than 1,000 newly arrested persons held possibly as hostages, German authorities in Norway have relaxed the state of civil siege put into effect there Sept. 10 but continued to keep close watch over factory production and Norwegian gatherings.

From France, Belgium, the Netherlands, Norway and dismembered Czecho-Slovakia and Yugoslavia reports rolled in steadily of men striking back at their Nazi masters despite reprisal executions, mass arrests and states of civil siege.

Six districts of the Nazi protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia were under the tight guard of a state of civil emergency clamped on to halt actions hostile to the Reich.

Within 24 hours after taking over the post of Reich's protector of Bohemia and Moravia, Reinhard Heydrich, German secret police leader, arrested Gen. Alois Elias, Czech Premier, on charges of premeditating high treason.

Drastic Measures Applied.

Measures Heydrich applied to stamp out trouble were reported to include summary executions, heavy prison sentences, confiscation of property, closing of public gathering places and an early curfew.

Six persons have been executed in Bohemia-Moravia, it was disclosed authoritatively in Berlin. The Czech government in exile said in London that Gen. Josef Bily, former military commander of Bohemia, and Gen. Hugo Vojti, deputy commander of the 7th Army Corps at Bratislava, Slovakia, were among those executed in the first German suppressive moves.

Authoritative Berlin sources said the six persons executed had been tried by courts of the protectorate and found guilty of acts of terrorism and resistance to the Reich. They were described as "presumably laborers" and reports that they included two generals were denied. The number of arrests in the protectorate was said to be "very low—far under 100."

Two more men were disclosed to have been put to death last Saturday in Paris where terrorism has persisted despite firing squad executions of a total of 37 persons. The German military commander announced that the two, Eugene Devigne and Mohammed Moali, were found in possession of forbidden weapons.

Dutch Beacons Guide R. A. F.

Aneta, Free Dutch news agency, reported Netherlands citizens were providing beacons to guide raiding British bombers despite tightening German police measures. Aneta said arrests had increased, but smuggling and illicit trading in food persisted, along with acts of sabotage and anti-Nazi demonstrations.

Aneta said the Dutch Nazi Leader Anton A. Mussert, admitted recently in a public address that he felt "despair" at his failure to gain support for his movement.

Norway also was under close German watch. More than 1,000 persons were reported arrested there since the start of the state of civil siege decreed September 10 to halt the spread of strikes and sabotage. In many of the towns affected the state of siege later was relaxed, but production and Norwegian activities remained under close attention.

Italy, bearing with the Reich the task of keeping Axis order in Southeastern Europe, had its troubles in the Croat state carved out of Yugoslavia.

Attack on Premier Reported.

The full extent of the measures the new German protector was taking in Bohemia and Moravia still was undisclosed as conflicting accounts seeped through from Germany and Czech sources in London.

The Czech report that Gen. Vojti, army commander at Bratislava, had been put to death followed a British broadcast which said an attempt had been made to assassinate Bela Tuka, Slovak Premier.

A spokesman at the Slovak Legation in Berlin, however, termed the report of the assassination attempt a "childish lie" and said the legation had been in communication with the Premier by telephone last night.

The tight curb of a state of civil emergency and the arrest of Gen. Elias have been interpreted by hte Czech press as Germany's last warning to the Czech people, Dienst aus Deutschland declared in Berlin.

Heydrich relieved 68-year-old Baron Konstantin von Neurath who was said to have asked for temporary leave because of ill health.

Gen. Elias, who was trained in the Austro-Hungarian Army and became Premier of the Protectorate on April 27, 1939, with Adolf Hitler's blessing, will be tried before the German People's Court, an announcement said.

In explanation of the arrest of Gen. Elias, Heydrich told Czech President Emil Hacha that "in recent days irresponsible elements in the pay of the enemies of Europe have committed a number of actions hostile to the Reich."

These elements, Heydrich declared, "through propaganda connected with these acts, sought to bring the population of the protectorate into opposition to the interests of the Reich."

Later he issued a statement saying "it is expected the population, which in the majority recognizes as a fact the common destiny of the European peoples with Germany, will not permit itself in any way to be provoked by enemies of the Reich." President Hacha was said to have promised his co-operation.

The districts affected by the emergency decree—forming the most populous part of the protectorate—are Prague, Bruena, Maehrisch-Ostrau, Klando, Koenigradz and Olmuetz.

"Hostile Acts" Not Specified.

The "hostile acts" to which Heydrich referred were not specified, but passive resistance of the Czechs has frequently been a source of trouble to the Germans since Hitler dismembered the Czecho-Slovak Republic in March, 1939.

Once before—in November, 1939—the Germans established a state of emergency in Bohemia-Moravia, declaring martial law in five districts after student demonstrations which led to bitter clashes. Black-uniformed S. S. troops occupied Prague University buildings on that occasion, arrested hundreds of students and executed a number as an example.

Heydrich, who is 37 and known as one of the best fencers in Europe, has a reputation for straightening things out to suit German authorities in abrupt but thorough fashion. He was dispatched to Bohemia-Moravia following a short visit to Norway, where the Germans decreed a state of civil siege.

Arms Factory Work Slowed.

Czech government authorities in London said yesterday that increasing sabotage in former Czecho-Slovakia had slowed arms factory output as much as 50 per cent, blown up a number of German troop trains and disorganized transportation.

One troop train was crushed by the collapse of a tunnel in Vlara Pass, Slovakia, just after the train entered it, said reports filtering into London. The Czech government maintains constant communications with rebel leaders in the homeland by secret channels, the authorities said.

An arms factory "go slow" strike has crippled the output of such great concerns as the Skoda works at Pilsen, the reports said. Peasants were said to be burning granaries throughout the country in night-riding raids and then forming for angry hunger marches by day.

Secret Station Broadcasts.

A secret Czech radio station called "the Station for National Liberation" broadcasts nightly. The announcer declared in the broadcast heard in London last night that Heydrich was "the bloodiest man of all the bloody Nazis."

"Czech people!" he cried. "Heydrich was sent to provoke you to open revolt and to drive all Czechs to their knees, but the unity of the Czech people will frustrate the Nazi plan."

A Czech government official in London, thumbing through a sheaf of messages, said that workers in some armaments plants were so slow they looked like slow-motion pictures.

Recently, he declared, there have been explosions in major Czecho-Slovak powder works. Railway damage was said to have been extensive.

The incidents of sabotage have increased sharply since the start of the German-Russian war because of the natural inclination of the Slavs of former Czecho-Slavakia to support Russia, the "great mother of the Slavs," authorities said.

Italy continued to patrol the northeastern Adriatic seacoast where she sent her troops last week after outbreaks of fighting between Serbs and the little army allotted to the Croatian state the Axis carved out of Yugoslavia.

Rising Underground Revolt Straining German Police

UNDATED UNDERGROUND REVOLT

By the Associated Press.

A rising tide of underground revolt—sabotage, strikes and the rattle of terrorist gunfire in the dark—placed an ever-increasing strain today on the vast police army with which warring Germany held in check Europe's conquered millions.

Nazis Extending Church Curb

Berlin, Sept. 29 (AP)—The official Gazette announced today confiscation of the property of the Catholic foundation, St. Valentinus Haus, in the Rhineland, because it was "hostile to the state."

Hull Withholds Comment.

Washington, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—Asked today whether he saw any significance in the recent increase of rebellious activities in German-occupied territories, Secretary of State Hull replied that reliable reports indicated that enough people in these territories were being starved, shot and imprisoned without cause to make him hesitate to risk adding to their number by any comment he might make.

Benes Doubts Federalized Europe in This Generation

London, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—Dr. Edouard Benes, president of the provisional Czech government-in-exile, expressed belief today that a federalized Europe would be impossible for this generation, because of "the many animosities."

Speaking at a luncheon, he added "there must be no third European war, as this would mean the end of western Europe and the British Empire."

JEWS IN GERMANY FACE NEW BANS

They Must Give Way to All Others on Public Cars.

Berlin, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—The privileges of Jews were further restricted today by a decree of the Transport Ministry, which the Berlin newspaper Boersen Zeitung predicted would be followed by more stringent measures—possibly including creation of a ghetto.

The new decree forbids Jews to enter public conveyances of any sort until all other passengers have been accommodated, or to sit down if there are insufficient seats for non-Jews.

Only recently all Jews were ordered to wear a large yellow Star of David on their clothing as a badge of identification, and the Boersen Zeitung said this measure had re-opened the eyes of Germans to "the Jewish question," which it asserted "must be solved without sentimentality."

"For a large section of our people," the paper said, "it was a disagreeable surprise to see how many of these unwanted contemporaries still live among us, namely in certain quarters of large cities; how many good houses are occupied by them at a time of home shortage; with what a free and easy way they go about the streets as though they were alone there."

Berlin police, meanwhile, opened a citywide drive against profiteering restaurant owners, closing several establishments permantly on charges of boosting food, beer and liquor prices. Fines ranging from 2,000 to 18,000 marks (nominally $800 to $7,000) were imposed.

A communique said that despite recent distribution of identification cards for purchases of clothing and textiles, the public has been buying more than usual. This system will be replaced, it said, by "a system of rationing cards which will assure the population an indispensable minimum and avoid hoarding." The sales suspension will last about a fortnight, the announcement said.

Meanwhile, bread lines were added to those that queued up for milk, eggs and potatoes as Italians laid in supplies to augment the rations they will begin receiving Wednesday. From early morning, long lines formed outside bakeries, and some householders bought up to 30 kilograms (sixty pounds) of bread. The large purchasers said they intended to dry the bread in ovens and eat it gradually. The newspaper "Il Piccolo" denounced them as "foolish wasters."

The Fascist editor, Virginio Gayda, said that bread rationing "certainly will be felt by the Italian people, one of the largest consumers of bread in Europe," but that rationing "would have come even if Italy had not intervened in the war and had been lacking in her honor as an ally and her high national destiny."

NEW PINCH IN ITALY

Trading in Clothing Stopped as Rationing Prelude.

Rome, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—The Government today ordered suspension of all trade in textiles and clothing and it was understood this was a preliminary to rationing of these goods.

Despite recent distribution of identification cards for purchases of these goods, the communique said, the Italian public had been buying more of them than was normal and necessary. It said, "In order to avoid socially offensive, anti-economic hoarding, the Guilds Ministry has decided to block all sales of textiles, clothes and underwear so as later to order their rationing."

Italy To Ration All Clothing; Suspends Trading In Goods

No Textiles, Shoes Or Furs Can Be Sold While Government Takes Stock And Sets Up System

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Tuesday, Sept. 30—The Italian Government today suspended all trade in textiles and clothing of every kind including furs, shoes and boots, preliminary to a nation-wide stock-taking and rationing of these goods.

The halt in sales began just a day ahead of bread rationing which was caused by an inadequate grain crop.

Factories and wholesalers were directed to prepare inventories of their stocks as of last midnight and place them at the disposal of the Corporations Ministry "for distribution according to rules to be issued."

Soviet Wedge Reported Driven In Nazi Center

Moscow, Tuesday, Sept. 30—Red armies on the offensive from the Arctic to the Black Sea have deepened a wedge in the German lines on the central front and inflicted big losses upon the Nazis in two sectors of the Leningrad area, the Russians announced today.

One Russian tank force alone was declared to have killed and wounded 1,500 Germans and put twelve Nazi tanks out of action in one northwestern sector. In the other a Soviet unit killed 600 Germans and recaptured an important point identified only as "B."

Furthermore, today's early morning communique said 263 German planes were destroyed in two days, representing the widest swath yet cut in the Nazi air force in a 48-hour period.

Another Destroyer Sunk

Still another success was reported at sea, the sinking of a second destroyer in a Baltic battle in which a cruiser and a destroyer previously were reported sent to the bottom.

Leningrad's defenders, asked by Marshal Klementi Voroshilov on August 20, to fight to the last man, apparently still held the upper hand outside that besieged town.

In Moscow, early season snows began to fall.

The general picture drawn by Soviet sources was of a battle line everywhere held firm as winter approached and of the Germans being bent back in some sectors.

Nazi Tanks Defeated

At the center about Bryansk, a town more than 200 miles southwest of Moscow, German tank forces were declared to have suffered another defeat, this time being sharply thrown back with heavy losses in men and equipment by a Russian drive that recaptured two Soviet villages.

Before Odessa, two Rumanian infantry brigades were routed, the Soviet communique announced, with the loss of more than 2,500 dead in a single action.

Offshore, Soviet warships were officially described as still in heavy action in support of the besieged city, despite repeated German efforts to mine the Black Sea from the air and thus bottle up the southern Soviet fleet. Russian mine sweepers, it was added, were clearing the shipping lanes as fast as they were filled with mines.

Little Said Of Leningrad

The situation about Leningrad was not stated in detail in today's advices save that unending Russian counter-thrusts were beating the Germans back at places.

Somewhere above the city, a detachment of 600 Finnish troops was declared annihilated. Over the northwestern front generally the destruction by Soviet bombers of scores of German trucks and armored cars, along with at least thirty tanks, was announced.

The southern Red air fleet was pictured as in strong offensive action, having all but smashed two battalions of German infantry in one sector.

(During Monday there was no authoritative word from Moscow as to the Nazi thrust at the Crimea London sources said, however, that while the Germans were heavily bombing Crimean railroads and highways, they apparently were making little or no progress against the Perekop Isthmus, which connects the peninsula with the main land.)

Rumanian Loss Of 2 Brigades Reported

Communiques on Page 12

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, Sept. 29—The Red army announced today that it had routed two Rumanian infantry brigades in fierce fighting on the Southern front and reported the invaders had left more than 2,500 dead on the field of battle.

Approximately 300 Rumanian officers and men and quantities of war materials, including forty-seven pieces of artillery, were said to have been captured in the action, which the Russians declared was still continuing.

Northern Fighting Reported

Heavy fighting also was reported on the northern front throughout the night, where the Red army was said to be more than holding its own against the German invaders.

Flurries of light snow fell in Moscow today.

(The R. A. F. wing fighting with the Red air force in Russia shot down twelve planes up to Saturday night, with a loss of one fighter plane, the Air Ministry reported in London today.)

Soviet claims of a series of naval victories were made as British and American missions got down to business in Moscow on a long-term program of helping the Russian war machine.

Persistent Russian counter-attacks were reported also in the central sector, where the tank forces of German Gen. Heinz Guderian were said to have suffered a new blow after having been driven back from the direction of Bryansk.

300 Dead Reported Found

A front-line dispatch from that sector said the Russians recaptured two villages, designated only as "V" and "D," in a tank and infantry attack following up an artillery barrage. The Germans suffered heavy losses, it said, leaving 300 dead, six tanks and other material among the debris of one village alone.

Pravda, the Communist party newspaper, said the Germans repeatedly tried to mine the Black Sea from the air in order to bottle up the Red navy's southern fleet, but that minespeewers were keeping shipping lanes clear and warships were operating constantly.

The early morning communique announced that Russian coastal and ship batteries sank a German cruiser and destroyer and damaged two other destroyers in the Baltic Sea.

It added that the Red fleet sank two transports of 8,000 and 5,000 tons in Arctic waters and that a tanker of 6,000 tons was sent to the bottom of the Black Sea.

The Russians said the Red army in fierce counter-attacks on the Central front recaptured ten more villages in its drive from Yelnya toward Smolensk.

The Red army also was said to have hurled the Germans from three lines of trenches and to have crossed the Desna river in an advance on a six-mile front.

Leningrad continued to resist the strongest German air and land pressure, it was said. A correspondent for the Communist party organ, Pravda, reporting from the besieged city, said:

"We already have cracked the enemy's advance, now let us bleed him white."

This correspondent portrayed the defenders of Leningrad as "attacking incessantly, then driving forward without respite."

The Red air force was reported rendering great aid to the land troops. The communique said the Germans lost ninety-eight planes Friday along the entire front, compared with thirty-one Soviet planes lost.

Parachutists Hunted

(The Italian news agency, Stefani, said in a Sofia (Bulgaria) dispatch that Russian parachute troops had landed in Bulgaria and nine of them, fully armed with guns and ammunition, were being hunted in the Sliven region in eastern Bulgaria. Previous Bulgarian charges of such landings have been denied.)

NAZIS REPORT DRIVE CLOSE TO DONETS BASIN

Claim Destruction Of 3 Red Divisions East Of Dnieperopetrovsk

Berlin Admits Strong Russian Counter-Attack On Southern Front

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Sept. 29—The German southern armies were reported advancing close to the Donets basin in the Ukraine tonight, while Nazi warplanes beat heavily at that industrial area in an effort to knock out one more reservoir of the war materials so urgently needed by Russia.

The extent of the Nazi advance was not officially stated, but DNB, supplementing a report by the high command that three Red divisions (of about 45,000 men) had been outflanked and destroyed by German and Italian troops northeast of Dnieperopetrovsk, declared it was obvious that invading forces were hammering at the gates of the Donets.

Red Attack Admitted

News dispatches told of a strong Russian counter-attack somewhere in the southern theater, but it was asserted that the Germans had subsequently captured a string of Soviet batteries and turned them around to fire on the Red forces.

The air force, in cooperation with German troops, reported destruction in the south of twenty-three Russian planes in air battles and six on the ground.

As to the northern front—about Leningrad—there was only brief information. A dispatch from there stated the Germans had taken forty-one more casements by storm but again had encountered many land mines. A single group of engineers was said to have eliminated 2,050 such mines in eight hours.

Nazi Progress Stressed

Stressed, however, was German progress in the Ukraine and the economic and industrial aspects of the present campaign.

The British-American-Russian conferences now being held in Moscow the Germans asserted, were hard pressed for time because of a growing realization that aid for the Soviet must be swift if it is to be effective.

Dienst aus Deutschland said the problems confronting Moscow had quickly changed even while the British and American missions traveled to that capital.

Situation Outlined

Only a few weeks ago, Dienst went on, this was the situation from the English standpoint: first, Russian superiority of war materials would require the Germans to make protracted and heavy sacrifices; second, the Eastern front tieup of German energies would give Britain an undisturbed period to prepare an offensive; third, there would be time for American aid to reach Britain.

Events, the commentary pursued, had so changed matters that the position now was this:

First, Russian superiority in materials had been speedily overcome without proportionate German sacrifices; second, the Eastern front had not monopolized the energies of Germany, which in fact, had been able to hit British shipping harder than ever; third, American aid for Britain now probably would have to be diverted in part to help Russia.

Russia's War: Loss Of 45,000 Reds Claimed

SEP 30 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Sept. 29—The destruction of three Soviet divisions (about 45,000 men) northeast of Dnieperopetrovsk in the lower Ukraine was officially claimed today, and the official German news agency observed that the Nazi southern armies now were knocking at the gates of the Donets river industrial district.

The communique announcing a Nazi victory northeast of Dnieperopetrovsk said 13,000 Red prisoners were in hand, according to incomplete reports.

It said the Russians were caught in a swampy district and suffered heavy and bloody losses.

The high command also reported that strong formations of the German air force attacked railways in the Donets Basin and in the Moscow area with good results.

Warships Reported Hit

The communique, issued from the headquarters of Adolf Hitler, said the German bombers also scored hits on a Soviet cruiser around Kronstadt, the Soviet naval base guarding Leningrad's sea approaches.

Bombers also attacked "military installations in Leningrad and Moscow" last night, the communique added.

German soldiers were reported pushing eastward today in a direct threat to Kharkov, the most important city of the Donets industrial area, while far to the north Nazi guns and planes struck at the Red power in the Baltic.

Ukraine Advance Claimed

DNB said new German operations were in progress on the Eastern front after completion of the encirclement battle of Kiev, and semi-official quarters indicated the German advance in the Ukraine was not slowed down despite the intensity of the Kiev struggle.

In Bucharest, Rumania, Gen. Virgil Economu, of the Rumanian army, said German attacks aimed at Kharkov and on the rail center of Bryansk, 250 miles northwest of Kharkov, already were "in progress." He described Kharkov and the whole Donets basin ar. Don region as "directly threatened."

DNB said the German air force raided Russian strongholds on the southern front and destroyed three railroad trans, numerous vehicles and airplane hangars. The agency called the Russian losses great.

Kronstadt Reported Shelled

In the Baltic fighting, German reports said big guns were shelling Kronstadt, Russian island naval base guarding the sea approach to Leningrad, and that German dive bombers were seeking out remnants of the Soviet Baltic fleet.

The high command said yesterday one Russian cruiser was set afire by the cannonading, and a battleship near Kronstadt was said to have been hit by heavy bombs. The shelling began Friday, it was said.

The guns were believed mounted somewhere in the vcinity of Oranienbaum, on the mainland seven miles across the mouth of the Neva river from Kronstadt and about eighteen miles from Leningrad.

DNB, telling how the Germans were mopping up the area east of Kiev, said a single division within twenty-four hours captured 20,000 Russian prisoners, and said some advance units caught up with streams of retreating Red soldiers.

Murmansk Railroad Bombed.

Helsinki, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—The Finnish Air Force heavily bombed the Murmansk railroad between Petrozavodsk and Karhumaki yesterday, it was announced today. Hits were reported on transport trains.

Report Air Troops in Bulgaria.

The Italian news agency, Stafani, said in a dispatch from Sofia, Bulgaria, that Russian parachute troops had landed in Bulgaria and nine of them, fully armed with guns and ammunition, were being hunted in the Sliven region. Previous Bulgarian charges of such landings have been denied.

British Claim 12 Planes

LONDON, Sept. 29 (AP)—The Royal Air Force wing fighting with the Red Air Force in Russia had shot down twelve planes up to Saturday night, with a loss of one fighter plane, the Air Ministry reported today.

Crimea Holding, London Hears

SEP 30 1941

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 29—Heavy attacks are being made on railroads and highways in the Crimea by the German air force, but the Germans appear to be making little, if any, progress against the Perekop Isthmus, authoritative sources said today.

It was reported fierce fighting was in progress in that area, but Russians were reported expressing confidence they would be able to hold out.

British Forces Build Anti-Axis Front From Asia-Soviet Borders

SEP 30 1941

Detailed Arrangements Worked Out Between Empire Forces In Asia Minor And In India To Defend Oil-Rich Region

(By The Associated Press)

London, Sept. 29—Britain has built an anti-Axis front reaching through Asia Minor to the left flank of the Russian armies of the Caucasus, it was announced officially today, and detailed arrangements for co-operation between Empire forces there and in India have been worked out.

But there was still no reliable word that Britain was sending troops into the Caucasus to help Russia defend that oil-rich region from the German offensive now skirting the Black Sea in its direction. The British idea seemed to be that the threat is not yet acute.

The announcement, cryptic in its simplicity, came from Simla, India, headquarters of the British command in India, and told of an "important conference" between Britain's highest commanders in Africa and Asia—Generals Sir Archibald P. Wavell and Sir Claude J. E. Auchinleck—to coordinate India's war effect with the iron raised at the land bridge between Europe and Asia.

IMMENSE RESERVOIR

The announcement implied that the British were ready to draw upon the immense reservoir of fighting men in India to meet any Axis move.

The objective of the conference, said the announcement, was arrangement of "full details of cooperation between India and the Middle East regarding the anti-Axis front now established from Syria through Iraq and Iran to the left flank of the Russian armies."

Wavell, ace strategist in Britain's own style of lightning war and famed for the now abandoned salient he once drove into Italian North Africa, now is commander of British forces in India. Simla is his headquarters.

Auchinleck, his successor as commander for the Middle East—that is, Africa and Asia Minor—also has an Allied military victory to his credit, the British-free French occupation of Syria, which has become the anchor of the Middle Eastern line. He succeeded Wavell as Middle Eastern commander, July 2, when Wavell was moved to the Simla post.

The two strategists met at Baghdad, Iraq, Friday and Saturday, the Simla communique said. Wavell already had conferred with Auchinleck at Cairo, his general headquarters, some days previously while en route to Simla from London consultations.

Since the Cairo and Baghdad visits Wavell has continued his personal contacts along the Middle Eastern line with a stop at Teheran, Iran. There he conferred with commanders of both the Russian and British forces in occupation of Iraq—Lieut.-Gen. Edward P. Quinan and Maj.-Gen. Vassili Vassilovich Novikov. He had two talks with the Russian.

Wavell was expected to fly on to Simla from Terheran.

The Wavell-Auchinleck meeting at Baghdad took place about the time that London started buzzing last week with talk of a British expenditionary force into the Caucasus—talk that authoritative denials seemed unable to dampen.

Wavell held a press conference at Teheran today but kept secret whether he would send troops into the Caucasus defense line of the Russians. He declared, however, that he expected complete cooperation would be achieved between British and Russian forces.

Asked if he planned to visit Russia, Wavell said, "well, not yet."

(BBC reported that Marshal Boris M. Shaposhnikov, military adviser to Joseph Stalin and deputy commissar of defense, had arrived at general headquarters in the Ukraine and might go on to an unannounced destination to see Wavell.)

For publication, Wavell minimized the German threat to the Caucasus.

"They'd have to put an end to the Russian Black Sea fleet first, either by taking all its bases or by sending in the Italian fleet to fight," he said.

"The latter would involve seizing the Dardanelles, and I don't believe the Turks would give in easily."

The Germans apparently feel that their offensive cannot be extended to the Caucasus until the Crimean Peninsula, in the Black Sea, has been reduced as a base for the Red fleet and air force. Authoritative sources said today that the German Air Force was heavily bombing peninsular communications but seemed to be making little progress by land against the Perekop Isthmus which links the Crimea to the mainland.

The Russians were reported confident that the Crimean defense would hold.

(The German radio broadcast today an Ankara dispatch, crediting in turn Baghdad reports, which said that a train of motor transports had left Baghdad for Khanaquin, 100 miles northeast of the Iraq capital on the Iraq side of the Iran border and added: "It is rumored that the British troops are en route to the Caucasus in order to reinforce defenses there.")

Iran, now in the firm military control of the British and Russians, is the Middle East's only land connection with the Caucasus, excepting Turkey.

The occupation of Iran was the latest of a series of British Middle Eastern moves which makes it possible for the British to speak of a great Middle Eastern front against the Axis.

The suppression of a pro-Axis outbreak in Iraq, which had threatened British treaty footholds there, and the wresting of Syria from control of the Vichy government of France preceded occupation of Iran.

The independence of Syria, under the protection, of course, of the Allies, was proclaimed formally two days ago at Damascus.

Harriman Gives Pledge As Moscow Parley Begins Its Job

Committees Study Technical Problems, Under Orders To Work Fast

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 29—The BBC reported today that Marshal Boris M. Shaposhnikov, military adviser to Joseph Stalin and Deputy Commissar of Defense, had arrived at the Russian general headquarters in the Ukraine and might go to see General Sir Archibald Wavell, commander of British forces in India.

The broadcast did not say where Shaposhnikov and Wavell might meet, but a previous British broadcast said it was "unlikely" Wavell would visit Russia.

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, Sept. 29—W. Averell Harriman, head of the United States delegation to the American-British-Russian aid conference, pledged at the opening session of the three-power meeting today that the United States would give Russia "the fullest possible support" for her war against Germany.

Half an hour later the preliminary speeches ended and the meeting was broken down into committee sessions which plunged at once into the technical problems of how such aid could be effected.

SEP 30 1941

Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov, who presided, told the delegates: "I hope the conference will be guided by the high ideals expressed by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill August 15, when they proposed the meeting in a message to Premier Joseph Stalin."

Separate Committees Formed

At Molotov's proposal, separate committees were formed on army, navy, aviation, transport, raw materials and medical supplies.

"Time is precious," the Foreign Commissar declared. "Let us get to work."

Lord Beaverbrook, head of the British delegates, told the conference: "We owe a great debt to our American friends," and added:

"Our present advantageous position on the battlefield is due in large measure to them."

Ready To Make Every Sacrifice

Of the Russian-German war, Lord Beaverbrook said: "We are in partnership with the Russians. We are here today to show them we are ready to make every sacrifice to help conquer our common enemy. Mr. Molotov said time is precious. He is right. We will give lessons to those who make war. We will do everything we can to bring the conqueror low."

Harriman declared that the presence of the American delegation at the war conference was historic in that the United States is non-belligerent.

"But we come with your ally, the British," he told the Russians, "with the same object—to give you every assistance against the violent and uncalled-for attack upon you by Hitler and his cohorts.

As Long As Fight Lasts

"Your success means everything to the people of America. I am instructed to pledge you the very fullest possible support today, tomorrow, and as long as the struggle lasts until ultimate victory comes."

The American and British Ambassadors, Laurence A. Steinhardt and Sir Stafford Cripps as well as high Soviet officials, attended the session.

The committees were instructed to work day and night in order to have a full report on Russia's war needs ready by Friday.

MOSCOW TALKS ON AID TO REDS GET UNDER WAY

All Members of American and British Missions Are Present.

MOLOTOV IS PRESIDING

Stalin Personally Receives Both Harriman and Beaverbrook at the Kremlin.

Moscow, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—The three-Power conference which is to formulate a program for United States and British aid to the Soviet Union in the war against Germany opened today with the Russian Foreign Minister, Vyacheslav A. Molotov, presiding.

The full American and British delegations, headed by W. Averell Harriman and Lord Beaverbrook, were present. The chiefs of the missions had conferred with Josef Stalin more than three hours at the Kremlin last night.

The Soviet press displayed communiques announcing arrival of the full missions and Stalin's reception and gave prominent place to photographs of the Vice-Commissar of Foreign Affairs, Andrei J. Vishinsky, and Constantin Oumansky, Ambassador to the United States, welcoming the delegations at an airport.

Talks are expected to last a week.

Mr. Harriman declared: "We are here to find out in detail the Russian needs now and in the future and to make present and future plans to supply them as far as possible. I think America will make a very strong contribution to Russia and an increasing one. We expect to work very fast as time is so important."

Russia Reveals Needs.

It was disclosed that Russia had presented a complete list of her requirements to the United States, and that supplies of American planes, aviation gasoline and lubricants already were reaching Russia.

Lord Beaverbrook, Britain's Supply Minister, who has been in Moscow several days, gave a dinner last night for the American and British delegations.

Stalin received the mission chiefs in his capacity as chairman of the Council of Peoples Commissars.

The three-Power talks grew out of a personal message sent by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill on August 15 to Stalin. It was the first concrete move disclosed to have been made after the Roosevelt-Churchill conferences on the Atlantic.

Wavell Mum On Sending Of Troops To Aid Russia

SEP 30 1941

Teheran, Iran, Sept. 29 (AP)—Britain's India commander, Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, kept secret tonight whether he would send British troops to Russia's Caucasus defense line and minimized any immediate German threat to that oil-rich district east of the Black Sea.

He declared in a press interview, however, that he expected full co-operation would be achieved between British and Russian forces.

Of the German threat to the Caucasus, General Wavell commented:

"They'd have to put an end to the Russian Black Set fleet first either by taking all its bases or by sending in the Italian fleet to fight. The latter would involve seizing the Dardanelles, and I don't believe the Turks would give in easily."

The British strategist, on a flying tour of key British outposts in Africa and Asia Minor, had tea today with Maj. Gen. Vassili Vassilovich Novikov, Russian commander in Iran, with whom he had been closeted for ninety minutes yesterday.

Hints At Visit To Russia

Wavell declined to disclose where he would go from here. Asked by British and American correspondents whether he would visit Russia, he hesitated and answered, "Well, not yet."

He recalled he last saw Russian forces in the field during maneuvers five years ago and reversed press conference procedure by asking the newsmen their impressions of the Red army equipment in northern Iran.

General Novikov, veteran whose two sons are fighting on the Smolensk and Ukraine fronts, mixed Russian and French with a smile as he talked with General Wavell through an interpreter.

WAVELL LAYS PLAN FOR EAST

But Will Not Predict Force of British in Caucasus.

By Don de Lue

Teheran, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, Commander of British Forces in India, said in an interview today that he expected full co-operation would be achieved between British and Russian forces, but declined to say whether his command would send land forces to the Russian Caucasus.

Asked by British and American correspondents if he would visit Russia, he hesitated before he answered: "Well, not yet."

Recalling that he had last seen Russian forces in the field at the Minsk maneuvers five years ago, Gen. Wavell reversed press conference procedure to ask the newspaper men's impressions of the Red soldiers' equipment in northern Iran.

Gen. Wavell and Gen. Novikov, the Russian Commander in Iran, were closeted for ninety minutes yesterday and met again at the British legation at Sunday tea. At the tea Gen. Wavell appeared tense and nervous but Gen. Novikov seemed carefree, mixing Russian and French with a gold-toothed smile.

India Linked To New Front

[By the Associated Press]

Simla, India, Sept. 29 — Britain's highest commanders in Africa and Asia have worked out "full details of cooperation between India and the Middle East regarding the anti-Axis front now established from Syria through Iraq and Iran to the left flank of the Russian armies," it was announced officially today.

Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, commander of British forces in India, and Gen. Sir Claude J. E. Auchinleck, commander of British armies in the Middle East, met Friday and Saturday at Baghdad, Iraq, for that purpose, the announcement said.

(Wavell, best known for his rout of the Italians in Libya before he was succeeded in the Middle East command by Auchinleck, has been on a flying tour of strategic British outposts in Asia Minor and Africa.

(A dispatch from Teheran, capital of Iran, which now is under joint British-Russian occupation, said yesterday that Wavell conferred with Lieut. Gen. Edward P. Quinan, the British commander there, and also with the Russian commander.

(Wavell planned to fly today to Simla, India, his headquarters.

(There was talk in London last week, which even official denials could not down, that the British were preparing to send an expeditionary force into the Caucasus to help Russia meet any sharp German threat to that oil-rich region.

The German radio broadcast today an Ankara dispatch saying that a train of motor transports carrying a British force estimated at two divisions was reported to have left Badgad for Khanaquin, 100 miles northeast of that capital on the Iraq side of the Iran border.

"It is rumored that the British troops are en route to the Caucasus in order to re-enforce defenses there," said the broadcast.

SYRIA IS FREED

Independence Proclaimed, but War Restricts It.

Damascus, Sept. 27 (delayed) (A. P.).—Gen. Georges Catroux, commander of the Free French armies in the Levant, today formally proclaimed the independence of Syria in a ceremony at the Government House.

Referring to the British and Free French manifesto of June 8 guaranteeing Syrian independence under a treaty to be concluded later, he said the declaration was rendered effective by restoration of the Republic.

He declared the Syrian State enjoys from now on duties and prerogatives "attached to an independent sovereign State, but these rights are subjected to restrictions imposed by the present state of war and the security of the territory."

Germans Say Refugees in Iran Were Robbed.

SEP 30 1941

Berlin, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—Charges that about 470 German women and children who had been assured of safe conduct from Teheran to the Turkish border were abused in a manner "unexampled in the history of international relations" were made today by an authorized spokesman.

The Germans, who now have crossed the border from Iran, were virtually stripped by Russian woman soldiers, all their possessions, including trinkets and wedding rings, were taken and the baggage of the German diplomitic mission was robbed, it was charged.

The German people, the spokesman declared, hold not only the Russians but also the British responsible.

Refugees From Iran in Turkey

ANKARA, Sept. 28 (delayed) (AP).—A trainload of 400 Italian refugees arrived today from Iran (Persia) far more cheerful than a similar group of Germans who preceded them by twenty-four hours with a story of being rough-housed by the Russians. After a brief pause in Turkey the Axis nationals, ousted summarily from British and Russian occupied Iran, will continue on to their homelands.

Italy Declared Caught In 2-Way R. A. F. Drive

SEP 30 1941

London, Sept. 29 (AP)—Italy has been caught in a two-direction, all-out assault by the R. A. F.—anoffensive based on Britain's own flying fields as well as those of the Middle East—which to some quarters looked tonight like the start of a drive to "bomb Italy out of the war."

Synchronized with the operations of bombers from Egypt for attacks over the week end and Sunday night on Italy's insular possessions — Sicily, Sardinia and Rhodes, as well as the Libyan coast of north Africa—the greatest weight-carrying planes of the R. A. F. crossed the Alps last night to raid the northern mainland of Italy.

Trail Of Fire Blazed

They smashed at military, naval and industrial enters, blazing a trail of fire and destruction.

Genoa was left in the glare of raging flames. Airmen who returned to Britain, said that the industrial and dock area of that naval base were hardest hit. Turin also was attacked along with other points in northern Italy.

The raiders, four-motored Stirlings and twin-motored Wellingtons—skimmed Mont Blanc at about 400 feet in their crossing of the Alps. They had to dodge a fierce electrical storm.

Almost ignored by British observers in the assault on Italy were attacks last night on Frankfort and other objectives in western Germany, and oil depots and refineries at St. Nazaire, France. Seven planes, in all, were acknowledge lost in night operations.

By daylight today, the R.A.F. was back over Northern France, five trucks of a convoy near Dieppe were reported set afire by machine-guns and aerial cannon.

The British listed last night's northern raid as the 220th of the war on Italy. The airmen told of plunging their bombs into beckoning fires at Genoa from altitudes of only 2,000 and 3,000 feet.

Record Bomb Loads Are Dumped in Italy

SEP 30 1941

London, Sept. 29 (AP).—The R.A.F. has opened an all-out offensive against Italy, slashing at her northern industrial and military centers with the heaviest possible bomb loads from bases in Britain and insular cities from Britain's Mediterranean bases—an assault which informed quarters said might be the start of a "bomb Italy out of the war" campaign.

Four-motored Stirlings which carry the heaviest cargoes of explosives of any aircraft now in R.A.F. operation, skimmed the Alps with a swarm of twin-motored Wellingtons last night to smash at the northern cities of Genoa, Turin and other points. Raging fires were reported left at Genoa.

The raiders skirted a "terrific" electric storm over the Alps, clearing Mont Blanc by only about 400 feet, according to the returning airmen.

Timed with this thrust were week-end attacks by the R.A.F. of the Middle East at four cities in Sicily, the island of Rhodes and the African coast—this according to the Italians' own acknowledgment. The trans-Alps assault was listed by the British as their 220th raid of the war on Italy.

The Genoa attackers were quoted by the Air Ministry news service as telling how they attacked the Italian port and naval base from altitudes as low as 2,000 and 3,000 feet.

The R.A.F. also raided Frankfort and other targets in Western Germany, the Air Ministry announced.

At Genoa, its communique said, bombs burst in industrial areas and large fires were started along the waterfront.

From these widespread bomber command raids five planes are missing, it said, and from a coastal command raid on oil depots and refineries along the occupied French coast at St. Nazaire two bombers have not returned to their bases.

The ministry quoted one pilot as saying that the fumes of burning oil and chemicals reached even to the raiders' flying height and that the refinery blaze could be seen 50 miles away.

Britain, meanwhile, was the objective of only a few hostile aircraft, flying singly, the Government said. They ranged as far as the coast of South Wales and a communique reported there was some damage at two places and a small number of casualties.

The raid on Northern Italy was the second this month. Turin was raided on the night of September 10-11.

Some sources asserted the latest raid might mark the beginning of an attempt by Britain to bomb Italy out of the war.

Fascist Cities Blasted In 2-Way, All-Out Bombing Attack

[By the Associated Press]

Rome, Sept. 29—The high command credited the Italian air force today with a decisive victory over British seapower in a nine-hour running battle in the Mediterranean in which, it said, three British cruisers and at least three merchantmen were sunk from a strongly guarded convoy.

The batle, which began in daylight Saturday and lasted into the night, was the opening round of a week end of violent air warfare in which the British smashed back with simultaneous blows last night on northern Italy and her insular territory in the most widespread raids on Italian territory of the war so far.

Fire Bombs Dropped

While R. A. F. bombers were repeating their frequent forays against Sicily, others were dropping explosives, fire bombs and leaflets on four cities of the northern mainland, among them Genoa, the industrial center of Turin and the naval port of Spezia.

In defiance of a battleship, an aircraft carrier and ten or more cruisers and destroyers, a special communique said, repeated waves of Italian planes swept out from Sicilian and Sardinian bases to intercept the convoyed line of British ships sliding eastward from Gibraltar.

After hours of combat, two heavy British cruisers and a light cruiser had gone down, three—and possibly four—merchantmen were sunk and several British warships damaged, the communique said.

[A German broadcast called the action the most successful of the Italian air force against the British fleet since the war's beginning.]

From Friday To Sunday

Italian press and radio descriptions pictured the engagement as lasting, actually, from mid-afternoon Friday when an Italian air scout first sighted the convoy until Sunday night, when Fascist bombers and dive-bombers made a raid on the British fortress island of Malta.

According to these accounts scouting flights continued into Sunday when two British formations were sighted, one heading east and the other west toward Gibraltar.

They said two of the merchantmen were sunk in this final attack.

Among the damaged warships, the communique listed the battleship, believed to be the 33,950-ton Nelson, another "large undetermined unit," presumably the aircraft carrier, six smaller units and a destroyer.

[The British Admiralty was silent on the Rome reports of three cruisers and three merchantmen sunk. Previously, however, it had reported the arrival at its Mediterranean destination of one British convoy with the loss of only one destroyer damaged and a merchantman sunk by the British themselves after it had been crippled too badly to continue. Whether this was the convoy to which the Rome communique referred was not clear.]

In the face of violent air support for the British sea forces, the communique said, the finishing blows on two merchantmen, totaling 23,000 tons, were scored by torpedo planes between Sardinia and Tunisia.

The other two torpedoed were credited to Italian light naval forces, one off the coast of Algeria and the other in the Sicilian Channel.

Eight Italian planes are missing and the Colonel commanding the wave of Italian attacks and three squadron commanders are considered to have fallen, the communique said. Six British planes fell flaming into the sea, it reported.

All the blows to the British warships were dealt from the air, the communique reported, telling of one cruiser of about 10,000 tons which dropped, listing, out of formation after an air-launched torpedo rammed home and swiftly was hit again and sunk by a torpedo fired from the following Italian plane.

Directly and indirectly, the High Command said, the British air raid took a toll of 13 persons killed and 43 injured in Sicily and on the mainland—among them two killed in blackout traffic accidents and 10 hurt by splinters of Italian anti-aircraft shells. Bombs fell on a hospital on Rhodes, causing 12 casualties, and also hit civilian residences, it said.

Fascists Say 3 Cargo Craft Also Destroyed in Raid on Convoy

9 CITIES BLASTED

Sicily, Island of Rhodes and North Africa Hit in British Foray

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Sept. 29.—In a sudden burst of violent air and sea fighting, Italian torpedo planes have sunk three British cruisers and at least three merchantmen in a nine-hour attack on a Mediterranean convoy, and the British have answered with an all-out bombing offensive against Italy, the high command reported today.

Wave after wave of Italian planes pounced on the British convoy sailing eastward from Gibraltar Saturday, keeping up the attack on it despite fierce sky fighting in which British planes were shot flaming into the sea and eight Italian planes were lost, the high command said.

The British, it said, raided four cities of the Italian mainland, four in Sicily, and blasted at the island of Rhodes and the North African coast last night, one of the most intensive air raid incursions the Italians have experienced.

Score Yet Battle Given.

A special communique gave this score for the battle which, it said, churned the waters of the mid-Mediterranean from 1 p.m. to 10 p.m. Saturday with Italian torpedo planes striking repeatedly at the aircraft carrier, battleship, cruisers and at least 10 destroyers guarding the British convoy:

Sunk: Two heavy cruisers, one light cruiser and three merchantmen.

Possibly sunk: One merchantman.

Damaged: A battleship, another "large undetermined unit," six smaller units and a destroyer.

Battleship Named as Nelson.

The radio identified the battleship as the 33,950-ton Nelson, one of Britain's newest and biggest capital ships up to the start of the war.

(An Admiralty communique in London earlier said a British Mediterranean convoy which was attacked by Italian planes had reached its destination with only one merchant ship lost and one destroyer damaged. The Admiralty had no comment to make on these later Italian claims.

(The merchant ship was damaged too badly to continue and was sunk by the British themselves, the Admiralty said, and the destroyer's damage was not sufficient to impair its fighting capacity.)

Two of the merchantmen were torpedoed by light Italian war vessels, the communique said, one in the narrow pass between Sicily and the African north coast, and the other off the Algerian coast. The two sunk by air-launched torpedoes were said to have gone down between Sardinia and Tunisia and to have aggregated 23,000 tons.

In the furious air battles, the special communique acknowledged, the colonel commanding the Italian operation and three squadron commanders "must be considered as having fallen at the head of their formations."

Eleven Killed in R. A. F. Raids.

The raids on Italy and Sicily killed 11 persons and injured 33, while 12 casualties were caused at Rhodes, where bombs fell on a hospital and civilian residences, a communique declared.

In addition, 10 persons were reported injured by splinters from Italian anti-aircraft shells on the mainland and two others were killed in traffic accidents—apparently the result of blackouts.

The Italians said one British raider was shot down over Italy and four over North Africa, while two others were reported destroyed over the central Mediterranean by Italian fighters.

The Fascist air force, meanwhile, carried out another night attack on the oft-bombed British Mediterranean stronghold of Malta, the high ocmmand declared.

Striking with level and dive bombers shortly after dusk, the Italian air force bombed British warships at Malta and scored hits with medium and heavy bombs along the water front, particularly in the vicinity of drydocks, said Stefani, Italian news agency.

All Italian planes returned to their bases, the news agency said, although they encountered violent anti-aircraft fire and were met by British night fighter planes.

The targets of the British bombers in Italy were Turin, Genoa, Spezia and Savona Marina—all in the north.

(Dispatches from Bern said large numbers of foreign warplanes passed over Switzerland during the night, indicating that the bombers which attacked Northern Italy made the long journey from Britain.)

Nine persons were killed and 26 wounded in Palermo, Sicily, the daily war bulletin declared, while two were killed and seven injured at Genoa on the northwestern coast of Italy, where five fire-fighters were listed among the casualties.

Four were reported injured by anti-aircraft splinters at Spezia, south of Genoa, where the Italians have a large naval base.

In Milan, industrial center in Northern Italy, six persons were injured by anti-aircraft shells and two persons were killed in blackout accidents, but no bombs fell on the city, the communique declared.

Leaflets Are Dropped.

At Savona Marina, also on the Italian mainland, the raiders were said to have damaged a number of residences and dropped propaganda leaflets.

Raiders were said to have dropped explosives and incendiaries on the Sicilian towns of Trapani, Marsala and Castel Vetrano as well as Palermo, though no casualties were mentioned at any of these places. It was the second raid on Sicily in as many nights.

Other British planes bombed the Italian island of Rhodes in the Eastern Mediterranean, causing 12 casualties, and attacked the Libyan base of Bardia, the Italians said.

Says Ships Are Safe.

London, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—An important convoy was put through the central Mediterranean despite consistent attacks by the enemy air force, the Admiralty announced today.

It said the convoy reached its destination although one merchant ship was damaged and had to be sunk by British forces. There were no casualties on that ship, however, the announcement said.

An escorting warship was reported damaged, but the Admiralty said her fighting efficiency was not impaired.

British Destroyer Sunk, Nazis Claim

Berlin, Tuesday, Sept. 30 (AP)—DNB reported today that German planes sank a British destroyer last night off the English East Coast.

The news agency also said an 8,000-ton merchant ship was sunk with a direct hit by a heavy-caliber bomb.

MORE ITALIANS GIVE UP

Garrison at Uolchefit in Ethiopia Surrenders.

London, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—One of the last pockets of Italian resistance in East Africa has been eliminated by the surrender of the 4,000-man Fascist force at Uolchefit, in the mountainous Gondar region of Ethiopia.

The Italians acknowledged yesterday that this force, under siege for 164 days, had laid down its arms after running out of food and supplies.

This surrender, the War Office here said, left only between 9,000 and 10,000 Italian-born and native troops still resisting in the Gondar region.

2 Eagle Flyers Battle Six Nazis

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 29—Two American Eagle Squadron pilot officers, G. A. Daymond, 19, of Los Angeles, and J. Flynn, 28, of Chicago, recently were obliged to fight German airmen every mile of the way home from an offensive patrol over France, the Air Ministry news service said today.

Daymond is the youngest member of the American Eagle outfit.

The news service said the pair destroyed two pursuers and damaged a third.

Six Against Two

Here is the service's account:

Daymond, who now has five German planes, including a bomber, scored for him, saw a Messerschmitt 110 taking off, but before it got within range he noticed another behind it. He fired at this one but did not observe the result as he swept overhead.

His comrade, flying behind, had seen four others take off and shot at one of them.

The two United States pilots were near the end of their patrol and did not have enough gas to start a dogfight with their adversaries, who were freshly fueled They decided to return to their base.

One Nazi Goes Down

Halfway across the Channel, several ME-109F's dived on the Spitfires.

"Two attacked my comrade," said Daymond, "and four fastened onto me. One enemy aircraft on my tail opened fire and I was flanked on both sides.

"I gave one a five-second burst with my cannon and machine guns. It shuddered violenfly, flicked on its back and dived into the sea. The enemy on my starboard side made a beam attack on me during this action and blew my hood off.

Second Plunges Into Sea

"I turned after him as he passed behind me and gave him all I had. Large pieces flew off of him and I turned for the English coast.

"But one of the ME-109F pilots, probably seeking revenge, pursued me all the way to the cliffs of Dover, firing all the time. I used all evasive tactics I knew, but the enemy aircraft was flown by a very experienced pilot, who often regained positon on my tail.

"Even in that hectic chase, however, I had had time to see one thing that gave me a kick—another ME-109 went into the sea, shot down by my comrade."

Germany Denies Peace Feelers.

Berlin, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—A categoric denial of any attempts anywhere at peace feelers or peace negotiations by Germany was issued today by authorized sources in response to rumors that Germany was contacting the Vichy or Ankara governments in that respect.

The rumors were branded as "fairy tales," especially at a time when Germany is on "an unexampled march to victory."

There can be no peace with Bolshevism, it was officially reiterated.

"Bolshevism will be stamped out as surely as 'amen' follows at the end of a prayer in church," these sources said.

NAZIS SAY BADER TRIED TO ESCAPE

SEP 30 1941

Report R.A.F. Pilot Had Just Got New Artificial Limb.

Berlin, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—Wing Commander Douglas Bader, legless British pilot who now is a German war prisoner, attempted to escape, a Nazi spokesman said today, only a few hours after the R. A. F. had delivered a new artificial limb to him by parachute with the approval of the Germans.

The spokesman explained that it was the custom of German flyers to entertain crack enemy pilots after their capture, and said the same honor was accorded Bader at an airdrome in France where he was first held.

After the dinner, Bader—who had just received his new artificial leg—disappeared, the spokesman said. After a search he was found in a barn some distance from the base.

Bader, 30 years old, lost both legs in a flying accident in 1931, and one of the metal legs he wore was damaged when he was forced down over northern France early last month.

German Girl Weds Nazi After He's Slain at Front

Signs Marriage Papers He Sent, Becomes Widow

BERLIN, Sept. 29 (AP).—A German girl became a widow today without ever having been a wife, when she formally wedded a dead man.

The girl had been the fiancee of Sergeant Otto Ernst Maiwald, a German soldier in Africa. Last June Maiwald performed the so-called long-distance marriage service before the commander of his unit.

By the time the marriage papers reached the girl in her home town of Ebersdorf he had been killed in action. Nevertheless she went before a registar and signed the marriage papers Maiwald had signed, and under Nazi law became entitled to pension and other benefits of a widow of a soldier who died in action.

BERLIN, Sep. 29 (AP).—Women of Sweden have declined an invitation to attend an "international women's meeting" in Berlin Oct. 7 to 12, a spokesman for Frau Gertrude Scholz-Klink, the Reich's woman leader, announced tonight.

This was the only definite rejection received, the spokesman said. Japan apparently was the only non-European country invited. In Europe, Switzerland, Greece and the protectorate of Bohemia-Moravia were not invited.

Acceptances were reported for Spain, Finland, Norway, Denmark, the Netherlands, Rumania, Bulgaria, Hungary, Italy and Slovakia. Replies have not been received from Portugal and Croatia.

Briton Reports Profits Taken Out Of War

Chancellor Of Exchequer Says "He Is An Exceedingly Lucky Man Who Can Make A Fortune"

London, Sept. 29 (AP)—Sir Kingsley Wood, Chancellor of the Exchequer, said recently: "We have taken, and are taking, profit out of war. He must be an exceedingly lucky man who can make a fortune today."

Sir Kingsley gave forth these figures:

A man earning as much as $400,000 a year has to pay a fraction more than 94 cents in taxes from every dollar he makes.

For the man in the $20,000-a-year class, who claims exemption for two children, the tax is 58 per cent. of his gross income.

If a man with $4 000-a-year income earns an extra $1 000 a year, he must pay $448 of the increase in taxation.

If a man making $40,000 a year earns another $20,000 he must pay $18 248 of the increase to the tax collector.

The week's armored car output exceeded that for all of August, the Ministry said.

Germans on Hospital Ship to Meet Train at French Port, Under Swiss Plan

BERNE, Switzerland, Sept. 29 (AP).—A train bearing 300 British wounded crossed Switzerland from Germany today en route to a French port, where they will be put aboard a British hospital ship which will take them home.

The British vessel is bringing wounded German captives to a French port for an exchange of seriously wounded prisoners under a plan by which Switzerland has agreed to act as a transport intermediary.

The Swiss are providing a twenty-two-car hospital train with physicians and nurses, a service Switzerland also performed in the World War. In all, about 1,150 British wounded are expected to be taken to French ports.

200 Empire Airmen Balk at Sailing on 'Dirty' Transport

1,000 Stalk Off Ship, but Most Return to Vessel; Recalcitrants Disciplined

By the Associated Press.

OTTAWA, Sept. 29.—A thousand Canadian-trained empire airmen stalked off a trans-Atlantic transport recently because of conditions they found aboard, and the Air Ministry here, acknowledging they had room for complaint, promised today "there need be no fear of any repetition of the unfortunate incident."

Canadians, New Zealanders and Australians were involved in the affair, which came to light last night when Air Minister C. G. Power announced that all but "a couple hundred" of the airmen reboarded the ship and now have arrived overseas.

Those left behind, he said, caught another ship a short time later after being nominally disciplined with a reduction in pay.

"The first airmen who went aboard didn't like what they saw," Mr. Power said. "They found the ship dirty, they objected to the sleeping arrangements, they doubted that the food would be good.

Couple Hundred Left.

"A number of them walked ashore again and spread the word among those who had not yet gone aboard. Some listened, and some didn't. In the end, not 1,000, but a couple of hundred airmen were left on the dock when the ship sailed at the scheduled hour with more than two-thirds of the contingent aboard. * * *

"We recognized that they had grounds for complaint about the accommodations, but we cannot sympathize with their means of expressing it. They were ordered aboard, and they disobeyed that order, and so, after a court of inquiry, they were disciplined. * * *

"But it can be said that the conduct of the disobedient men, apart from their courteous but firm refusal to sail under the conditions provided, was exemplary, and this was taken into account when discipline was imposed."

Mr. Power admitted the ship was "dirty and untidy," that it was a case where corrective measures were urgently demanded and that this view was being put "very strongly" before London authorities.

Famous Passenger Liner.

"This ship was a famous passenger liner in her peacetime days," Mr. Power went on. "She'd taken quite a beating during her service at Crete and elsewhere in the Mediterranean, and the long voyage through the Suez Canal, around Africa and across the Atlantic with a fraction of her normal complement hadn't improved her any.

"But, taking into consideration the shortage of shipping, apparently she was all the Admiralty had readily available at the moment. To make matters worse, bad weather on our east coast kept the ship from entering dock, where she could be cleaned in the usual way."

He concluded with assurances there would be no recurrence of the incident.

Reykjavik, Iceland, Sept. 24 (Delayed)—The wooden-legged master of the torpedoed freighter Pink Star told today a story of self-effacing heroism by the Canadian second officer, J. L. (Jim) Cassidy, who gave up his life so as not to overcrowd a lifeboat.

"Cassidy swam up to our only lifeboat. He saw that it was full, waved good-by and swam away. We never saw him again," said Captain J. C. Mackenzie.

He looked around at the grim faces of some of his twenty-three fellow-survivors of the crew of thirty-six. No one said a word. You could hear the wind beating against the side of the Icelandic hut where this tense interview was granted.

Ship Was Armed

(The State Department announced September 23 that the survivors, none Americans, had been landed in good shape at Reykjavik.

(The Pink Star, under the flag of Panama after the United States took her into protective custody—she formerly was the 4,150-ton Danish motorship Lundby—was the first ship under American control to be sunk after President Roosevelt's shoot-on-sight speech of September 11.

(The Pink Star was en route to Iceland in a Canadian convoy when she was destroyed September 19, 275 miles northeast of Cape Farewell, at the southern tip of Greenland. She was armed.

Lost Use of Legs

Cassidy, hero of the Pink Star, came from New Brunswick. The master himself, 53-year-old Mackenzie, was in the water for five hours. But his tribute was for Cassidy.

"It was the finest thing I ever saw," he said.

Of himself, MacKenzie said, "with two life belts to keep me up and a bit of wood from a lard box to paddle with," he had managed to keep moving for three hours. Two hours before he was picked up, however, he had lost the use of his good leg and the stump of the other from the numbing cold of the water.

He chuckled when he said that the chill had no effect on his artificial leg.

Heroism In North Atlantic

Saw Torpedoes Coming

"I wasn't feeling a thing in it," MacKenzie said.

Of the tense moments before the Pink Star went down, MacKenzie said:

"I could see the torpedoes coming for just minutes. I shoved the ship hard aport and then they hit. Glory be, it was like the judgment of God. She seemed to be tearing to pieces." . . .

Blast Smashes Boats

The Arctic gale now was whistling around the corners of the hut. Of the faces of the survivors only the master's was not set in grim hard li He was telling a story.

"A bit of a life raft was blown up on the bridge and the water thrown up by the explosion came up to my waist as I stood there," MacKenzie said. The explosion smashed all the lifeboats but one. Night was closing in. It was then 5.25 P. M.

"When we got the one boat down we found she was half full of water from this tidal wave the explosion threw up.

SEP 30 1941

Down In 8 Minutes

"The Pink Star went do n fast. Eight minutes it was. Some got in the lifeboat and the others jumped overboard in their belts. I l plenty of time. I got the secret papers and weighted them and threw m overboard. Then I took a life lt, found another and got off just as she was going down."

MacKenzie paused, striking a match for his pipe.

"She reached for me, she did. I felt the suction tugging at me as though she wanted me with her, but I kept swimming. Alf J ren, the third officer, was swimming near me. I could see the boat and he others in the water. It was very black."

MacKenzie said he swam about a bit to see if any of the others were injured.

"The steward was badly hurt about the head, a fellow the name of Seymour. He was pretty cheerful, but then all of a sudden he was gone. Another messman was hollering and crying. He went, too. It's no place for crying—the North Atlantic."

It was then tha tMacKenzie saw Cassic .

"Swam up as cool as you please, saw the situation and swam away," MacKenzie said. "Had a widowed mother in New Brunswick, too."

Pretty soon MacKenzie no longer could see the lifeboat.

"I was pretty alone and it was damned cold. Funny, I kept thinking of my ship. Lovely little thing she was, and these damned Jerries had opened up her side like a tin can."

Must Do Something

Fortunately, the sea was fairly calm

The captain showed me a callus on h hand from his makeshift paddle.

"Well, I had to have something to do. As long as you think you are doing something you're all right.

"It was heaven when the British man-of-war picked us up. I was done when they got me aboard, but three hours later I was hopping around the commander's cabin."

Most of the Pink Star survivors showed little signs of t Three were hospitalized for injuries. MacKenzie said: "There were o Americans in the crew to my knowledge."

PARLEY IN TOKIO MAY MEAN NEW TURN IN CRISIS

Grew and Foreign Minister Said to Have Discussed Important Matters.

CRAIGIE POSTPONES TRIP

British Envoy Was to Have Come to America—Italians and Nazis Give Luncheon.

SEP 30 1941

Tokio, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—A long conference between the United States Ambassador, Joseph C. Grew, and Foreign Minister Admiral Teijiro Toyoda on Saturday was disclosed today.

Authoritative sources said that matters of high importance undoubtedly were discussed, but there was no official disclosure of their nature.

The disclosure of the Grew-Toyoda conference came close on the heels of the British embassy's announcement that Ambassador Sir Robert Leslie Craigie had postponed his planned departure for a three-months' vacation in the United States as the result of "suggestions" from London.

Belief was expressed in informed quarters that a new turn was imminent in the diplomatic situation among Japan, the United States and Britain, which apparently has been at a standstill for some weeks. It was indicated that the Japanese were looking to Washington for the next development.

Japan Marks Year in Axis.

In some quarters it was considered significant that the American Ambassador was closeted with Toyoda on the day that Japan was observing in subdued fashion the first anniversary of her alliance with Germany and Italy.

However, on the surface there was no indication of any Japanese readiness to consider the ties with the Axis less binding, the general theme of anniversary speeches being that the three-Power alliance was a foundation stone of Japanese foreign policy.

The Grew-Toyoda meeting was one of several recent conferences considered unusually important, leading some observers to believe the long-drawn-out crisis in the Far East might be approaching a climax.

It was disclosed that Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye recently conferred with his vice-premier, Baron Kiichiro Hiranuma, who is recovering from wounds inflicted by an assassin on August 14.

Later Konoye met with Major-Gen. Teiichi Sizuki, president of the Cabinet's planning board.

Emperor Hirohito received the Finance Minister, Masatsune Ogura, in audience.

Ambassador Craige had announced yesterday he would depart at once on a three-month vacation which would include a visit to the United States. Shortly afterward he canceled his plans.

The disclosure of the change in plans was as sudden as the announcement of the impending departure. The ambassador had said, however, that his plans had "no political significance."

Honors Axis Partner.

The German Ambassador to Tokio, Major-Gen. Eugen Ott, declared today he was struck by "the warm feeling" of the Japanese for the Rome-Berlin-Tokio accord expressed by so many gatherings of organizations, messages and editorials.

He spoke at a luncheon given by the Italian Ambassador, Mario Indelli, and himself in return for Foreign Minister Teijiro Toyoda's Saturday luncheon on the anniversary of Tokio's entrance into the alliance. All members of the Cabinet except Premier Prince Fumimaro Konoye attended the function.

The Foreign Minister, replying, stressed the "number of difficulties" confronting the signatories and declared co-operation would achieve the goal, which he defined as "a new world order based on justice and maintenance of eternal peace in the world."

Damonte Taborda will be accompanied by several other Argentine Congressmen, who will return the recent visit of a subcommittee of the United States House Appropriations Committee.

During their absence the Argentine committee will continue its investigations under the chairmanship of Juan Antonio Solari, its secretary.

Paraguayan Students Sent To Concentration Camp

Buenos Aires, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—Twenty-one students were arrested last Friday by the police raiding a meeting at the Paraguayan National University at Asuncion and have been confined to a concentration camp for political prisoners, a border correspondent of the Argentine news service, ANDI, reported today.

The dispatch added that Paraguay recently announced "complete control" over student strikes which started two months ago after President Higinio Morinigo decreed death for persons convicted of plotting against State security.

U. S. Soldiers Reported Among Those Stricken With Malady

Hamilton, Bermuda, Sept. 29 (AP)—An epidemic of dengue fever, a tropical malady spread by mosquitoes, has stricken hundreds of people at St. George's, including a number of United States soldiers employed on defense projects.

A similar outbreak of the fever, which is disabling but rarely fatal, occurred in Bermuda during the World War.

Windsors Arrive At Ranch in Canadian Rockies

PEKISKO, Alberta, Sept. 29 (AP)—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor arrived today at the duke's 3,000-acre "EP" ranch, deep in the foothills of the Canadian Rockies, to spend a 10-day holiday.

They had crossed the border yesterday at North Portal, Saskatchewan, where the duke received a personal letter of welcome from Prime Minister Mackenzie King. The letter was handed to him by Col. C. H. Kint, retired assistant commissioner of the royal Canadian mounted police.

Thousands greeted them at various stations en route. At Moose Jaw the duke talked with airmen attached to an R.A.F. training school. A crowd of 3,000 persons there hemmed the couple in so closely they were unable to stroll down the city's main street.

At Calgary another crowd of 1,500 welcomers prevented their taking a sightseeing drive around the city.

From Aldersyde, where they ended their long train ride from Miami, Fla., the Windsors drove some 25 miles over the prairie to the duke's ranch.

DUKE AND DUCHESS NEARING HIS RANCH

Windsors to Spend 10 Days in Western Canada.

SEP 30 1941

Calgary, Alberta, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor, back again on British soil, neared their journey's end today—the "Ep" ranch, in the rolling foothills of the Rockies, where they are to spend a ten-day holiday.

They crossed into Canada at North Portal, Saskatchewan, yesterday afternoon from North Dakota, where railway station platforms were packed with spectators, and were due in Calgary today.

No civic reception was planned here. Shortly after their arrival they planned to proceed by train to Aldersyde and thence by automobile to the ranch.

Thousands of persons greeted the Windsors yesterday and last night at North Portal, Estevan and Moose Jaw.

At Moose Jaw a crowd of 3,000 foiled plans of the Windsors to see the prairie city. It hemmed them in so completely that they never got fifty feet past the station entrance when they started out for what was to have been a walk down Moose Jaw's main thoroughfare.

Hobo King Contender Joins Canadian Army

Lazarowitz Leaves Field To Jeff Davis For Control Of Group In America

Winnepeg, Man., Sept. 29 (AP)—Not that it ever mattered much but one thing was settled today with seeming finality—the question of who was the king of the United States hoboes.

For a long time, Jeff Davis and J. Leon Lazarowitz have been arguing about that between themselves. Saturday, J. Leon was sworn in as a soldier in the Canadian army. That would seem to leave the field of hobo king solely to Davis.

Lazarowitz, it was disclosed Sunday, recently applied to the recruiting center here after having been given an "A" medical rating in a test at Gretna, Man. He was accepted.

British

LONDON, Sept. 29 (AP)—An Air Ministry communiqué said today:

Objectives at Genoa, Turin and elsewhere in Northern Italy were attacked by aircraft of the Bomber Command last night. At Genoa, industrial areas were bombed and large fires started in the dock area.

Other forces attacked targets in Western Germany, including Frankfort. Five aircraft of the Bomber Command are missing.

Aircraft of the Coastal Command attacked oil depots and refineries at St. Nazaire. Two aircraft of the Coastal Command are missing.

Another Air Ministry communiqué said:

SEP 30 1941

R. A. F. fighters on offensive patrols have attacked a number of objectives today.

Off the Belgian coast enemy patrol boats and a seagoing barge were attacked with cannon and machine-gun fire. One patrol boat was set on fire, others were damaged and the barge was left sinking. A gun position on the coast was put out of action.

Other fighters in Northern France attacked a convoy of trucks and set five on fire. One of our fighters is missing, but the pilot is safe.

The Admiralty issued this communiqué:

Naval operations have recently been in progress in the Mediterranean. These had as their objectives passing an important convoy through the Central Mediterranean. Despite consistent attacks by the enemy air force, the object of the operation was achieved.

The convoy reached its destination, although one ship of the convoy was damaged and subsequently had to be sunk by our forces, towing having proved to be impracticable. There were no casualties on this merchant ship.

One of the escorting warships suffered some damage, but except for a slight reduction in speed her fighting efficiency was unimpaired.

The Air Ministry issued the following:

Latest reports from Russia show that up to the night of Sept. 27 a total of twelve enemy aircraft had been destroyed by the

R. A. F. wing with a loss of one of our fighters.

CAIRO, Egypt, Sept. 29 (AP)—A communiqué issued today by the British Middle East Command said:

Libya—At Tobruk during the night of Sept. 27-28 our patrols in the southern sector penetrated the wire defenses and attacked a strong post, inflicting a number of casualties on the enemy. In the same sector our artillery yesterday engaged and dispersed enemy working parties.

In the frontier area also our fighting patrols continued to harass the enemy.

MOSCOW, Sept. 29 (AP)—A Soviet Information Bureau communiqué said today:

Last night fighting continued along the entire front.

On Sept. 27, in one of the sectors of the southern front, units commanded by Smirnoff and Kharitonoff routed the Second and Fourth Rumanian Infantry Brigades. The enemy left more than 2,500 killed on the field of action. According to incomplete data, more than 300 men and officers were taken prisoners, forty-seven guns, two tanks and a large number of machine guns, shells, cartridges and other war matériel were captured. Our units keep inflicting losses on the enemy.

In one of the sectors of the northwestern front our air force destroyed forty trucks, five armored cars, three artillery batteries and neary a battalion of enemy infantry. In another sector of that front Soviet fliers destroyed thirty tanks, forty trucks and one German company.

In one sector of the southwestern front our airmen destroyed sixty enemy trucks, four minethrower emplacements and nearly two battalions of infantry. Ten enemy planes were brought down in air combats.

Rodionoff and Vorobieff's units, operating in one sector of the northwestern front, within two days of fighting annihilated about 600 White-Finnish men and officers and captured three guns, fifteen machine guns and huge quantities of ammunition and military equipment.

MOSCOW, Tuesday, Sept. 30 (AP)—The Soviet Information Bureau issued the following communiqué today:

On Sept. 29 stubborn fighting continued along the entire front.

According to complete data, 113 German planes were shot down on Sept. 26, instead of ninety-eight. On Sept. 27, 150 German planes were destroyed, thirty-seven in aerial combat and 113 on the ground on enemy airdromes. Soviet losses totaled twenty-eight planes.

Baltic shore batteries and warships sank one German cruiser and two destroyers, instead of one cruiser and one destroyer as previously reported.

BERLIN, Sept. 29 (AP)—This communiqué was issued today from headquarters of Reichsfuehrer Hitler:

Northeast of Dniepropetrovsk three Soviet divisions have been outflanked by German and Italian troops and destroyed. According to reports so far received, 13,000 prisoners have been taken and sixty-nine guns and a quantity of other war material captured. The enemy, caught in a swampy district, suffered heavy and bloody losses.

Strong formations of the air force attacked with good results railways in the Donets basin and in the Moscow area.

In the waters around Kronstadt a Soviet cruiser received hits from bombs. Last night bombers attacked military installations in Leningrad and Moscow.

Submarines have sunk, as has been specially announced, twelve enemy merchant ships totaling 67,000 tons in a convoy and one of the escorting vessels traveling from Gibraltar to England in attacks lasting several days. In the South Atlantic a submarine sank a tanker of 12,000 tons.

In a fight against Britain, the German Air Force bombed last night military installations in St. George's Channel and on the southeast coast of the island.

In North Africa German bombers scored direct hits on British tent encampments and dumps of material near Tobruk. In these attacks the enemy lost five planes in air engagements and two by anti-aircraft guns.

Weak formations of the R. A. F. last night flew over Northwest and Southwest Germany. Slight damage was caused by bombs dropped. Anti-aircraft guns brought down one British bomber.

Italian

ROME, Sept. 29 (AP)—The Italian High Command issued this special communiqué today:

The enemy naval formation that had left Gibraltar, as reported in yesterday's regular bulletin, was composed of a convoy escorted by an aircraft carrier, a battleship, an undetermined number of cruisers and some ten destroyers.

As soon as it was sighted by our scouting planes our torpedo-launching planes immediately set out from bases in Sardinia. A light cruiser was hit by two torpedoes and sank immediately. The chiefs of the plane crews were Captain Mellej and Lieutenant Setti.

A light cruiser was hit with a torpedo. The chief of the plane's crew was Lieutenant Jiacopinelli.

A large warship was hit by a torpedo, the chief of the plane's crew being Lieutenant Venturini.

A light cruiser was hit with a torpedo, with the chief of the plane's crew Lieutenant Bucceri. A cruiser of about 10,000 tons hit by a torpedo listed, moving out of formation. The chief of the plane's crew was Captain Marini. Immediately afterward another plane, with Lieutenant Cristiani as chief of crew, hit the same cruiser, which sank. Escorting fighter plane pilots saw lifeboats being lowered into the water.

A second wave of two groups of planes, commanded respectively by Colonel Seidl and Major Buri, followed up the attacks with these results: A battleship was hit in the bow with a torpedo, a cruiser was hit at center with a torpedo and a cruiser was hit.

In a third wave the following were hit: With one torpedo one light cruiser (the chief of the plane's crew was Captain Grossi) and with torpedoes one 10,000-ton cruiser, which sank (chiefs of the plane's crews, Lieutenants Barioglio and Cipriani)

Toward evening another formation of planes, which left their bases in Sicily, attacked the remaining units and surely hit with one torpedo each one heavy cruiser and one destroyer (chiefs of the planes' crews, Captain Maganoli and Lieutenant Silva).

Summing up, surely sunk were two heavy and one light cruisers and more or less seriously hit with torpedoes were a battleship and another large, undetermined unit, six units of smaller tonnage and a destroyer.

While the battle was going on, furious encounters took place between our and enemy planes. Six British planes were shot down in flames. Eight of our planes failed to return to their bases. The colonel commanding the flight and three squadron commanders must be considered as having fallen at the head of their formations.

During this big battle, which lasted from 1 P. M. to 10 P. M. Saturday, our aviators, in a magnificent contest of daring and with superb disregard of danger, hurled themselves against the British fleet, not only with the power of explosives, but also with their courage and their unarrestable decision to strike.

Of the merchant ships that formed the convoy, one was torpedoed by light units of the Italian Navy in the Sicilian Channel. Another was hit and sunk off the Algerian coast by naval units. Two, totaling 23,000 tons, were sunk in the stretch of sea between Sardinia and Tunisia by torpedo-launching planes having as chiefs of crews Lieutenants Focacci, Belloni and Di Bella.

ROME, Sept. 29 (AP)—Today's regular communiqué of the Italian High Command follows:

In North Africa there was artillery activity on the Tobruk and Solum fronts. During an air raid on Bardia two enemy machines were shot down by anti-aircraft guns, while two other aircraft were shot down by German fighters.

In East Africa enemy troops attempted to attack one of our advance positions in the Gondar sector. After artillery fire the enemy was repulsed by our detachments.

British aircraft raided the city of Rhodes, destroying some dwelling houses and the city hospital. There were twelve victims among hospital inmates.

Our fighters shot down two British Blenheim bombers in flames in the Central Mediterranean.

Enemy aircraft also raided Trapani, Marsala and Castelvetrano, where incendiary and explosive bombs were dropped.

Enemy planes also raided Palermo, where nine persons were killed and twenty-six were wounded, and Turin, where an enemy aircraft was shot down by anti-aircraft guns. The plane crashed in the vicinity. The five crew members were killed.

Enemy aircraft flew over Milan, but no bombs were dropped. Six persons were wounded, including three by splinters from anti-aircraft shells, and two persons were killed owing to traffic accidents.

In Savona Marina bombs were dropped and civil dwellings damaged. Flares, incendiary bombs and leaflets also were dropped there.

A similar raid was carried out on Genoa, where several houses were demolished and some fires caused in surrounding villages. One person was killed and three wounded among the civilian population. One man of the fire-fighting service was killed and four were wounded, two of them severely, by splinters from anti-aircraft shells.

Other enemy planes bombed Spezia, dropping high explosives and incendiary bombs and flares. The fires were soon put out. Four persons were wounded by anti-aircraft shell splinters.

Italian aircraft bombed ships at anchor at Malta last night.

Seas-Freedom Doctrine Should Be Reaffirmed, Connally Says

Texas U. S. Senator Declares Arms And Munitions Must Be Delivered To Points Where They Can Be Employed Most Effectively

SEP 30 1941

By WILLIAM B. ARDERY

Washington, Sept. 29 (AP)—Declaring that the United States now should "reassert and reordain our adherence to the doctrine of freedom of the seas," Senator Connally (D.-Tex.) asserted tonight that if American aid to Great Britain was to be effective this nation should deliver arms and munitions to points "where they can be effectively employed."

Connally, chairman of the powerful Senate foreign relations committee, told a radio audience over NBC that Adolf Hitler "sinks our ships wherever they may be. He sends his lurking submarines into our defensive waters. He defies us. He murders our citizens. He assassinates our ships."

Speaking on the forum program of the Washington Evening Star, the Texan added that "the repeal of the so-called neutrality act would not be un-neutral." He added:

"After its repeal, the United States should be a neutral under international law. That (neutrality) act prohibits the arming of our merchant ships. I favor the repeal of that provision. It is my view that merchant ships that are now being ruthlessly attacked upon the high seas, while on lawful business, ought to be allowed to arm for their necessary self-defense—for the defense of human lives upon their decks—for the defense of their property and their rights.

"Aid to be effective requires the delivery of arms, munitions and implements of war where they can be successfully employed. It takes ships, it requires cargoes, to deliver weapons to the embattled democracies.

"The so-called neutrality act should be amended with respect to the freedom of our ships to sail wherever they are permitted to sail under international law.

"I favor the removal of the ban against their entering combat zones or going on lawful missions to the ports of nations at war. These are our undeniable rights under the law of nations. We have, in years that are gone, in glorious fashion, shed our blood, for their maintenance and for the protection of the rights of our citizens. Shall we surrender them? Shall we cringingly abandon them? Shall we succumb before this wild and fantastic plot of Adolf Hitler for world empire and world dominion? Shall we tremble because the conqueror stretches forth his sword?"

Connally told his listeners that Hitler's attacks on various European countries had unmasked "the stark naked menace of Nazi terrorism" and had "convinced civilized men who love their country, who hate conquest and oppression," that Hitler and his Nazi methods "must be destroyed."

"But there are those," the speaker continued, "who say that Hitler has no designs to attack or to conquer the United States or the nations of Central and South America. To these credulous minds, I would point to the trials in the courts of the United States in New York, of a horde of Nazi spies.

"If Hitler has no designs upon the United States; if he broods no injury to our people; if he contemplates no hostile action against us, why does he fill our land with spies to practice their espionage and sabotage and to poison the minds of those of our citizens who may be unsuspecting and credulous?

"I point to Nazi infiltration into the countries of South America.

"These republics, vigilant and jealous of their sovereignty, have discovered nests of treason and have taken steps to extirpate them. If Hitler has no designs upon the sovereignty, upon the security and upon the territory and institutions of Latin-America, why does he set up foci of infection to spread his poisonous doctrines throughout the constitutional systems and the life of our Latin-American friends and neighbors.

During the day, Secretary of State Hull expressed himself in favor of modification of the Neutrality Act, rather than its outright repeal, but did not indicate just what changes he thought should be made. President Roosevelt, returning from Hyde Park tomorrow, plans to discuss the subject with Hull and congressional leaders, and perhaps make some move toward modifications or repeal of the act later in the week.

Meantime, a question much discussed informally at the capitol was wether the United States should send its entire munitions production for the next three or more months to Britain and Russia.

Chairman May (D.-Ky.) of the House Military Committee said he thought it would be a wise move.

"If Russia goes down it will remove the last obstacle to Hitler's invasion of Britain," he told reporters.

ROOSEVELT AND HULL TO CONFER TODAY

To Discuss Revision Or Repeal Of Neutrality Legislation

Executive To Meet With Congress Leaders On Same Topic Tomorrow

SEP 30 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 29—President Roosevelt left by special train tonight for Washington, where he will confer tomorrow with Cordell Hull, Secretary of State, and Wednesday with Congressional leaders on revision or repeal of the neutrality law to permit the arming of American merchant ships.

The information exchanged at those parleys, White House officials indicated, will be the controlling factor in Mr. Roosevelt's decision between outright repeal or mere modification of the law.

Congressional authorities have suggested there might be less opposition and delay if the Administration limited its recommendation to revision. Some looked for the President to ask for changes in the law to give him discretionary authority to order the arming of commercial ships and their use in carrying supplies to belligerent ports.

Silent On Opening War Zones

The law now bans the arming of merchantmen and forbids them to enter combat zones delineated by the Chief Executive. Mr. Roosevelt has remained silent about letting American ships, flying the American flag, carry war supplies into areas now restricted. But he made it clear at a press conference last week that he did favor putting guns on cargo carriers.

His statement on that subject followed a series of attacks on American-owned vessels, culminating in the sinking off Iceland of the Pink Star, a freighter owned by the Maritime Commission, but flying the Panamanian flag.

But even before some of these attacks had occurred he had been talking of additional safeguards for the delivery of war materials to foes of the Axis.

Congress Message Expected

It was expected that the President would transmit his views to Congress, probably in a message, later in the week.

He planned to return to his home here next week end, to help settle the estates of his mother, who died September 7, and his brother-in-law, G. Hall Roosevelt, who died last Thursday.

From either Washington or Hyde Park, the Chief Executive will make a five-minute radio address Friday night on a program starting the National Mobilization for Human Needs, an annual event which launches community chest campaigns throughout the country.

Speculation On Talk

Presidential aides were inclined to discount the possibility that Mr. Roosevelt would have anything important to say on international affairs.

The program will begin at 10.30 P. M. and last for half an hour.

Wendell L. Willkie, Republican Presidential candiate in 1940, who has given strong support to the Administration's foreign policy, also will speak, as will Tom K. Smith, St. Louis banker, who heads the national mobilization.

packed a week's worth of inspection into seven hours today as he took a look at hundreds of millions of dollars in naval construction in the Hampton Roads area before returning to Washington by plane.

Accompanied by high-ranking naval officers and shipyard officials, the Secretary toured the Norfolk Navy Yard and the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company plant. He expressed gratification at progress in vital defense projects.

The people of the United States "are dumber than I think we are" if they fail to "realize the necessity" of maintaining a dominant sea power, he said.

Includes Fleet Planes

Only an adequate fleet can provide security for the American people, Knox said, adding that by an adequate fleet he meant not only a sufficient number of ships, but a larger number of planes for the fleet air arm.

Declining to be drawn into a discussion of whether United States merchant ships should be armed, the Navy Secretary said it is not "up to us whether we get in the war—it is up to the other fellow."

Immediately after receiving honors at the Norfolk naval operating base, Secretary Knox and his party motored to the Norfolk Navy Yard in Portsmouth. There he inspected various shops and viewed the battleship Alabama on the building ways and the British aircraft carriers Illustrious and Formidable, both undergoing repair.

A press conference followed in the office of Rear Admiral Felix X. Gygax, commandant of the yard.

Program Ahead Of Schedule

Secretary Knox reported the nation's shipbuilding program was "well ahead of schedule everywhere" and said he was satisfied with construction of naval bases in the Caribbean and at Bermuda.

Among those making the tour with the Secretary were Capt. Frank Beatty, his aide; Rawleigh Warner, a personal friend; Rear Admiral Manley H. Simons, commandant of the Fifth Naval district, and Capt. G. Seymour Tuck, D. S. O., R. N., acting commanding officer of H. M. S. Illustrious.

The official party motored from the navy yard to the James River Country Club for luncheon and later to the shipbuilding plant at Newport News, where a whirlwind tour was made of shops, an aircraft carrier under construction and the battleship Indiana which will be launched November 31, about one month ahead of schedule. The Indiana will cost an estimated $80,000,000, including her armament. Shipyard officials estimated there is some $450,000,000 of work on hand at the plant.

Bar Session Studies Problems Of Neutrality And Defense

Resolution Urging Repeal Of Act Introduced—Call For Impeaching Roosevelt Booed

SEP 30 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Indianapolis, Sept. 29—With introduction of a resolution urging repeal of the Neutrality Act and warnings that the nation faces new threats to its defense production, the American Bar Association's sixty-fourth annual convention plunged today into problems arising from the war in Europe.

Edward H. Foley, Jr., general counsel for the Treasury Department, warned of new Axis attempts to curtail American productive capacity, which he described as "probably more dangerous and more pernicious" than espionage, sabotage and propaganda, and Brig. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey sounded alarm over possibility of a shortage of agricultural manpower.

Ruled Out Of Order

Delegates booed when Joseph T. Harrington, Chicago lawyer, introduced a resolution urging impeachment of President Roosevelt for statements and orders "that are acts of aggression." Harrington was ruled out of order when he tried to evplain his resolution.

The resolution favoring repeal of the neutrality act was offered by James W. Ryan, of New York, chairman of the committee on law relating to protection of American citizens and their property in foreign countries and on the high seas. It must be approved by the resolutions committee before going before the convention.

General Hershey, national director of selective service, told the convention's section on real property:

Alarmed At Farmers' Draft

"I have been recently alarmed over the fact that in a short period of time over 1,000,000 agricultural workers have left the farms for the cities and the industrial areas. It has been my hope that induction would make its inroad as far as possible upon those engaged in non-essential activities and discourage the depletion of agricultural workers."

He said that Federal action would be necessary if the trend continues.

Called Drag On Production

To the insurance law section Foley described "patent pooling arrangements, licensing agreements and similar contracts" through which he said "Germany has been able to put a drag on our national defense production."

"Through the same medium," he continued, "Germany has been able to secure information which ordinarily would be deemed military secrets. Germany and German interests have also sought to restrict American firms from competing with Axis firms in neutral markets."

Foley praised the Government's freezing of foreign assets in this country as an "aggressive weapon against the Axis" which "has greatly impaired the ability of the Axis powers to finance propaganda, sabotage and other subversive activities in the United States."

REDS MAY FACE FOOD SHORTAGE

U. S. Reports on Situation —May Help Feed Soviet.

Washington, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—Russia may be confronted with a serious food supply problem, the Department of Agriculture reported today, because of the Nazi occupation of a large part of the Ukraine and the offensive against the Crimean peninsula. Both regions are important surplus producing areas in southern Russia.

Publication of this report by a governmental agency here was seen as an indication that the United States may be called upon to supply food deficiencies to Russia.

Dr. Lazar Volin, Department of Agriculture authority on eastern Europe, openly suggested that the United States may have to supply food for Russia through Vladivostok, and possibly Iran.

While painting an unfavorable picture of Russian losses of important food producing areas, Dr. Volin said Germany could hope to gain little from the regions because of the Soviet's scorched earth policy. The Russians have not hesitated to burn the crops they could not carry away, to destroy farm machinery, or to slaughter such livestock that could not be removed.

Crops May Have Been Moved.

The report said that in the occupied and threatened areas much of this year's crop may have been harvested and moved out and that European Russia may be able to get food supplies from West Siberia that normally go to the Far East and Turkestan. If this diversion takes place, Dr. Volin said, the United States could supply the latter regions by trans-Pacific movements of food.

Dr. Volin said the regions about Moscow and Leningrad, with large centers of population, normally required large imports of food from other areas and that unless there was a mass movement of population, Nazi occupation of these regions would alleviate the food supply problem "as far as the rest of the Soviet Union and the Red Army are concerned."

The report also asserted that the spring wheat belt of the middle and lower Volga basin was an important surplus production region for European Russia with a good crop reported for this year. It noted, however, that there was uncertainty as to an adequate supply of farm machinery and fuel for tractors in the unoccupied agricultural areas of Russia.

U-boats Operate in Wolf Packs

U. S. Naval Experts Believe Nazis Divide Atlantic Into Three Zones for Attacks.

SEP 30 1941

Washington, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—Germany apparently is relying upon three types of submarine operations in the current phase of the all-important Battle of the Atlantic, and in the most effective of these the lone wolf undersea raider appears to have given way to the wolf back of several U-boats.

Sifting through recent reports of heavy ship sinkings in the waters around Iceland and off western England, authorities here speculated today that they could be accounted for in large part by these pack attacks of short-range subs based on French Channel and Norwegian ports.

The North Atlantic, as these experts theorize about the Nazi naval strategy, has been divided into three zones. The first of these, well over on the American side, is the zone for isolated attacks on shipping by long-range submarines.

The second, in mid-Atlantic, is believed to be the zone for U-boats of shorter cruising radius, and the third is the area of the wolf packs whose repeated assaults on British supply convoys in recent weeks have taken heavy toll.

Earlier in the war the results of Nazi undersea assaults had indicated that the Germans were relying principally on the type of operations now apparently conducted chiefly in the Middle Atlantic. Under this method the ocean is divided into a checkerboard of squares with one sub assigned to each square in which, with the aid of spy information and airplane observations it operates more or less independently.

This system limits the striking power against a convoy at any single point of attack, however, while the wolf-pack method, using small subs carrying many torpedoes among them, concentrates striking power in waters where shipping is thickest. At the same time it complicates the problem of warships escorting convoys, since they have not one submarine but half a dozen or more to try to discover and blast into silence with depth charges.

Instances of isolated attacks on the American side of the Atlantic have been rare in this war. Last summer the British reported some German submarine operations in what they called American waters, but the main efforts have been made much closer home.

CONFESSION' READ AT SPY RING TRIAL

Government Charges Defendant Broadcast Lend Cargo Movements To Nazi

Statement Alleged To Have Been Made After Arrests Of Suspects

SEP 30 1941

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 29—Axel Wheeler-Hill, 41, who fought the Bolsheviks in his native Russia in 1917, acknowledged, the Government contended today, that he broadcast information to Germany on the movement of lease-lend cargoes to Britain.

A statement purportedly signed by Wheeler-Hill after a roundup of spy suspects last June was read by Vincent Quinn, Assistant United States Attorney, at the trial of sixteen men charged with espionage conspiracy. No move was made to disown the statement.

In it, the defendant admitted that he had been schooled in radio and codes in Germany, that he operated an outlaw radio in the Bronx and that he mailed and broadcast information to Germany.

Brother In Nazis Office

Wheeler-Hill, who has a brother in the employ of the German Foreign Office and another who is secretary of the German American Bund, contended two months ago, when he changed his plea of guilty to innocent, that he had no intention of harming America and that he was only hoping to hamper Britain.

He declined to say who in Germany had employed him for work in America "for reasons of my security and my family's security." His statement said a German army corporal instructed him in radio work and, on his departure for America, he was given a copy of a popular novel, "Half Way to Horror," whose pages formed the basis for his coded reports.

Noted Ships On Waterfront

Between odd jobs as a truck driver, stock clerk and beverage house roustabout, Wheeler-Hill's statement said, he wandered about the water front and reported by radio and air mail to Germany on the movements of vessels and the kinds of cargo he observed.

Radio equipment, including one transmitter capable of operating outside commercial and amateur bands, and two receiving sets were identified by F. B. I. agents as the machines admittedly used by Wheeler-Hill and his associates. The statement said he had been given $400 in Germany for broadcasting apparatus.

More than a dozen F. B. I. agents testified that they had followed Wheeler-Hill and others on water-front walks, to meetings in restaurants and sidewalk corners and, once, to an America First rally at which Charles A. Lindbergh spoke.

Briton Was Repelled By Mass Deaths

Dido's Skipper Says He Had to Recall German 'Actions' Before Killing 2500 Nazis Off Crete

By John Morris

New York, Sept. 29.—(AP.)—A lean-jawed British seadog sat in his cabin aboard the cruiser Dido and recalled that he had to steel himself with memories of German "actions" before he led his flotilla into the slaughter of 2500 Nazi soldiers trying to land on the island of Crete from small wooden fishing boats.

He was Captain Henry William Urquhart McCall, commander of the 5450-ton Dido, flagship of a group of three cruisers and four destroyers ordered to keep the Nazis from landing in Crete.

"This mass murder we engaged in was the most repellent thing I ever had to do," he said. "This was the sort of situation I'd always dreamed of as being ideal, to get in amongst the Hun and give him his own meat, to be able to pay the enemy back in his own coin.

"When it came to the point one had to steel oneself with memories of many of their past actions and to keep in mind that they were then intent on forcing a landing against our sorely-pressed garrison in Crete."

Recalled Past 'Actions.'

Pressed to tell the memories flashing through his mind before he gave the order to fire on 50 defenseless caiques (Greek fishing vessels of about 100 tons), a half dozen steamships and an Italian destroyer guarding the convoy the night of May 21 last, Captain McCall said:

"I thought of a dive bombing attack on a hospital ship a few days previously, a ship Italian aircraft had previously spared, of fishing vessels and lighthouse keepers being machine-gunned in the North Sea, of helpless merchant ships being sunk in the Atlantic with no possibility of their crews being saved, of the blitz I saw on London."

This drama of the sea occurred 15 miles north of Crete after the British left Greece and were trying to hold the island stronghold without the aid of air power.

Captain McCall's ship was on patrol when the squadron sighted the enemy convoy, flying Greek flags, trying to reach land under cover of darkness.

"We at once altered our course into the middle of them and opened fire, switching on our searchlights to pick up the targets about a mile away," he related.

"The Italian destroyer was sunk almost at once, blown up. We saw no more of her (the British never learned her name as there were no survivors).

None Saved.

"It was then just a case of steaming through the convoy and picking up the steamers and caiques with searchlight rays. At one time the water appeared strewn with German soldiers wearing full equipment and lifebelts. The air was filled with shrieks and cries for help but of course we were unable to stop. Not a man was saved."

He said best guesses were that half the convoy went down with about 2500 men and that another 2500 reached their Greek base with a "tale of terror that was excellent propaganda" for the British.

Not a man reached Crete by boat, he said.

After this show, the Dido took 1200 soldiers from Crete to Egypt amid the heaviest rain of bombs in history.

A new ship, now at the Brooklyn Navy Yard for refitting, she took her maiden voyage into the North Atlantic for convoy service.

Captain McCall said that in six months of convoying he took hundreds of ships into England without a single attack.

"I have never seen a German submarine," he said.

The 46-years-old Scottish-born skipper is father of two daughters, Ann, 14, and Mary, 10, both now in a Canadian school. He served on destroyers in the World War.

FERRY PILOT CALLS WORK MONOTONOUS

Former Army Flyer Says Crossing Is Easy.

Philadelphia, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—Flying bombers across the Atlantic ocean from Canada to England is just about the most monotonous thing that ever happened, according to Capt. John I. De Vine Jr.

"Nothing to it," said the 26-year-old former United States Army flyer, home for a week-end visit with his mother.

"There's no thrill in this job. It's so monotonous as to be boring. All you do is set your course on old George (automatic pilot)."

Capt. De Vine has made two trips in Hudson-Lockheed bombers since joining the Royal Air Force ferry service two months ago after being mustered out of the army at Manila.

"While there have been no attacks, as far as I know, from enemy squadrons, we nevertheless keep our ships near what cloud strata there is in sight—just in case," he said. "Our job is to get the ships across safe and sound and keep out of trouble.

"Another instruction is to veer off from a convoy below. A few pot shots from a gun crew which might mistake you for an enemy is no help to your peace of mind, and might blow you out of the air besides."

"You're in England within nine to twelve hours," he added.

He likes the pay though—$1,000 a month for one flight, $1,200 for two during a thirty-day period and $1,500 for three.

"If there ever was a thrill at all," he said, "it was when I overshot the British Isles and got lost for three hours over the English Channel. But I wasn't worried because I had Mae West (life preserver) with me. And besides, I think I could swim the channel."

Corporate Profit Ceiling Will Be Proposed In 1942

Drafting Plan Continues, Head Of Treasury Says

Washington, Sept. 29 (AP)—Subjected to sharp criticism from businessmen and Congress members, Secretary Morgenthau's proposal for a 6 per cent limit on corporation profits was put on the shelf today.

The Treasury head announced that the plan would not be formally proposed to Congress before next year, and would not, in any event, apply to 1941 business.

"Drafting the plan is not complete," he told a press conference, "and from talks with my staff I can tell you it will take several months so it will be after the first of January before we can get ready and then it will apply on 1942 business, if enacted."

Morgenthau advocated last week that the government, for the period of the emergency, take through taxes all corporation profits in excess of 6 per cent of their invested capital.

Immediately, criticism was heard at the Capitol and from some business men that this would kill business incentive, would prevent expansion of facilities to produce defense articles, and would be unfair to many types of corporations.

Morgenthau, saying that one reason drafting would take so long was his desire to insure fair treatment to all kinds of business, ridiculed as "crocodile tears" the concern expressed by some that the plan would hurt small business.

He declined to be drawn into a discussion of how the bill would affect small corporations now in the process of expanding, but told his press conference:

"We will work very hard on drafting this bill and when we think we have got a bill that we think is equitable, we will follow the usual procedure and talk to Chairman George (D.-Ga.) and the members of the Senate Finance Committee and Chairman Doughton (D.-N.C.) and members of the House Ways and Means Committee."

Those two committees consider all tax legislation proposed in Congress.

Acknowledging that the principal task in either drafting or evaluating the proposal was in defining what is "invested capital," Morgenthau said, "unfortunately there isn't any simple definition."

He warned reporters and "experts," alike against anticipating the definition that his experts would draft.

Asks Labor Units To Cease Soaring Of Workers Wages

Eccles Sees Strife Of U. S. Industry Intolerable

Washington, Sept. 29 (AP)—Chairman Marriner S. Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board told the house banking committee today that inflation could not be prevented if wages and salaries were allowed to rise indiscriminately.

Testifying in behalf of the administration's price control bill, Eccles suggested that the wage problem might be solved through creation of a centralized labor organization with which the government could co-operate in establishing a nation-wide schedule of "prevailing wages" for the duration of the emergency. Such a schedule would serve as a base, he said, until there was justification for a change.

"Whether or not you include within the terms of this bill a declaration of plociy or discretion to deal with labor and farm prices," he said, "the fact is that you cannot leave wages and salaries which are the main factor in prices to rise indiscriminately and be realistic about preventing inflation.

"You cannot, in my judgment, realistically put a high-level floor under farm prices and no ceiling."

In suggesting the creation of the centralized labor organization to deal with wage levels, Eccles said that one of the major difficulties in the situation now was that the nation's labor organizations were so decentralized.

"Today there is no yardstick, no pattern," he said. "The situation is more or less chaotic."

Later, when Representative Williams (D.-Mo.) asked whether he thought it would be possible to fix wages in a country whose written constitution prohibits slavery or any kind of servitude, Eccles replied:

"There are countries where it has been done, but I don't think it will be done in this country."

"My conviction is that it cannot be done," said Williams.

"If we get to the point of drafting all industry and all labor, I suppose it can be done," responded Eccles.

At another point, he urged an end to industrial strife, saying that strikes and lockouts in these times were intolerable.

On the subject of taxation, he said the government should go "a long way" toward capturing excess profit of corporations but reminded the legislators that a margin of profit sufficient to maintain business incentive should be preserved.

N. A. M. Asked to Assist in Price Control

Henderson Warns Inflation Is Threat to Arms Program

NEW YORK, Sept. 29 (AP)—Asserting that inflation was threatening to wreck the arms program, make an "empty farce" of priorities control and ruin the great middle class, Leon Henderson asked the support of businessmen tonight for the pending price control legislation.

At the same time, the price administrator took occasion in an address to a regional meeting of the National Association of Manufacturers to reply to those who contend that price controls should be linked with wage controls.

He said he acknowledged that "inflation cannot be averted unless there is stabilization of wages as well as other costs," but asserted that wage control would better come "as a free choice of free people—that is, through negotiated labor contracts."

"Labor is not a commodity, and wage-fixing in the nature of the case is income-fixing, not price fixing," he said. "Income fixing is a drastic step, fraught with deep and serious implications for business as well as labor. I believe our policy of wage stabilization is something that we should develop separately from our commodity price stabilization, as other democratic countries have done."

Farm Leaders Of 13 Southern States Study Mechanics Of 1942 Program

Cotton Acreage Reduction Called For, But More Milk, Eggs, Peanuts

[By the Associated Press]

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 29—Farmers and farm leaders of thirteen Southern States today dug into the mechanics of a 1942 program which would drastically change the agricultural economy of the region.

Urged by Claude Wickard, Secretary of Agriculture, to support a speedup program in numerous commodities "to crush the Nazi threat to democracy," the experts moved speedily into a discussion of regional and State goals in the vast 1942 production.

The department's program for the South calls for a reduction of 1,176,000 acres of cotton from this year's allotments, and other reductions in "money crops" to make way for increases in milk, eggs, live stock, peanuts and many other commodities.

Anticipated Increases

It would mean:

A jump from an estimated 20,866,000,000 pounds of milk produced in the region this year to 22,397,000,000 in 1942.

From 774,249,000 dozen eggs to 867,200,000.

From 1,908,000 acres of peanuts to 3,492,000—of which 1,901,000 would be devoted exclusively to use for oils—and similar increases in other products.

Indications there will be difficulties in carrying the program home for county-by-county application arose early in the discussion.

The execution of the Stegall amendment to the Commodity Credit Corporation Act, providing for Government protection of not less than eighty-five per cent. of parity on any commodity whose increase is announced by the department as essential, was questioned at the outset by several persons.

30.24— 12115

Foods Affected

Wickard told the conference he had already given public notice of required expansion in production of hogs, eggs, evaporated milk, dry skim milk, cheese and chickens. He added that he "shall amend the notice to cover other commodities if that becomes necessary."

Farm leaders asked whether the greatly increased production of peanuts would be protected by such notice, but department officials said the answer to the question was not immediately available.

Also the question of decreased cotton acreage was raised by N. C. Williamson, of Lake Providence, La., member of the executive committee of the National Cotton Council.

Fears Reduction

Williamson read a statement by the council declaring its belief "that any further reduction of cotton acreage would be most unwise and entirely inconsistent with the Department of Agriculture's announced program."

"Reduced cotton production," the statement said, "would result in serious economic and social dislocations."

Tomorrow the officials will confer again on proposed State goals and the means of dividing these among individual farmers.

SUPERPOWER PLAN FOR U. S. IS LAUNCHED

FPC Puts Under Way Long-studied Program of Electric Expansion.

TO SURPASS TOTAL AXIS FORCE

Federal Bureau Envisages Kilowatt Output for Nation of 200 Billion in '43.

Washington, Sept. 29 (A. P.).—The Federal Power Commission disclosed today that it had launched what it intends to be the largest electric power expansion ever undertaken, with the announced objective of giving the United States greater generating capacity than all of Germany, Italy and the Axis occupied countries.

The projected expansion contemplates expenditure of more than $1,500,000,000 in private and public funds over a five-year period. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation has made available $150,000,000 to get the program going.

A commission spokesman said the plan was designed to guarantee that the defense effort shall never encounter a shortage of kilowatts essential to the production of aluminum and other vital materials.

He reported that commission experts had computed that the Axis Powers, excluding Japan, would have electric capacity in their own and in conquered countries capable of generating 200,000,000,000 kilowatt hours in 1943, compared with a total output of 145,000,000,000 kilowatt hours in the United States last year.

The commission program proposes to raise the United States kilowatt hour output in 1943 to 214,000,000,000.

"This plan," the power agency said, "is today based on the necessity of preparing for defense expenditures which, by 1943, will be running at $3,000,000,000 per month."

In Planning For Over Year.

In preparation for a year and a half, the commission's unprecedented power expansion program was submitted to President Roosevelt July 16. Since that time it had not been mentioned in Government press releases. But informed quarters accepted the earmarking of $150,000,000 by RFC for Power Commission purposes as an indication the administration had hung out a green light for the first phase of the program to get under way.

The commission spokesman said the RFC money would be used to keep equipment companies producing generator units at full capacity. Orders by private companies will be financed on a self-liquidating basis.

As presented to the President, the program proposed to add 13,888,000 kilowatts to the nation's generating capacity. The present installed capacity is 42,689,251 kilowatts. In addition to the projected 13,888,000, there are now on order 7,799,315 kilowatts of new capacity. Thus, if the defense power expansion was carried through on schedule the nation's installed capacity in 1946 would total almost 64,500,000 kilowatts.

A person of high authority in the power commission said private utilities were "co-operating splendidly" in the program.

134 ARRIVE ON LINER; SAW GERMAN PLANE

JERSEY CITY, Sept. 29 (AP)—The American Export liner Excambion arrived today with 134 passengers who brought stories of the vessel's being circled by a German plane and hailed by a British naval vessel during the voyage from Lisbon.

Captain W. W. Kuhne said his ship was about six hours out of Lisbon when a four-motored Condor, with German markings plainly visible, approached from the north, dropped down to within a few hundred feet of the vessel, circled and then headed north again. There was no exchange of signals.

Two days later, he said, a British corvette, a small patrol vessel, crossed the bow of the Exchambion, exchanged greetings and signals and then disappeared.

Captain Kuhne repeated denials of a report widely circulated in Lisbon that the Exchambion was convoyed into that port by a U. S. Coast Guard cutter.

"That," he declared, "is a lot of bunk."

Constitutional Government To Rule in Tropical Sarawak

White Rajah, Sir Charles Vyner Brooke, Presides as Native Supreme Council Is Formed

By G. Yates McDaniel

KUCHING, Sarawak (Correspondence of the Special News Service)—The white Rajah, absolute ruler of tropical Sarawak, has called on the mixed races of his land to help him govern.

Colorful Ceremonies

At colorful ceremonies marking the 100th year of rule by an English family, Sir Charles Vyner Brooke announced his plan to Malay chieftains in brilliant sarongs, silk-gowned Chinese gentry and painted tribal headmen clad in feather crowns and loincloths.

They had come to pledge their loyalty and to touch hands with the Rajah on his gold-cloth dais—for the first white Rajah in 1840 had forbidden the natives to grovel before the throne of Sarawak (pronounced Sah-rah'-wa—not Sarah walk).

The Rajah declared the beginning of constitutional rule from a platform on which the colors of Sarawak were flanked by the Union Jack of Britain, the Kuomintang emblem of China and the Stars and Stripes.

SEP 30 1941

(Sarawak has not forgotten that the United States in 1850 was first to recognize her sovereignty.)

The problem of succession to his absolute rule has plagued the monarch in recent years. His three children—among them the glamorous "Baba," sometimes of Hollywood—all are girls.

With the Ranee Sylvia beside him, the Rajah presided at the swearing in of a supreme council. Some took the oath on the Bible; others on the Koran of Mohammedanism.

The Rajah charged his council with creating a legislative committee representative of the state's varied geographical, racial and religious groups to draw up a constitution.

Thus the promise of a people's voice in government came to this Borneo land long ruled by a single hand.

Three Generations Have Ruled

Through three generations, the men of the Brooke family have centered their life in this exotic land, dealing alike with pagan, head-hunting tribesmen, with Mohammedan Malays, and with Chinese merchants.

The blood-tie with England has never been broken since adventurous James Brooke sailed his own yacht into the East Indies in 1840—arriving in time to aid the Sultan of Brunei against an insurgent band entrenched in the Bilidah Fort. For this service, Brooke was made Rajah of Sarawak—boss of the land in his own right.

To bring order to his domain, Brooke risked his life often in campaigns against head-hunters, pirates and Chinese insurgents.

The present Rajah, grandnephew of the first Brooke potentate, was educated at Cambridge, England, before taking up government duties under his father, then Rajah, in the Borneo autocracy.

He has devoted himself to his land. But the members of his family have felt the lure of the west—of Paris and London and New York and Hollywood.

Best known to America as "Baba," his daughter, Valeria Brooke, stirred lonely hearts around the world by her romance with the British wrestler, Bob Gregory.

The Rajah was not pleased at this match. There was talk that the Gregorys, not sure of a welcome home in Borneo, would buy an island of their own in the East Indies. But the Rajah's wife, the Ranee, remarked that the young couple didn't have the cash to do it.

Was Divorced in 1940

The handsome wrestler and his pretty wife settled finally in Hollywood, and "Baba" announced that she would be simple Mrs. Bob Gregory. Not many months passed, however, before she was sailing alone to visit her mother and sisters in London. Gregory obtained a divorce on Oct. 24, 1940, on grounds of desertion.

Meanwhile, the Ranee also had been visiting America. She came once with plans to appear in a movie, "The Great White Rajah," dramatizing the life of the first Brooke to rule Sarawak. But she stayed only nine days in Hollywood, visiting friends.

Her autobiography, "Sylvia of Sarawak," was published in 1936; and in 1939 appeared "The Three White Rajahs," her story of the Brooke rule in the Borneo state.

The Ranee was in Pittsburgh, early in 1940, when amazing news came across the ocean. The Rajah, by proclamation, had deposed the Rajah Mudah, or crown prince—a nephew named Anthony Walter Daybell Brooke. The Rajah called his heir-apparent "not yet fitted to exercise the responsibilities of this high position."

"I knew the nephew was considered a little young and had made an unfortunate marriage," remarked the Ranee in Pittsburgh, "but I didn't expect anything so drastic."

Into the nephew's place as next-in-line to rule Sarawak, the Rajah finally placed his own brother, Bertram. At that time, he first spoke too, of his plans for sharing his unlimited power of government with the people of his land.

Thus ends perhaps one of the few remaining absolute autocracies of the world. Although Sarawak's foreign relations were placed in British control in 1888, the government of the 500,000 people of Sarawak remained in the Rajah's hands.

The stretch of land on the coast of Borneo facing Indo-China (as big in area as New York State) has been drawn into the picture of Far Eastern rivalries.

Sir Robert Brooke-Popham (a kinsman of the Rajah) has included Sarawak in his strategic plans as Far Eastern commander in chief of British forces.

Its products—petroleum, palm oil, rubber, gold, camphor and other drugs—are materials vitally needed by Japan.

Hitler's Winter Campaign To Center in Caucasus

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

Word from Berlin that Hitler is preparing for an all-out winter campaign in Russia is giving rise to many surprised inquiries as to what he can expect to achieve in that land of fierce blizzards, ice and mammoth snow-drifts—that is to say, is it possible to carry on big scale operations under such conditions?

Probably a good deal of speculation over the position is due to the fact that many of us use the disaster which overtook Napoleon in his retreat from Moscow as a criterion. That does give us some guidance, but I don't think we can say that Hitler, with his modern equipment, is up against exactly the same proposition.

Anyway, we must remember that while Napoleon's invasion took him through the heart of Western Russia against Moscow, the Nazi chieftain not only is fighting in that sector but is making his greatest drive in the extreme south through the Ukraine in an effort to get into the Caucasus. Now, that southern area, while affording many obstacles in winter, has a much milder climate than the rest of Russia, and war certainly can be made there, for it has been done many times before.

Throughout almost all of the 1,100-mile battle line between Leningrad and the Black Sea the long winter is going to lay a crushing hand on military operations. It won't stop them, for you will remember that Finland and Russia fought across the frozen wastes at 52 degrees below zero winter before last, but it may be expected to confine them in many sectors to the holding of the lines under terrible conditions.

The fall rains already have been turning the roads and fields of most of western Russia into masses of gumbo which has impeded transport badly. Snow may come in the northern and central parts at any time from now on. The weather steadily grows colder until the real freezing comes in November, and then from Leningrad on the Baltic, clear down to Kiev in the Ukraine, winter becomes a cruel overlord. By January even the biggest rivers are frozen.

Along the Black Sea, however, and across the River Don down into the Caucasus, the weather is a different proposition. The winter isn't severe or long. The southern part of the Crimea, for instance, produces flowers the year round and is known as the Russian Riviera. Over in Georgia, in the southwestern part of the Caucasus, there is a somewhat similar climate.

The Caucasus—so important because it is the gateway between Russia and Iran (Persia) and the rest of the Middle East—has a variety of climate but there is little snow excepting in the mountains (which are many) and the air is so dry that the melting snow produces little mud to impede military operations. The northern Caucasus has a total snowfall of only about four inches on the lowlands.

The Germans are continuing their fierce assault in the Ukraine and against the Crimea, where, by the way, there is plenty of mud. Today they report the destruction of 45,000 Red troops to be added to the more than 600,000 which Berlin previously claimed to have annihilated.

Still, despite these colossal claims, the Muscovites continue to fight. Not only that, but they state this morning that they routed two Rumanian infantry brigades in a fierce battle.

THE TEACHERS, IT WAS CHARGED, UNDERGO TRAINING AS STORM TROOPERS.

THE GERMAN AMBASSADOR, BARON EDMUND VON THERMANN, HAS BEEN CRITICIZED IN CONGRESS, AND THE COMMITTEE CHARGED PREVIOUSLY THAT HE HEADED THOUSANDS OF GERMANS ORGANIZED IN CELLS AND TAXED THEIR SALARIES TO GAIN FUNDS FOR NAZI ACTIVITIES.

OTTAWA, SEPT 29-(AP)-THE OTTAWA EVENING JOURNAL SAID TODAY THAT NO ROYAL CANADIAN AIR FORCE BAND HAS PLAYED A RECRUITING ENGAGEMENT OVER THE CANADIAN BROADCASTING CORPORATION'S NETWORKS FOR THREE MONTHS "BECAUSE CHIEFS OF THE CBC HAVE BEEN THREATENED INDIRECTLY BY THE AMERICAN FEDERATION OF MUSICIANS' PRESIDENT, JAMES CAESAR PETRILLO, OF CHICAGO."

"MR.POWER RELEASED TO THE JOURNAL THIS MORNING INFORMATION TAKEN FROM A LETTER HE RECENTLY DIRECTED TO WALTER MURDOCH, CANADIAN MEMBER OF THE BOARD OF THE AMERICAN FEDERATION OF MUSICIANS, INSTRUCTING THAT GENTLEMAN THAT RCAF BANDS WOULD PLAY 'WHERE AND WHEN' THE AIR COUNCIL OR OFFICERS COMMANDING AIR FORCE DISTRICTS SO DECIDED."

"BUT THIS 'WHERE AND WHEN' DOES NOT INCLUDE THE CBC NETWORKS, EVEN ON ENGAGEMENTS WHICH MIGHT BE ARRANGED EXCLUSIVELY FOR RECRUITING PURPOSES.

SEP 30 1941

"'THERE WAS SOME TROUBLE ABOUT IT (AIR FORCE BANDS PLAYING ON THE RADIO NETWORK) AND CBC GOT FUSSY ABOUT IT,' DECLARED MR.POWER.

"THIS TROUBLE, IT WAS LEARNED, WAS THE THREAT TO THE CBC BY THE UNION WHICH ALLEGED THAT RCAF BANDS WERE UNFAIR TO ORGANIZED MUSICIANS. . . . ."

"AT CBC HEADQUARTERS TODAY IT WAS LEARNED THAT OFFICIALS HAD BEEN GIVEN 'TO UNDERSTAND' IF THE AIR FORCE BAND WENT ON THE AIR AGAIN, ALL NATIONAL BROADCASTING, MUTUAL AND COLUMBIA EXCHANGE AND OTHER PROGRAMS FROM THE UNITED STATES MIGHT BE CUT OFF THE CANADIAN NETWORK.

"SINCE THEN THE RCAF HAS NOT ASKED CBC FOR ANY RADIO TIME."

THE JOURNAL QUOTED E.L.BUSHNELL, CBS SUPERVISOR OF PROGRAMS, TORONTO, WHO WAS IN OTTAWA TODAY AS SAYING THAT ANY SUCH APPLICATIONS WOULD BE CONSIDERED "IN THE LIGHT OF PROGRAM COMMITMENTS."

(IN AN INTERVIEW TONIGHT BUSHNELL SAID MANY DISCUSSIONS HAD BEEN HELD WITH MURDOCH, THE UNION REPRESENTATIVE. HE ADDED THAT 99 PER CENT OF MUSIC HEARD OVER THE CBC NETWORK WAS PERFORMED BY MEMBERS OF THE UNION.

SEP 30 1941

("IF--AND THAT IS A BIG 'IF'--WE GOT INTO DIFFICULTIES WITH THE MUSICIANS' PROTECTIVE ASSOCIATION IN THIS COUNTRY THEY MIGHT INFLUENCE AMERICAN BROADCASTERS TO WITHHOLD PROGRAMS FROM US," HE SAID. "BUT THE UNION HAS NEVER STOPPED US FROM USING A BAND NOR HAVE THEY EVER THREATENED US.")

(IT WAS UNDERSTOOD EFFORTS ARE MADE TO PREVENT ANY CONFLICT BETWEEN PERFORMANCES OF SERVICE BANDS AND PROFESSIONAL MUSICIANS WHICH WOULD MEAN UNFAIR COMPETITION SINCE THE SERVICE PLAYERS RECEIVE ONLY PAY OF RANK, NOT UNION WAGES.)

CHURCHILL REPORTS BRITAIN IS GAINING, BUT FOE HAS INITIATIVE EXCEPT IN AIR; NAZIS EXECUTE 58 CZECHS

CALLS ENEMY PLANE LOSSES VERY SERIOUS

But Nazis Still Could Strike In New Fronts, Premier Cautions

Home Position Vastly Improved, He Says In Report To Parliament

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 30—Winston Churchill described Britain's home position today as enormously improved, with her shipping losses cut two thirds in the last three months, but warned that in every arm save the air Hitler still held the initiative and could strike simultaneously and with great power in three fresh theaters if he chose.

In a war review before Parliament through which ran at once a restrained exultance at the course of the battle of the Atlantic and a clear feeling of concern at the situation in Russia, the Prime Minister said that only the greatest of sacrifices by the British people and a tremendous upsurge of production in the United States could keep the Red armies indefinitely in the field.

Transportation Factor

And even then, he declared while reporting that British and American representatives now in Moscow were prepared to give Stalin the most specific commitments as to what supplies he could expect, "it may be that transportation rather than willingness or ability to give will prove in the end the limiting factor."

He took notice of the agitation in some quarters that Britain should invade the Continent to take some of the pressure off Russia.

"I should be guilty of no indiscretion," he said, "if I admitted that these questions have several times occurred to those responsible for the conduct of the war."

Cites Hitler's Silence.

But, he went on, grand strategy was now lost in the darkness of Hitler's long silence as to his intentions.

"We don't know," said the Prime Minister, "how far he will attempt to penetrate the vast lands of Soviet Russia in the face of the valiant Russian defenses, or how long his people will endure their own tremendous losses; or, again, whether he will decide to stand on the defensive and exploit the territory of immense value which he has conquered.

"We do not know whether he will turn a portion of his vast army southward toward the Valley of the Nile of whether he will make his way through Spain into northwest Africa, or whether, using the great continental railways of Europe and an immense chain of air fields, he will shift his weight and assemble an army for an intensive invasion of the British islands.

Nazis Short In Air

"It will certainly be in his power while standing on the defensive in the East to undertake all three of these hazardous enterprises on a great scale.

"His only shortage is in the air. That is a very serious shortage, but for the rest he still retains the initiative and we have not had the force to take it from him. He has the divisions and weapons on the mainland of Europe. He has ample means of transportation."

Informed persons took this reference to air power to mean that Axis squadrons were not now up to fighting heavy and continuing aerial engagements on two fronts at once.

26 Divisions In France

Other authoritative sources said the Germans were maintaining twenty-six divisions in France and that a land attack by the British now "would do Russia no good and result in another Dunkerque."

Defending his Government strongly against accusations of timidity and "excessive scruples and inhibitions," Churchill recalled:

"People ask why don't you bomb Rome? Did you not say you would bomb Rome if Cairo was bombed? What is the answer?

"One answer is that Cairo has not yet been bombed. Only military positions on the outskirts have been bombed. But, of course, we have the same right to bomb Rome as the Italians had to bomb London last year when they thought we were going to collapse, and we shouldn't hesitate to bomb Rome to the best of our ability and as heavily as possible if the course of the war should render such action convenient and helpful."

Enemy Losses Mount

The Prime Minister, in his report on Britain's progress against the aiding Axis submarine and bomber, declared not only that British, Allied and neutral shipping losses to date through July, August and September were only one third the total of the previous quarter—and presumably about 472,000 tons—but that during the same period German and Italian shipping losses have been about one and a half times greater than previously.

British food reserves, he added, stood higher than at the outbreak of the war and far higher than a year ago, and "there will be better Christmas dinners than last year."

"We must not relax," he summed up, "but the facts I have stated must be regarded as not unsatisfactory. They are most stultifying to Hitler."

CHURCHILL SAYS HE CONSIDERED PLAN TO INVADE

Premier Also Reveals R.A.F. Is Ready to Raid Rome if It Will Aid Cause.

HE REPORTS TO COMMONS

Claims Initiative in the Air and Warns That Only U. S. Plants Can Keep Reds in War.

London, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—Great Britain has seized the initiative from Germany in the air, has cut shipping losses two-thirds in three months, and has several times considered invasion of the German-dominated Continent, Prime Minister Churchill told Commons today in a broad war review which was the most optimistic he yet has given.

An authoritative source, discussing Mr. Churchill's references to the possibility of invasion of the Continent, said the Germans were maintaining twenty-six divisions in France against just such an eventuality and that a land attack now by the British "would do Russia no good and result in another Dunkirk."

Adolf Hitler is sufering from a "very serious shortage" in air power, Mr. Churchill said, but "for the rest he still retains the initiative and we have not had the force to take it from him." Mr. Churchill did not thus rule out the possibility of a British invasion of the Continent, however, remarking that Hitler "does not tell us his plans and I do not see why we should tell him ours."

Reds Need U. S. Supplies.

In every respect except in the air, he said, Germany remains so strong that Britain's own peril of invasion is not past and only "enormous" conversion of United States factories to produce war material can keep Russia on the firing line indefinitely.

"Many important supplies already have been dispatched" to Russia by Britain, Mr. Churchill disclosed, mentioning aircraft, aluminum, copper, rubber and oil, and remarking that "it may be that transportation rather than willingness or ability to give will prove in the end the limiting factor."

To keep Russia in the fight, "sacrifices of the most serious and extreme kind will be necessary by the British people," he said.

Ivan M. Maisky the Russian Ambassador leaned over the diplomatic gallery rail, intent on every word of the Prime Minister's report and cheering throatily at each of the frequent references to the Soviet Union.

Some Would Bomb Rome.

Expressing willingness of the British to bomb Rome, Mr. Churchill stated:

"People ask, 'Why don't you bomb Rome? Did you not say you would bomb Rome if Cairo was bombed? What is the answer?'

"One answer is that Cairo has not yet been bombed. Only military positions in the outskirts have been bombed.

"But, of course, we have the same right to bomb Rome as the Italians had to bomb London last year when they thought we were going to collapse, and we shouldn't hesitate to bomb Rome to the best of our ability and as heavily as possible if the course of the war should render such action convenient and helpful."

On April 18 a warning was issued from the Prime Minister's residence that if either Athens or Cairo were bombed, reprisals would be carried out against Rome.

On September 16 a correspondent who was present at Cairo reported that fourteen fire bombs and flares fell in the garden of an American school and that others landed in the center of the city near the famous 1,000-year-old Azhar University, one of the principal monuments of the Moslem world.

Suggesting that the war would last at least through next year, Mr. Churchill said:

"We are now within a measurable distance of an immense flow of American new building which, together with our own production, we look to carry us through 1942 and along progressively to the end of the war."

However, he warned, "Hitler has told us nothing since his speech in February; we are in complete ignorance of what he is going to do.

"We don't know how far he will attempt to penetrate the vast lands of Soviet Russia in the face of the valiant Russian defenses, or how long his people will endure their own tremendous losses, or, again, whether he will decide to stand on the defensive and exploit the territory of immensive value which he has conquered.

"We do not know whether he will turn a portion of his vast army southward toward the valley of the Nile, or if he will make his way through Spain into northwest Africa, or whether, using the great continental railways of Europe and the immense chain of airfields, he will shift his weight and assemble an army for intensive invasion of the British Islands."

"The enemy's air shortage is a very serious shortage, but for the rest he still retains the initiative. He has the divisions, the weapons and the ample means of transportation in Europe."

If Germany should take a defensive stand in Russia, it certainly would be in Hitler's power to launch simultaneously attacks against Britain, Africa and Spain, Britain's Prime Minister declared on this third anniversary of the ill-starred Munich pact which sought peace by appeasement of the Nazis.

Despite the grave warnings he delivered, which emphasized the point that winter gives no assurance 'that the danger of invasion will be entirely lifted from this island," Churchill said that Britain's position in shipp ig, food reserves and many other ways was better than ever.

Ship Losses Drop Two-thirds.

Despite the grave warnings he gave, emphasizing that winter gives no assurance "that the danger of invasion will be entirely lifted from this island," Churchill said Britain's position in shipping, foo' reserves and many other ways was better than ever.

"We have climbed from the pit of peril onto a fairly broad plateau," he asserted.

"We can see before us the difficult and dangerous upward path that we must tread, but we can also feel the parallel movement of convergence of two mighty nations, Russia and the United States."

British, Allied and neutral merchant shipping losses during the past three months have dropped two thirds from the three months before, he said, telling also of the dispatch of important British war materials to Russia and expressing a complete willingness to bomb Rome if necessary.

British official figures for losses of British, Allied and neutral shipping useful to Britain are 589,273 tons for April, 497,847 for May, and 329,296 for June, a total of 1,416,416 tons, but showing a consistent decline.

Two-thirds less apparently would be a total of only about 472,000 tons for the entire three months of July, August and September.

Churchill said that during the three months just ending, Britain's "slaughter of enemy shipping is one and one-half times that of the three previous months, and is increasing by leaps and bounds."

From March 25 to Aug. 16, British figures show losses of German, Italian, Finnish and neutral shipping useful to the Axis totalled about 1,707,000 tons, including 200,000 tons claimed sunk by the Russians.

Very few important ships carrying munitions to Britain have been lost, he said.

He asserted that "our reserves of food stand higher than at the outbreak of the war.

"There will be better Christmas dinners this year than last year and at the same time more justification behind those dinners."

"We are now within a measurable distance of an immense flow of American new building which together with our own production we look to carry us through 1942 and along progressively to the end of the war," he declared.

However, he warned that "we must expect U-boat warfare conduced by a larger number of U-boats than ever before will be intensified."

"U-boats will be beaten and can be beaten only by corresponding intensification of our own measures and also to put it plainly by that assistance which we are receiving in increasing degree from other quarters." 4

"A little more than a year ago we seemed to be alone," he continued, "but, as time has passed by, our own steadfast conduct and crimes of the enemy have brought two other very great nations into intimate and friendly conduct and concert with us. Whether we look to the east or whether we look to the west we are no longer alone.

"If we look at the battle line of the Russian army and at the United States resolve and action we derive comfort and good cheer in our struggle."

"We have climbed from the pit of peril onto a fairly broad plateau," he said. 5

"We can see before us the difficult and dangerous upward path that we must tread but we can also feel the parellel movement of convergence of two mighty nations, Russia and the United States.

"We feel around us the upsurge of all enslaved countries of Europe and we see how they defy Hitler's firing parties and far away in the east we see the faithful, patient and inexhaustible spirit of the Chinese race."

Shortage in the Air

He said the "enemy's only shortage," however, "is in the air" and declared he could say "nothing without giving information to the enemy of possibilities of our invading Europe."

The "enemy's" air shortage "is a very serious shortage but for the rest he still retains the initiative," he said. "He has the divisions, the weapons and the ample means of transportation in Europe."

"Many important supplies have already been dispatched to Russia," he asserted, "but to enable Russia to remain indefinitely in the field as a war-making power, sacrifices of the most serious and extreme kind will be necessary by the British people while enormous conversions of plants will be necessary in the United States." 6

Winter gives no assurance, he declared, "that the danger of invasion will be entirely lifted from this island" and added "we must certainly expect in the spring that whatever happens in the meanwhile heavy fighting will develop in the east.

Returning once more to the question of aid to Russia, he said that:

"Though our army is small compared with the German and Russian armies, it is a finely-tempered weapon which, supported by nearly 2,000,000 armed and uniformed home guard, will destroy or hurl into the sea an invader should he make a number of successive or simultaneous lodgments on our shores."

He warned those on the home front that "a steady flow of skilled tradesmen and technicians will be required in order to use the weapons which the factories are now producing in rapidly-increasing numbers" and asserted he had no intention of having "pulled to pieces and gutted the present formations" of the army by releasing soldiers for technical jobs.

"The army must be ready at any hour and any day to deal with the threat of the invader," he said, but added, "it may well be that that occasion may never come."

Nevertheless, he insisted, "the menace to these islands of invasion will present itself in very grave and sharp form" in the spring.

"Only the most strenuous exertions and perfect unity of purpose added to our traditional and unrelenting tenacity will enable us to act our part worthily in the world drama in which we are now plunged," he concluded.

a crescendo of attacks on our lifeline of supply by U-boats and long-range aircraft.

Our counter-measures which were undertaken in good time on the largest scale proved very successful.

Ship Losses Reduced.

Apart from anything which may happen this afternoon, losses by enemy action of British, allied and neutral merchant ships during the quarter of July, August and September have been only one-third of those losses during the quarter of April, May and June.

During the same period our slaughter of enemy shipping—German and Italian—has been increasing by leaps and bounds.

It is about one-and-one-half times what it was in the previous three months. * * *

Very few important ships carrying munitions have been lost on the way.

Our reserves of food stand higher than at the outbreak of the war—far higher than a year or 18 months ago. * * *

There will be better Christmas dinners than last year and more justification behind the dinners.

It seems likely now that we shall bring in several million tons more than the import total which I mentioned in private to the House earlier in the year, which total was itself sufficient to keep us going.

We are now within a measurable distance of an immense flood of American new building which together with our own construction we look to carry us through 1942 and on progressively to the end of the war.

U-Boat Warfare.

We must expect enemy U-boat warfare to continue with larger numbers of U-boats supported by aircraft.

The U-boats will be beaten by a corresponding intensification of our own measures and also by assistance we are receiving in an increasing degree from other quarters.

We must not relax, but the facts I have stated must be regarded as not unsatisfactory. They are most stultifying to Hitler. * * *

The fact that at every stage we have to consider the interest of our Russian ally and the wish and action of the United States makes it more necessary and imperative that I and my colleagues should be particularly careful about any pronouncements, explanations or forecasts. * * *

In the climb from a pit of peril onto a broad plateau we can see before us the difficult and dangerous onward path we must tread, but we can see a parallel movement of the convergence of the two mighty nations I have mentioned, Rusia and the United States.

We feel around us an upsurge of the enslaved nations of Europe. * * *

I cannot attempt to discuss at the present time questions of future strategy. They are discussed every day in the newspapers, but I do not think the government ought to take any part just now in debates.

Invasion Considered.

Take the question whether we should invade the continent of Europe in order to relieve some of the weight on Russia. I should be guilty of no indiscretion if I admitted that these questions have several times occurred to those responsible for the conduct of the war.

Hitler has told us nothing since his speech in February. We are in complete ignorance of what he is going to do.

We don't know how far he will attempt to penetrate the vast lands of Soviet Russia in the face of the valiant Russian defenses, or how long his people will endure their own tremendous losses, or again whether he will decide to stand on the defensive and exploit the territory of immense value which he has conquered.

We do not know whether he will turn a portion of his vast army southwards toward the Valley of the Nile, or if he will make his way through Spain into Northwest Africa, or whether, using the great continental railways of Europe and an immense chain of airfields, he will shift his weight and assemble an army for an intensive invasion of the British islands.

It will certainly be in his power while standing on the defensive in the East to undertake all three of these hazardous enterprises on a great scale.

His only shortage is in the air. That is a very serious shortage, but for the rest he still retains the initiative and we have not had the force to take it from him. He has the divisions and weapons and on the mainland of Europe. He has ample means of transportation.

Assistance to Russia.

If he does not tell us his plans, I don't see why we should tell him ours. I can assure the House we are studying and pondering over these dangerous possibilities, and how best to dispose of our resources to meet them. * * *

There is, however, one matter on which I may speak a little more freely, namely the material assistance in the way of munitions and supplies we are giving Russia.

The British and United States missions are now in conference with the chiefs of the Soviet in Moscow. The interval which has passed since President Roosevelt and I sent our message from the Atlantic to Stalin has been used in ceaseless activity on both sides of the ocean. The whole ground has been surveyed in the light of new events and many important supplies already have been dispatched.

Our representatives and our American colleagues have gone to Moscow with a clear and full knowledge of what we are able to give Russia month by month from now onwards. OCT 1 1941

The Soviet government has a right to know what monthly quotas of weapons and supplies we can send them and they can count upon. * * *

I must say at once that in order to enable Russia to remain indefinitely in the field as a first-class warmaking power, sacrifices of a most serious kind and a most extreme effort will have to be made by the British people, and enormous new installations or conversions from the existing plant will have to be set up in the United States.

Other Materials Sent.

We have just had a symbolic tank week for Russia. * * * It is not only tanks. We have to send precious aircraft, aluminum, copper, rubber, oil and many other materials vital to modern war, large quantities of which already have gone. It may be that transportation, rather than willingness or ability to give, will prove in the end the limiting factor.

All this now is being discussed by our representatives and the American representatives in Moscow with Stalin. * * *

In some respects the problems we now have to face are similar to those which rent our hearts last year, when we had to refuse to send away from this country for helping France the last remaining squadrons of fighter aircraft on which our whole future position depended, or again when we rightly judged Hitler's unpreparedness for invasion in the summer of 1940 and took the plunge of sending so many of our tanks and trained troops around the Cape to the Nile Valley in order to destroy the Italian Army in Libya and Abyssinia.

If it is now thought we solved those problems correctly, we should hope there may be grounds for confidence that in these new problems his majesty's government and professional advisers will not err either in the direction of improvidence or want of courage. * * *

We have never had and never shall have an army comparable in numbers to the armies of the continent. At the outbreak of the war our army was insignificant as a factor in the conflict, but with very great care and toil and time we have now created a medium-sized but very good army. * * *

Finely-Tempered Weapon.

It has not had the repeated successful experiences of the German Army, which area formidable source of strength, but nevertheless a finely-tempered weapon has been forged.

It is upon that weapon, supported by nearly 2,000,000 armed and uniformed home guards, that we rely to destroy or hurl into the sea the invader should he succeed in making a number of successive and simultaneous lodgements on our shores.

When I learn about the absolutely indescribable atrocities which the German police and troops have committed on the Russian population in the rear of the armored vehicles, the responsibility of his majesty's government to maintain at home a now high-class force to beat down and annihilate any lodgements from the sea or air comes to me in a significantly ugly and impressive form. * * *

We ought to try to profit from well-informed criticism, whether friendly or spiteful. But there is one charge sometimes put forward which is, I think, a little unfair.

I mean the insinuation that we are a weak, timid and lethargic government, usually asleep, and that in our waking hours always have held back by excessive scruples and inhibitions, too feeble to act with the vehemence and severity which these violent times require.

People ask why don't you bomb Rome? Did you not say you would bomb Rome if Cairo was bombed? What is the answer?

One answer is that Cairo has not yet been bombed. Only military positions in the outskirts have been bombed. But, of course, we have the same right to bomb Rome as the Italians had to bomb London last year when they thought we were going to collapse, and we shouldn't hesitate to bomb Rome to the best of our ability and as heavily as possible if the course of the war should render such action convenient and helpful.

Cites Persian Incident.

Then there is the case of Persia. I see complaints that we acted feebly and hesitatingly in Persia. This surprised me very much. I do not know any job that has been better done.

With hardly any loss of life and with surprising rapidity in close concert with our Russian allies we rooted out malignant elements in Teheran, we chased the dictator into exile and installed a constitutional sovereign pledged to a whole catalogue of long-delayed and sorely needed reforms and reparations.

We hope soon to present a new and loyal alliance made by Britain and Russia with the ancient Persian state and people which will ratify the somewhat abrupt steps we were forced to take and will associate the Persian peoples with us not only in their liberation, but in the future movement of the war.

He must indeed be a captious critic who can find a pretext to make a quarrel out of that. * * * It ill deserves the treatment it received from our natural professional crabs.

Let me repeat, I cannot give the House any flattering hopes, still less any guarantee the future will be bright or easy. On the contrary, even the coming winter affords no assurance, as the Russian Ambassador has candidly and shrewdly pointed out, that German pressure on Russia will be relaxed, or that the coming winter gives any assurance the danger of invasion will be entirely lifted from these islands. * * *

We must certainly expect that in the spring very heavy fighting, much heavier than any we have yet experienced in this year, will develop in the East, and also the menace to these islands from invasion will present itself in very sharp form. * * *

Text of Churchill's Address to Commons

By the Associated Press. OCT 1 1941

LONDON, Sept. 30.—Following is a partial text of the address made by Prime Minister Churchill before the House of Commons today:

The House will remember that in June last I deprecated making too frequent expositions of government policy and reviews of war positions by the ministers. * * *

For seven months Hitler has said nothing about his war plans. What he blurted out in January and February certainly proved helpful to us.

"In the spring," he said, "our submarine warfare will begin in earnest * * * in March or April naval warfare will start such as the enemy never expected."

TOLL OF CZECHS EXECUTED BY NAZIS HITS 88

58 More Are Killed By Germans On 3d Anniversary Of Munich

Those Slain By Gestapo Said To Have Come From All Ranks

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Wednesday, Oct. 1—Grim and bloody Nazi retaliation for an attempt to throw off German "protection" and regain independence for Bohemia-Moravia continued yesterday as another fifty-eight revolutionaries fell dead before German firing squads.

The total number of Czechs admitted to have been victims of Gestapo troubleshooter Reinhard Heydrich's drumhead justice thus rose to eighty-eight as the third anniversary of the Munich dismemberment of the Czecho-Slovak state was being celebrated in the Reich.

May Have Been Slated Today

Observers who have been watching the restless course of the Czech peoples wondered whether the outbreak, which DNB admitted some Czech patriots had looked for soon, had been planned for this day of the anniversary on which the post-World War republic lost the first great chunks of territory after a two-decade existence.

When the first news of the disturbances in Bohemia-Moravia leaked out from the tightly sealed borders, authorities told foreign correspondents about one hundred arrests had been made.

Unless further arrests have been made—of which no inkling has been given so far—all but twelve of these have been executed by summary justice.

All Types Executed

Earlier reports which told of the execution of three former high generals of the former Czech army gave the impression that the ringleaders of the opposition group charged with planning to set the Czech republic on its own feet again were predominantly a military clique.

But the names made available today listed a professor, a doctor, contractor, gym instructor and civil servants among those who paid with their lives for opposing German rule.

Brig. Gen. Franz Horacek, who was one of the three generals shot Monday, was mentioned as especially active in the revolutionary organization.

Preparing Sabotage

DNB, quoting the Czech press, said one of the men who met death the same day had organized Communist cells in an armaments factory and was preparing for strikes and sabotage.

One allegedly Communistic organization was described by the news agency as engaging in "especially dangerous activities."

There was much conjecture on whether the old Czech secrecy independence organization—the Mafia—had a finger in the unrest but its name has not yet apeared in connection with the executions. Much blame continued to be laid here at the door of London and Moscow.

As Heydrich continued to wipe the board clean of unruly elements in the protectorate, Reichsprotector Baron von Neurath, who asked Hitler to relieve him temporarily in Prague because of ill health, now is reported retired to his Wurtemberg estate.

Killings Began Sunday

The executions began Sunday, immediately after Heydrich's appointment. Six were executed that day, twenty-four Monday and fifty-eight yesterday.

Yesterday's victims included one retired colonel, two Jews and six alleged Communist leaders. The others were described as men of no political importance.

Heading the list was Karl Capek, a retired colonel from Brunn, in Moravia. The others facing the firing squad with him were Prof. Wladimar Groh, of the Czech University, and a physician, Dr. Vojtech Jikek.

Additional names disclosed by DNB were those of Jaroslaus Plodek, a contractor; Joseph Melcer, druggist; Wenzel Sulista, civil servant, all from Laun.

Germans Told Nothing

The uprising in Bohemia-Moravia was made a closed chapter for the German public yesterday. Afternoon newspapers had a journalistic black-out on the news and no German newspaper reader knew that three Czech generals and other citizens had been executed for allegedly plotting to throw off German rule. Some few morning newspaper reported belatedly and inconspicuously the arrest of Premier General Alois Elias, charged with preparing high treason.

Germans Are Sheltered

The ordinary radio listener was unaware that drastic punishment was being meted out in Bohemia. This news was reserved for foreign listeners tuning in on short-wave overseas broadcasts, most of which, on account of their proximity to the issuing point, cannot be heard in Germany.

Authorized Berlin sources stuck to their story that only about 100 arrests had been made, but they offered an explanation for the "protectorate incident." It was the British and Russians, they said, who stirred up some few ill-guided Czechs an incited them to commit acts that th egreat majority of the Czech people, including President Emil Hacha, deeply regretted.

Britain and the U.S.S.R., it was contended, picked on the protectorate after "vainly trying to stir up trouble in Norway, Holland and Paris," and found some misguided souls who "attempted forcefully to separate Bohemia and Moravia from the Reich."

Incited by the three generals, the explanation went on, these rebels began collecting arms of all sorts. The generals, now dead, were Joseph Bily, Hugo Votja and Franz Horacek. Their idea, according to the German version, was again to set up an independent Czech State.

Moscow and London Engineered Czech Plot, Nazis Charge

Spokesman Says British Tried Vainly in Paris, Norway and Holland

By the Associated Press.

BERLIN, Sept. 30.—German firing squads have executed 24 Czechs accused of plotting to throw off German rule, it was announced today, as spokesmen blamed Moscow and London for rebel preparations which led to the swift German counter-measures in the protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia.

"London especially tried to start something in Paris, Norway and Holland, but it didn't work," a spokesman declared, "and before they got off to a good start in the protectorate we took a hand."

He intimated that German authorities had been aware for some time of "disturbing elements" in the protectorate, but had waited patiently to determine who was involved before taking action.

Most Czechs "Traciable"

"We wanted to avoid dragging persons who had nothing to do with it into the affair," he said. "Most Czechs saw the purposelessness of such politics. Reasonable Czechs saw the Germans did not intend to put them under the yoke or suppress their culture."

(Exchange Telegraph in London reported that the Prague radio said three prominent Czech politicians had been added to the list of those arrested. They were said to be Dr. Jaroslav Krejci, deputy prime minister and minister of justice; Gen. Jezek, minister of the interior, and Dr. George Havelka, former minister of communications who was expelled from the government several months ago.)

Three former army leaders were among those executed. The announcement named them as Army Gen. Joseph Bily, Division Gen. Hugo Votja and Brig. Gen. Franz Horacek, and described them as "leading men in the opposition group which had as its goal the re-establishment of an independent Czech state."

(The Czech government in London said Gen. Bily formerly was military commander of Bohemia, and Gen. Vojta was deputy commander of the army corps at Bratislava.)

Official Charges.

The 24 persons were accused officially of trying "forcefully to separate the protectorate of Bohemia-Moravia (parts of the former republic) from the Reich."

Just when the 24 persons were shot was not disclosed, but the executions followed by not more than 48 hours the declaration of a state of civil emergency in six populous districts of the protectorate by Reinhard Heydrich, chief of the Gestapo Security Service, who has become new Reich's protector of Bohemia-Moravia.

It was three years ago today, early in the morning, that heads of Germany, Britain, France and Italy signed at Munich an agreement providing for gradual occupation by Germany of parts of Czecho-Slovakia's Sudeten areas.

(On that same day, British Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain flew back to London and said there had been gained at Munich "peace with honor . . . peace for our time." The concessions gained by Germany at Munich led eventually to the breakup of the little republic which grew out of the World War.)

OCT 1 1941

Arms Buying Reported.

An inkling of ramifications of the alleged plot came from D.N.B., German news egency, which quoted the Czech press as saying itinerant groups of Czechs had been buying up and collecting arms of all sorts.

The revolt in which the arms were to be used, D.N.B. said, was scheduled to begin soon.

Two men named especially as members of the wandering arms buyers, Ladislaus Komzek and Wendel Franc, were among those shot.

There was no word on the fate of the Czech Premier, Gen. Alois Elias, who was charged with premeditating high treason. He was turned over to the German People's Court, and appeals from this court go only to Adolp Hitler.

New York, Sept. 30 (AP)—The Berlin radio broadcast a Paris dispatch today reporting the execution of a Frenchman convicted of illegal possession of arms.

Arrest Of More Czechs Reported

London, Sept. 30—Exchange Telegraph said today the Prague radio reported the arrest of three prominent Czech politicians—M. Nazis Search All Houses In Varna, Arrest 543

Sofia, Sept. 30 (AP)—A house-to-house search in which police arrested 543 persons at the Black Sea port of Varna last Saturday was announced here tonight.

The reason for the wholesale round-up was not given but it was recalled that Soviet agents were reported to have landed by parachute in that region recently.

During the search Varna was shut off from the outside world between 3 A. M. and 11 P. M. Citizens were not permitted to leave their homes.

Of those arrested, six were detained, seventy-eight were interned and 138 fined for failure to have their personal papers in order, police said.

Skirmishes In Leningrad Suburbs, Bayonet Fighting In South Reported

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Sept. 30—Skirmishes at close quarters in the suburbs of Leningrad and hand-to-hand combats with bayonets in the far south were reported by German dispatches tonight as Adolf Hitler's armies resigned themselves to the necessity of wintering on the Russian front.

In a number of counter-attacks the Russians stormed German lines at various unidentified points along the southern sector.

Bayonet fighting developed, DNB said, indicating the Russian charges carried them deep into German positions.

Nazis Show "Superiority"

The Nazis "again showed their superiority over the Soviet soldiers," DNB asserted, adding that by free use of bayonets the Germans drove the Red troops back "with bloody casualties."

A military spokesman said there would be little news from the front for the "next few days" for "certain reasons" which he did not disclose.

He conceded that "certain importance can be attached" to German press statements that the war would continue into the winter.

Many Reds Left Dead

The German dispatches tonight, dealing with localized actions, said the Russians left more than one hundred dead on the field in the suburbs of Leningrad. An infantry division stormed 210 Russian pillboxes Sunday and Monday in the northern sector, the high command reported.

The bayonet duels in the far south (presumably around besieged Odessa) were the first German-reported resort to cold steel, despite frequent close-quarter encounters since the war began.

DNB said a surprise attack on a Russian railroad station in the south yesterday resulted in capture of a freight train and sixteen cannon, including four long-range pieces.

Nazi Allies Praised

German allies came in for a share of praise also. The high command said Italian troops east of the Dnieper river "exterminated" strong Russian forces and took several thousand captives.

[The Italian high command said the ground was littered with Russian dead in a rout of four Soviet divisions from which 5,000 prisoners were taken.]

DNB said the Finns had conquered

30.24— 12125

the last of the islands in Lake Ladoga, east of Leningrad, and had gained several more towns between Lakes Ladoga and Onega in stubborn fighting.

As an aftermath of the battle of encirclement east of Kiev last week, in which the high command reported a great victory, DNB said the Russian southern commander, Marshal Semeon Budenny, had been with the five trapped Red armies but escaped by plane.

33 Trains Bombed

The news agency said the German air force was busy bombing Russian transport in the Kharkov area of the Ukraine, having damaged or destroyed thirty-three trains yesterday.

The German cruisers Leipsig and Emden recently "effectively" fired on Soviet field and artillery positions in the northern sector, DNB said, without specifying the scene of action.

This led to the speculation here whether German warcraft were closing in on Kronstadt Bay, where it is claimed the Russian Baltic fleet has been bottled up.

German planes sank a 5,000-ton Soviet transport and damaged two other ships in Lake Ladoga Monday, DNB said.

At the same time, DNB indicated Germany was digging in economically in the conquered area, reporting that German financial organizations already had been established at Brest Litovsk in Poland and Krivoi Rog, in the Ukraine, scenes of battles only a few weeks ago.

Warships Fire On Troops: Berlin

Berlin, Sept. 30 (AP)—DNB reported tonight that Marshal Semeon Budyenny, commander of the Russian forces in the Ukraine, was with five Soviet armies which were encircled east of Kiev but that he escaped in an airplane.

[By the Associated Press]

Berlin, Sept. 30 — Hand-to-hand bayonet fighting on the southern Russian front was reported today in military dispatches which said hundreds of Russian dead littered the battlefield.

Numerous skirmishes at close quarters have been mentioned, including some in the suburbs of Leningrad, but today's account was the first time bayonet combat has been reported here.

Towns' Seizure Claimed

DNB said that on the northern front German and Finnish forces captured several towns between Lake Ladoga and Lake Onega and seized the last of the Russian-defended islands in Lake Ladoga.

The German cruisers Leipzig and Emden recently fired effectively on Soviet field and artillery positions on the northern sector of the eastern front, DNB reported today. The exact scene of the action was not specified.

Silence On War

A German military spokesman declared today there would be "little news from the Eastern Front for the next few days" because of "certain reasons" which were not disclosed.

He added that "certain importance can be attached" to sttaements in the German press that the campaign on the Russian front might run into winter months.

Axis forces scored successes on the northern and southern flanks of the battlefront, a military commentator said.

(The German radio broadcast a dispatch from Helsinki that shortage of food was causing increasing desertions among Soviet defenders of the occupied Finnish peninsular base at Hango.)

Italian Success Reported

The high command said Italian troops east of the Dnieper river "exterminated strong enemy forces and took several thousand prisoners."

The Italian high command reported that Italian troops were mopping up the remnants of four Russian divisions — approximately 60,000 men — with more than 5,000 prisoners already taken.

(The battle lasted several days, the high command said, adding "the front before one of our divisions is completely covered with Russian corpses."

(Italian planes were credited with shooting down fifteen Russian aircraft in recent dogfights.)

In a northern sector of the Eastern front an infantry division, presumably German, stormed 210 pillboxes in a successful attack Sunday and Monday on a stubbornly defended position, the high command added.

Thirty-three Russian transport and supply trains were wrecked or damaged by German bombers in the Kharkov area of the extreme eastern Ukraine yesterday, DNB reported today.

In addiiton, German planes sank a 500-ton Soviet transport and damaged two other ships totaling 1,800 tons in Lake Ladoga, DNB said.

RUSSIANS ADMIT FALL OF POLTAVA

Acknowledge Retreat Into Donets Basin But Claim Success In North

City On Approaches To Leningrad Recaptured, Moscow Reports

[By the Associated Press]

By The Associated Press

MOSCOW, Wednesday, Oct. 1—The Russians acknowledged for the first time today a Red army retreat into the rich Donets Basin after abandoning Poltava, but dispatches from the north claimed that waves of cheering Red infantrymen had won back a city on the approaches to Leningrad and entrenched themselves in a new, advanced line before the besieged metropolis.

The German high command had announced the capture of Poltava, eighty miles southwest of the chief Donets industrial city of Kharkov, on September 19, along with that of Kiev, but today's Russian communique indicated the last portions of the town were abandoned only Tuesday.

Budenny's Forces Intact

Poltava is some 180 miles southeast of Kiev and in the path of German forces which were claimed to have trapped the major part of Marshal Semeon Budenny's Ukraine defenders.

Budenny's forces apparently still remained intact and were making an orderly withdrawal to establish new lines for the defense of the Donets area, which holds vast Soviet industries.

Russian accounts of the operations on the north said Red forces regained the city before Leningrad after a twelve-hour assault by Soviet tanks and infantrymen, thus measurably easing the pressure on that second city of the Soviet Union.

Red Star Gives Details

Details of the storming of the city, which was not designated by name were related in dispatches to the army journal Red Star. It was the most important of a group of counter-attacks which have beaten the Germans out of numerous localities on the fringe of Leningrad in the last two days, officers said.

Elsewhere along the whole front the struggle proceeded without respite or lack of Soviet initiative on the last day of September. In the extreme southwest, for instance, the Red army was declared in a Tass dispatch to have counter-attacked between two villages, killing 2,000 of the enemy and taking 300 prisoners along with considerable booty.

Red Star, detailing the main Leningrad counter-attack, said a Russian regiment approached the objective city under cover of night, entrenched itself in the outskirts and waited there until Russian guns, opening up at 6 A. M., silenced the German batteries.

Rockets Give Signal

White rockets gave the signal for the attack and the Russian tanks rolled forward, with shouting infantrymen in their wake.

The Germans resisted fiercely, Red Star said, but their machine-gun and mortar fire slowed the Russian advance only temporarily.

By noon the Russians were said to have occupied the southwestern and western districts of the city and as other units reached the northeastern edge, the Germans began to retreat.

By 6 P. M., the dispatch reported, the main Russian forces had reached a river, completing recapture of the city and driving the Germans back "a significant distance" from Leningrad.

Regiment Wiped Out

An entire German regiment was reported to have been annihilated in this battle, the Russians losing less than one hundred dead and wounded.

Pravda, Communist party organ, reported at the same time that the firmness of the Leningrad defenses was illustrated by three German attacks in which the Germans lost more than 1,000 officers and men of the Two Hundred and Sixty-ninth Division and failed to advance.

The first of these attacks was what the Russians call a "psychological one," the Germans rushing the Red army lines without taking any precautions. The second assault was supported by tanks and it almost broke through, Pravda said, but reinforcements saved the Russian line. The third attack was reported finally broken by Russian artillery fire.

Russia's air force, showing signs of steadily increasing activity, also was reported hitting the Germans hard in the northwest. In a single sector, one dispatch said, the planes destroyed 115 trucks, six armored cars, 5 tanks, 4 artillery batteries, 5 anti-aircraft batteries, and dispersed three battalions of infantry. Eight enemy planes also were shot down in this action.

In the southwest, one air unit was said to have destroyed 10 German tanks, 38 armored cars, and 98 trucks and to have wrecked a large bridge while a German column was passing over it.

Red Star reported 68 German planes destroyed on the ground and five in the air on the central front, compared with damage to a single Russian plane.

Several Towns Retaken, Russ Report

[By the Associated Press]

Moscow, Sept. 30—The Red army reported today recapture of a city on the approaches to Leningrad and the taking of many other communities in a concentrated series of counter-attacks.

As the violent struggle continued all along the front that spans a continent, Red Star, army newspaper, said the northwestern city of "B" was recaptured after twelve hours of battle which culminated in the bitterest sort of hand-to-hand and house-to-house combat.

Regiment Declared Destroyed

The Germans thus were driven back "a significant distance" from Leningrad, where they have made no gain in a fortnight, Red Star stated.

One German regiment was declared annihilated in this battle, with the Russians losing less than one hundred men in dead and wounded.

In other Leningrad front zones, Pravda, Communist party paper, said that the Germans were beaten back from numerous villages in the last two days and that at one point the Russians were able to entrench on a new defense line after these counter-advances.

The Soviet information bureau's communique today said merely: "During the night of September 29-30 our troops fought the enemy along the entire front."

600 Reported Slain

The bureau's midnight communique, apparently dealing with the same engagement which Red Star described, said more than 600 Germans were killed in Soviet recapture of a point which it identified as "B."

In another sector of the northwest a Russian tank force killed or wounded 1,500 Germans, destroyed twelve tanks and damaged twenty-two in a seven-day fight, the communique said.

The Red Star account said a Russian regiment occupied the southwestern districts of the city of "B" and other units penetrated the northwestern outskirts, forcing the Germans to start a retreat at noon after a battle that be- village of "N," Tass said.

By 6 P. M. the main Russian forces reached and forded a river, which was not identified, and completed the recapture of the city.

Air Victory Claimed

A dispatch by Tass, officia Soviet news agency, said that on the southwest front, the Red Army killed 2,000 Germans, took 300 prisoners, and captured a number of guns and tanks in a thrust between villages B and D. The Rumanians near Odessa were repulsed in a fresh assault at the village of N, Tass said.

Representing the largest toll yet claimed against the German Air Force in any forty-eight-hour period, the communique said that 263 German planes were shot down Friday and Saturday, and acknowledged the loss of fifty-nine Russian planes.

Russian warships bolstering the defense of Leningrad were stated to have sunk a second destroyer in a Baltic battle in which they had previously reported sinking a cruiser and a destroyer.

Meanwhile the Commander-in-Chief of the Polish Army in Russia, Gen. Wladyslaw Anders, told the press that one Polish Division already has been armed, a second was being organized and a third was being formed. More are expected to follow soon, he said.

Conferees Meet in Moscow.

Tri-power conference members cutting speeches short, met in committee chambers at Moscow with the idea of formulating by Friday full reports of Russia's war needs and ways of meeting them. Experts on army, navy, air force, transport, raw materials and medicine problems convened separately.

Premier Joseph Stalin held a 3 hour and 15 minute conference with Lord Beaverbrook, W. Averill Harriman and Foreign Commissar Vyacheslav Molotov, heads of the British, American and Russian groups, after the appointment of the committees yesterday. It was his second talk with the American and British leaders.

Mr. Harriman pledged at the opening session that the United States would give Russia the fullest possible support for the war against Germany. "Your success means everything to the people of America," he said.

Molotov, who presided, expressed the hope that the conference would be guided "by the high ideals expressed by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill on August 15," when they proposed the meeting to Stalin.

Lord Beaverbrook said: "We will give lessons to those who make war. We will do everything we can to bring the conqueror low."

Conferences Proceed

Six committees of the tri-power war-supply conference labored rapidly through a second day today at charting Russia's needs and American and British means of filling them.

Having cut speech-making short, they hoped to complete their work by Friday on the problems of army, navy, air force, transport, raw materials and medicine.

Much work was understood to have been done in advance through diplomatic channels, leaving the small committees free to concentrate on linking up the technical details.

Soviet Press Review

The Soviet press, meanwhile, made its own review of the Russian economic front.

A leading editorial in Pravada said that the great Baku oil fields were operating ahead of production schedule and that there was no shortage of gasoline for Russia's planes and tanks.

Pravada proposed a further increase of the output from the Baku fields and the development of new fields between the Volga and Urals.

munist party organ, announced the great Baku oil fields were ahead of their production schedule, urged a further increase in the output of present oil fields and development of new resources between the Volga river and Ural Mountains and in the Far East.

"Formidable Fortress"

Pravda published an article describing the Donets coal and iron basin in the Ukraine as a "formidable fortress" which the Germans considered their last barrier to the Caucasus oil fields. A letter from workers there promised newspaper readers the "Fascists will never see our Donets basin."

It was announced cotton warehouses were receiving three times the amount of cotton brought to them last year.

Italians Battle at Dnieper.

Rome, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—Sharp fighting by Italian expeditionary forces between the Dnieper River and one of its tributaries was reported today by the Italian High Command, which said the battleground was littered with Russian dead.

Italian troops were said to be mopping up the remnants of four Russian divisions—approximately 60,000 men—with more than 5,000 prisoners already taken. The battle lasted several days, the High Command said, adding "the front before one of our divisions is completely covered with Russian corpses."

Italian planes were credited with having shot down fifteen Russian aircraft in recent dog fights.

Finns Claim Victory

Helsinki, Finland, Sept. 30.—(AP)—Press dispatches said today Finnish soldiers had destroyed three Soviet regiments, two of them encircled on the main road toward Petroskoi, Petrozavodsk), the capital of Russian Karelia on the Leningrad-Murmansk Railway.

The third unit was reported to have been the Red army's 1070th regiment, trapped 10 miles behind the Finnish lines.

With hundreds of men dead, the Russian political commissars were said to have committed suicide when the situation proved hopeless.

The two regiments claimed encircled in the drive east were reported to have lost 1500 men killed and 1000 wounded. The survivors, dispatches said, were dispersed in the wilderness.

The Karelian league estimated that only 30 per cent. of the property of Finnish Karelia, southwest of this scene of action, had escaped devastation under the scorched-earth policy of the Red army in its withdrawal. The damage in Viipuri, the capital, was declared to be 93 per cent.

mans will not rely entirely on the sauna, for the army has also built numerous motorized delousing chambers and motorized laundries in which four men can wash and dry 1,100 pounds of laundry a day.

The engineer battalions are to be taught the simplest type of sauna, such as Finnish peasants have. These consist merely of wooden sheds in which water is poured over stones heated by a wood fire. A light whipping with birch twigs accompanies the steaming process of the bather, who then finishes with a cold water rinse.

The press continued to tell the German people meanwhile that their soldiers in the east would probably spend the winter fighting in the Russian snows. With a regularity that indicated orders from above, the newspapers carried an article by Col. Walter Scherff of the General Staff on how the German soldier can easily overcome the rigors of the Russian winter.

mile-wide link between the Crimea and the Russian mainland, but that they were making scant headway. One view is that this whole enterprise is scarcely more than a diversion to mask the German intentions to conquer the industrial and agricultural north.

"There is no indication of any German advance anywhere," one London authority said, giving a more optimistic light to both official and a large part of British public opinion.

Despite the Russian Ambassadors' recent criticism of their reliance on "Gen. Mud and Gen. Winter," many Britons are still inclined to set great store by progressively unfavorable weather conditions on the Russian front.

Bracken Comments on Aid

LONDON, Sept. 30 (AP)—Great Britain is giving Russia everything she has asked for, Minister of Information Brendan Bracken said today.

"We have even deprived ourselves of the opportunity of making this island invincible," he said.

"The Russian Government is not dissatisfied with our contribution.

"A large part of the deliveries from America are being delivered to Russia."

Sending Information Chief

London, Sept. 30 (AP)—The Ministry of Information announced today it was sending the ministry's director-general, Sir Walter T. Monckton, to Moscow at an early date for discussions with S. A. Lozovsky, Soviet spokesman and vice-commissar of foreign affairs, of information, questions of common interest.

Teheran, Sept. 30 (A. P.). Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, commander of British forces in India, left Teheran today by airplane following conferences with British and Russian officers.

Meanwhile today the British Minister protested against the Iranian Government's action in setting a new rate of exchange for the rial, which increases the expenses of the British Army of Occupation. The new rate is 140 rials to the pound sterling, instead of 174, or thirty-five to the dollar instead of forty-five.

Red-Aid Parley In Moscow Expected To End By Friday

Committees Working On Details Necessary To Get Supplies Moving From U. S. And Britain

[By the Associated Press]

OCT 1 1941

Moscow, Sept. 30—Six tri-power war supply committees today ground through the details necessary to get vital aid moving from the United States and Great Britain to the Russian battle fronts.

Diplomatic exchanges in the three capitals had paved the way with general agreements on the help to be given the Soviet in resisting Hitler.

Hope For Agreement Soon

Tonight Premier Joseph Stalin held his third consecutive night conference tonight with W. Averell Harriman and Lord Beaverbrook, chiefs of the American and British missions.

Committee spokesmen said they hoped to settle all questions by Friday. This was the second day of sessions of the groups working on army, navy, air force, transport, raw materials and medicine supply problems.

Finnish sauna builders have arrived at the Olympic Village in Berlin, now an army recreation ground, to teach German engineer battalions how to construct and operate the baths.

Besides hardening the men for the cold waether, the spokesmen said, they hope the soldiers will now more readily change their laundry. It was recalled that during the world war German soldiers wore their clothing for weeks, and that the lice multiplied rapidly.

London, Sept. 30 (A. The Germans probably meant to drive for Moscow first, it was said, and then try to take the riches of the Ukraine in collaboration with the lesser Axis armies operating in the south.

Observers in neutral countries submitted that the Germans had found a comparatively weak spot at the wrong place in the huge eastern front, and that the Crimean campaign particularly was of secondary importance in the Nazis' original scheme of things.

MANY DEAD, BIG FIRES SET IN FIVE BRITISH TOWNS AS NAZIS RENEW MASS RAIDS

Luftwaffe Delivers Hours-Long Attack On Northeast Coast Area; Dumps Explosive, Incendiary And "Screamer" Bombs On Targets

Bodies Of Victims Recovered From Wreckage Of Buildings—Germans Stung Into Reprisals By Heavy R. A. F. Blows, London Says

[By the Associated Press]

London, Wednesday, Oct. 1—Strong formations of German planes heavily assaulted northeast coastal areas for hours during the night and rescue parties this morning were bringing the dead and injured from the debris of wrecked buildings.

Five towns were raided by the Nazis, who used heavy explosive and fire bombs, the latter including some "screamers." It was feared that casualties would be heavy.

Dover Coast Bombarded

The destructive assaults were accompanied by the brief cannonading off the Dover coastal area by German long-range guns firing across the Channel in brilliant moonlight. The shells, falling in the water, were believed aimed at a convoy.

Large fires were started by the German raiders. They knifed through anti-aircraft fire and R. A. F. night fighters which roared to the challenge. The flames were quickly controlled, however.

Nazis Stung Into Action

The Germans apparently were stung into retaliatory action by five-hour R. A. F. assaults Monday night upon Stettin, German Baltic base for the Russian campaign, and on Hamburg's sprawling water front.

Meanwhile, Big Ben's twelve bongs last midnight marked the end of the second month that London's air-raid sirens had been silent.

Last Alarm July 27

Although gunfire has been heard a few times in various metropolitan areas, the capital's last raid warning was July 27.

In September of 1940 there were 113 warnings.

The Monday night attacks upon Stettin and Hamburg—by far the heaviest there of the war—had a daytime sequel yesterday in an R. A. F. pounce on a heavily guarded German convoy off the coast of Norway in which a torpedo hit was reported on the biggest ship in the procession.

Pilots of the coastal command Beauforts attacking the convoy said they dropped their projectiles before the convoy's destroyer screen could fire. As one torpedo struck home on a medium-sized merchantman, biggest in the convoy, "a great column of water shot up into the air and fell slap on the ship's deck," one pilot said.

French Coast Attacked

Rounding out the picture of the last twenty-four hours of R. A. F. offensive operations, the Air Ministry reported night and day attacks on the northern French coast, including the docks at Cherbourg and Le Havre. Yesterday afternoon one armed Axis merchantman was reported fired off Cherbourg.

The British lost eight bombers and three fighters in the night and day attacks. Two German planes were reported shot down Monday night.

Hundreds of planes flew over Stettin by moonlight, it was said, starting many large fires around the docks, railway station and other parts of the city.

OCT 1 1941

Waterways Seen

"Waterways of the port were clearly seen and with flares to eke out the moonlight the docks and railway station were readily found," returning pilots reported. "Fires were the most obvious results of the bombing. . . . Here and there oil appeared to be burning and there were clouds of smoke above the port."

The bombing of Hamburg was described as a thorough job in which "a considerable number of our most powerful bombs were dropped."

"When one very heavy bomb exploded part of the quay was blown right into the air," the Ministry related. One pilot reported many bombs fell on the big Blohm and Voss shipbuilding yards.

R. A. F. Torpedoes Ship

London, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—Torpedo-carrying patrol ships of the R. A. F. attacked a heavily guarded German convoy off the German coast today, the Air Ministry announced, after hundreds of British aircraft had given the German cities of Hamburg and Stettin the heaviest bombing of the war during the night.

A medium-sized vessel, the largest in the group, was hit by a torpedo before escorting destroyers could open fire, the Ministry said, adding that "as the torpedo struck home a great column of water shot up into the air."

R. A. F. fighters today attacked two armed merchant vessels off Cherbourg, and one was set on fire, a communique said.

"Many large fires" were set around the docks, railway station and elsewhere in Stettin, one of the cities through which German supplies must pass to the Russian front, it was reported.

Subsidiary attacks were made overnight on docks at Cherbourg and Le Havre.

Eight of the British bombers were announced as missing. Two fighters also were announced as missing from the offensive patrol operations.

Blow To Aid Russia

One hostile fighter was claimed shot down by a British bomber, another driven down in a damaged condition and a hostile bomber set on fire in a fighter attack.

The raid on Stettin was the eleventh since the war began and constituted a long-range blow to help Russia.

The British assume Germany is using Stettin to send many supplies to German forces in Russia.

On the home front it was reported officially that small-scale German activity was restricted to eastern coastal districts of England and Scotland.

"Bombs dropped by a single enemy aircraft at a town in Northeast Scotland demolished some houses and caused a number of casualties, including some people who lost their lives," a joint communique by the Aid and Home Security Ministries said.

R. A. F. Tries New Attack Formation

London, Sept. 30 (AP)—A total of 600 "enemy" planes have now been destroyed by anti-aircraft fire over Britain since the war began, the War Office stated today.

OCT 1 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Folkestone, England, Sept. 30—A flight of four-cannoned hurricane fighter planes, stretched out in a single line like a football team running forward at the kickoff, raced across the breeze-swept English Channel toward Dieppe, France, this afternoon, apparently employing a novel formation in the day's series of low-level attacks on German positions.

Watchers on shore, who craned their necks all day as the great back-and-forth rush of British fighters continued, could clearly see the cannon muzzles projecting from the wings of the low-flying hurricanes.

The first offensive flights began at dawn, the planes being only a few hundred feet up east-bound and returning so low they skimmed the sea.

R. A. F. Starts Big Fires at Docks and Shipyards in Hamburg and Stettin

BERLIN, Wednesday, Oct. 1 (AP)—Individual British bombers attempted to attack Berlin during the night, and air-raid sirens sent the population to shelters. An official announcement said all the raiders were turned back by anti-aircraft fire. One raider was downed, it was announced.

Other British bombers attacked the Baltic coastal area of Germany for the second successive night and cities along the North Sea coast.

A communiqué said the raiders dropped fire and explosive bombs that caused destruction and damage to apartment houses and inflicted death and injury among the civilian population.

It was disclosed at the same time that German planes heavily assaulted an important British East Coast supply harbor in a rolling attack. Two cities in Scotland also were reported attacked.

8,000-Ton Freighter Destroyed, Germans Claim

BERLIN, Sept. 30 (AP).—German flyers sank an 8,000-ton freighter and one vessel "belonging to a large destroyer formation" last night, the German high command said today, in waters east of Great Yarmouth.

A British aerial thrust at Berlin overnight was acknowledged.

Scattered raiders flew over the North German coastal area, the high command said, and penetrated to the outskirts of the capital.

"Bombs dropped on residential quarters, particularly at Hamburg," the high command said, "caused casualties among the civilian population, including some fatal."

The British air force was declared to have lost 11 bombers in operations yesterday and last night.

The German air force was reported to have carried out further raids on the Scottish east coast and objectives in Southeast England.

Switzerland Protests To Britain Against Planes' Flight

'Energetic Action' by Anti-Aircraft Defense Reported by Bern

By the Associated Press.

BERN, Switzerland, Sept. 30.—The Swiss Minister to Britain has protested as "a grave violation of Switzerland's air space" the passage of some 50 British planes Sunday night, presumably squadrons which heavily raided Italian cities, the Foreign Office announced today.

OCT 1 1941

The announcement said the British flights called forth "energetic action" by the Swiss anti-aircraft defense.

On the night in question Genoa, Turin and other cities of Northern Italy were attacked by the R. A. F.

Voicing Switzerland's serious concern, the Berner Tagblatt declared: "On the flight to upper Italy and towns on the central Italian seacoast, British flyers Sunday night again violated Swiss air, following only a few days after Britain curtailed supplies to Switzerland and delivered our country up to increased unemployment.

"It appears that England seems to be acting on the thesis that we are practically ready to join the Axis partners, that she misunderstands completely the actual situation of the last democracy on the continent, that she aggravates unnecessarily our already extremely difficult position, that she without doubt fosters a growing ill-feeling for which our authorities will find proper expression."

British Admit Italian Torpedo Struck Nelson

London, Sept. 30 (AP)—The 33,950-ton British battlseship Nelson was hit by an areial torpedo in Saturday's Italian attack on a great convoy in the Mediterranean, but her speed was only slightly reduced and there were no casualties, the Admiralty said today.

Moreover, it was declared that thirteen Italian planes were shot down in the running engagement, six of them by gunfire of the fleet.

Aside from slight damage to the Nelson, it was added, the British lost only a single merchant ship.

Italian Fleet At Sea

The Italian fleet was understood to have been at sea at the time of the action, the Admiralty said, observing:

"This force took evading action and could not be brought to battle."

The first wave of torpedo-carrying planes attacked in three groups on Saturday morning, the communique reported, and bombers at the same time passed over but dropped no explosives.

An afternoon assault, it was stated, was intercepted and driven off.

What Italians Claim

The Italians claim that three British cruisers—two of them heavy—and at least three merchantmen were sunk, aside from damage to the Nelson and other warships.

The Fascist newspaper Giornale D'Italia asserted today that the British convoy, eastbound, was forced to turn about to the west.

"What counts more than the serious losses inflicted on the English fleet," the paper added, "is the fact that the formation was dispersed and damaged in several units and did not pass where it wanted to pass, but, forced and warned by our torpedo planes, turned back toward the base of its departure."

Battleship Nelson Hit By Italian Torpedo, Britain Admits

OCT 1 1941

[By the Associated Press]

London, Sept. 30—The Admiralty said today an aerial torpedo hit on the British battleship Nelson, the loss of a fighter-plane crew and sinking of a merchant ship constituted the only cost of moving an important convoy through the central Mediterranean under a week-end running attack by Italian planes.

Thirteen of the raiders were declared to have been destroyed.

(Italians said yesterday that three British cruisers and at least three merchantmen were sunk and that a battleship believed to be the Nelson was damaged. They acknowledged that eight Italian planes were missing but said six British planes had fallen.)

Hit Reduces Warship's Speed

A torpedo launched by one of the Fascist raiders Saturday slightly reduced the speed of the 16-year-old Nelson, it was said, but there were no casualties among her crew of about 1,360 men.

The Nelson is a vessel of 33,950 tons. She was commissioned in 1925 and normally carries a complement of 1,361.

First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander informed the House of Commons of the attack prior to the Admiralty announcement.

Alexander said the Italians lost twelve aircraft in attacking the Mediterranean convoy whose escort included the Nelson. The thirteenth raider was downed later when intercepted while attempting to "shadow" the convoy.

He said the British lost three fighter planes, but saved the crews of two.

Says Italian Ships Fled

During the operations, Alexander asserted, reports were received that an Italian naval force was at sea but when the British began a search it took evasive action and escaped.

The Italians said the battleship was hit on the bow by a torpedo.

The important convoy was shadowed and later attacked in the central Mediterranean last Saturday, Alexander said, by three groups of torpedo planes with fighter escorts.

They were engaged by naval fighters which shot down four torpedo bombers and one fighter in addition to another "probably destroyed" and several damaged, Alexander said the ships' guns brought down six torpedo bombers and one fighter.

rying stores, munitions and troops with their majestic escort of battleships, cruisers and destroyers had steamed through blinding rain squalls and under heavy clouds.

"In such weather shadowing aircraft could get but a hasty look at the miles of ships before fighters roared after them.

"Then the sky cleared and we were bathed in brilliant sunshine.

"As guns of the escorting warships opened up in the distance an officer spotter aboard shouted: 'There are five torpedo bombers.'

"One attacked a destroyer and was blown to pieces. Fighters from the Ark Royal were engaging the enemy and not one bomber got through the line of warships to the merchantmen.

"There was a brief spell of quiet. Then with bewildering rapidity a second attack developed—this time from starboard.

"Four or five dark shapes shot low over the water toward us through a murderous barrage.

Plane Dives Into Sea

"Ahead of the aircraft carrier a big two-engined plane staggered, tried desperately to rise and dived into the sea amid a lurid glow of flames.

"We felt there could be no survivors.

"Smoke from our guns cleared and we saw a plane gliding on a slanting course toward the Nelson.

"A torpedo flopped into the sea. The plane turned and a column of water rose near the bow of the battleship.

"The plane was hit almost immediately by fire of other ships and plunged into the sea.

Fighters Roar To Attack

"The next phase of the attack opened when we sighted five torpedo bombers only one hundred feet above the water speeding along a course parallel to that of the ships. Fighters roared to the attack and the planes disappeared.

"Ten minutes later the roar of battle broke out again. We saw a plane to the starboard a bare 300 yards from us.

"We could not see whether it still carried its torpedo, but it swung around as if coming in to attack.

"If that was the pilot's intention, he met a fate that matched in its horrible swiftness the audacity of the attack.

Rear End Blown Off

"Our pom-poms pumped a stream of two-pounders. There was a sudden explosion midway down the fuselage and the rear half of the plane lopped completely off and flopped into the sea.

"A split second later the other half of the plane crashed in a cloud of spray. A black smudge marked the grave of the crew of five.

"An Italian fighter was seen performing weirdly. Aimlessly it looped the loop, getting nearer to the sea each time it looped, until it finally plunged into the water.

"Then the attack ended."

How British Warships Beat Off Italian Aerial Attack

OCT 1 1941

[By the Associated Press]

London, Wednesday, Oct. 1—How British warships, including the damaged battleship Nelson, beat off wave after wave of Italian torpedo planes in a furious battle lasting just an hour was related early today by a special correspondent of Reuters who was aboard the aircraft carrier Ark Royal.

"It was hard to believe it all happened in sixty brief minutes," the correspondent wirelessed.

"A sudden distant rumble of gunfire was the first sign of the approaching battle.

"Far away to port, we could see the gun flashes of cruisers and destroyers.

"The whole length of one of our battleships seemed ablaze as her tremendous anti-aircraft armament roared into action.

"Throughout the morning the vital convoy of large merchantmen car-

Says Convoy Turned Back.

Rome, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—Il Giornale d'Italia asserted today that the eastbound British convoy attacked by the Italian Air Force in the Mediterranean last Saturday turned back to the west and failed to make its passage through the Mediterranean.

[The British said yesterday that the convoy reached its destination.]

Il Giornale said that the Italians compelled the British formation to abandon its attempt to pass between Sicily and Africa, and that "therefore the enemy's intentions were completely frustrated."

Sicily and Sardinia Blasted.

Rome, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—British planes machine-gunned and shrapnel-bombed airfields at Cagliari, in Sardinia, and Catania, in Sicily, the Italian High Command announced today. Some damage was acknowledged. The attacks occurred yesterday.

The British lost two planes over Cagliari, the communique said, and four others in air battles over the Mediterranean. One Italian naval scouting plane was credited with shooting down three British craft in a fight against six before she herself was finally shot down. Part of her crew were reported saved.

"Another Italian naval scouting plane," the communique said, 'was attacked by two enemy bombers and shot down one of them."

The high command said that British attacks against Italian positions in the siege lines about Tobruk, Libya, had been repulsed despite previous artillery preparation.

Raid In Africa

Berlin, Sept. 30.—(AP)—A small British supply ship was heavily damaged by German planes off North Africa Sunday, DNB said today.

Two British bombers were reported to have been shot down on the North African front in the past two days.

The news agency said many British troops were killed when bombs were dropped on tents at besieged Tobruk by German planes Saturday.

3,000 Italians Taken In Ethiopian Garrison

London, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—A British authority announced today that seventy-one Italian officers, 1,560 Italian soldiers and 1,450 African troops had been reported as prisoners so far under terms of surrender of the Fascist garrison of Wolchefit, Ethiopia, signed on Saturday.

Flood Of U. S. Supplies Swamps Ports Of Egypt

By EDWARD KENNEDY

OCT 1 1941

Associated Press Correspondent

Cairo, Sept. 30—United States war supplies are pouring into the Near East in such volume that they are seriously straining the limited unloading facilities of Egypt's ports.

In a visit to various ports, I have seen ships bulging with planes, tanks, materiel and general merchandise, discharging their cargoes amid feverish activity day and night.

More than a score of United States ships already have arrived in this area with lease-lend supplies.

These are in addition to British, Danish, Dutch and other freighters coming in with troops and cargoes from Great Britain and all parts of the British Empire.

Congestion A Problem

Although many miles of railway have been constructed, new wharves hurriedly built, piers lengthened and other steps taken to help the vessels disgorge their cargoes, the congestion still is a serious problem.

Tanks are being set down in lighters, completely assembled and fueled, and driven toward the big desert ordnance depot to be readied for war service.

"The fact that American tanks now are coming in with tracks on and ready to be driven is a big help in speeding up their delivery," a official said. "They practically come wrapped in oil paper."

Planes Must Be Assembled

Planes, however, must be assembled after landing. Other vehicles come in great wooded crates, one crate for the chassis with the motor already in it; another for the wheels and various other parts which must be put on. The twin crates for each vehicle bear identical numbers and are kept side by side through the whole trip to avoid mix ups.

Once ashore the goods are moved away as fast as the overtaxed facilities will permit.

U. S. Technicians Helping

American technicians, notably Lieut. Col. Edwin W. Piburn, are aiding the British with the unloading problems.

As a result of this traffic Egypt is flooded with American canned beer all the well-known brands and many new ones—since it comes packed in cases of twelve cans which can be loaded conveniently in the left-over spaces around the ships.

These are landed at a cost of three piastres or 12 cents per can, including the Egyptian tax, but by the time they reach Cairo's crowded bars the price is up to 9 piastres (36 cents).

Italy Nationalizes Plants Sequestered Since War Entry

Measures to Increase National Food Crops Also Approved

OCT 1 1941

By the Associated Press.

ROME, Sept. 30.—The Italian cabinet approved today a measure nationalizing all "enemy-owned" industries which had been sequestered since Italy entered the war.

With Premier Mussolini presiding the cabinet also approved measures to increase Italy's food crops.

One measure authorized the cultivation of idle lands. Another appropriated funds for bonuses which Mussolini promised farmers. These included a premium of 200 lire per hectar—or about $4.25 an acre—for all land planted in grain. Cost of this bonus has been estimated to aggregate more than 1,000,000 lire.

CLOTHING RATIONS STARTED IN ITALY

Cabinet Takes Over Firms Owned by Enemy.

Rome, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—Beginning today, Italians were unable to buy clothing, textiles, furs, hats or shoes while stores began taking inventories of their stocks preparatory to rationing.

Sales of those goods were suspended by the Government pending issuance of ration cards within a fortnight, with the object, it was announced, of assuring to all consumers an indispensable minimum and of preventing hoarding. Bread rationing will begin tomorrow because of an inadequate grain crop.

Gayda Denies Drop In Axis Morale

Rome, Sept. 30 (AP)—Virginia Gayda declared today that "new actions of the Axis" soon would disprove reports of weakening morale in Italy and Germany, which he accused "the Anglo-Saxons" of inventing.

Writing in his Il Giornale d'Italia, the editor said the British were trying to create the impression that Italy wanted to ask for peace because of difficult conditions. He termed this a "propaganda meneuver" intended to comfort depressed Britons and "give bait to Roosevelt's warmongering" by representing United States intervention as a thing of little risk.

BERLINERS WARNED TO CONSERVE GAS

Berlin, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—The Mayor of Berlin sent strict warnings today to those few automobile owners who still are permitted to run cars for business purposes not to abuse their privileges.

Hess Goes on Hunger Strike For Status as Special Envoy

No. 3 Nazi Who Flew to Britain Resents Being Held as Prisoner of War—Reported Living Comfortably.

OCT 1 1941

London, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—The London Evening Star declared tonight that Rudolf Hess, former Deputy Fuehrer of Germany, twice started hunger strikes in his place of detention because he had been treated as a war prisoner rather than a "special envoy" since he made his sensational flight to Scotland last May. There was no confirmation from any other source.

The Star, reporting that he was being confined "within a very easy distance of London," said that he was contending that as an "envoy" he should be allowed to return to Germany at once.

When Hess, then the No. 3 Nazi, flew to Scotland alone early in May in one of the most sensational episodes of the entire war, he was reported widely to have brought peace overtures from Hitler.

The Star implied that Hess now was living in comfortable quarters, saying:

"Some of our very senior officers who have been captured by the enemy now occupy decent villas. Has Hess a villa or something better suited to his higher rank?"

Government officials, who have been silent regarding Hess since his spectacular landing, declined to comment on the Star's story.

The only thing the Government has disclosed is that Hess was being treated as an officer and that he has all the privileges granted by the Geneva convention on treatment of prisoners of war.

Duff Cooper Engages In Singapore Talks

By the Associated Press.

SINGAPORE, Sept. 30.—Alfred Duff Cooper, British war co-ordinator in the Far East, was engaged today in a series of conversations intended to improve correlation of British oriental political activity.

Sir Archibald Clark Kerr, Ambassador to China, and Sir Josiah Bailey, Minister to Thailand, who are here for conferences with him, expect to remain until the arrival of Sir John Latham, Australian Minister to Japan, whose observations on the latest Japanese developments will widen the scope of the talks.

The co-ordinator later is flying to India for a brief conference with the Viceroy, Lord Linlithgow, and also plans to visit Burma.

Singapore's importance as a hub of political effort in the troubled Far East was increased with the arrival of V. G. Bowden, Australia's first diplomatic representative to Malaya.

Mr. Bowden, former Australian trade commissioner in China, said his function was to provide the closest contacts possible between Canberra and Malaya and to promote the greatest possible degree of commercial exchanges.

JAPAN WEIGHING U. S.

Relations Are Discussed at Cabinet Session.

Tokio, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—Japan's international situation was discussed at a Cabinet session today and informed observers assumed that relations with the United States was high on the list of topics.

It was announced that the Foreign Minister, Admiral Teijiro Toyoda presented a report, and since he had held a long conversation last Saturday with the American Ambassador, Joseph C. Grew, it was believed he gave his colleagues an account of this.

Informed spokesmen continued to attach considerable importance to the Grew-Toyoda meeting, which has led to a belief that a new turn in Japanese-American affairs is imminent. It was disclosed that Mr. Grew was accompanied by his counselor of embassy, Eugene H. Dooman. Other spokesmen said the Ambassador also talked with Eiji Amau, the Vice-Minister for Foreign Affairs.

Meanwhile today Nichi Nichi criticized Mr. Duff Cooper and other British diplomats in the Far East, charging that Britain was seeking "to block and thwart any possible rapprochement moves between the United States and Japan."

"Well-informed spokesmen in Shanghai," the newspaper reported, "say that Duff Cooper, accompanied by Lieut.-Gen. Francis Piggott, former military attache in Tokio, is coming to Shanghai in a deliberate effort to threaten Japan's position in East Asia. Britain is attempting to use the Russo-German war for tightening anti-Japanese ABCD (American-British-Chinese-Dutch) encirclement."

Craigie Leaving Tokio.

Tokio, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—The British Ambassador, Sir Robert Leslie Craigie, plans to leave Tokio for Shanghai on October 10 on his way to the United States for a three months' vacation, it was disclosed today. Presumably he will confer with Alfred Duff Cooper, British War Co-ordinator in the Far East, before leaving the Far East.

Sir Robert had planned to leave yesterday, but was said by a British embassy spokesman to have postponed the trip on suggestions from London.

Moving Day In Tokyo

OCT 1 1941

(By the Associated Press)

Tokyo, Sept. 30—Because its present quarters are deemed too sumptuous for an organization preaching wartime frugality, the Imperial Rule Assistance Association is to move into the old Imperial Diet building, the newspaper Yomiuri said today.

The association, projected last year as a kind of super, single national party, now is housed in the four-story Kaikan, once a fashionable restaurant and scene of exclusive weddings, social gatherings and banquets.

The Cabinet Board of Information, which is to be augmented, will move into the Kaikan from the old Imperial Theater building that is to be used for official meetings and rallies.

The old Imperial Diet building is a two-story frame structure.

On the northern sector of the East Front an infantry division on Sept. 28 and 29 carried out a successful attack on a stubbornly defended position. Two hundred and ten enemy pillboxes were stormed.

Formations of the German Air Force carried out effective attacks on railway transport in the area around Kharkov and continued destruction of the railway system east of Leningrad as well as facilities of the Murmansk railway.

In the fight against Britain, the air force last night destroyed an 8,000-ton freighter east of Great Yarmouth and in the same waters sank through a direct hit one of the warships of a large destroyer unit.

Further air raids were carried out on harbor areas of the Scottish east coast and in Southeast England.

In North Africa German dive bombers bombed loading facilities and munitions dumps at Tobruk. Combat planes damaged merchantmen in the Mediterranean and shot down one British bomber.

The enemy flew over the North German coastal area last night and isolated planes penetrated to the distant vicinity of the Reich capital.

Bombs dropped on residential quarters, particularly at Hamburg, caused casualties among the civilian population, including some that were fatal.

The British Air Force lost eleven bombers yesterday and last night.

The German High Command issued this communiqué early today:

During the night to Oct. 1 a large number of British bombers attacked cities along the German Bight and the Baltic. Explosive and incendiary bombs, dropped on residential districts, caused destruction and damage among apartment houses, dead and injured among the civilian population.

LONDON, Sept. 30 (AP)—An Air Ministry communiqué said today:

Stettin, Germany's important sea base on the Baltic, was attacked last night by a powerful force of the Bomber Command. Large fires were left burning.

Another strong force bombed a dock area at Hamburg. Subsidiary attacks were made on docks at Cherbourg and Havre.

Eight of our bombers are missing.

One of our aircraft shot down an enemy twin-engined fighter and drove off another in a damaged condition.

The Fighter Command carried out offensive patrols over an enemy airdrome from which two of our fighters are missing.

In a dusk attack at Lannion [in France] dispersal points and gun positions were raked with cannon and machine-gun fire and an enemy bomber was set on fire.

The Air Ministry also issued the following:

Aircraft of the Fighter Command carried out offensive operations over the Channel and north coasts of France today.

In the course of these two armed merchant vessels were attacked off Cherbourg. One was damaged and set on fire.

Beaufort aircraft of the Coastal Command on patrol off the coast of Norway hit a medium-sized vessel with a torpedo.

One of our fighters is missing.

The British Admiralty issued this communiqué:

Thirteen Italian aircraft were destroyed during successful operations in the Central Mediterranean, of which further details now have been received from Admiral Sir James Somerville.

These operations had as their object the safe passage of an important convoy through the Central Mediterranean.

During the morning of Sept. 27 it became apparent the convoy and covering force were being shadowed by enemy aircraft and in the early afternoon our ships were attacked by three groups of torpedo-carrying aircraft, heavily escorted by fighters. At the same time bombers passed over the fleet, but no attack by them was observed.

The enemy was engaged by naval fighter aircraft and by gunfire. Four enemy torpedo bombers and one CR-42 fighter were destroyed by naval fighter aircraft in addition to one probably destroyed and others damaged.

Six torpedo bombers and one fighter were shot down into the sea by the gunfire of the fleet. H. M. S. Nelson was hit by one torpedo and her speed slightly reduced. There were no casualties in H. M. S. Nelson.

During the afternoon the enemy attempted a second attack, but was intercepted and driven off by naval fighter aircraft. No further attacks were attempted.

On Sept. 28 an enemy aircraft was intercepted and destroyed while attempting to shadow our forces.

Our losses were three naval fighter aircraft, the crews of two of which were saved. The next of kin of the casualties are being informed.

During the course of these operations reports were received that an Italian naval force was at sea. This force took evading action and could not be brought to battle.

Apart from the loss of the crew of one naval fighter aircraft, the loss of one merchant ship and damage to H. M. S. Nelson, no other casualties or damage were suffered by any of our ships.

CAIRO, Sept. 30 (AP)—The R. A. F. Middle East Command communiqué today said:

A successful attack was made by heavy bombers of the R. A. F. on Palermo [in Sicily] on the night of Sept. 28-29.

Direct hits were registered on the power station, causing fires and explosions on merchant vessels in the harbor and in the drydock area.

The attack was followed by a daylight raid on the airdrome and seaplane base during which two bombers, six seaplanes and one flying boat were severely damaged.

OCT 1 1941

At Bardia shipping in the harbor and other military objectives near by and aircraft dispersed on the airdrome have been subjected to a series of heavy attacks by aircraft of the R. A. F., the South African Air Force and the fleet air arm during the last two days and nights. Extensive damage was caused to a ship, and gasoline dumps were set on fire, a number of dispersed enemy aircraft were destroyed and damage was caused to officers' and men's quarters.

On the night of Sept. 27-28 harbor installations and works at Rhodes were bombed. One very large explosion was caused, followed by numerous fires. One building at the governorate was completely destroyed.

Our fighter aircraft were active and several combats ensued in which several enemy aircraft were so badly damaged that it is unlikely they were able to make their base. One enemy aircraft was shot down into the sea.

From all the above operations three of our aircraft are missing.

NAIROBI, Kenya, Sept. 30 (AP)—A British East African communiqué today said:

Colonel Mario Conella, Italian commandant of Wolchefit, and his staff and 3,000 prisoners are already in the hands of our regular troops.

Patriot [native] forces under British officers in the Lake Tana area have recently fought several successful minor actions against the enemy.

In the north they established themselves between the Wolchefit garrison and Gondar, and this contributed to the early fall of the stronghold. Farther south they have constantly harassed the enemy and recently attacked a convoy moving from Gondar, inflicting heavy casualties and capturing much matériel.

German aircraft bombed encampments and stores at Tobruk Sept. 27, causing considerable explosions and fires. Italian aircraft on the night of Sept. 28-29 bombed military objectives in the zones of Tobruk and Matruh with evident results.

In East Africa there was intense activity on the part of our advanced elements from various strongholds of Gondar [in Ethiopia].

Enemy bombers bombed and machine-gunned the airport of Cagliari [in Sardinia] and Catania [in Sicily], causing some damage but no casualties at Cagliari. One enemy plane was shot down by ground defenses, while another was shot down by anti-aircraft guns.

In the Mediterranean an Italian naval reconnaissance plane encountered six enemy fighters and shot down three of them. It was at last forced down, but part of the crew was saved. Another Italian naval scouting plane, attacked by two enemy bombers, shot down one of them.

PRESIDENT TO ASK ARMING OF SHIPS BOUND FOR CANADA

Modification in Demand On Neutrality Act Surprises Lieutenants

But Chief Executive Lists Pink Star's Cargo to Show Supplies Must be Delivered

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—President Roosevelt was reported reliably today to be considering a request to Congress for modification of the neutrality act to permit the arming of American merchant ships and their use in carrying war supplies to Canadian ports from which they now are barred.

Although the President told his press conference that no final decision has been reached, informed sources said it is not likely that any attempt will be made at this time to repeal the act's provisions prohibiting United States vessels from entering ports in European combat zones.

Several Congressional leaders, including Chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the Senate foreign relations committee, have advocated the latter course but Mr. Roosevelt was represented as preferring to seek less controversial changes in the law now.

OCT 1 1941

Surprise to Lieutenants

Word that the President might ask for expansion of the legal shipping areas, without seeking abolition of the combat zones he has fixed by proclamation, came as a surprise to most of his lieutenants.

The neutrality act now specifically prohibits American ships from carrying goods to belligerents in an area bounded on the south by latitude 35 north, and on the west by longitude 66 west. Thus this nation's merchant vessels are cut off from entering certain Canadian ports, notably Halifax.

Legislative strategists are reported to have informed the President he could obtain authority to arm merchant vessels with relatively little controversy, if they were to be operated only in "defense waters."

On the other hand, leaders have conceded that outright repeal of the Neutrality Act, or a move to send ships into "combat areas," would provoke a prolonged battle in Congress.

There are indications, meanwhile, that additional study will be given to the question. A White House conference which the President had scheduled with Congressional leaders tomorrow was cancelled. However, Mr. Roosevelt plans to see Senator Connally and possibly others Friday morning, at which time the whole neutrality question is expected to be discussed.

At his press conference, the President enumerated the cargo of a ship torpedoed, and emphasized the necessity and difficulty of replacing supplies that go to the bottom of the sea.

He took the case of the Pink Star, a former Danish vessel, American-owned when she last sailed, but registered in Panama and flying the Panamanian flag. She was sunk by a submarine.

OCT 1 1941

Most of the cargo was food, Mr. Roosevelt said, adding in response to a question that he supposes food is contraband of war under some rules. It is necessary, he said, to maintain the bodies of a people fighting for its existence.

Then, he listed the Pink Star's cargo: Enough cheddar cheese to feed 3,500,000 laborers for a week, under present British rationing, and the product of 2,000 cows for a whole year. Powdered milk that was the equivalent of 432,000 quarts. Condensed milk that was the equal of 1,250,000 quarts and a year's product for 300 cows. Condensed orange juice which would have supplied 91,000 people with a sufficiency of Vitamin C for 12 days. Pork products, the equivalent of 8,000 hogs. Lard representing the by-production of 87,000 hogs. Corn that 600 acres would produce. Tractors that would plow 715 acres a day. Mechanical potato diggers which would dig 250 acres in a day.

In addition, he said there was a small quantity of what might be called military supplies: Metallic links for machine gun belts—enough of them to equip 10 squadrons of fighter planes—and small machine tools, whose production was four months work for 300 men.

All Must be Reordered

With these things lost, he said, all must be reordered. Some things can simply be bought from existing stocks, others must be manufactured, starting at the beginning of the industrial process.

That, he said, is why he considers it necessary to American defense to get such supplies into the hands of the people who are doing the actual fighting.

The extent to which the Neutrality Act should be revised is still under study, the President said.

As he pondered the situation, battle lines for the approaching contest began taking shape, and the Administration received powerful support from Wendell L. Willkie.

"The law never should have been enacted in the first place," a friend quoted Willkie as having said. "It ought to be changed now and I believe Congress will change it."

Senator Chandler (D-Ky) declared himself for revising the law with a statement that "we have got to be able to move on the seas and move quickly," and "The President should have more power to meet the situation." Opposition, however, came from other quarters.

Reynolds Is Opposed

"When we passed the neutrality law," said Chairman Reynolds (D-NC) of the Senate military affairs committee, "We did it when we were cool-headed, clear-headed. Those who sponsored it said it was designed to keep us out of war and that it was for the country's benefit. If it was for the benefit of the country, its repeal or drastic modification would be to the country's detriment."

Senator Van Nuys (D-Ind) said the law has "been working very nicely," and that "If we arm our cargo ships it would most certainly lead to another shooting war almost at once; it would be the most bellicose step we could take."

"There is a very grave question whether arming our merchant ships would give them any effective defense," said Senator Brooks (R-Ill). "I do not believe that it would, and I think it would result only in the loss of American lives."

As he left the White House, Secretary Hull declined to tell reporters any details of his conference with the President. He said only that they went "over all the different phases of the international situation as they affect matters which we thought called for an exchange of ideas and discussion."

BAR BODY DELAYS NEUTRALITY ACTION

OCT 1 1941

Tables Resolution Pending Speeches Before Convention Today

Debate Is Bitter Over Right Of A President To Ignore Law

[By the Associated Press]

Indianapolis, Sept. 30—The international and comparative law section of the American Bar Association tabled late today a resolution calling for repeal of the Neutrality Act after hearing a bitter debate over the right of a President to ignore the law.

The resolution was introduced yesterday, but the section decided to forego action on it until after speeches today by James W. Ryan, New York attorney, and George A. Finch, secretary of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, upon the freedom of the seas and the present power of the President.

President's Duty, He Says

Ryan, declaring that Germany already has started a war on the United States by attacks on American shipping, asserted that it is the President's constitutional duty "to use immediately the entire army and navy, if necessary, to fight back and protect us," regardless of whether there has been a verbal or technical declaration of war.

He contended the President could not be bound by Congressional enactment of a neutrality act which would prevent him from assuming full leadership against a hostile nation.

Cannot Be Set Aside

Finch, charging that Ryan had placed him in the position "of being a traitor to America," declared "the Congress or the Constitution cannot be set aside by passing events."

He asserted that only Congress can declare war and that Germany's actions on the seas cannot repeal acts of Congress.

Earlier in the afternoon members of the bar association, holding their sixty-fourth annual convention, heard a warning that "if nothing is done now, we shall face at the end of the defense boom a depression incomparably more serious than that which commenced in 1929."

Resigns In Protest

Another development was the resignation of George F. Barrett, Illinois Attorney General, from the National Association of Attorneys General. He charged he had been barred from broadcasting nationally a speech which he said was an indictment of Naziism, Fascism, Communism and New Dealism.

OCT 1 1941

The speech was to have been delivered at the meeting of the association in conjunction with the Bar Association convention and broadcast over the NBC network.

Barrett, a Republican, charged that Earl Warren, California Attorney General, and president of the National Association, had notified him that he could make the address this afternoon behind closed doors, but that it could not be broadcast.

Instead of addressing the convention, Barrett delivered the talk over the Indianapolis station which was to have been the network outlet.

Warren was not available for comment.

Anti-Alien Baiting Still Exists in U. S., Biddle Declares

Sentiment in Country Is Better Now, However, Attorney General Says

OCT 1 1941

By the Associated Press.

INDIANAPOLIS, Sept. 30.—Attorney General Biddle said today "anti-alien baiting has not disappeared" from this country despite efforts of authorities to keep it in check as the defense program proceeded.

"It has been held down," he added in a speech before a meeting of the National Association of Attorneys General at the 64th annual convention of the American Bar Association.

Mr. Biddle said only a few States had passed laws discriminating against foreigners and others had acted to forbid class or race discrimination.

Open Attack on Jews.

"Such discrimination, however, is continually coming up in times like these," he declared. "Most recently it found expression in an open bitter attack on the Jews.

"That this attack should have been everywhere resented throughout the country shows that such Nazi methods do not find response in America, or outside of particular groups."

He reported sentiment in the country at large better than at the time of a conference of Governors and State attorneys general with the Department of Justice on the problem a year ago.

Vigilante Groups Sprang Up.

"At that time a good deal of hysteria existed and vigilante groups were springing up everywhere," he said. "That has disappeared largely as a result of the wise action of the Governors in different States."

PRESIDENT ACTS TO DOUBLE U. S. SECURITY ROLLS

Projects Extension Of System to 40,000,000 More as Inflation Curb, Post-War Stimulus

Increase of Payroll Tax May Also be Sought in Message To Congress; Greater Aid To 'Poorer' States Studied

OCT 1 1941

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30—President Roosevelt projected a vast expansion of the social security system today, intended to bring within its benefits double the number of people now covered. He guessed it would jump the total of those involved from 40,000,000 to 80,000,000.

The Chief Executive long has advocated spreading the system into new territory, but in announcing the plan today he advanced two reasons why it would be helpful in the present situation. The higher taxes to be collected would help as an inflation deterrent, and unemployment benefit payments would ease the economic readjustment phase which will come with the end of the defense production emergency.

Soon, he said at a press conference, he will send a special message to Congress on the subject. He apparently is hopeful of action in a short time.

While the details of the plan were not disclosed, several steps have been under discussion:

1. Extension of the contributory old-age insurance system to classes now exempt; that is, farm laborers, domestic servants, self-employed persons, farm operators, the casually employed, and workers in charitable institutions.

2. Extension of unemployment insurance to maritime workers and employes of small firms (concerns employing less than eight persons are now exempt).

3. Severance pay, designed for example to tide over workers who lose their jobs in defense industries when the present emergeney is over.

4. More liberalized grants to states for non-contributory old age assistance and other benefits.

Mr. Roosevelt said a formula has already been worked out for giving greater federal aid to the poorer states. Under the present system, the states allocate certain sums of money for old age pensions and other benefits, and the federal government matches that amount.

But because of low property valuations and for other reasons, some states can advance only such sums as $4 or $6 a beneficiary a month, while in more prosperous states, non-contributory old age assistance runs as high as $30 monthly.

As for the contributory old age insurance system, both employe and employer pay the government a payroll tax with which the cost of the program is defrayed. Mr. Roosevelt indicated that the tax rates might have to be increased. At present the rate is 1 per cent each for the employer and employe.

Mr. Roosevelt conferred with his social security advisors during the day, and later one official said that a system of severance pay to workers when they lose their jobs is under consideration to supplement the present unemployment insurance. At the press conference, however, Mr. Roosevelt said there had been no discussion of such a plan.

The President was uncertain whether the top limit on old age benefits would be increased. The Administration, he said, is working on principle, rather than on figures, and proposed to reverse the old formula that to those who have, it shall be given.

FAILS TO BACK PROFIT CURB

President Says Morgenthau Proposal Is Treasury Matter

Washington, Sept. 30 (AP)—President Roosevelt passed up today an opportunity to indorse Secretary Morgenthau's proposal that business profits be limited to six per cent. on invested capital during the emergency.

He said, in response to a question, that he thought that was a treasury matter at the present time.

Press Must Be Free, Roosevelt Declares

President Issues Statement On National Newspaper Week, Which Starts Today

New York, Sept. 30 (AP)—A free press must be maintained against all assaults, President Roosevelt said today in a statement observing National Newspaper Week, starting tomorrow.

In a letter to William N. Hardy, chairman of the Newspaper Association Managers' committee in charge of Newspaper Week, Mr. Roosevelt wrote:

OCT 1 1941

"The recurrence of National Newspaper Week should awaken in the hearts and souls of all Americans a renewed determination to defend and maintain and perpetuate the priceless heritage of a free press.

"The maintenance of an unfettered press, informed by truth and guided by courage and conscience and wholehearted devotion to the public welfare, is a fundamental obligation of patriotism.

"I trust as a result of the forthcoming observance that Americans everywhere will have a renewed sense of the incalculable blessing which a free press confers. It must be maintained against all assaults."

U. S. RESERVE BOARD MAY ASK MORE POWER

Eccles Hints He Will Ask Curb In An Effort To Halt Inflation

OCT 1 1941

Says Banks Have More Excess Reserves Than During Last War

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 30—Congress received word today that it might be asked soon to give the Federal Reserve Board still greater power to control excess bank reserves in an effort to curb inflation.

Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, told the House Banking Committee, during testimony on the Administration's price-control bill, that the board's action in raising reserve requirements to the statutory limit last week had had no effect on checking inflation because of the enormous excess reserves still in the hands of the banks.

More Than In Last War

He said that despite the board's action in impounding an additional $1,250,000,000 of the reserves—and thus prohibiting the banks from lending or investing that additional sum—the banks still had more than $4,000,000,000 of excess reserves. That amount, he added, is more than the banks had at any time during the World War.

In response to questions by Representative Kean (Rep., N. J.), Eccles conceded that his testimony was "laying the basis" for a request to Congress for power to boost reserve requirements still higher. He said, however, he was not seeking that authority at this time.

OCT 1 1941

Reserves Doubled

Banks originally were required to hold as reserves against their deposits from seven to thirteen per cent. in cash which they could neither loan nor invest. The Federal Reserve Board had the power to double those requirements and last week it exercised that power to the limit.

Eccles told the committee that he considered "agricultural production as essential as defense itself" when Representative Brown (Dem., Ga.) expressed fear that fixing of agricultural price ceilings would cause agricultural workers to leave farms and seek more remunerative employment in industry.

The chairman said agricultural income had risen recently much faster than the cost of living, salaries and wages in general had increased.

Doesn't Expect Deflation

Brown said he did not expect a serious post-emergency deflation or depression because "bankers have been educated and haven't and won't put as much money out in loans to farmers as they did after the World War."

"I think the situation will be more serious after this emergency," Eccles said. "A larger share of the total income is being devoted to the defense effort now than in the World War days. The situation will be more serious unless at this stage we control the inflationary development. The seriousness will depend on how good a job of control is done during the period of the defense effort."

Forecasts Tax Boost For Social Security And Broadening Plan

New York, Sept. 30 (AP)—R. T. Compton, secretary of the social security committee of the National Association of Manufacturers, said today that recommendations to Congress this year would suggest raising pay-roll taxes to about 15 per cent., three times the current figures.

Compton made the prediction in an address prepared for delivery to the annual convention of the Controllers Institute of America.

He said that although there might be considerable opposition to such a move, the Administration preferred to have social security revisions considered with the effective date of the legislation postponed until next year.

He said the major proposals might be:

Increased aid to States for old-age pensions, dependent children and aid to the blind, as well as new Federal grants for general relief.

Broadening of the Federal old-age insurance system to cover self-employed, agricultural and other workers.

A system of compulsory total disability insurance, to cost from one and one half to three per cent. of pay rolls.

Compulsory temporary disability insurance, to cost about one per cent. of pay rolls.

Minimum unemployment compensation benefit standards.

A method of providing Federal financial support to State unemployment compensation funds.

NELSON ORDERS 43.2 P. C. CUT IN REFRIGERATORS

Production to Be Limited to Conserve Steel and Other Metals.

FURTHER REDUCTIONS LIKELY

45,000 Workers Affected by Curtailment to Be Trained for Arms Jobs.

OCT 1 1941

Washington, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—The Government ordered makers of household mechanical refrigerators today to cut production for the last five months of 1941 to a level 43.2 per cent under average monthly output for the year which ended on June 30, and warned that cuts in 1942 will probably be greater.

Thirty factories employing 45,000 workers will feel the curtailment imposed by Donald M. Nelson, priorities director, as a means of conserving steel and other strategic materials for defense needs.

It was the second drastic cut imposed on an industry producing durable consumers goods. Automobile production for December recently was cut 48.4 per cent, and similar limitations are expected soon for washing machines, household ironers, vacuum cleaners and other items.

To Release 175,000 Tons of Steel.

The refrigerator order was based on recommendations of Leon Henderson, Director of Civilian Supply, whose program called for production of only 2,007,000 refrigerators in the twelve months beginning August 1, 1941, as compared with 3,670,000 units in the twelve months ended June 30, 1941.

This curtailment was expected to release 175,000 tons of steel for production of warships, cargo vessels, tanks and other defense items, as well as considerable quantities of aluminum, brass, chromium, copper, nickel, tin, zinc, mica and rubber.

Monthly quotas for the refrigerator industry will total 175,519 units for each of the five months from August to December, 1941, inclusive, as compared with average monthly output of 309,234 units in the twelve months ended last June 30.

Because of seasonal production variations, the curtailed output will be only 2 per cent under production for the last five months of 1940, although considerably under the level of recent months. However, production in the first seven months of 1942 is to be leveled off to a large extent, instead of following the normal summer upswing.

Officials of the Division of Civilian Supply said that the impact of the limitation order would be felt principally in the ten cities which produce 90 per cent of the electric and gas refrigerators in this country—Detroit, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Chicago, Dayton, Schenectady, Evansville, Ind.; Muskegon, Mich.; Mansfield, Ohio, and Greenville, Mich.

The Office of Production Management is at work on plans to relieve the threatened idleness in these regions, directing its efforts toward placing qualified workers in defense jobs, training others for defense work and directing additional defense contracts into the areas affected.

The larger companies were subjected to the heaviest cuts, on the principle that they are best able to withstand them. Those making 16,000 or more refrigerators a year were cut 45 per cent; those turning out 5,000 to 16,000 units, 37 per cent; and those producing fewer than 5,000 units, 29 per cent.

Three New Orders Issued

It was forecast that beginning in January cuts would approximate 50 per cent under the base period for the large manufacturers; 40 per cent for the medium group, and 29 per cent for the small producers. Detailed allotments have not been worked out beyond December 31, however, Mr. Nelson said, "since it is problematical what conditions will be in the succeeding seven months."

Meanwhile a tightening raw materials situation was reflected in three other actions of the priorities division:

1. A new blanket priorities order covering nearly 500 makers of machine tools for defense use was issued because machine tools are needed in much greater quantities than are now forthcoming. It replaces an order expiring tomorrow.

2. Priorities control over nickel was extended another six months, to March 31, 1942, because of an anticipated shortage of 40,000,000 pounds—perhaps as high as 70,000,000 pounds.

3. Rationing of cork to manufacturers was extended to March 31, 1942, because of continued shortages of shipping. Full priority control over the wholly imported material was imposed earlier this year.

SAYS DEPRESSION IS NOT INEVITABLE

Bankers' Group Urges Safeguards For Era Following Present War

OCT 1 1941

Economic Policy Commission Also Asks Curb On Non-Defense Spending

[By the Associated Press]

Chicago, Sept. 30—The economic policy commission of the American Bankers' Association reported tonight that a severe post-war depression was not inevitable in the United States, and that the best way to avoid one was to restrain non-defense spending at once.

The commission is composed of twelve bankers headed by W. Randolph Burgess, of New York. They made their conclusions at the association's sixty-seventh annual convention.

"While all recognize the economic shock of shifting from war to peace," the report said, "a severe depression should not be fatalistically accepted as inevitable. . . .

"The best way to avoid a post-war depression is to restrain consumer and non-defense spending now, and so save up buying power for the post-war period.

Severe Drop In Prices

"After World War No. 1 everyone feared a terrific slump, and there was in fact a severe decline in prices and production in 1920 from which, however, a prompt recovery began in 1921 without any aid from Government spending.

"The recovery had its basis in the satisfaction of needs which had been postponed during the war, especially the need for automobiles and for the building of homes and private manufacturing plants for consumer purposes.

"The lesson of that period would appear to be that if restraints are exercised now our system of free enterprise will, under proper encouragement, be adequate to provide for post-war reemployment. Artificial and wasteful Government spending programs of the pork-barrel type are not needed and may indeed prolong the depression."

OCT 1 1941

Must Be Speeded Up

Analyzing the effect of the defense program on American economic life, the commission said that defense machinery must be speeded up, with the nation's energy transferred from producing luxuries and "even some necessities" to producing weapons.

It was explained this must be done "in such a way as to lessen the economic disruption that customarily goes along with and follows every wartime boom with its highly inflationary tendencies."

". . . The real problem is more political than economic," the report continued. "There have been many wise discussions by Government officials, by economists, by men of affairs pointing out what needs to be done.

". . . But the action they recommend requires political agreement and in almost every case runs against the self-interest of large groups of people with great political power."

Viewed As Paradox

It came from Leon H. Keyserling, deputy administrator and general counsel of the United States Housing Authority, in a speech before the association's real property, probate and trust law section.

"The tragic paradox of today," he said, "is that the more millions of men and the more billions of dollars of capital there are employed in the defense program, the more millions of men and the more billions of dollars of capital will suddenly become idle when the defense program is over—unless we do something about it now."

10% CUTS IN GAS DELIVERIES STAND

Priorities Director For First Time Applies Curbs To Taxis And Trucks

U. S., State And Local Governments Are To Get Full Fuel Supplies

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 30—Donald M. Nelson, taking over the Eastern gasoline rationing program as priorities director, issued an order tonight continuing the ten per cent. cut in deliveries to filling stations and applying the restrictions for the first time to taxicabs and delivery trucks, as well as pleasure cars.

The original curtailment order issued August 15 by the former Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply called for a reduction in October amounting to ten per cent. of the July consumption.

Nelson's order, which has the force of law under the Priorities Act, provides for a reduction amounting to ten per cent. of the average May-June-July consumption.

This change will have virtually no effect on the ordinary motorist, the Office of Production Management said. It was made on the recommendation of Harold S. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior and petroleum coordinator, to "reflect more exactly the relative sales positions of the various primary suppliers."

OCT 1 1941

Limited Exceptions

Limited exceptions to the order bringing delivery trucks under the rationing program were provided for deliveries to defense projects, agricultural activities and for the operation of motor vehicles in interstate commerce. Full deliveries will continue to be made to Federal, State and local governments.

Ickes indicated that some of the areas of the seventeen States now under the rationing program might be removed from the restrictions.

"My office," he said, "is surveying the supply situation in several of the Southeastern States and in some regions contiguous to the western borders of the whole Atlantic Coast area, where it seems likely that other modes of shipment may shortly wholly supplant movements heretofore made by deep-water tankers.

Would Ease Situation

"In such instances, and in the absence of intervening factors, it is my present view that whenever the facts disclose that any such States or regions are no longer dependent on tanker transportation and are securing sufficient supplies by alternative methods of transportation, I shall desire to recommend either a contraction of the boundaries of the area of restriction or a relaxation of these restrictions in such States or regions."

The OPM order, issued on Ickes' recommendation, prohibits the shipment of motor fuel from the Atlantic Coast area to any point outside the area, thus retaining all available supplies for use in the populous East where the petroleum emergency was created by transfer to British service of a large part of the American tanker fleet hauling oil from the Gulf to Atlantic ports.

STASSEN FOR UNITY

Urges All Governors to Back U. S. Foreign Policy.

Indianapolis, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—Gov. Stassen of Minnesota called on his fellow State executives today to "give united support, regardless of geographical location or partisanship, to the established foreign policy of the Federal Government."

The youthful Governor, who has been mentioned as a 1944 Republican presidential possibility was the principal speaker at a meeting of the National Association of Attorneys General in conjunction with the American Bar Association convention.

"Our responsibility as representatives of the governments of the several States seems clear," he said.

Some forty governors and their attorneys general are attending the conference.

STEEL EXPANSION PLANS APPROVED

Expenditure Of $1,250,000,000 Involved In Proposal To Boost Capacity

SPAB Having Given Its Support, RFC May Help To Finance Projects

OCT 1 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Washington, Sept. 30—The Supply Priorities and Allocations Board today approved a $1,250,000,000 expansion of the steel industry designed to increase capacity by 10,000,000 tons annually.

The board directed the OPM to decide where the expansion would be made and how it would be financed.

The expansion had been recommended by William S. Knudsen, OPM director.

The action was in line with the policy adopted two weeks ago of expanding production of all critical materials, officials said.

Capacity Now 89,000,000 Tons

Present steel capacity, including some facilities under construction, amounts to 89,000,000 tons.

The facilities which are under construction and which are included in the 89,000,000-ton figure represent about 3,000,000 tons capacity. This construction work is well under way, officials said.

In addition, they asserted, the Office of Production Management has specifically recommended nearly 3,000,000 tons additional capacity, and most of this work has been recommended to Federal finance agencies. This second 3,000,000 tons capacity forms part of the 10,000,000-ton expansion approved by the SPAB today.

It is expected that the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and other Federal lending agencies will finance a great part of the expansion.

ARMS EXPORTS LICENSES

Total For Eight-Month Period Is Set At $1,316,218,138

Washington, Sept. 30 (AP)—Arms exports licenses issued by the Secretary of State during the eight months ended August 31 aggregate $1,316,218,138, the State Department announced today. The total for August alone was $261,212,468.

Actual exports of war materials for the eight months aggregated $458,700,942, of which $75,355,726 was shipped in August.

BERLE CITES NEED FOR POST-WAR PLAN

Program To Replace Defense Orders Urged By Secretary Of State Aide

Research On Production Of Peacetime Goods Is Proposed

OCT 1 1941

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 30—A. A. Berle, Jr., Assistant Secretary of State, urges that business and Government prepare a post-war work program to replace defense orders, declaring that "unless we are prepared to finance the demobilization as well as we have financed the mobilization, we shall be headed at best for a depression and at worst for disorder approaching revolution."

Writing in Fortune magazine, Berle added:

Calls For Inventory Of Plans

"Every defense industry should have a research staff working on plans for producing peacetime goods. If any business outfit concerned with war production has not already done so, it is negligent—a negligence that will become an economic crime if it continues.

"A conference should be held to take inventory of these plans and to lay out a catalogue of the products that will be available when the war ends."

Berle cited as needs the relocation and modernization of city areas, new housing for several millions of families, a considerable number of public works, and nutrition adequate in kind and quality to assure public health.

"These needs are potential markets," he said. "Out of these and others like them there should be constructed markets sufficient to create full use of our plants and full employment for our people."

Churchill Goes Ahead Of Hitler In Poll On Leading Living Person

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 30 (AP)—Adolf Hitler's two-year term as the "world's greatest living person" in the eyes of Princeton freshmen ended today when the class of 1945 elevated Britain's Prime Minister, Winston Churchill, to that post in an annual poll.

President Roosevelt finished third on the world list, behind Hitler, and was labeled the "greatest living American" for the third straight year.

Wheeler Says U. S. Has One-Man Government

OCT 1 1941

Los Angeles, Sept. 30 (AP)—Senator Wheeler (Dem., Mont.) told a Town Hall luncheon gathering today:

"In the name of defense we have started shooting on the seven seas. In the name of democracy we have established one-man government. And in the name of peace the United States has been dragged to the brink of war.

"What we are passing through is not a counter-revolution against Naziism, but a New Deal evolution toward dictatorship in the United States.

"We have been asked to abrogate the Constitution. We have been asked blindly to follow the President into the hell of war from which only bankruptcy, suffering, sorrow, death and desolation can come."

Wheeler is here to address an America First rally Thursday night.

Senators Told Gliders Started Nazi Air Force

F. P. Wisbar Says Soaring Trained 80% of Pilots

WASHINGTON, Sept. 30 (AP).—A former German Army officer told a Senate subcommittee today that 80 per cent of all the Reich's military pilots had received their initial training in gliders.

This testimony was given by Frank P. Wisbar, motion-picture producer and director, who left Germany in 1939 after being active for many years with development of gliding and soaring in that country. Mr. Wisbar appeared before a Senate labor subcommittee considering legislation to provide a glider-pilot training program.

Under the Treaty of Versailles, Mr. Wisbar said, Germans were prevented from flying motor-powered planes, so glider flying was developed, starting with some fifty pilots using craft made from broomsticks and paper. The program grew with the aid of secret army and navy funds, the witness related, and was taken up by the Nazi party as part of its youth movement. The result was that 18,000 pilots and 30,000 mechanics were trained annually for the last ten years.

BRITISH CRUISER AT PHILADELPHIA

OCT 1 1941

H. M. S. Manchester Puts In for General Refit.

Philadelphia, Sept. 30 (A. P.).—The 9,100-ton British cruiser Manchester is at the Philadelphia navy yard for a general refit, it was announced today by Rear Admiral A. E. Watson, commandant of the yard.

The Manchester, commanded by Capt. H. Drew, and carrying a complement of 700 officers and men, is the second British warship to visit the yard for repairs or other purposes. Last week the navy disclosed that the battleship Resolution had undergone repairs here.

The Manchester, Admiral Watson's announcement said, is one of a class of modern heavy cruisers mounting twelve six-inch guns and having a speed of 32 knots. The last built of the eight ships in the Southampton class she was begun in March, 1936, commissioned in April, 1937, and completed in April, 1938.

The Navy Department at Washington also announced that the British destroyer Firedrake and the British merchant cruiser California were at Boston undergoing repairs.

The three vessels brought to thirty-one the number of British and Free French men-of-war disclosed to have arrived in this country for refitting or the repair of war damages.

R. A. F. Boys Find U. S. Girls Just Wonderful

(Editors Note—The following article was written by Joseph P. Kennedy, Jr., son of the former Ambassador to Great Britain. Young Kennedy is an aviation cadet at the Jacksonville Naval Air Station and is on the station's public relations staff.)

OCT 1 1941

By Joseph P. Kennedy, Jr.

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 30 (AP)—Sixty enthusiastic English boys at the trade school of the Naval Air Station here say the thing they like best about America is the American girl.

"Of course," they say, "we like the American ice-cream and American drug stores; they've got it all over our English stores; but these American girls are really wonderful.

Here For Six Months

"We're going to try to get President Roosevelt and Congress to put them under theterms of the Lend-Lease Act so we can bring them back to England with us—but if we once get them over there you'll have a jolly hard time getting them back.

The Britishers at the trade school, practically all under 21, have been selected from thousands of applicants because of their natural mechanical aptitude. All of them have seen war at first hand in England.

Excited Over Football

The boys are over here to learn radio and air gunnery, on the theory that Americans should teach them how to handle American machines. They'll be here for six months and then go back in the R. A. F. in England as mechanics, radio operators and machine gunners.

As to what they do for athletics, they told me, "We go to the beach. It's swell down there. We do miss not seeing the English football games."

They have played softball and many of them like it better than cricket, but none of them has seen a hard baseball game. What they are really enthused about at present is the prospect of seeing American football.

For recreation, they like to dance. One's already a jitterbug. "I can do it a bit and it's jolly good fun," he confessed.

They Like Hamburger

Their drinking is confined to beer, but they really miss their good old English stout and the fish and ships which go with it. However, they admit that the American hamburger makes up for fish and chips and wish England would import some to feed them over there.

They're also beginning to like iced tea. And when an Englishman admits he is beginning to like what he considers an abuse of a great institution, then he's half American already.

Wickard Has No Comment.

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 30 (A. P.).—Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, here pushing his plan to make the United States a breadbasket for the democracies, sent word to reporters that he preferred not to comment today on Winston Churchill's statement that Britain's "reserves of food stand higher than at the outbreak of the war."

OCT 1 1941

Mr. Wickard indicated that possibly he would comment after studying Mr. Churchill's full statement.

The Secretary last week told a House committee in Washington, England was short on rations.

Wickard, testifying on the new request for $5,985,000,000 in lease-lend funds, said $1,000,000,000 of the sum "is the very lowest estimate of funds needed for the commodities the department has promised to supply to Britain" in the next five months.

U. S. Presents As Evidence 30 Paper Slips Taken From Suspect's Pockets

Names And Phone Numbers Alleged Those Of Outlaw Radio Operators

OCT 1 1941

[By the Associated Press]

New York, Sept. 30—The Government began putting into evidence today thirty pieces of paper picked from the pockets of Paul Scholz, one of sixteen men on trial charged with espionage conspiracy.

On the half dozen read to a Brooklyn Federal jury were the names or initials and telephone numbers of several codefendants whom the indictment charges with having operated an outlaw radio station to keep Germany informed on the sailing of lease-lend cargoes from New York for Britain.

Started To Tear Card

Burton F. Wiand, F. B. I. agent, testified that when he and two other agents suddenly swooped down upon Scholz in a German bookstore in New York city where he worked as a salesman, Scholz started to tear a small card on which were penciled the address and telephone number of Karl Reuper, airplane factory machinist whom the Government charges with organizing a spy ring.

"Scholz said Reuper was one of his closest friends," testified Wiand. "He denied knowing about Reuper's activities for the German Government; and when I asked about notations on the card, he said, 'I don't wish to talk about that.'"

A quick frisk brought out the other papers. One bore the letters MGXX, call letters of the outlaw station.

"Personal Greetings"

"Scholz said that shortly after Italy entered the war, it became almost impossible to get mail through to Germany," said Wiand.

"He said he and the others thought it would be a good idea to have a radio to transmit personal greetings to friends in Germany."

On another card was the name of Wilhelm Gustav Kaercher, one of seventeen who pleaded guilty to the indictment.

"Scholz said the name and paper were unimportant," testified Wiand. "He said he didn't want to talk about that."

On Various Slips

On another slip of paper was the Bremen (Germany) address of P Fink, the alias of Paul Fahse, who also has pleaded guilty; on another notations of the frequency, wave length, call letters and other specifications of the outlaw station and a nebulous note from Reuper about a mysterious "package" and an unspecified "matter" to which Scholz was asked to attend.

OCT 1 1941

Wiand said Scholz expressed a desire to avoid discussing any of these.

A statement, allegedly made by Josef August Klein, a defendant, quoted Klein as admitting that he assembled the transmitter and repaired it at various times. The statement was read into the record.

"Became Suspicious"

Eventually, Klein became suspicious of his associates—including Scholz, Kaercher, Axel Wheeler-Hill (another defendant), and others—and "I tried to get out of their company."

"I came to realize that I had become involved in something I never expected," said the Klein statement.

"I realized that he (Wheeler-Hill) intended to violate the regulations of the Federal Communications Commission and the United States Government."

D. D. Johnson, F. B. I. agent, said Klein told him he accepted Wheeler-Hill's explanation that the radio was to be used for personal messages to Germany "with a grain of salt."

NAVY SAYS UNION FAILS IN PLEDGE

Metal Trades Department Accused By Assistant Secretary Bard

West Coast Welders, Denied Autonomy By AFL, Threaten Strike October 6

OCT 1 1941

[By the Associated Press]

Seattle, Sept. 30—Their demands for autonomy again denied, welders and burners late today renewed their threat to halt work here and at Tacoma Monday and picket the American Federation of Labor convention's opening session. The strike would affect about 1,500 men, many employed on national defense projects.

The demans were rejecte by the AFL metal trades department convention today.

Earlier naval and Labor Department authorities had urged metal trades leaders to compel the membership to abide by the leaders' pledges of last January 1 of no work stoppages during the national emergency.

Says Pledges Not Kept

Lieut. Com. George M. Keller, Washington, read a statement prepared by Ralph Bard, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, as "a blunt expression of disappointment" over continuing strikes despite the metal trades leaders' pledges of no work stoppage.

Asserting that "every work stoppage plays right into Hitler's hands," Bard's statement asked:

"Why, then, are your people willing to strike and to threaten to strike?

"What have you left undone to prevent every stoppage of work?

"What explanation are we to assume for a condition like this?

Trying To Hamper Defense

"There is an inability indicated that your leaders can't control the membership, or there is indication that members are deliberately trying to hamper national defense production."

Dan W. Tracy, Assistant Secretary of Labor and former president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers told the convention:

"The time has come for labor to rise and give its all to the Government. You are the ones who will have to pay if there is an attack by Hitler. . . . If more men were fighting Hitler and less were fighting Franklin Roosevelt, our defense-production program would be greater."

The metal trades' president, John P. Frey, said he regretted work stoppages by some members, but added: "We cannot force anything down their throats." He said it might take some time to educate the metal trades' many new members by democratic methods to a policy against work stoppages.

Demands Are Refused

The metal trades' executive council reported against the welders and burners' demands for a separate brotherhood—they are now scattered through eight or nine unions—on the ground that "it would lead to disorganization in every international union of metal workers under whose jurisdiction welding is done, and . . turn over a large number of present members to a new organization which had no part in building up the American trade-union movement."

The council also recalled that previous AFL conventions had decided that "welding is performed with a tool which is used by all metal workers, and which no more can come under exclusive jurisdiction of any one trade or calling than can the hammer or the saw"

"That settles it," said Dave Basor, executive secretary of the Welders and Burners Council of Seattle. "We will go on strike October 6."

He indicated welders throughout the Pacific Coast would demonstrate in behalf of the twenty-five-year-old demands.

Buying Boom Swamps Stores In New York

New York, Sept. 30 (AP)—A great three-day boom in luxury goods ended tonight as retail merchants throughout the city struggled to satisfy the demands of throngs of shoppers in a last-minute rush to get ahead of the new Federal excise taxes effective tomorrow.

It will take a few days to assemble the statistics to give an accurate picture of the huge total of dollar spending, but executives of some leading midtown stores were willing to wager that more expensive jewelry, more fur coats, more bottles and cases of liquor, more cosmetics and toiletries, more sports goods, more cameras and more radios were sold across the counters than in any similar period in history.

The boom started last Saturday as predictions were given prominence that October 1 would bring a sharp boost in prices of many lines of merchandise under the emergency tax bill.

OCT 1 1941

Toughes Of Hysteria

It swelled mightily through Monday, and took on some touches of slight hysteria as it moved on to peak volume today.

Buyers jammed the luxury goods departments of the big department stores the day long, and those who couldn't come swamped the stores' switchboards with frantic appeals for immediate delivery of goods affected by the taxes.

Some of the more colorful reports on the intensity of the buying splurge came from big Fifth avenue furriers, who asserted that Uncle Sam's tax bill had stimulated the sale of expensive fur coats to a far greater extent than had the famous stock market boom of 1929.

JAN VALTIN LOSES DEPORTATION PLEA

Anti-Nazi Author Could, However, Win Pardon From Olson

California Board Rejects Move To Escape Return To Germany

OCT 1 1941

[By the Associated Press]

San Francisco, Sept. 30—Jan Valtin, who sharply criticized Nazi activities in his book, "Out of the Night," lost today, by a 2-2 vote of the State Advisory Pardon Board, an appeal for a pardon to escape deportation to Germany.

The writer could, however, still win a pardon when the matter comes before Gov. Culbert L. Olson.

Applies For Pardon

Valtin, 36, under his true name of Richard Krebs, was convicted in 1926 of assault with a deadly weapon in Los Angeles, and was sentenced to ten years. He was released in 1929 for deportation to his native Germany, and recently reentered this country illegally.

The petitioner, who attacked Communist and Nazi activities in his book, applied for the pardon to escape deportation again.

Valtin contended he would be executed if he was returned to Germany.

Board Members Lieut. Gov. Ellis J. Patterson and C. H. Stone, chief of the State's Division of Criminal Identification, voted in favor of a pardon. It was opposed by Clyde I. Plummer, warden of Folsom Prison, and Clinton Duffy, warden of San Quentin. Earl Warren, State's Attorney General, and fifth member, was not present.

"I voted on this case as if the man had never written a book," Stone said. He remarked that if the things Valtin related were true and he was sent back to Germany, he would be shot, "and if they weren't true, they would shoot him anyhow for lying."

Sentenced To 10 Years

Valtin now lives in Danbury, Conn.

On August 14, 1926, his prison record shows, he went into a Los Angeles store owned by Morris Goodstein, and ordered some merchandise. While Goodstein was wrapping the things, Valtin struck him over the head with a pistol, but fled when the owner started throwing things at him.

He was captured in an alley, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to ten years. On December 5, 1929, he was released as a deportable alien, and remained a deported parollee for three and a half years until he returned to this country.

The War Interpreted

By Dewitt MacKenzie

OCT 1 1941

"Would Hitler like to back out of the war at present and, if so, do you think he possibly could?"

This man-size query comes to me from Jacksonville, Florida—and I like the confidence shown in my ability to tell what is in the Fuehrer's mind. As though to help us out, we have from Berlin an emphatic denial of any attempts anywhere at peace feelers or peace negotiations by Germany.

Still, that denial isn't as useful as it might be, because while it may be truth it isn't the whole truth, and begs the issues in our double-barre question. The correct answers seem to be these:

Yes, the Nazi chief would like to get out of the war now, provided h could be left in domination of the continent of Europe. Who wouldn't!

No, I don't think he could get out of it. Just as he isn't likely to qui unless he cashes in on his conquests or is defeated, so the Allies hav sworn that they never will stop until they have pulled him down.

PEACE MOVE RUMORS

Peace talk has been going the rounds quietly in Europe recently. M information is that some Axis supporters have been predicting Hitle would make the Soviet an offer of separate peace before the winter shut down on the Russian front. If that venture were successful, he would make suggestions to England for terminating the war.

These Axis sources believe such a proposal to Britain would follow the lines of previously rumored plans. That is to say, Germany and England would be the dominant powers of Europe—with heavy accent on Germany. Sovereignty would be restored to those countries in which Britain has special interests, such as Norway and the Netherlands. All the other nations would come into Hitler's "new order" or be annexed by the Reich.

In other words Hitler would be pretty much lord of all he surveyed on the continent. John Bull would be allowed to keep his shirt and his imperial connections.

Why shouldn't the Nazi leaders want to conclude peace on such terms? His alternative is to fight the war through to a bitter, bloody finish—and he is a long way now from having assurance that he will win. Things have changed mightily since the days when he beat the French to the earth and drove the British into the sea at Dunkerque.

HITLER KEEPS INITIATIVE

Hitler still is powerful and he still retains the initiative, excepting for the war in the air over the western theater from which he has withdrawn the bulk of his luftwaffe for use against Russia. He is a conqueror who hasn't yet been stopped. However, there are many reasons why he might be glad to secure right now even a part of the loaf of conquest which he started out to get, rather than continue what is becoming a colossal gamble. Here are some of those reasons:

Even if Germany should conquer Russia, the Nazi losses in men and material have been heavy. This is particularly true as regards the all-important air force. Prime Minister Churchill in London today stated that the German air shortage is "very serious," and Russian reports tend to substantiate this estimate.

Churchill also says that British, Allied and neutral shipping losses during July, August and September, were only a third of those in the preceding three months, which means that the Battle of the Atlantic has been going better for the Allies.

It is claimed that very few important ships carrying munitions to Britain have been lost. That is to say, England's strength is increasing rapidly.

U. S. DEFENSE PROGRAM

The American defense program daily moves faster, to provide aid for the Allies.

The British blockade of the continent continues tight, and the winter holds out prospects of terrible suffering from privation in many countries.

Berlin announces that Nazi firing squads have executed 24 people in what used to be Czecho-Slovakia for plotting against German rule. The rattle of musketry there was only the echo of that in numerous other countries as the tide of revolt swells.

Meantime, the Axis operations continue to expand without a corresponding increase in strength. Now its a grim winter war in Russia. Next spring it will be something else.

Sure, Herr Hitler would be glad to get peace now—on the terms previously mentioned.

STULTIFYING TO HITLER."

OCT 1 1941

(THE GERMANS UNOFFICIALLY CLAIMED TUESDAY THAT SINKINGS OF BRITISH SHIPPING FOR SEPTEMBER ALONE AMOUNTED TO 662,000 TONS, AGAINST THE OFFICIAL NAZI FIGURE GIVEN FOR AUGUST OF 537,200 TONS.)

AS TO AID TO RUSSIA, CHURCHILL REPORTED THAT ALREADY "PRECIOUS AIRCRAFT, ALUMINUM, COPPER, RUBBER, OIL AND MANY OTHER MATERIALS VITAL TO MODERN WAR" HAD GONE TO THE SOVIET IN LARGE QUANTITIES.

"IN SOME RESPECTS," HE WENT ON, "THE PROBLEMS WE NOW HAVE TO FACE ARE SIMILAR TO THOSE WHICH RENT OUR HEARTS LAST YEAR, WHEN WE HAD TO REFUSE TO SEND AWAY FROM THIS COUNTRY FOR HELPING FRANCE THE LAST REMAINING SQUADRONS OF THE FIGHTER AIRCRAFT ON WHICH OUR WHOLE FUTURE POSITION DEPENDED; OR AGAIN WHEN WE RIGHTLY JUDGED HITLER'S UNPREPAREDNESS FOR INVASION IN THE SUMMER OF 1940 AND TOOK THE PLUNGE OF SENDING SO MANY OF OUR TANKS AND TRAINED TROOPS AROUND THE CAPE TO THE NILE VALLEY IN ORDER TO DESTROY THE ITALIAN ARMY IN LIBYA AND ABYSSINIA (ETHIOPIA.)"

STRESSING BRITAIN'S NEEDS AT HOME--ALTHOUGH NOT IN SO MANY WORDS--HE ADDED THAT THE BRITISH NEVER HAD AND NEVER WOULD HAVE AN ARMY NUMERICALLY COMPARBLE TO THOSE ON THE CONTINENT.

STILL, HE SAID, IT WAS A "VERY GOOD ARMY" AND FINELY TEMPERED WHICH, SUPPORTED BY NEARLY 2,000,000 ARMED HOME GUARDS, WOULD BE RELIED UPON TO "DESTROY OR HURL INTO THE SEA THE INVADER SHOULD HE SUCCEED IN MAKING A NUMBER OF SUCCESSIVE AND SIMULTANEOUS LODGEMENTS ON OUR SHORES."

SPEAKING OF THE "ABSOLUTELY INDESCRIBABLE ATROCITIES" CHARGED TO THE GERMANS IN RUSSIA, HE ADDED POINTEDLY:

"THE RESPONSIBILITY OF HIS MAJESTY'S GOVERNMENT TO MAINTAIN AT HOME A NOW HIGH CLASS FORCE TO BEAT DOWN AND ANNIHILATE ANY LODGEMENTS FROM THE SEA OR AIR COMES TO ME IN A SIGNIFICANTLY UGLY AND IMPRESSIVE FORM."

OCT 1 1941

MUCH OF THE PRIME MINISTER'S SPEECH STRESSED THAT THIS LONG SPECTRE HAD NOT ENDED--A THEME TO WHICH HE RETURNED NEAR THE END:

"....I CANNOT GIVE THE HOUSE ANY FLATTERING HOPES, STILL LESS ANY GUARANTEE THAT THE FUTURE WILL BE BRIGHT OR EASY. ON THE CONTRARY, EVEN THE COMING WINTER AFFORDS NO ASSURANCE, AS THE RUSSIAN AMBASSADOR HAS CANDIDLY AND SHREWDLY POINTED OUT, THAT GERMAN PRESSURE ON RUSSIA WILL BE RELAXED OR THAT...THE DANGER OF INVASION WILL BE ENTIRELY LIFTED FROM THESE ISLANDS..

"WE MUST CERTAINLY EXPECT THAT IN THE SPRING VERY HEAVY FIGHTING, MUCH HEAVIER THAN ANY WE HAVE YET EXPERIENCED IN THIS WAR, WILL DEVELOP IN THE EAST, AND ALSO THE MENACE TO THESE ISLANDS FROM INVASION WILL PRESENT ITSELF IN EVERY SHARP FORM..."

IT WAS, AS HE HAD SAID BEFORE, A CASE OF A COUNTRY THAT HAD CLIMBED "FROM A PIT OF PERIL ONTO A FAIRLY BROAD PLATEAU"--BUT A PLATEAU STILL LEADING TO LONG AND PERILOUS ROADS.

OCT 1 1941

FIFTY-EIGHT MORE CZECH HOSTAGES FELL UNDER THE VOLLEYS OF GERMAN EXECUTION SQUADS YESTERDAY TO BRING THE TOTAL TO AT LEAST 88 DEAD REVOLUTIONARIES WITHIN THREE DAYS, BERLIN ANNOUNCED TODAY (WED).

THOSE WHO DIED ON THE THIRD ANNIVERSARY OF THE MUNICH AGREEMENT WHEREBY BRITAIN AND FRANCE SACRIFICED CZECHO-SLOVAKIA IN THE HOPE OF APPEASING ADOLF HITLER WERE LISTED IN BERLIN AS A PROFESSOR, RETIRED ARMY LEADERS, JEWS, "COMMUNISTS," AND "MEN OF NO POLITICAL IMPORTANCE."

THE BBC IN BROADCASTS HEARD IN NEW YORK BY NBC AND CBS REPORTED THE 58 NEW EXECUTIONS AHEAD OF BERLIN'S ANNOUNCEMENT. IT HAS DONE THAT ON THREE OCCASIONS NOW, AND THE BBC TOTALED THE CZECH DEAD AT 95--TO BERLIN'S 88.

GERMANY SAID THE HOSTAGES PAID WITH THEIR LIVES BECAUSE OF ATTEMPTS TO OVERTHROW THE GERMAN-ERECTED PROTECTORATE OF BOHEMIA-MORAVIA.

JAN MASARYK, SON OF THOMAS MASARYK, FOUNDER OF CZECHO-SLOVAKIA, IN A CBS BROADCAST TO THE UNITED STATES LAST NIGHT FROM LONDON SAID THE REAL REASONS FOR THE EXECUTIONS WERE: OCT 1 1941

"PRODUCTION IN OUR FACTORIES HAS GONE DOWN AS MUCH AS 50 PER CENT. THE WRONG MUNITION IS BEING SENT TO THE WRONG DEPOTS, GASOLINE TANKS AND GUNS GET FIRED, THE RAILROAD SCHEDULE IS THOROUGHLY MIXED UP, AND ALL THIS IS DONE QUIETLY WITHOUT FUSS AND THE REAL GUILTY PARTIES ARE IMPOSSIBLE TO CATCH, AND THE GENERAL, BAKER, AND CANDLESTICK MAKER PAY THE PRICE FOR THEIR FELLOW PATRIOTS.

"AND DON'T MAKE ANY MISTAKE, THEY ARE ALL PATRIOTS."

MASARYK TOLD AMERICANS THAT "ALL OUR SABOTAGE HAS NOTHING TO DO WITH ANY OTHER 'ISM' THAN PATRIOTISM, NOT EVEN COMMUNISM.

"A LOT OF MY PEOPLE AND DECENT PEOPLE ALL OVER EUROPE ARE BEING MURDERED TONIGHT JUST BECAUSE THEY LOVE THEIR OWN COUNTRIES AS WELL AS YOU DO YOURS. IT IS TO A LARGE EXTENT IN YOUR HANDS TO DETERMINE HOW LONG THIS WILL GO ON."

REINHARD HEYDRICH, DEPUTY GESTAPO LEADER WHOM MASARYK CALLED "EUROPE'S CHAMPION PRACTICING MURDERER," WAS SENT INTO BOHEMIA-MORAVIA TO REPLACE BARON CONSTANTINE VON NEURATH AS "PROTECTOR" AND THE THREE-DAY ROUND OF EXECUTIONS BEGAN. OCT 1 1941

"SEVERAL OF THESE MEN WHO WERE BUTCHERED IN PRAGUE WERE PERSONAL FRIENDS OF MINE SO YOU MUST UNDERSTAND THAT I FEEL VERY SAD AND VERY JITTERY. I WOULD NOT BE SUCPRISED IF TOMORROW THE SO-CALLED PROTECTORATE WOULD DISAPPEAR AND BOHEMIA AND MORAVIA WILL BE INCORPORATED INTO HITLER'S REICH.

"NO GERMAN BEASTLINESS CAN SURPRISE ME.....WE ARE STILL PAYING DIVIDENDS FOR THE (MUNICH) SACRIFICE."

MIHA KREK, DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER OF THE YUGOSLAV GOVERNMENT EXILED IN LONDON SAID HE HAD RECEIVED FETAILS OF A "RUTHLESS NAZI CAMPAIGN AIMED AT THE VIRTUAL EXTERMINATION OF 1,500,000 SLOVENES IN YUGOSLAVIA."

OCT 1 1941

THE SLOVENES WHO MADE UP AN INTEGRAL PART OF THE YUGOSLAV NATION ARE BEING REMOVED FROM THEIR HOMES IN CATTLE TRUCKS AND SCATTERED IN SERBIA AND CROATIA, HE SAID. PRIESTS, LAWYERS, DOCTORS, AND ENGINEERS HAVE BEEN PUT IN CONCENTRATION CAMPS AND ALL CHURCHES HAVE BEEN CLOSED, KREK ADDED.

ALL DAY LONG THE BRITISH RADIO BROADCAST STORIES OF RISING UNREST IN NAZI-OCCUPIED COUNTRIES, CBS HEARD THESE BBC ACCOUNTS:

THAT 30 POLISH WOMEN, ACCORDING TO ADOLF HITLER'S OWN NEWSPAPER, THE VOELKISCHER BEOBACHTER, WERE ARRESTED AND TWO EXECUTED FOR "TRYING TO PREVENT THE NAZIS" FROM CONFISCATING MILK.

ANOTHER FRENCHMAN WAS SHOT BY A FIRING SQUAD IN PARIS TODAY AND 35 OTHERS WERE ARRESTED, TEN IN PARIS AND 25 IN ARRAS.

SERBIAN GUERRILLAS IN YUGOSLAVIA HAVE ATTACKED THE HOMES AND HEADQUARTERS OF ITALIAN CIVIL AND MILITARY LEADERS "FORCING THE ITALIANS TO SEND A GREAT OCCUPATION ARMY INTO DALMATIA."

"OVER 500 SO-CALLED COMMUNISTS WERE JAILED TODAY AT THE BULGARIAN BLACK SEA PORT OF VARNA," AND "THE PRISONS ARE GETTING OVER-CROWDED" IN THAT COUNTRY, BBC SAID.

IN NORWAY ONLY THREE OUT OF 30 CANDIDATES FOR THE CLERGY PASSED AN EXAMINATION GIVEN BY A COMMISSAR OF THE NAZI GOVERNMENT OF VIDKUN QUISLING, AND QUISLING'S PAPER, VRITT VOLK, SAID "A STRIKE OF THE CHURCHES" IS IN PROGRESS.

OCT 1 1941

A GERMAN SPOKESMAN IN BERLIN BLAMED MOSCOW AND LONDON FOR TROUBLE IN FORMER CZECHO-SLOVAKIA AND OTHER LANDS.

"LONDON ESPECIALLY TRIED TO START SOMETHING IN PARIS, NORWAY, AND HOLLAND," HE SAID, "BUT IT DIDN'T WORK.

"AND BEFORE THEY GOT OFF TO A GOOD START IN THE PROTECTORATE WE TOOK A HAND."

MOST CZECHS, HE ADDED "SAW THE PURPOSELESSNESS OF SUCH POLITICS."

THE SWIFT GERMAN MILITARY REPRISALS IN THE PROTECTORATE OCCURRED ...

ON THE THIRD ANNIVERSARY OF THE MUNICH AGREEMENT WHICH BEGAN THE DISMEMBERMENT OF CZECHO-SLOVAKIA.

EXCHANGE TELEGRAPH IN LONDON QUOTED THE PRAGUE RADIO AS SAYING THREE MORE PROMINENT CZECH POLITICIANS HAD BEEN ARRESTED. THEY WERE SAID TO BE DR.JAROSLAV KREJCI, DEPUTY PRIME MINISTER AND MINISTER OF JUSTICE; GENERAL JEZEK, MINISTER OF THE INTERIOR, AND DR.GEORGE HAVELKA, FORMER MINISTER OF COMMUNICATIONS WHO WAS EXPELLED FROM THE GOVERNMENT SEVERAL MONTHS AGO.

WASHINGTON, SEPT 30-(AP)-PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT CALLED ATTENTION TODAY TO ARTICLE 24 OF THE RUSSIAN CONSTITUTION WHICH HE SAID PROVIDED FOR FREEDOM OF CONSCIENCE AND FREEDOM OF RELIGION AND PROPAGANDA AGAINST RELIGION.

THIS, HE TOLD A PRESS CONFERENCE, WAS ESSENTIALLY THE RULE IN THIS COUNTRY ONLY WE DO NOT PUT IT THE SAME WAY. NO ONE WOULD STOP A PERSON WHO GOT UP ON A SOAP BOX ON PENNSYLVANIA AVENUE HERE, HE ADDED, EITHER TO PREACH FOR CHRISTIANITY OR AGAINST RELIGION.

OCT 1 1941

MR.ROOSEVELT SUGGESTED THAT REPORTERS READ RUSSIA'S ARTICLE 24 WHEN THEY ASKED HIM ABOUT A LETTER FROM THE POLISH AMBASSADOR, JAN CIECHANOWSKI, REPORTING THAT "A POLISH CATHOLIC CHURCH IS ABOUT TO BE OPENED IN MOSCOW, AS WELL AS A SYNAGOGUE FOR POLISH JEWS, AND THAT THE POLISH COMMUNITIES IN RUSSIA HAVE BEEN ALLOWED BY THE SOVIET GOVERNMENT TO INSTITUTE PLACES OF WORSHIP AND HAVE BEEN GIVEN FULL FREEDOM IN THIS FIELD."

THE LETTER WAS ADDRESSED TO SECRETARY HULL AND HAD BEEN MADE PUBLIC EARLIER AT THE STATE DEPARTMENT. CIECHANOWSKI WROTE THAT THE POLISH GOVERNMENT "IS CONFIDENT IT WILL BE ABLE TO PUT IN THE FIELD VERY SHORTLY AN ARMY OF WELL OVER 100,000 MEN, PROVIDED THEY CAN BE SUPPLIED WITH THE NECESSARY MATERIAL" FROM THE UNITED STATES AND BRITAIN THE ARMY WOULD FIGHT FOR RUSSIA.

MR.ROOSEVELT SAID THAT HE HAD NEVER HEARD OF A PLAN WHEREBY THE UNITED STATES WOULD DIVERT ALL ITS MUNITIONS PRODUCTION TO BRITAIN AND RUSSIA FOR THE NEXT THREE MONTHS.

OCT 1 1941

THERE HAD BEEN REPORTS THAT SUCH A PLAN WAS UNDER CONSIDERATION.

AS FOR A REPORT THAT THE DRAFT MIGHT BE DISCONTINUED AND THE ARMY "FROZEN" AT A CERTAIN LEVEL, MR.ROOSEVELT SAID THAT PROBABLY CAME FROM ST.ELIZABETH'S HOSPITAL, WASHINGTON INSTITUTION FOR MENTAL CASES.

WASHINGTON, SEPT. 30-(AP)-PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT DISMISSED TODAY AS A RHETORICAL QUESTION AN INQUIRY WHETHER HE THOUGHT RUSSIA COULD HOLD OUT THIS WINTER AGAINST THE NAZI MILITARY MACHINE.

HE ASKED A REPORTER AT A PRESS CONFERENCE WHETHER HE REALLY EXPECTED HIM TO ANSWER A QUESTION OF THAT KIND.

IN RESPONSE TO ANOTHER QUESTION MR.ROOSEVETT SAID NOBODY KNOWS NOW WHETHER THE TERMS OF THE LEND-LEASE ACT WOULD BE EXTENDED TO RUSSIA.

NEW YORK, SEPT 30-(AP)-THE CITIZENS PEACE COMMITTEE REPORTED TONIGHT THAT 30,000 SIGNATURES HAD BEEN OBTAINED TO A PETITION ASKING PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT "TO USE THE INFLUENCES WHICH HE POSSESSES AS THE RESPECTED REPRESENTATIVE OF THE AMERICAN PEOPLE FOR THE CESSATION OF HOSTILITIES AND THE ACHIEVEMENT OF A JUST PEACE."

MCCLOY, ENROUTE FROM WASHINGTON TO THE WEST COAST, REVEALED THAT THE RUSSIAN PILOTS, ENGINEERS, NAVIGATORS, TECHNICIANS AND INTERPRETERS IN THE MISSION ARE RECEIVING INSTRUCTION IN THE OPERATION OF UNITED STATES WAR PLANES.

F1222AES (ABOVE "OH OUT")

(WX)--INDIANAPOLIS,SEPT.30-(AP)-LESSONS OF THE WAR ABROAD, PARTICULARLY THE FALL OF CRETE, HAVE PROVED THE FALLACY OF DEMANDS FOR A SEPARATE AND INDEPENDENT AIR FORCE, UNDERSECRETARY OF WAR ROBERT P.PATTERSON SAID TONIGHT.

SUCCESS OF A MILITARY MISSION IN WHICH AN AIR FORCE AND A NAVAL OR LAND FORCE ARE USED TOGETHER DEMANDS "MORE THAN VOLUNTARY COOPERATION BETWEEN THE TWO," PATTERSON SAID IN AN ADDRESS FOR THE AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION CONVENTION. "IT REQUIRES UNITY OF COMMAND OVER ALL THE ARMS CONCERNED."

COMMENTING ON THE DRIVES OF NAZI GROUND-AND-AIR TEAMS, PATTERSON SAID THIS WAS "A GAME THAT BOTH SIDES CAN PLAY--IT IS A GAME THAT BOTH SIDES HAVE TO PLAY IF BOTH ARE TO STAY IN THE GAME."

"THE BRITISH DID NOT PLAY IT IN THE CRETAN CAMPAIGN," HE ADDED, "WHICH THEY LOST FOR THE VERY REASON THAT THERE WAS NO UNITY OF COMMAND IN ARMY, NAVY AND AIR FORCE."

THE FORMER FEDERAL CIRCUIT JUDGE SAID MANY CRITICS OF THE ARMY WERE "ILL-INFORMED" IN THE MATTER OF THE SEPARATE AIR FORCE AS WELL AS IN SUCH QUESTIONS AS THE EFFICACY OF THE GARAND RIFLE AND THE CHARGE THAT THIS COUNTRY WAS CREATING AN OLD-FASHIONED "MASS ARMY" OF INFANTRYMEN AND ARTILLERISTS.

"UNITY OF COMMAND AND STEADY TRAINING ARE FAR MORE READILY ATTAINED IF THE AIR FORCE IS ORGANIZED TO SERVE WITH THE NAVAL FORCE OR THE LAND FORCE THAN IF IT IS ORGANIZED AS AN INDEPENDENT FORCE," PATTERSON SAID.

OCT 1 1941

"X X X THIS DOES NOT MEAN THAT THE AIR FORCE IS SUBORDINATED TO THE GROUND FORCE, ANY MORE THAN THE GROUND FORCE IS SUBORDINATED TO THE AIR FORCE. AT THE PRESENT TIME OUR ENTIRE STRENGTH IN THE PANAMA CANAL ZONE, GROUND TROOPS AS WELL AS AIR CORPS, IS UNDER AN AIR COMMANDER."

THE GARAND SEMI-AUTOMATIC RIFLE, HE ADDED, IS "THE BEST

MILITARY RIFLE IN ANY ARMY TODAY," AND HE INVITED DOUBTERS TO "ASK ANY INFANTRYMAN." THE "MASS ARMY" CHARGE HE DISPOSED OF BY NOTHING THAT NEARLY ONE-FOURTH OF ITS TOTAL STRENGTH WILL BE IN THE AIR FORCE AND ONE-SIXTH OF ITS GROUND TROOPS IN TANK DIVISIONS.

"WE HAVE A SMALLER PERCENTAGE OF OUR SOLDIERS IN INFANTRY DIVISIONS THAN HITLER HAS," HE DECLARED.

TEHERAN, IRAN, WEDNESDAY, OCT. 1-(AP)-- AN ANGLO-IRANIAN ALLIANCE UNDER WHICH BRITAIN WOULD GIVE AN IMPLIED PROMISE TO RESTORE IRAN'S INDEPENDENCE AND TERRITORY AFTER THE WAR-- INCLUDING THE RUSSIAN-OCCUPIED NORTHERN PROVINCES NOW THE SCENE OF RED SEPARATIST AGITATION-- WAS REPORTED UNDER NEGOTIATED TODAY.

OCT 1 1941

A DELICATE PROBLEM HAS BEEN RAISED BY RUSSIAN PROPAGANDA AGAINST THE SHAH AND FOR THE SOVIET REPUBLIC AND SOME IRANIANS HAVE EXPRESSED FEAR THAT ALL THE PROVINCES NOW HELD BY RUSSIAN TROOPS WOULD EVENTUALLY BE ANNEXED TO THE U.S.S.R.

RESPONSIBLE DIPLOMATIC SOURCES DECLARE THAT THE RED ARMY HAS OPENED THE JAILS OF NORTHERN IRAN, FREEING ALL PRISONERS INCLUDING COMMUNISTS SENTENCED DURING THE 15-YEAR ANTI-COMMUNIST CAMPAIGN OF THE EX SHAH. SOME COMMUNISTS HAVE RETURNED TO TEHERAN TO REVIVE THEIR PARTY GROUP IN THE CAPITAL AND TO SCATTER LEAFLETS IN THE STREETS.

WHILE SEEKING TO AVOID ANY HINT OF FRICTION WITH THEIR SOVIET ALLIES, THE BRITISH ARE UNDERSTOOD TO BE WORKING TO LAY

THE GROUNDWORK OF A STRONG IRANIAN BUFFER STATE AFTER [illegible] WAR, AND ARE DEFINITELY AGAINST IRAN'S PERMANENT POSITION.

BUT COLONEL JOSIAH C. WEDGWOOD, LABORITE MEMBER, OBSERVED:

"IT WOULD BE OF ENORMOUS ADVANTAGE IF WE HAD EVEN A TOKEN FORCE FIGHTING SIDE BY SIDE WITH RUSSIA.

"ALL THE ARMY BELOW THE RANK OF COLONEL ARE PASSIONATELY DETERMINED TO HAVE A CHANCE OF GETTING AT GERMANY, BUT AND IT IS BEING THWARTED ALL THE TIME. THIS CANNOT BE GOOD FOR THE MORALE OF THE ARMY.

"ALL WAR IS TAKING RISKS, AND THE ENORMOUS BENEFIT OF SHOWING OUR PEOPLE THEY CAN STAND UP TO AND DEFEAT THE GERMANS IS MORE IMPORTANT NOW THAN BEFORE DUNKERQUE."
